This was followed by a baptism service conducted by Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt when two children received the ordinance of baptism, Deborah Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thaxter Shaw, and Jeffrey Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Read (nee Gwen McConnell) of Peterborough.

After the evening service the young people of both Omemee and Bethel churches gathered at the parsonage for the annual fireside service conducted by the minister, Rev. E. V. R. Zufelt.

RSM Ed. Peters Dies In Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—One of Hamilton's best known soldiers who had completed 48 years' service with imperial and Canadian regiments when he retired in 1947, RSM. Edward Peters, died Monday night.

Veteran of three wars and bayonet champion of all colonial regiments in the First World War, he had been a familiar and soldierly figure about the Hamilton armouries for more than 40 years as drill instructor, caretaker and RSM of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

He joined the imperial army in 1899 and was wounded at Kaffenfontein in 1901. He came to Canada after that war and was on parade with the 91st Highlanders in 1904 when the regiment received its colors. He remained with the regiment when it became affiliated with the Argylls.

RSM. Peters served in the First World War with the 120th Battalion but after the war he rejoined his old Scottish unit in the garrison. He was RSM. of the 2nd battalion of the Argylls during the Second World War and directed drill for various units.

Sgt. Maj. Peters is survived by his widow, three sons, and one daughter.

Forced Children Drink Father Jailed Year

CHICAGO (AP)—Charles Baltrunas, 30, Monday was jailed for a year after his seven-year-old daughter testified he had forced her to drink a tumbler full of wine.

In sentencing Baltrunas on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, Judge Victor A. Jula told Baltrunas he was "the most unfit parent I ever have run into in this court."

The daughter, Pamela, told of being forced to drink wine, and Baltrunas' son, Charles Jr., 10, testified his father tried to make him drink wine also. The boy complained to police Sunday night that his sister had been compelled to drink until she became sick.

Police said the mother was committed to a mental hospital seven weeks ago after she tried to take her own life.

Community Choir Sings At Yule Service

BETHANY — (ENS) — At the Christmas service in the United church on Sunday evening the Rev. R. L. Norman took as his theme "The Christmas Miracle" with the text from the gospel of John: "In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God and the Word was God . . . and the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us".

The community choir, under the direction of Harry Preston, led the song service with Miss Jeanne Coulter of Pontypool at the organ. Their Christmas anthems were "Calm On The Listening Ears of Night" and "I Bring You Good Tidings of Great Joy".

The flowers on the communion table were from Mrs. Otto Spencer, in memory of her husband. Two Christmas wreaths on either side of the pulpit were the gift of Mr. Barbara Grant, now living in California, sent in remembrance of her husband, the late Rev. Clifford Grant, who died October 18 and had been the pastor on the Bethany circuit for three months this summer.

'Nut Shell' Gives News, Views At Public School

The Christmas issue of the "Nut Shell", a magazine written and published by the pupils of Prince of Wales School, carries a good deal of wisdom, presented in a simple, matter-of-fact way that is enviable.

The maximum age of any staff member is 12 years. Their literary efforts include editorials, news and sport stories, poetry and humor and the magazine is illustrated with stencilled drawings.

An example of easily comprehended, to-the-point writing, with a much overlooked truth in the concluding paragraph, is an editorial by Lyndia Welch, Grade 5, "The Queen's Journey".

"On November 23 there was great excitement in London. The Queen was leaving London to go on a trip around the world. She went by plane across the Atlantic ocean to Newfoundland. She only stayed in Newfoundland a few hours." It concludes:

FEARLESS EDITORS

The "Nut Shell" is a fearless paper—it prints its readers' protests with no restraint regardless of consequences. In reply to a request that children not play hockey on the road, a letter to the editor appears:

"We have heard Constable Mackay's announcement. We have all played hockey on the road for over two years now.

"If we can't play on the road, where are we to play? Are we to play on people's lawns and wreck them, or better still, on one of the city's parks and be left to pay for damages? Not on your life"

Nor is the "Nut Shell" a snob machine, hiding its frailities behind a mask of prideful scorn. In the humor section appears this little dab of comic realism.

Little sister: "Most of the stories in your paper this month are very poor."

Little brother (editor of the school paper): "I know it, but most of the boys who wrote 'em sent stamps for their return—and I needed the stamps."

Two pages of the Christmas edition are dedicated to poetry. Some of the poems are short, others long. All of them show effort and originality. Perhaps two, one-stanze poems, both entitled "Christmas", and written by two Grade 5 pupils will indicate a measure of the talent. The first one is by Gary Wilkinson:

"Christmas comes but once a year,
For all the little children dear,
They love it so, they want it quick,
They just can't wait to see Saint Nick."

The second is by David Gaskill:

"Christmas comes but once a year,
With all its gladness and good cheer.
But let us remember, on Christmas morn
That little baby Jesus was born."

Holiday Greetings Sent To Korean Troops

TOKYO (AP)—The commander of British Commonwealth forces in Korea today sent holiday greetings to the men of his command, including the Canadian 25th Brigade, and expressed the hope that future Christmases will be spent "in our homes in the manner traditional to our British peoples."

Canal Dispute Under Review

They met at a private luncheon at the Pakistan embassy given by the Pakistani charge d'affaires, Maj. Tyeb Hussein, who served as host to British and Egyptian negotiators before the talks broke down in the fall.

It was Stevenson's first talk with the Egyptian vice-president since his return Thursday from a six-month sick leave in England. Last Saturday Stevenson saw Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzy in the first exchange of views on the dispute since negotiations became deadlocked Oct. 21.

Also present at today's luncheon was Maj. Salah Salem, Egypt's national guidance minister, Abdel Rahman Haky, Egypt's ambassador to London, and Ahmed Hussein, ambassador to Washington.

Tyeb Hussein said he brought the two sides together because he is "most anxious" to see a settlement of the dispute.

Peterboro' Lumber Display Attracts Many Children

They have been attracting hundreds of visitors, especially parents bringing the smallest members of the family to see the animated wonders which Howard Doolittle, sales manager, has contrived with the help of his staff as a community feature for the Yuletide.

Reports say that the fathers of the families are willing to linger long looking at the winter countryside with two electric railways and their trains, a major highway with trucks travelling quite a range of road. The setting copies rural life down to the detail of flashing signal lights at a highway crossing, and apparently the highway trucks have fallen into human ways and are racing a freight train. Hills and tunnels add variety to the rail route, and the younger children outside the window shout their glee as they watch a toy train vanish into a long tunnel and then rush out again at the farther end.

MADE BY HERB SMITH

Mr. Doolittle said this window was largely the work of Herb Smith, plant superintendent, who built it in his basement during many evenings, and assembled the mechanics for the pleasure of children at the Christmas season.

Classes of pupils accompanied by their teachers have been visiting the PLC show. Some of them were from May's School, St. Anne's and Prince of Wales. Even the young folk of the senior grades at Prince of Wales attended Monday.

Neither by intent or design the huge rural scenes with their lights and color have been recently broadening in effect. Some of the older children enquired about plywoods. The interest led into the lumber yard when Bud LaPlante took over with explanations.

One idea inspired another: appreciation of the timber resources of Canada; prevention of forest fires; reforestation and conservation. The spectacle for juveniles has acquired a mission purpose, but only when groups of school children call. Mr. Doolittle is confident many of them have been acquiring a more intelligent interest in lumber and its uses from their incidental classes of the last week or more.

SECOND WINDOW

The other spacious window makes use of the gnomes of a year ago simulating the cutting of trees, and logs, hauling to a mill, and then trucking away the output of lumber.

The PLC continues until the Monday after New Year's, with the exception of Christmas Day and New Year's Day. Those are holidays for the entire staff, and the youngsters will probably have enough amusement at home without the distraction of display windows on Monaghan Road.

Young 'Tarzan' Hanged In U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — Alfred Charles Whiteway, 22-year-old "Tarzan" who raped and stabbed to death two 'teen-age girls, was hanged early today at Wandsworth prison.

The prosecution also accused him of having raped and stabbed Christine Reed, 18, who had been riding her bicycle with Barbara. But under the British legal system he was charged with only one murder.

With Whiteway executed, Scotland Yard now can close several police files of attacks on women and five cases of a naked or near-naked man accosting women. Police are sure Whiteway was responsible for many assaults on women.

Find Substitute For Work If Retirement To Be Happy

CHICAGO (AP)—If you would be happier after you retire from your job you had better try to find a substitute for work. Watching TV or following an isolating hobby will not do the trick.

This is one of the preliminary conclusions reached by sociologists at the University of Chicago who have a three-year study under way in Florida.

First reports on the study appear today in the American Journal of Sociology in an issue devoted entirely to the subject of growing older.

TWO KINDS OF LEISURE

L. C. Michelon, Chicago's assistant professor of industrial relations, says there is a difference between the leisure of the job-work activities and the full-time holder merely pausing between activity of retirement.

"Leisure of the individual busy at work is welcome," said Michelon, "because there is the knowledge that there will be a return to the vital business of work. With retirement, the individual must live for himself, rather than worrying about a job or what other people require of him."

The important thing about vital activities, he noted, is not skill or time-consuming features, but whether it is in the mind of the individual a substitute for work.

Lindsay Lawyer Beats Parking Ticket Rap

LINDSAY (ENS) It's not very often that anyone appears in court to fight a summons for a parking meter violation.

It's even more uncommon when a lawyer appears in his own defence; but H. E. Richardson did just that Monday and had the charge dismissed.

Mr. Richardson answered the summons when a number of violators were cited by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

He said he was appearing as an "amicus curiae" — friend of the court — not as an accused person or solicitor, and asked if it was not true that summonses issued in blank — unsigned — were not null and void. Magistrate Gee agreed, chuckling, and dismissed the case.

Mr. Richardson explained that he had previously asked for a dismissal because the summons was made out in the name of the King. His request had been refused because he had acknowledged the validity of the summons, in effect, by appearing in court. On Monday he made the point that he had qualified this move by claiming to be a disinterested party to the trial.

In Red Hands 3 Years Turns To Ministry

FOSTERS, Mich. (AP) — Eugene L. Inman, who felt the hand of God in the battlefields of Korea and through the cold, hungry horror of a Communist prison camp, has decided to dedicate his life to the ministry.

The 22-year-old ex-soldier returned to his home here Sept. 21 after three years in the hands of th Reds. Soon after Christmas he and his bride of two weeks, Rosemary, will leave for Kankakee, Ill., where he will begin a Nazarene ministerial course.

Although Inman's decision to devote his life to religion came only recently, it was nurtured by the sight of death and the brain-washing of the Reds.

It began Nov. 30, 1950, in the grim days of the war. Inman and some of his fellow soldiers were ambushed. Of 230 men on that battleground, says Inman, he was the only survivor.

Surrounded, he got down on his knees and prayed. "I was afraid," he said, "but suddenly I felt something like a hand on my shoulder and I wasn't afraid any more."

He was soon recognized as a religious "reactionary."

"They waved pistols in my face and threatened to kill me. They said, 'show us your God — if he really exists point him out to us.'"

He had a Bible, and the Reds knew it. They tried to get it, by persuasion, by threats. Finally, they made him stand in the snow for three hours, but he wouldn't give up the Bible.

How could some resist the brain-washing and others fail? How could some live through the mental and physical privation?

"Well," answers Inman, "if you were in a room with a dead friend next to you, and another who was soon to die, could you empty yourself of all feeling for them? If you couldn't, you couldn't have taken it.

"You had to have something besides the ability to purge yourself of all feeling to withstand the pressure. You had to have courage, not simple battlefield courage, but the courage of conviction."

Pope Will Make Annual Broadcast

The Vatican press office announced today that the message will be rebroadcast in 25 languages during a three-day period beginning Dec. 24, immediately after the Pope speaks at 11 a. m. (5 a. m. EST).

The annual speech has become an important fixture of the Pope's often-repeated appeals for peace. This year's message, Vatican sources say, is expected once again to touch upon the need for peace, as have each of the 14 Christmas addresses he has given since 1939.

Pope Pius will speak in Italian. His adress will last about half an hour. It will be broadcast by Vatican radio on wavelengths of 31.10, 25.67, 25.55 and 19.84 metres.

The English version will be broadcast on these same wavelengths beginning at 11:40 a. m. (5:40 a. m. EST).

Night Club Singer Commits Suicide

NEW YORK (AP)—Aileen Riley, at the end of a nightclub and television singing career, Monday summoned death for the second time in seven years. This time death answered.

Her body, clad in red pyjamas, was found in her Greenwich Village apartment with this farewell note:

Police listed the death as an apparent suicide from sleeping pills and said that just seven years ago this month she had taken an overdose of similar tablets in a suicide pact with her elderly mother. The mother died but Miss Riley, then 37, recovered.

Apple Crop Low; Growers Still Hopeful

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Nova Scotia's apple industry, now producing only a fraction of its former yearly average of 2,000,000 barrels, is optimistic about the future.

Growers who uprooted trees and made a major switch in varieties to overcome post-war market problems, feel their efforts will soon be rewarded.

The 1953 Annapolis Valley crop was small to begin with and a Labor Day gale cut it still further to 400,000 barrels. The local market absorbed all the fruit available but in an average year there is a surplus.

This market problem is the big one which growers so far haven't been able to solve to their satisfaction. Before the war about 85 per cent of the valley's exports went to the United Kingdom. This market was lost during the war and never regained.

CHANGE IN POLICY

In 1949 the orchardists started a major tree-pulling plan, designed to replace export varieties with apples more suited to the domestic market.

With government financial assistance about 900,000 trees were removed. Thousands of more desirable types were planted. And about 400,000 other trees were grafted with desirable sprouts.

Now, for the 2,000 growers along the 100-mile land of Evangeline, the turning point has arrived.

PREDICTS U.S. MARKETS

The Post Road says that the next few years should see a revival of production in many valley orchards held more or less in reserve since 1950. It also predicts a United States market, especially for canning varieties, and notes that sale of canned products has picked up

Stuart Nichols, president of the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers Association, said the valley is capable of several times its present production.

Everything is available, he said, except the necessary markets.

Yeggs Net $1,000

RIDGETOWN (CP) — A safe stolen Sunday night from a store here was found Monday beside a nearby road. It had been smashed open and more than $1,000 was missing. Police said the thieves apparently carried off the safe in a car or truck, smashed it open and dumped it.

MAMMOTH CHRISTMAS GREETING —The Merchandise Mart, the world's largest mercantile building, located in Chicago, Ill., is ablaze with multi-colored lights to become a mammoth Christmas greeting display, enhanced by its own reflection in the Chicago River. "Merry Christmas" is spelled out in letters two storeys high, with strings of multi-colored lights forming a 12-storey Christmas tree and a score of smaller trees . Floodlights outline the structure of the building, and stars wink on and off in various points.

Widow Tells Details Of Stabbing

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Ann Thibideau, wife of ex-wrestler Arthur (Terry) Thibideau, 37, who was slain at a drinking party in a Toronto home Dec. 6, broke down in tears as she testified in court Monday.

Testifying for the crown, Mrs. Thibideau described the melee she said broke out when her brother-in-law referred insultingly to her two children.

TRIO DRINKING

She said she and both men had been drinking. She said her husband knocked his brother down in the scuffle and then Roy jumped from the floor and stabbed Arthur with a hunting knife.

"There was such a look of pain and shock on his (Arthur's) face I remember it so distinctly."

The widow then told how her husband staggered out the door and tumbled down the stairs.

Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow is hearing the case which was adjourned until today.

Santa Visits Havelock Sunday School Party

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The annual Christmas concert presented Friday night by the Sunday school of St. John's Anglican church was a very successful event.

H. W. Roche officiated as chairman and on behalf of the superintendent Mrs. George Walker and the Sunday school teachers who were assisted by Mrs. D. Kirk and Mrs. L. H. Cooke extended a welcome and the season's greetings to the audience.

The program opened with a chorus by the school "Merry Christmas," followed by a recitation of welcome by Carolyn Clarke. The primary class presented a Santa Claus acrostic and a chorus.

Recitations were given by David Harris, Bobbie Sanderson, Garry Goadsby and Bonnie Walker. The GA girls sang "Silent Night." Solos were sung by Johnnie Fox, and Diane Sanderson, Five dialogues, a tableau by the senior girls "The Christmas Star" and several choruses by the school completed the program.

ALL GET A TURKEY

For once the hawker's cry of "Everybody wins a prize" is really coming true. Employees of the Power department of CGE will all trudge home Christmas Eve with a 10-15 pound turkey under an arm, each the winner of a lucky draw. Reason: every few weeks the Power people contribute to a gift-party fund, and upon inspection, found that their reserve was quite high. A turkey for each employee was purchased and on the afternoon of December 24, they will all draw their number and pick up a fowl dinner.

Keene Sunday School Christmas Concert

KEENE (ENS)—A well-attended Sunday school Christmas party was held in the basement of the United church Friday evening, with Fred Gall acting as chairman.

The program opened with a carol sing-song, led by Alfred Fletcher, with Mrs. Alfred Fletcher at the piano. A welcome song was sung by Craig McIntyre and David Hawkes, followed by a chorus by the primary class.

Isobel Irwin gave a recitation, the nursery pupils sang a song and Janet Wilson recited. Marion Hawkes, Malcolm McIntyre, Peter Mackness and Julie Nelson sang a quartet, as did Ruth Elmhirst, Frank Elmhirst, Duncan Patterson and Julie Nelson.

Ronnie Tuthill gave a recitation. A peasant dance was put on by the girls of Mrs. Ross McIntyre's class. The primary class sang a song. Harry Wismer recited and a group of girls sang a chorus.

Three films were presented and Santa Claus arrived to distribute gifts and bags of nuts and candy to the boys and girls from a decorated tree.

Reach No Agreement At Timmins Meeting

TIMMINS (CP)—Representatives of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines and the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) held a three-hour meeting Monday in an attempt to settle a strike of 1,500 miners.

Mayor J. W. Spooner of Timmins, chairman of the meeting, acted as spokesman after it broke up.

"No agreement was reached," he said. "There are certain points at issue which I wish to explore further before considering the advisability of arranging further meetings."

Hollinger is the largest of eight gold mines hit by strikes in the Timmins area.

Visitors Pour Into Auckland As Capital Prepares For Queen

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters)—Visitors surged into New Zealand's "Queen city" as preparations were completed for the welcome to the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, due Wednesday morning aboard the liner Gothic.

Pictures of the royal couple and signs of welcome took precedence over traditional Christmas decorations. Police were revising their plans as visitors crowded into Auckland at a rate far greater than they had expected.

The royal couple will spend 39 days in New Zealand before rejoining the ship at the southern fishing port of Bluff for the trip to Australia.

From Auckland on Christmas Day the Queen will make the sovereign's traditional broadcast to the people of the Commonwealth, marking the first time this annual message has been broadcast from outside the British Isles.

A highlight of the tour will come Jan. 12 when a session of the New Zealand Parliament will be opened for the first time by a reigning monarch.

Newspaper, radio and movie features on the royal visit have pushed popular excitement almost to the bursting point. Price for a "room with a view" in Auckland has mounted to £50, and already the best tent-pitching spots and trailer sites overlooking Bluff harbor have been snapped up for the royal departure Jan. 31.

FULL-SCALE REHEARSAL

In Wellington Monday, members of Parliament went through a full-scale rehearsal for the state opening next month, with a young woman army officer standing in for the Queen.

Coming of Christmas coincides here with the beginning of the southern hemisphere summer, and New Zealanders are delighted that the Queen will be touring their country at the best time of year.

The weatherman, however, is predicting that it will be cloudy and windy when the Queen and duke arrive.

Mine Strike Agreement Now Reached

Call Special Meeting For Ratification By Union Members

TORONTO (CP) — A basis has been reached for settlement of a strike at the big Hollinger mine, Canada's largest gold producer, but there seemed little likelihood today that the 1,500 striking miners will be back to work until the New Year.

The union vote on the new terms is expected to take place Sunday.

The agreement was announced Tusday after a government-sponsored meeting here of officials of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines and union officials.

Today P. C. Finlay, company secretary, said few miners may return before the New Year. He estimated it will be four months before the mine can get back to pre-strike production.

The strike lasted 12 weeks.

Union officials announced in Timmins Tuesday night that the employees, members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), will consider the agreement Thursday night.

But in Toronto C. H. Millard, national director, said the union likely will ask for a meeting with Hollinger officials here either today or Thursday to put the general terms of the agreement into contract language. The local membership in Timmins will then hold a meeting, probably Sunday, to ratify it, he said.

The agreement, reached here Tuesday, is seen as pattern for settlements which would start a back-to-work movement for 7,200 miners in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec.

REACTION MIXED

Reactions to the agreement providing a five-cent-an hour increase and an 18-month agreement from the day of signing, were mixed. The news was cheered by Timmins residents.

"A Godsend to the community," Mayor Wilf Spooner of Timmins said.

Premier Frost said it was "a fine Christmas present for the people of the area and the people of Ontario generally."

The union said it accepted the agreement "reluctantly." Jules Timmins, Hollinger president, said the terms "in the end may not be in the best interests of all parties concerned."

Other terms of the agreement, reached in the offices of Labor Minister Daley, called for all conditions in the mine existing at present to remain in force; the men to be returned to work as quickly as they can be absorbed.

Decline Comment

OTTAWA (CP)— The external affairs department today declined comment on a report from London that 10 Canadians are among a group of civilians imprisoned in Communist China without conviction for any crime. A spokesman said comment by the department might prejudice the position of any Canadians in Communist China.

Receive Letter In Burgess' Handwriting

LONDON (AP) — A Christmas letter in the handwriting of Guy Burgess, British diplomat who vanished 2½ years ago, was delivered at his mother's home today. She said it was the first real evidence that her son still is alive.

Burgess and his foreign office colleague, Donald Maclean, an American affairs expert, disappeared May 25, 1951. There has been wide speculation that they fled to the East to help the Communist world in its cold war against the West.

Burgess' mother, Mrs. Evelyn Burgess Bassett, said she was "absolutely certain" her son wrote the letter signed in his name.

"It was a wonderful Christmas present," she said. "It is the first real sign we have had that he is still alive."

HAPPY LETTER

A friend of Mrs. Bassett told reporters it was "quite a happy letter" containing ordinary Christmas greetings.

"There was no indication in it of where Guy may be," the friend added.

Contents of the letter were not published.

The penned date of the message was simply "November." It was postmarked Monday night, however, and in the dockyard area of London.

PERHAPS REPOSTED

The lapse of time between the writing and the mailing of the letter suggested the possibility that Burgess sent it to a friend here to be reposted.

Raid Office Party, Lock Up 14

Stiff Crackdown By Police In Toronto Area

TORONTO —(CP)— Police swooped down on an office party in an auto-wrecking firm early today, arresting the owner on a charge of permitting drunkenness and 13 other persons as found-ins.

Officers said it was the start of a stiff police crackdown to enforce warnings by the Ontario liquor control board that drinking parties in offices are illegal, even at Christmas.

Arrested for permitting drunkenness was Mitchel Forbes, owner of the Greenwood Auto Parts. In addition 13 employees of the firm —all men—were taken into custody and police said they confiscated eight cases of beer and a quantity of liquor.

Officers said the raid followed the arrest of three men found staggering along the street near the scene, trying to make their way home from the party.

In all police said there were more than 60 arrests in connection with liquor offences Tuesday night and early today. A total of 40 were held as common drunks, five for driving while impaired and one for drunk driving. There were three raids on suspected bootlegging establishments and four were held as found-ins.

Traffic officials said Toronto motorists seem to be ignoring the Christmas warning: If you drive, don't drink."

"We're not fooling," said Inspector Robert Kerr. "There have been 21 arrests since Saturday for driving with impaired ability."

Those convicted of impaired and drunken driving are in for harsh treatment in police court. Magistrate J. L. Prentice announced Tuesday that starting immediately convicted drunken and impaired drivers will get the maximum fine of $500 and second offenders will get 14 days in jail with no option.

Furnace Blamed For Second Fire In Month

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today Vernon Cleogh, a 37-year-old cripple, died in a rooming-house fire Tuesday night because he was unable to find his crutches. Five other persons were injured, one seriously. Officers identified the body of the man who had one leg in a cast, about six hours after the fire. His pockets contained only two books of matches bearing the words "good luck". Police said Cleogh came to Toronto from Nova Scotia.

It was the second fire within a month in the old three-storey building at Jarvis and Shuter streets. Several weeks ago a fire broke out on the ground floor but was quickly put out.

An over-heated furnace is believed responsible for the fire which caused an estimated $8,000 damage to the brick building in which about 12 persons are known to have rented rooms.

One man was reported to have leaped from a second-storey window and landed in a crumpled heap on the sidewalk below.

SAW INJURED WOMEN

An eyewitness, Austin Gadbois, employed at a service station across the street, said:

"I saw a woman run out of the building with her clothing burned off. Another woman was lying on the sidewalk outside the burning building.

"Her leg was doubled beneath her and she was screaming horribly."

The fire was discovered by detective Jack Smith who had gone to make a routine check of the building with its new owners—Peter Low and Rene Lasnier of Montreal. Smith opened the cellar door and was met by a sheet of flames.

Armed Forces Will Have Gay Christmas

LONDON (CP) — Some 10,000 Canadian men and women service personnel in Europe, "preserving the peace for which all people pray," will celebrate Christmas at least as heartily as the homefolk and probably with far more variety.

The emphasis, regardless of the country, will be on church, children and good cheer.

The occasion was underlined Tuesday by Brig. W. A. B. Anderson, commanding officer of the 6,000-man 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade group at Soest, Germany, when he said in a special Christmas message that he shares the hope that "our efforts in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization community will result in preserving the peace for which all people pray."

WARM HOSPITALITY

Plans for the brigade and the RCAF bases in Britain, Germany and France indicate that warm Canadian hospitality will be embellished by local custom and that hundreds of Canadians will celebrate in French, German and British homes, or at the gay spots of Europe.

More than 2,400 children have been or will be feasted and entertained when Dec. 25 passes, a survey showed Orphanages, grim reminders of the Second World War throughout Europe, were priority targets for gifts of clothing, parties, visits by Santa Claus and general solid Canadian good-heartedness.

Louis Jacquinot Withdraws As Candidate

VERSAILLES (AP) — Conservative Independent Louis Jacquinot withdrew today as candidate for the French presidency and his place on the 12th ballot was taken by Rene Cote, an Independent Republican.

Cote faced Socialist Marcel-Edmont Naegelen. The switch was announed after last-minute attempts at a compromise which would permit the name of retiring president Vincent Auriol to be put before the weary congress fell through.

NO SOLUTION

There was no solution in sight to the political deadlock, now in its seventh day. As fog and rain shrouded the ancient palace of Versailles, there was talk that the marathon voting might continue through the Christmas holidays.

The warring political parties, split on such issues as religion, labor policy and the rearmament of West Germany, have been unable to agree on a candidate neutral enough to win election, even by default.

Laniel, who came within 22 votes of victory Sunday night and topped the poll on the last eight of the 10 ballots before today's, dropped out after it became apparant that he could not pick up support from middle-of-the-road factions.

Before voting began today, his independent party held a caucus and chose Jacquinot, a 55-year-old political veteran of many French cabinets, including Gen. Charles de Gaulle's wartime government-in-exile.

Richmond Police Catch 2 Convicts In Hotel Room

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP)—Richmond police overpowered in a hotel room here early today the last two of 13 long-term convicts who escaped from Southern Michigan prison last Saturday. Captain John Rizio of the Richmond police said the two men admitted they are Roman Usiondek, 37, psychopathic killer, and Robert Dowling, 33, a burglar. Rizio and three other policemen cornered the two men in a hotel room after discovering their escape automobile on a Richmond street Tuesday night.

They were taken to the Richmond city jail for questioning.

STOLEN CAR SPOTTED

Capt. Rizio said the men arrived in Richmond Tuesday night. Their car, with Michigan licence plates, was noticed on a downtown street at 1:30 a. m. It was littered with cigaret butts and bread. A check with Michigan police showed it as stolen.

The occupants were traced to a downtown hotel. Capt Rizio and three officers knocked on the door of their room. Dowling opened the door, then went to a bureau to get what he said were his identification papers.

Rizio said Dowling reached under a hat and pulled out a .32 revolver. Rizio grabbed his wrist and overpowered him.

The three other officers grabbed Usiondedk.

Queen Accepts Raincoat Loan

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth, obviously recalling a startling exhibition of gallantry earlier in her Commonwealth tour, today accepted the loan of a raincoat against a heavy downpour and lightly dubbed its bestower "Sir Walter Raleigh."

The incident occurred as the sovereign stood on a stand in front of the Auckland town hall to reply to the roaring welcome on her arrival. She was clad only in a light silk dress as Mayor J. H. Luxford read his speech of welcome.

As the rain worsened, Deputy Mayor Keith N. Buttle hastily took off his plastic raincoat and passed it to Prime Minister Sidney Holland, who wrapped it about the dampened Queen. Turning, the Queen murmured a "thank you," adding with a slight smile—"Sir Walter Raleigh."

Buttle said later that he whipped his coat off after he saw the Queen shivering, and added: "I shall never lose possession of that coat."

2 Inches Snow In Sarnia Area

SARNIA (CP)—More than two inches of snow fell in this area Tuesday and department of highways crews were busy with plows sand and salt to keep highways open.

About three inches fell in some areas near Wingham and highway crews reported heavy drifting.

In and about London, afternoon rain and snow turned to ice as temperatures dropped, making driving dangerous.

Police reported dozens of accidents in western Ontario. Three women were treated at Sarnia for injuries suffered in separate motor accidents and three persons suffered minor injuries in a crash at Chatham.

Ontario Legislature Will Open Earlier

TORONTO (CP) — A cabinet source indicated Tuesday the Ontario legislature will open its 1954 session either Feb. 11 or 18.

The date is much earlier than usual because Easter next year falls later than usual—April 18.

The source also said recent speculation on proposed cabinet changes was unfounded. It had been suggested that two ailing ministers, Agriculture Minister Thomas and Lands Minister Gemmell, may be replaced.

Two Trenton Planes Join Boat Search

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — Two RCAF dakota search planes took off from this air force training base today to search for a U. S. fishing boat missing in Lake Erie with three men aboard.

Officers said a search of the Canadian side of the lake was requested by the U. S. coast guard at Cleveland when a search of American waters failed to turn up any trace of the craft.

The missing vessel was not immediately identified but is out of Conneaut, Ohio, and has been missing since Tuesday.

Liner Fire Inquiry Adjourned To Jan. 5

LIVERPOOL (CP) — A government inquiry into the loss by fire last January of the liner Empress of Canada stood adjourned today until Jan. 5, 1954. Hearings have already lasted 14 days.

Asked whether the number of fires aboard ship have increased compared with pre - war days, Greenslade said there has been an increase of 4½ to 1.

Broadcast At 10 a.m.

TORONTO (CP)—The CBC said today that the Queen's Christmas Day broadcast to the Commonwealth from Auckland, N. Z., will be broadcast at 10 a. m. EST on all its networks and to off-network stations.

Military Pact With Yugoslavia

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times said today in a Paris dispatch that "an extremely important military undertaking" has been agreed upon in substance by Greece and Turkey with their Communist — but anti - Moscow neighbor — Yugoslavia.

The dispatch, by C. L. Sulzberger, added that the accord has not yet been made final by a binding treaty pending final disposition of the Italian-Yugoslav Trieste dispute. Greece and Turkey are allied with Italy in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"Nevertheless," the dispatch said "it can be stated the military and political authorities of Belgrade, Athens and Ankara are of one mind that an attack by Bulgaria or through Bulgaria (by another nation's forces) upon the territory of Yugoslavia, Greece or Turkey shall be regarded by all three Balkan neighbors as an attack upon the territory of all three of them."

The arrangement would not bind Greece or Turkey to aid Yugoslavia if the latter were to take the initiative in committing aggression against Bulgaria, the dispatch added. "Nor, it is contended, would it be obligatory for Athens and Ankara to aid Belgrade in case Yugoslavia was attacked by, or through, Romania, Albania or Hungary."

Luxembourg PM Dies Known In Canada

LUXEMBOURG (CP) — Pierre Dupong, long-time prime minister of this tiny European state, died today at the age of 68. He was well known in Canada for his wartime work in Montreal as head of Luxembourg's provisional government-in-exile which had its headquarters in that city.

The veteran politician, prime minister since 1937 and a member of Parliament since 1915, was taken to hospital last Friday after breaking his leg in a fal.

During the Second World War, Dupong travelled widely in North America and organized the government-in-exile in Montreal. Later he shifted his administration to London, where the Grand Duchess Charlotte, ruler of the tiny principality adjacent to France, Belgium and Germany, had taken refuge from the Nazi occupation of her land.

Civil government was restored to Luxembourg in 1944.

May Cancel Dances Too Hot For Queen

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—State officials in charge of royal tour arrangements for the Queen have a major problem: To dance or not to dance?

Sumptuous balls have been arranged at some cities she will visit but word has leaked out that the Queen does not relish the prospect of dancing on hot "down under" summer nights.

A royal tour spokesman said the Queen has not requested cancellation of state balls and the final decision will be left to the states concerned.

News of the Queen's attitude came from G. A. G. Harper, New Zealand royal tour director. Press reports quote him as saying the Queen had referred to the oppressive summer heat as unfit for dancing.

With temperatures soaring above 100 degrees and hotter weather to come, Australian cities are expected to either cancel balls or modify them so that the Queen will not face any strain.

Ex-Employee Held In Holdup

WINNIPEG (CP)—Charges of conspiracy to rob were laid today against two men in connection with the theft of more than $26,000 from two Winipeg Free Press employees in a daylight holdup Monday.

They are Alexander Bolonchuk, 31-year-old former Free Press employee, and Alexander Wilson, 29.

The men were remanded a week without plea. Bail was set at $30,000 each.

A third man also is being held, police said. The crown prosecutor said another charge may be laid today.

It was not known whether any of the loot was recovered.

Two bandits held up a Free Press cashier and an office boy at gunpoint while they were entering the company garage from inside the building. The two employees were taking week-end receipts to the bank.

Soviet Ambassador Malik Has Visit With Churchill

A foreign office spokesman said Malik was making his first "courtesty call" on Eden since his appointment last May as ambassador here.

Malik returned here a week ago from New York where he attended the United Nations General Assmbly. Before that he was unable to see Eden because of the foreign secretary's illness.

There was immediate speculation that Malik may have discussed with Eden the Russian attitude towards the Western invitation for a Big Four foreign ministers' conference in West Berlin on Jan. 4. A Russian reply is expected here soon.

Informed sources said Malik may soon be returning to Moscow for consultations.

Churchill and Malik are believed to have discussed Russia's acceptance of President Eisenhower's call for secret talks on ways of easing the atom weapons race.

They also are believed to have discussed the prospects of reaching an East-West agreement over European security and reunification of Germany. These questions will be the main topics at the forthcoming Berlin conference.

U.S. To Send Soviet Note Welcoming Atomic Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States probably will send Russia a new note soon welcoming its avowed agreement to atomic talks and suggesting ways to get them started.

Top officials, who are still going over Moscow's Monday message with a magnifying glass, have yet to decide precisely how the U.S. should proceed. Some authorities believe an exchange through normal diplomatic channels will be undertaken.

However, planning is going forward in the state department and atomic energy commission on the assumption that secret talks among the world atomic powers will open up under the sponsorship of the United Nations disarmament commission in late January.

A preliminary exchange of views which could be carried on by ambassadors, or perhaps by State Secretary Dulles and Foreign Minister Molotov at the projected Berlin conference, might serve to clear the air of misunderstandings if any exist, officials said.

The Russian note conditionally agreeing to talks said President Eisenhower's proposal for an international atomic energy pool for peaceful purposes needed clarification—apparently on the point of what the president would do about weapons control.

Dulles Tuesday said the world might see a "recession of the horror of atomic warfare" in 1954 as a result of the American proposal to revive atomic talks and Russian agreement to participate.

Authorities said two major moves now must be worked out in detail:

1. The international atomic agency which Eisenhower proposed in a UN speech Dec. 8 must be blueprinted so that the U.S. will be able to spell out precisely what kind of operation it would like to see, with what kind of management, and with what safeguards against use for war of any atomic materials contributed for peaceful uses.

2. An answer must be worked out to what appears to be a modified Soviet proposal which probably represents the Kremlin's "new approach" to the problem of atomic control. Moscow's note served notice that the Soviet government would propose in any talks held that all participants pledge themselves not to use atomic weapons.

Snowballs Sell Like Hotcakes

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Snowballs sold like hotcakes Tuesday at a nickel each. They had been brought in under refrigeration to give a touch of Christmas cheer. Most native youngsters have never played with the stuff.

The snowballs were neatly wrapped in transparent plastic.

The snow was made in an ice plant and brought to the intersection in a refrigerated truck. Hollywood had a high temperature of 66.

Thieves Get $4,000 In Liquor Store Job

HAMILTON (CP) — Thieves broke into the liquor store in Dundas during the night, blew the safe, and escaped with an estimated $4,000.

George Weavers, manager, discovered the break-in when he went to open the store this morning.

He said he would not know whether any stock had been taken until a complete check had been made.

Police chief Earl Jack said the safe had been blown apart, and that some paper money had been blown into shreds.

Send Troops Unsnarl Mail

PARIS (Reuters)—Troops moved into Paris railroad stations today to try to unsnarl the tangle of Christmas and New Year's mail clogging the platforms as the result of a strike by postal workers. About 9,000 sacks of mail had accumulated at Gare de Lyons.

The mail piled up after postal sorters and loaders walked off their jobs Tuesday night in response to a three-day "warning" strike call from both Communist-led and independent unions. Handling of Christmas packages and the New Year's cards traditionally sent by the French is expected to be disrupted.

The government's growing labor woes also included a strike of airport workers which has brought international air traffic almost to a standstill, and a walkout by 80 per cent of France's tax collectors.

The postal strike spread this morning to about half the workers in the International Telegraph Service, which also operates under the postal ministry, while mail truck drivers and post office cashiers considered joining in.

Weight Lifter Dies In Fire, House Destroyed

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Jack Fogerty, 52-year-old former weight-lifter, died Tuesday in a fire which demolished a frame house.

Alfred Farrell, caretaker in Mr. Fogerty's home about five miles north of here, said Mr. Fogerty, formerly known in northern Ontario as the mighty mite for his feats of strength, came home about 5 a.m. and demanded that Mr. Farrel and his wife drink with him.

Mr. Farrell said they refused. He said Mr. Fogerty became "abusive" and Mrs. Farrell took her children, two 12-year-old twins and an eight-year-old girl, away from the house to the nearby home of an older son.

FIRE BREAKS OUT

Mr. Farrell said that Mr. Fogerty then went into his bedroom and the fire broke out almost immediately. Mr. Farrell ran out to call the fire department and when he returned the house was ablaze.

Mr. Farrell said he later began a search for his wife and the children. Police said the children were found at the son's home but that the woman did not stay there. She was found about six hours later walking on a road several miles from the scene of the blaze.

Mr. Fogerty, just over five feet tall, entertained district residents 25 years ago with feats of strength. He could lift the front end of an automobile off the ground.

3-Hour Argument Slated On Power Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Court of Appeals today scheduled three hours of argument on three suits seeking to halt New York state's participation in the $600,000,000 St. Lawrence river power project with Ontario.

Seeking to block New York from joining with Ontario in the project are the American Lake Ontario Shippers and Land Protective Association, the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association, and Public Power and Water Corporation, Trenton, N. J.

The Lake Ontario group contends that the development in the International Rapids section of the river might raise the level of Lake Ontario and thereby damage shore property. It seeks assurance that the level of the lake will not rise above 237.38 feet and contends that to guarantee such a level further engineering studies are necessary. This would have the effect of remanding the project to the U. S. Federal Power Commission, which earlier granted New York, a licence to build the generating facilities.

The state says, however, that it has not been proven that the project would raise the lake's level. And if it does, New York adds, the state already has a legal responsibility to pay claims arising from such damages.

Thinks Canada Making Mistake About Oslo

LONDON (CP)—Under the heading "Mistake of the Year?" A Canadian columnist today expressed doubts about Canada's entry in the world hockey championships at Oslo in February.

"Is Canada making a big mistake in sending Toronto Lyndhursts to the world championships?" Bob Giddens, formerly of Ottawa, asks in his weekly column in Ice Hockey World, a London publication.

Giddens, who has been watching British hockey since the 1930s, suggests Canada should send over a good junior team from St. Michael's College in Toronto. He adds:

"Wouldn't it be a sad blow to Canada if Russia in her first appearance in world championship competition should beat . . . us? Why . . . send a team that doesn't even rate top intermediate."

Pair Guilty Of Slaying

NOTRE DAME DE STANBRIDGE, Que. (CP)—A burly, former provincial policeman and his partner in a punchboard-distributing business Tuesday night were found criminally responsible for the slaying of a 53-year-old bank manager during an abortive holdup Friday in this eastern townships municipality.

The pair, Marcel Bouchard, 28, and Adrien Lebeau, 38, former member of the provincial force, both of Granby, were arrested 48 hours after bank manager Ovila Courtville was shot to death in the village bank.

Courville, father of four children, blurted a description of the man who shot him, to his brother, before he died.

Dr. Gerard Archambault of St. Johns, Que., presided at the inquest. Bouchard told the inquest he fired the shot that killed Courville but said he did not intend to shoot.

44 Held In China

LONDON —(Reuters)— A foreign office spokesman said Tuesday that 10 Canadian, 30 American and four British civilians were imprisoned in Communist China without conviction for any crime. Britain is the protecting power in Communist China for Canada and the United States, who do not recognize the Peiping regime. She has repeatedly asked the Chinese government for her consul to be allowed to visit the prisoners, and for the release of those against whom there were no charges.

3 Women Save Boy 3 In 25-Ft. Well

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Three women saved a three-year-old boy from drowning in a 25-foot well Tuesday.

Albert Clark, son of Mrs. Muriel Clark, tumbled into the well beneath his home while water was being hauled up with a rope. The Clark's hired girl, Edith Landry, and a neighbor, Mrs. Verna Langstaff, tied a rope around the mother's body and lowered her into the well. Mrs. Clark grabbed her son and the two women hauled her and the boy to the top.

The boy was no worse for the experience except for shock and a few bruises. The water in the well came up to his chin but he was able to get to his feet and hang on to the side until rescued.

Mrs. Clark collapsed after being pulled from the well and fainted a second time while trying to get to a chair in her living room. Belleville firemen arrived just as Mrs. Clark emerged from the well. They applied oxygen to Albert. Altogether the boy was in the well about 10 minutes.

Dudley Positive Team To Do Well

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — George Dudley, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said today Canada doesn't have to worry about the showing Toronto Lyndhursts will make in the world hockey championships at Oslo, Norway, in February.

He said in an interview at his home here that Lyndhursts were chosen because from among the teams available they were the best. Other teams considered was one from Kenora, Ont., and one from Trail, B. C.

"You don't have to worry about this team making a good showing," Mr. Dudley said. "In my opinion it is a better one than those we have been sending to the world championship in recent years."

The CAHA executive was replying to an article written by Canadian columnist Bob Giddens recently in his weekly publication Ice Hockey World in London.

Youngsters Find Wallet With $52

The Scots may be canny but there is one man in Peterborough who can be thankful that they are.

Young Carol and Gordon Campbell, just eight and nine years old respectively, found a wallet with $52 in it outside the Ross Food Market in Ashburnham today. They have been away from Scotland only three months so they couldn't be blamed for nailing Fire Chief Bill Sorrie as "the nearest policeman in sight".

He told the two youngsters: "We'll certainly find the man who owns this wallet and it's my bet that he'll be contacting Santa Claus".

Solemn-faced and redheaded Carol, who lives with her parents at 484 Parnell St., told the Examiner that she hoped Santa had her lined up for a fountain pen and she knew that Gordon was building his dreams around an electric train.

Mine Strike

without discrimination; in the event of a change in the price of gold or a discontinuance of Emergency Gold Mines Assistance Act during the contract period, the union or company may request a review of wages; and the company to reserve the right to refuse the extension of its present practice of depositing pay chques in the bank accounts of certain employees at their request.

WAGE BOOST

By accepting the agreemnt the company approved a wage increase it rejected last week in a government-sponsored plan to end the strike. A union official said then it was prepared to stay out until next summer if necessary.

The former plan also called for a one-year contract. Mr. Timmins said then the management wanted a two-year agreement. The union also asked for continuance of the practice of depositing cheques in banks because it might arrange for the banks to switch dues from the workers' to the union's account.

TAKE FULL ADVANTAGE

In a statement issued here and at Timmins the union said it was "unwillingly compelled" to accept the terms or face the alternative of hardship for its members and their families "because the premier of Ontario and the government have allowed the mine operators to dictate to them."

The statement said the union will take "full advantage" of the fact-finding committee to "expose the wages and working conditions existing in the mines where the men work longer hours than in any other industry in Canada and where average hourly rates are lower than in any heavy industry in the nation."

Mr. Timmins, in his statement, termed the settlement a "compromise and one that the company had a great deal of hesitancy in accepting, primarily due to economic commitments involved."

Kremlin Flies Gold To U.K.

LONDON (AP) — The Kremlin has secretly flown into London about $65,000,000 in "hammer and sickle" gold bars, official sources disclosed today.

The gold, arriving in two air shipments during the last 72 hours, is destined for the Bank of England. It is the first gold deal between British and Russian central banks since 1936. The gold is believed to have come from Moscow's Narodni bank and to have been paid for in sterling.

British officials believe the Russians are selling gold and other precious metals in order to finance their expanded purchases of consumer goods and achinery from non-Communist countries. Much of this buying has been done in sterling-area countries.

Theft Charge Dismissed By Magistrate

A charge of theft brought against Frank Booth, RR 5, Peterborough in the magistrate's court Tuesday, was dismissed by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, this morning, who said that on the evidence he must give Booth the benefit of the doubt.

Detective Doug. Farthing testified that he had seen Booth driving a wagon and team along a road in North Monaghan on December 2 and stop to attach a piece of iron to the wagon preparatory to towing it away.

Questioned by the detective, Booth had admitted to taking other scrap iron from the side of the road and selling it to scrap dealer Oliver Keller at North Monaghan for the sum of $2.

Superintendent of Warren Bituminous Paving company Gordon Kerr stated that the iron had been in the company's yard and that Booth, or anyone else, had not been given authority to remove it. He did not know how it had been taken to the side of the road where Booth alleged he had picked it up.

LYING IN DITCH

Booth told the magistrate that he had been going down the road and had seen the iron lying in a ditch. Not finding any identifying marks on it, he reasoned that someone had dumped it there to be rid of it.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw considered that Booth had been found in possession of stolen goods and therefore must give a reasonable explanation to avoid a conviction.

Rewarded For Bravery In Warkworth Fire

WARKWORTH (ENS)—The Business Men's Club and Canadian Legion held a Santa Claus party Saturday in the town hall and presented children of the town and the surrounding community with bags of candy and oranges.

Reopen Church At Alderville After Renovating

ROSENEATH (ENS)—"Renewal of Christian Faith," was the subject of the address given by Rev. J. N. Lovelace, pastor of Alderville United Church on Sunday afternoon, when the church was reopened for services.

It had been closed for some weeks, while the interior was being re-decorated.

Mr. Lovelace stressed the necessity of living a Christian life and the responsibility in keeping the Christian light aglow in the church. In conclusion he urged the people of Alderville to keep the pews lighted with their presence.

Mr. H. Lander, Coldsprings, a layman of the United Church and pastor of the Alderville Church for 20 years, assisted with the service. He said the people of Alderville were fortunate people with their church modernized and newly re-decorated, a new school for the children, a new community hall for the various activities and a cenotaph, second to none in the province, standing at the five cross roads on Highway 45 in memory of the soldier sons of Alderville.

Mrs. Norman Marsden presided at the organ. Two vocal duets were sung by Misses Marlene Beaver and Marilyn Marsden.

At the conclusion of the service a vote of thanks was tendered A. E. Adams of Peterborough, superintendent of the Alderville Indians, for his kindness, co-operation and untiring efforts in having the church newly decorated. Mr. Lander moved the vote of thanks and it was seconded by Chief Norman Marsden.

The Alderville Church is a Mission Church under the United Church, the only mission church in the Cobourg Presbytery.

Two new oil space heaters replace the iron box stove that is believed to have heated the church for 50 years. The pews are also newly varnished.

The cost of this renovating is in the neighborhood of $1,000 and has been paid, by the wish of the Alderville people from their capital account at the Department of Indian Affairs at Ottawa.

U.S. Reverses Weather Policy

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States, in a policy reversal, announced Tuesday it would co-operate with 14 other Western countries in keeping a fleet of weather ships in the North Atlantic. Their job is to help commercial aviation planes in transatlantic flights.

A state department letter to the International Civil Aviation Organization in Montreal gave notice, however, the U. S. government wants its ship and financial contribution cut if it is to continue participation in "a modified program."

The United States has been contributing 14 of the 25 ships at an estimated cost of nearly $13,000,000 annually.

In a formal announcement last Oct. 22, the state department said it had decided to withdraw U. S. ships and financial contributions because the "substantial cost can no longer be justified."

Countries which contribute ships to the weather pool are the United States, Canada, Britain, Norway, The Netherlands, and France. Nine other countries help pay the expense of the fleet.

Picks U.S. Team To Score Davis Cup Win

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP) — Our prediction is that the United States will win back the Davis Cup next week—three matches to two.

Bombardier Tony Trabert should take both his singles assignments, and we expect the third point to come from Vic Seixas' victory over Lewis Hoad.

On form, the doubles and one other singles must be conceded to the Australians, although the Americans may pull a surprise in the tandem match.

These observations are based on a month's scrutiny of the rival teams in practice and in preliminary tournament and interzone competition.

TRABERT SHARP

Trabert has honed himself into razor sharpness that makes him perhaps the best amateur tennis player in the world.

He was flabby and out of shape when he carried Hoad to four sets and almost won the match in the New South Wales semi-finals at Sydney. He also was in poor condition when he bowed to Rex Hartwig in the Victoria state tournament here.

But now he is lean and hard. He seemingly can run all day.

He hasn't reached his playing peak and under the present time schedule he should hit it about next Monday when the first singles matches will be played.

The key to the American success continues to be Seixas, who has suffered a series of physical and mental miseries preventing him from attaining the form that won him the 1953 Wimbledon championship.

Yet he has shown in the past he can recover his sensitive touch as easily as he can lose it.

We expect him to hit it before next Monday.

War Criminals Freed

Two others were released on medical parole. The French freed 16 war criminals.

WHOSE BIRTHDAY DO WE CELEBRATE?

The above caption headed a recent article in Readers' Digest. We feel it is quite pertinent to this season of the year, and reproduce it for your consideration and thought.

"My toughest job in Japan," said Sgt. Chuck Johnson, after a stretch of occupation duty, "was answering questions the Nips asked. Even the kids came up with some lulus. And this time of year I find myself remembering one question thrown at us by an eight-year-old named Ito.

"A bunch in my company threw a Christmas party for the Jap kids. The program featured the youngsters singing 'Silent Night' in English, and a soldier in a red Santa Claus suit and cotton whiskers giving out presents. It was a friendly, happy party, with lots of food, and packages for everybody.

"Then little Ito asked his question. Roughly translated it was: 'Whose birthday is it? The man with the whiskers?'

"Someone told him we were celebrating OUR SAVIOUR'S birthday. But he was confused. From all he could see, Santa was the main attraction.

Whose birthday is it? Do the millions of dollars of Christmas advertising tell us? Or the lavish displays in store windows, the elaborate decorations, the light-strung trees? Santa Claus is everywhere — but even the children might get more out of Christmas if they knew more about Him, Whose birthday it is."

To you and yours— All the good things of life and a long life in which to enjoy them, is the Christmas wish from everyone at P.L.

Good Reason For Cautious Hope

Several months ago Bertrand Russell propounded a way by which, in his opinion, international control of atomic weapons could be reached and a third world war avoided. He said: let all the leaders and all the people be fully informed of the suicidal danger of atomic weapons. The horrible image of what an atomic war would mean to mankind would force peoples and governments into agreement; good intentions or platitudinous expressions of peaceful desires would not do it, but fear for their lives and the very continuity of human life itself would dictate agreement as the only alternative to humanity's annihilation.

* * *

The reality of the danger has not been yet brought to people in the way which Bertrand Russell suggested, but the "awful arithmetic of the atomic bomb" which President Eisenhower added together in his speech to U.N. on December 8th has been terribly persuasive. The Russian reply to the proposals which the American President made in that speech has been unusually prompt and unusually placable. The Russian note goes beyond the limits of a mere reply to a specific proposal; it is a general response, and touches on international trade, the "further development of the peaceful economy and culture" of Russia, Red China's right to the Chinese seat at U.N., and international tensions apart from those created by the possession of atomic weapons. The Soviet note contains propaganda, but this must be expected. On the whole, however, the far-ranging response has the appearance of as great sincerity as President Eisenhower's speech, as deep concern for human welfare and peace, and as much anxiety about atomic energy.

* * *

The Russian note questions the usefulness of the President's proposal that governments possessed of fissionable materials should make joint contributions from their stockpiles to an international atomic energy agency. It points out that this still leaves countries free to stockpile and to make atomic weapons; that the contribution to an international pool would be only a little of what they have and can continue to develop and make. This would not solve the problem, Russia says; it would not avert the threat of atomic war

> "If the agreement between the states amounts to the allocation for peaceful aims of only some small proportion of atomic material while the production of atomic weapons is unrestricted in the future, then such an international agreement will directly sanction the production of atomic weapons."

Russia wants an outright ban on atomic weapons. Yet somehow this ban would not involve international control of atomic energy or weapons; only an "international control over this ban"—whatever that would be.

* * *

The Soviet note does not take into sufficient account these facts: that it was precisely because no international agreement on the banning of atomic weapons could be reached that the U.N. Atomic Energy Commission became moribund; and that President Eisenhower did not intend his proposal to be complete and final, it was merely a beginning to some international agreement. It was to be one step forward, even if a small step. The Soviet Union does not seem averse to taking steps. The note says:

> Every step aimed at reaching an agreement between these powers, both as regards the elimination of the threat of the use of atomic and hydrogen weapons and the cessation of the armaments race in general, would certainly be unanimously supported by all the United Nations.

The Soviet Union is willing to take part in "confidential and diplomatic" negotiations on the subject of atomic weapons, but in them will repeat its demand for an unconditional ban.

> "The states taking part in the agreement, guided by their wish for reducing international tension, undertake solemn and unconditional pledges not to use atomic, hydrogen or other weapons of mass extermination.
>
> "The achieving of an international agreement on this question could be an important step on the road to the complete withdrawal from the armaments of states of all atomic, hydrogen and other weapons of mass extermination—together with the establishment of a strict international control which would ensure the fulfillment of the agreement on the ban of the use of atomic energy for military ends."

* * *

It is a diplomatic note and in such one must not expect to find complete answers and full agreement to proposals. The content and tone of the Soviet note, do, however, give grounds for cautious hope that some agreement is possible which will reduce tensions and the risk of atomic warfare. The London Times says "The Russian reply is by Russian standard flexible enough to offer some hope that a private conference might yield results." When both the United States and the Soviet Republic emphasize to the world the dangers in the atomic armaments race and both assert, in different terms, that "mankind must and can be spared the horrors of an atomic war", Bertrand Russell's plan for peace does not seem visionary, nor do the already planned international conferences and other proposals seem likely to be unproductive.

An Unworkable Law

South Africa has a new law which could have terrible consequences if it were not unworkable; as laws go, it is a curiosity. It is a provision that anyone selling or possessing an indecent or objectionable book is liable to a fine of £1,000, imprisonment for five years, or both.

We believe the law to be unworkable because there is apparently no list of books which is considered to be objectionable or obscene. Further, although we can easily understand that booksellers might be prevented from selling certain books, we cannot understand how people who already possess books to which the government of South Africa objects can be compelled to reveal that fact, or surrender the books to the law.

Arguments about obscenity are endless. Many passages of Shakespeare may be called obscene if they are taken out of context, and if the general character of the author's work is not given some consideration. Are South African book collectors, and university libraries, which possess rare editions of Shakespeare, to surrender them? And if the law does not apply to classics, where is the line between classic and non-classic to be drawn?

But the really startling part of the law does not relate to books which are obscene but merely to those which are objectionable; it has been made clear that a book may be objectionable because of its political or philosophical content. This means that the South African government could exclude any book from its territory which was, for instance, unduly sympathetic in its discussion of the problems of black peoples.

There is no point in discussing this law too seriously, because it cannot be made to work. Books circulate by all sorts of means, and when books are forbidden they achieve a special allurement and circulate underground, often at extraordinary prices. And to attempt to suppress political views by banning books is one sure way to encourage and glorify these opinions.

It is always unfortunate when unworkable laws are placed on the statute books, for they tend to bring the law into contempt.

Research On Lung Cancer

Since the death of His Majesty King George VI we have all heard a great deal more about lung cancer than we ever heard before. It has been said that tobacco, and cigarettes particularly, have a connection with lung cancer, and the fact that the late King was known to be a very heavy smoker has undoubtedly lent some colour to this story. But it will take a great deal of research of an expensive kind to decide whether this is true, or to what extent it is true, and the money for such research must be found.

The suggestion is constantly being made that the cigarette manufacturers should finance this project, but we cannot see the logic of this. Cigarette manufacturers are very much concerned about the talk concerning lung cancer, for if the charge were proven they would quickly be out of business. The now prevalent habit of smoking would decline sharply, though we do not believe it would disappear. To be reasonable, why should the cigarette people provide the money which might put them out of business?

But so far there is no proof that cigarette smoking causes lung cancer, though heavy smokers appear to be more prone to this illness than others. But it has been suggested that many elements in modern life, including the smoke which hangs over most towns and cities, contain elements which are favourable to lung cancer. Research on the subject would certainly have to pay attention to coal smoke, motor exhaust and other gaseous products of present-day life.

This research is imperative; we must have it, and we must finance it as we have financed other necessary medical work. The tobacco people might very well make a contribution to the fund for this purpose. But to suggest that they bear the expense alone is quite as unreasonable as to say that the gasoline manufacturers, or coal miners, should foot the bill.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A vegetarian declares that people who eat meat are savages. What would he say if we insisted that all people who don't eat meat are donkeys?

Some Saskatoon thieves stole hens which had been made radioactive by experiment and, as the Brantford Expositor says, it will be a case of 'a wing and a prayer' for them.

Christmas In East Berlin

By RICHARD LOWENTHAL

FATHER CHRISTMAS has been given a Communist Party card and has temporarily replaced Stalin as the central figure of official propaganda in East Berlin. That, at least, is the first impression of the Western visitor to Berlin's Soviet Sector.

✧ ✧ ✧

ON THE EVE of the Berlin four-Power conference, Christmas has afforded the Communists a fine opportunity for giving their part of the city the "new look" of which they have been long talking. They have always known how to put on a show; but now for the first time in years they have been ordered to show what the people really want to see, and they have succeeded to a degree.

✧ ✧ ✧

COMPARED with the picture as it was six or even three months ago, there are far fewer red streamers with slogans on the street walls, and many more decently decorated and reasonably well-stocked shop windows; fewer pictures of Stalin—although there are still some—and more food; far less rubble in the streets and far more light. On the Marx-Engels Square, the former Lustgarten, where usually political parades are held, there is now a big Christmas fair, with toy railways and roundabouts, where one can buy sweets and sausages and even fresh oranges, and see fairy-tale pictures under glass and an enormous lit-up Christmas tree.

✧ ✧ ✧

OVER THE STANDS, the cardboard decorations so familiar from the great Party occasions do not show Soviet Stakhanovites or Korean war heroines, but the facade of medieval German houses; and although every stand belongs to some branch of the H.O. (State trading organization) or the Consumer's Co-operative, the sales-people try to attract the customers in good old fair style, while Father Christmas walks about and chats with the children.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE CRITICAL economist who tries to discover how much genuine material improvement is expressed by the new gay facade can easily find weak points. Children and grown-ups queue before the stands selling cheap sweets and hot sausages; but the approaches to the counter exhibiting such luxuries as salami and rolled ham are empty because prices are too high for average Eastern incomes.

✧ ✧ ✧

TEXTILES for mass consumption are still as expensive as ever, while the black lace ladies'-underwear in a Stalinallee shop will attract only a limited group of customers. The same is true of hideous animals of Meissen china, priced at more than five hundred Eastmarks, across the road. But at least the necessities are now obtainable, and a little extra is within the reach of most—and it means a great deal if shortage and shabbiness are no longer all pervading.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR THE REAL REASON of a visit to East Berlin today is that psychological improvement is far greater than the material. Even apart from the real hardships of acute food shortages at various times and in various areas, the infinitely depressing thing for the ordinary citizen of Soviet Germany was the unrelieved greyness of life—the eternal rubble, the dusty, half-empty shops, still with the little substitute windows in wooden fronts put up after the bombing, the concentration of all colour, in an otherwise dull life, on the flags and streamers of an alien and artificial propaganda. The colours of Berlin, and of Eastern Europe, generally, were red on grey. Much of the sullen rejection of the regime by the ordinary non-political people was caused by their unconscious feeling of having lost their homeland and being forced to live in some strange, Russian-made colony.

TODAY, East Berlin looks not only cleaner and brighter: it looks once more a German city, with only a slight overlay of Communist propaganda. The real importance of the "new look" is that it allows people to feel at home again. This will not quickly reduce opposition to the regime. At present people know only too well that they owe the change to their own revolt in June, and they know also how much terror is stalking the streets behind the facade of normality.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR hand in hand with concessions to the masses, the campaign of arrests of suspected active opponents in the factories is going steadily ahead. But the regime hopes that if it continues to normalise living conditions, the bulk of the people will forget the terror against the active minority of anti-Communists, as they forgot the terror against the active minority of anti-Nazis in the early years of Hitler's Reich.

✧ ✧ ✧

SO FAR, the regime is still a long way from attaining that degree of stability; but if the people came to believe that the frontier of partition was fixed for many years to come, and if the "new look" continued, they might gradually succeed. That is what Berlin's Christmas has to teach the coming four-power conference.

Speed and Death

(Edmonton Journal)

A highway safety official in the United States has come to the conclusion, after a careful study, that the higher the speed limit on highways, the higher the traffic death rate. His conclusion is based on figures submitted by all forty-eight states of the union.

Last year, the rate for states with no fixed speed limit was 8.1 deaths for every hundred million vehicle miles of travel. Where a speed limit of sixty miles per hour or more was in effect, the rate was 7.7; and so it went on down the scale — the lower the speed limit, the lower the mortality rate. In thirteen Eastern states, at the bottom of the scale with speed limits of fity miles per hour or less, the death rate was only 4.9.

It is significant that, if the national death rate had been 4.9 instead of 7.3, 12,000 Americans might have been living today.

It might be argued that the death toll and property damage resulting from highway accidents are attributable to a number of causes, among which a speed limit or its absence may be only a secondary factor. This is not the case. The U.S. official set out primarily to establish the comparative importance of many causes contributing to the highway toll. He found the ratio of speed to mortality was so consistent that it overrode all other considerations.

The conclusion drawn from this study—that, in effect, the faster the motorist travels, the fewer are his or her chances of survival—well deserves to be noted by Alberta drivers. It applies, of course, to any passengers as well, and to persons in other vehicles using the same highways.

Hope Chests?

(CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR)

Prof. James Miller at the University of Chicago has proposed that foundations and other groups granting financial support for researches set aside a portion of their funds each year as a "crackpot pot," to be used to help individuals whose ideas are big but whose methods of approach may be unorthodox.

There seems to be considerable merit in this recommendation, made through the American Association for the Advancement of Science. As things stand now, an applicant for aid is more often chosen because he is associated with certain institutions, has an acceptable background, holds an advanced degree, and will use accepted scientific methodology.

But how many times in history have epoch-making discoveries been accomplished by nontraditional methods and by personae non gratae? It was imaginative heterodoxy that inspired the Wright brothers, Alexander Graham Bell, Marconi, George Claude, Darwin, Cuvier, Columbus, Galileo, Copernicus. The list is long of men whose ideas were scorned until the day came when they were able to prove them practicable—oftentimes in the face of strong opposition by accepted "authorities."

Professor Miller suggests further that such "crackpot pots" be spent "only on recommendation of a minority" of trustees or committee members, even by "one member who believes firmly in the project." The applicant, of course, should not be told from which fund his support is derived.

The professor says that such an instance occurred at a major university a few years ago, when money was made available to a young woman "who seemed to have a good idea but her qualifications were highly doubtful." At the end of three years her investigations were completed, and there was unanimous agreement her work had been superior to any of the others supported.

Such events might be repeated many times. However, trustees should not be forced to consign their expressions of confidence to a "pot." The "hope chest" theme is much more apropos.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving kindnes have I drawn thee . . .

Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock For the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he.

Therefore they shall come and sing in the height of Zion, and shall flow together to the goodness of the Lord, for wheat, and for wine, and for oil, and for the young of the flock and of the herd: and their soul shall be as a watered garden: and they shall not sorrow any more at all. (Jer. 31:3, 10-12.)

Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts: I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God. And who, as I, shall call, and shall declare it, and set it in order for me, since I appointed the ancient people? and the things that are coming, and shall come, let them shew unto them.

Fear ye not, neither be afraid: have not I told thee from that time, and have declared it? ye are even my witnesses. Is there a God beside me? yea, there is no God; I know not any. (Isa. 44:6-8.)

He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young . . . He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. (Isa. 40:11, 29.)

An American Opinion:

"D'you know what Oi'd do to solve Lunnun's traffic problem, young Gentleman? Oi'd plough the damn lot up—that's what Oi'd do."

Letter To The Editor

BOBCAJWIN, O-ME-ME, ETC.

SIR: I have for years appreciated the articles and anecdotes of my friend Nick Nickels on outdoor life, and especially his occasional items of historical lore, but I believe he was in error in his excursion into Indian place names in the Examiner of December 12, concerning the origin of the name Bobcaygeon.

This name comes from the Ojibway phrase Bob-caj-e-won-ook, or Bob-caj-e-won-unk (the spelling varies) which meant 'a narrow place between two rocks where water rushes through.' Reference is made to it in Moore's book "Indian Place Names in Ontario." Langton, Boyd and other early settlers in the region made frequent references to it by its Indian name, and also used an abbreviated form Bobcajwin Rapids. But by 1840 it was regularly being spelled Bobcaygeon, both officially and unofficially.

The phrase Beau Bocage was copied by the Boyd family as a new name for the Boyd steamer Novelty, when they decided to rename her in 1878, according to company and family records. Mossom M. Boyd referred to it in his diary on April 27, 1878. Perhaps one of their French-Canadian lumbermen suggested the new name. No doubt some district old-timers remember this fine steamer when she carried passengers and towed rafts and scows on the upper lakes.

In the Ojibway language, the spot where Peterborough now stands was called Nogoji-wan-ong or place at the end of the rapids, just as Lakefield's site was called kat-chewan-ooka or place at the beginning of the rapids. The name Chemong comes from chemaun or chemung meaning 'canoe,' but could also be derived from Oski-gim-ong meaning 'bow-shaped.' The phrase O-ton-a-be meant 'flashing water' or 'mouth water.' Lake Scugog is named from the Ojibawy Scu-gaug meaning 'shallow muddy lake.' Cob-o-conk meant 'water sliding over smooth rock.' O-me-me meant 'pigeon.' These old Indian names for district places are full of interest for all of us.

I might add that in discussions with anthropologists at the National Museum here, I have found them quite interested in learning more about the early Indian campsites and battlefields of the Trent Valley watershed. This area is of particular importance because it was a frontier region between conflicting tribes, and was occupied in succession as a valuable hunting-grounds by Hurons, Iroquois and then by Mississaugas (Ojibways). The successive layers of Indian relics can tell a great deal about their ways of life and relationship. Anyone who has found or who in future finds Indian relics in the Kawartha district would be doing a useful service to Kawartha historical knowledge by writing me about their finds, or by sending me the relics with information about where they were found.

Mining Towns Not Too Hard Hit By Strike

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TIMMINS (CP) — The hardrock mining communities along the northern Ontario - Quebec border have been weathering a series of strikes that stand among the most expensive in Canadian history.

Settlement of the strike in Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, subject to union membership approval, announced late Tuesday, could set a pattern for ending walkouts throughout the whole region. But miners' payrolls that largely support a string of towns stretching 200 miles have been shot. Business is down. Unemployment—besides the mine strikes—is up.

The walkouts, some of them reaching back 5½ months, have cut more than $5,000,000 from the district's pay envelope.

Yet the Porcupine camp around Timmins and Quebec's Rouyn-Noranda field 150 miles away are holding up in a way that causes observers surprise that things are as good as they are. A total of 7,200 men are on strike in a dozen mines, the backbone of the region's economy.

On a tour of the area looking for the impact of the labor troubles on community life, this reporter ran across a steady succession of people—miners, business men, women, municipal officials—whose reaction might be boiled down to: "Well, it's not as good as it has been. But it's a long way from being as bad as we expected."

Neither Timmins, biggest of the mine towns, nor the twin towns of Rouyn-Noranda have had their customary bustle for this time of year.

NOBODY HUNGRY

But the tradesmen have been doing enough business to get by. And in the homes, nobody is going hungry.

Part of the impact has been taken up by the $1,500,000 so far poured into the strike area by the big and wealthy United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), which called the walkouts beginning in July. Unemployment insurance has helped non-strikers knocked out of work as the result of dropping community activity.

Some have left to get temporary work elsewhere, perhaps 1,000 all told. But an exodus of workers that would leave the district a ghost camp, predicted by some early in the strikes, has not come about.

In the Porcupine district, the population of 40,000 depends basically on the $22,500,000-a-year payroll from 11 gold mines employing 7,300 persons. About 2,000 more work normally in lumber operations, and another 1,000 farm. The town business men and their employees get their main income off these groups.

Altogether, 4,320 Porcupine miners have been on strike in eight workings, looking for higher pay, shorter hours and the checkoff of union dues. Another 350 have been out of work through company shutdown of a ninth mine here.

TOYS SELL WELL

Bill Shields, manager of the federal government's unemployment insurance office here, estimates there were around 1,900 on the jobless rolls in late December, compared with 1,000 a year ago.

All this has had varying effects on different types of business. Heavy goods such as automobiles and refrigerators are scarcely moving. Radio and electrical appliance sales are away down. But toys have moved steadily in the pre-Christmas days.

Corner grocery stores, which usually extended weekly credit until payday at the mines, have been taking a beating. One at Timmins has folded. The big chain groceries are doing about a normal business.

CAN GO FURTHER

Miners' strike pay, in union vouchers, can be stretched further at the chains. In Porcupine, the USWA is issuing about $70,000 a week in vouchers, a single man getting $10 a week and a family man, $14 plus $4 for each youngster.

Mortgage payments on homes have dropped off sharply. But financial men report that householders are not being pushed hard by the mortgagors. Neither, generally, are landlords pressing tenants.

Hospitals Terrify Children Needlessly, Article Charges

"Every day in many hospitals, including some with the finest reputation, infants and children go through a trial by terror." So charges a January Reader's Digest article.

Callousness on the part of nurses, unnecessary enemas, rectal-temperature readings, and other hospital practices which have little or no regard for the child patient's feelings cause many children to suffer "an aftermath of night terrors, clinging dependency or fear of strangers."

Parents should tell children calmly but realistically the reason for their visit to the hospital, the Digest article says, and should make the young patients aware, without alarm, of just what is in store. Tricking the child into going to the hospital can be so harmful, indeed, that some hospitals today will not accept child patients who have been fooled with promises of ice cream cones, movies, etc.

Hospitals don't have to scare children, states Reader's Digest. A strong movement has developed within the medical profession to humanize hospital treatment of children. Parents can best prepare a child for an operation, according to one well-known pediatrician, and a parent should be with the child both before the operation and when the child comes out of the anesthetic. Such practice, however, is "absolutely forbidden" in a large number of our hospitals.

Furthermore, the Digest adds, "the child should see his parents whenever he need to, not just when it suits the hospital's convenience." If mothers could fill in for nurses who cannot give continuous attention, few children would have to be tied down in their cribs to restrain them from scratching or touching bandages or pulling away during painful treatment.

Virginia's Famous Letter....

Dear Editor:
I am eight years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says "if you see it in the Sun it's so." Please tell me the truth; is there a Santa Claus?
Virginia O'Hanlon

to the New York Sun on Sept. 21, 1897, and that paper's equally famous letter to Virginia, reproduced here, have been printed in 20 foreign languages during the past 40 yersa. Virginia is now Mrs. Edward M. Douglas of New York City. The Sun's letter was written by the late Francis Pharcellus Church, although the fact was not disclosed until 1906.

115 West Ninety-fifth Street.

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the scepticism of a sceptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to our life its brightest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then; no poetry, no romance, to make tolerable this existence. We would have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The external light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus? You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see the fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that there are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseenable in the world.

You may tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside the curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever! A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousands years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

There's been considerable squawking around the senior "B" puck circuit lately over the refereeing. Every one of the five clubs (the Petes included) have hollered at times that they were getting a raw deal. Probably there was some justification as certain of the arbiters used in Central Ontario don't seem to be striving hard enough to earn their dough. And with two refs handling each game they surely ought to be able to keep on top of the play and turn in a good chore. On the other hand, refereeing is a thankless task and the officials are always in wrong with one club or the other, and with some section of the fans. We pan them as little as possible.

* * * * * *

In line with this we agree with the Kitchener columnist who wrote: "Whether hockey in general gains when a leading figure like Conn Smythe takes time in a television show to blast a referee is a debatable point. Many will think that Smythe showed considerable irresponsibility toward a game he professes to love and which he has been acknowledged a leader even if there is much debate about the course on which he has been directing it. Smythe put Referee Frank Udvari on the griddle on the TV show Saturday night. And it may be that Udvari has a little more backbone than some of the overawed arbiters."

* * * * * *

Hitting Those "Homers"

We recall Udvari when he helped handle the OHA senior "B" final series between Peterborough Legionnaires and Brantford several years ago. He certainly didn't give our squad any breaks on Brantford ice, but then we have become accustomed to seeing so many refs work that way. They often are "homers" without actually meaning to be. They try to call 'em evenly but that fan roar in the background tends to tip the scales just a trifle. It is interesting in keeping a score-sheet to see how often the visiting team gets the first few penalties. But to return to Udvari, he struck us as a fearless fellow, and mayhap even Smythe doesn't awe him. We wonder why NHL prexy Campbell doesn't tick Conn Smythe off for knocking the refs.

City workmen were busy a week ago by putting up wallboard around the dozen outdoor city rinks, but alas the weather turned mild again to stall off the flooding and freezing. So the kids will have to wait a spell longer for their skating and hockey on the city rinks. It certainly seems to us that we were on the ice quite a bit earlier each winter over at the canal or on free rinks about town. Usually the OHA schedules would open here by Christmas week at the latest on natural ice. Clime must be changing as there hasn't been much ice here (other than artificial) the past few winters. Artificial ice is the only answer if we are to continue to produce goodly numbers of hockeyists. We need the Memorial Centre, and we should have a least one outdoor artificial ice rink in Peterborough.

Petes Roll Right Along

TPT Petes came up with another victory on foreign ice last p.m. dumping Belleville deeper into the cellar with a 6-2 shove. It hoisted the locals over Orillia into third place in the senior "B" group standing, just one game back of Oshawa and one and a half behind Kingston. In the last six games Petes have played, they lost but one, and that in overtime at Orillia. They tied Kingston in overtime, and won the other four. Coach Eddie Redmond appears to have his club rolling fine now, and he himself has been playing heady hockey. Some of the newcomers to the team, who were slow in starting, are up to form now—and TPT-ers will make 'em all step. They're idle till Belleville comes here next Monday.

* * * * * *

Once again Goalie Jack Donlevy was kicking hot rubber aside neatly in every period, and getting good aid from his bouncing defencemen and fast-stepping forwards. A right lively puck tussle. Semark and Crowley were chased in the third for fighting. Goyer got a misconduct, and the refs (who handed out 17 penalties) threatened to forfeit the fray to Petes if Quinte fans didn't quit throwing bottles and junk on the ice. Visitors tallied twice in each period, with Doc Prentice and Chum Fryia each clicking for a pair of markers with fine play, and Rod Belisle and Toodie Greenlaw counting one apiece. An early penalty cost the Doran dudes two goals.

BASEBALL NAME FADES

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jack Dunn III Tuesday signed off his family name which had predominated Baltimore baseball for the last 44 years.

Dunn, 32, ended his family ownership of the city's professional baseball team by formally signing legal papers turning over Baltimore Orioles to a new American League club.

Young Dunn agreed early this year to move out and let Baltimore succeed St. Louis Browns. The American League approved the deal in September.

While in the minor leagues, Jack Dunn made the Orioles known to every baseball fan. In addition to owning the team, he managed it and in 1919 won the first of seven straight pennants, a record.

Jack Dunn died in 1928. His widow maintained an active interest and control until 1943 when she died. She willed control to Jack Dunn III when he reached the age of 30 in 1951.

He will continue with the major league Orioles as a vice-president and travelling secretary.

NAME NEW IL MANAGER

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Luke Appling, former Chicago White Sox shortstop, has agreed to manage Richmond's baseball team, conditionally a member of the International League, Harry C. Seibold announced Tuesday.

Appling, who spent 20 years in the major leagues, all with the White Sox, comes here from Memphis, Tenn., where he was manager of the Southern Association team for three years.

The Chicks finished in the first division each season under Appling. Last year they won the Southern Association pennant.

Seibold, owner of the Richmond baseball franchise, will field an International League team provided a park meeting the triple-A standards is provided by Jan. 5.

HOCKEY OFFICIALS STRIKE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Members of the Rocky Mountan Hockey Officials Association are striking for a $10 raise in the $25 fee paid them for working games at Colorado College and Denver University, athletic director Juan Reid of Colorado College said Tuesday.

He made the statement in announcing that Colorado College will go outside the association to obtain referees for its hockey game with Harvard this week-end.

Reid said there are officials in Colorado Springs and Denver who are not association members.

SOX SIGN PITCHERS

Johnson, 31, reported to the Sox late last July from Charleston of the American Association and finished with a 4-4 record. Strahs, 29, had a 16-8 record for Memphis last season.

CONNIE MACK 91

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Connie Mack, straight as an arrow and looking in tip top shape, celebrated his 91st birthday Tuesday. He looked even better than he did at his last birthday here.

Telegrams and flowers greeted the former manager of Philadelphia Athletics.

Petes Thump Quinte Squad In 6-2 Senior Puck Go To Move Into Third Place

BELLEVILLE (Special)—The TPT Petes, headed for a spot in the senior "B" group sun, vaulted Orillia Pontiacs and landed into third spot in the standing with a 6-2 defeat of the Belleville Memos here last night. The Petes, fresh from a 6-4 victory over the Pontiacs Monday night, chalked up their fourth win in six starts with one being a tie. The Memos trail the fourth-place Pontiacs by five points while the Petes are but two behind the second-place Oshawa truckmen.

It was a rugged, hard checking display with the visitors firing home two goals in 23 seconds after the Memos had opened the scoring. They paired two more in the second heat with the homesters tallying. Once in a boisterous third period they blanked the Memos while adding two incurable markers.

LIVELY LIGHT

The fans did not take kindly to the 17 penalties handed out by referees Bill Reason and Stan Scutton of Kingston. A fight between Semark and Crowley enlived the proceedings in the hectic third heat with a fan heaving a bottle on the cie. Vern Goyer drew a misconduct while the erring players carried the fight into the corridor behind the benches. The law intervened but no damage was done.

Referee Reason announced the game would be forfieted to the Petes if the fans continued their bottle throwing activities.

The Petes iced a stubborn, hard-fighting defence with Donlevy in the nets coming up with an outstanding chore. The Memos have played better hockey and were continually outlucked or outguessed by Donlevy once they penetrated the packed Petes' rearguard. The visitors passing plays clicked all night and they outshot Memos 27-22 on the night's play.

COSTLY PENALTY

Memos carried the fight to the Petes at the opening whistle and tested Donlevy several times before the Petes relieved the pressure. They swarmed around the net, missing a few chances. They were rewarded midway through the heat when Duke Doran banged home Erwin Duncan's rebound to open the scoring. A minute later Keith MacDonald drew a costly penalty. The Petes surged to the attack and whipped home two goals in 23 seconds with Prentice banging home the rubber on a passing play with McMaster and Redmond, and Belisle drivng home Redmond's rebound.

Peter Jones, the best player the Memo's had out there, rolled a puck along the goal line and missed from close in a second later. Then Crowley broke into the clear but Sarrault outguessed the Petes' forward.

Toodie Greenlaw put the Petes two up after 22 seconds of the second period and the same player fed Chum Fryia a neat pass two minutes later to give them a three-goal margin.

Semark and Peterson got the gate for roughing and Belisle followed seconds later, giving the Memos a 4-3 man advantage. Memos drove in hard and Doran scored his second goal of the night after a furious onslaught on Petes' net. Goyer missed when in alone. Peter Jones shot inches wide on an open net and later the Duncan twins and Duke Doran nearly scored on close-in efforts.

MILD BRAWL

Semark and Hill started a mild brawl and both got the gate. Redmond followed but no damage was done.

Turk Barclay replaced Sarrault in the Memos' net in the third period. Penalties started to roll with Doran and Collins getting the gate. The Petes' player was hurt in the clash and went off for repairs.

Chum Fryia put the Petes three goals up after nine minutes; then Crowley drew a penalty. The Memos surged in fighting but the hard-checking Petes held them off. Ed Duncan got the gate and Memos were on the defensive. Then the Semark-Crowley brawl broke out and the game was halted for minutes.

With 37 seconds to go Prentice took Peterson's pass from well out and blazed a puck into the net as time ran out.

2 Prep Races Before Plate Trial

TORONTO (CP)—The running of two prep races before the 1954 Queen's Plate trial next June is being considered, E. P. Taylor, director of the Ontario Jockey Club, said.

"It hasn't been definitely voted yet," he said, "but I think that's what we'll have. It will give the horses a much better chance to get ready for the plate, and it would also serve to clear out a number of horses which haven't an earthly chance."

The trial is held a week before the $20,000-added Queen's Plate, Canada's premier racing event.

Taylor said the preps would consist of a six-furlong trial and a mile and 70-yard test. The plate is nine furlongs.

He also indicated the starting fee would be increased from $100 to $250.

Geoffrion Says Fan Threatens To Kill Him

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens' Bernie Geoffrion said Tuesday an irate New York Rangers' fan has threatened to kill him.

In a National Hockey League game at New York Sunday, Geoffrion tangled with Rangers' Ron Murphy in a stick-swinging battle and Murphy went to hospital with a broken jaw.

Geoffrion said the fan threatened him in a long-distance telephone call Monday night.

"He said he was coming to Montreal to shoot me, you know, bang-bang, just like that," Geoffrion declared.

"That guy sounded pretty mad."

DODGERS SIGN COACH

BROOKLYN (AP)—Ted Lyons, former pitching great and one-time manager of Chicago White Sox, Tuesday was signed as a pitching coach by Brooklyn Dodgers.

Lyons, 53, was dropped as coach by Detroit Tigers last month after serving in that capacity since 1949. He replaces Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto. Other Dodger coaches are Jake Pitler and Billy Herman, two holdovers from the Chuck Dressen regime.

Canadians Plan Good Entry In Track Events

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada will be well represented in track and field events at the British Empire Games here next summer, Fred Rowell, chairman of the national track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, said Tuesday night.

He was commenting on a published report here that Canada faces the 'humiliating prospect of becoming the laughing stock of the sports world" by being ineligible to enter a team in the 1954 games.

The report was based on a clause in the B.E.G. constitution which stipulates that entry forms for all track and field events must be received by the games committee July 9. Canadian trials for the games have tentatively been set at the University of British Columbia stadium here July 9 and 10.

ONLY TENTATIVE DATES

Rowell said the July 9-10 dates for the trials were only tentative and that a definite date would not be fixed until the AAUC annual general meeting next January. The games are scheduled July 31 to Aug. 7.

Rowell said that if the trials were held July 9 and 10, all Canadian officials would have to do would be to submit entry forms for as many athletes as desired. Substitutions could be made later naming athletes chosen at the trials for individual events. He said such substitutions could be made up to at least July 17.

Flyers In Draw With Locals After 7-6 Win

LINDSAY (ENS)— The displaced Oshawa team, playing as the Port Perry Flyers, staged a great third period rally here last night to snatch a hard-fought 7-6 verdict from the Lindsay juniors. The win lifted the Flyers into a first-place deadlock with Young Petes in the Junior "B" standing. The home club went into a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Crawford and Pearson. O'Connor tallied twice for the visitors but the scores were offset by counters from Hutton and Graham.

Lindsay fell apart in the third as the Flyers coasted in on Kent almost at will. Copeland opened the scoring for Flyers but Teel countered for the homestears. Chas Zeweski and O'Connor tied the score on two break-away goals, and Romanuk put the Flyers in front for the first time with five minutes left. Hutton, from a face-off, tied the score again before Fisher and O'Connor broke away, with two minutes left, Fisher netting the winning goal.

A. "KARPUK" TRIP

In the final minute, Kemp was benched for an extra forward and the home club gained an advantage when a Port Perry player pulled a 'karpuk," leaping off the bench to take a break-away pass at centre ice with the Lindsay net vacant. The Flyers were penalized for having too many on the ice, but the home club failed to score.

Wings Head For N.Y. Clash As Reibel Gaining In Rookie Of Year Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Earl Reibel is no flash in the pan. But coach Jack Adams wondered some times. Fans around the National Hockey League who may have figured Reibel was just another Johnny-come-lately could look at the league scoring records today for cold facts on how the 23-year-old centre with Detroit Red Wings is stacking up in his first year in the big time. It's not bad. Reibel, a soft-spoken native of Kitchener, is tied for sixth place in the individual scoring race with Boston Bruins' Ed Sandford. Each has nine goals and 19 assists for a total of 28 points. Reibel will be after more goals when the league-leading Red Wings meet the fifth-place New York Rangers in the only NHL game tonight.

NEARLY WASHED UP

Reibel's performance thus far in the 70-game schedule ranks him with some of the best. He was nearly washed up as a player last year when he suffered an eye injury in a car accident. Now he's being touted as the rookie of the year.

Adams, who has moulded Stanley Cup teams around such stars as rightwinger Gordie Howe and leftwinger Ted Lindsay, wouldn't go overboard on Reibel earlier this season but now says he's "terrific."

Reibel, a five-foot-eight forward who has the destructive knack of sending wingmen into the clear, credits his success to Howe and Lindsay, whom he centres.

"I'm working with two of the best linemen in the game," he has said. "Anybody would do it with help like that."

HOWE DISAGREES

Not so, comments Howe, who leads the scoring race with 16 goals and 25 assists.

"He's got what it takes. He puts a pass on your stick nearly every time he gets the puck."

The Red Wings will be counting on tonight's game to extend their lead to four points over the second place Montreal Canadiens. They have won 19 and tied six in 32 games for a total of 44 points.

The Rangers have won only nine games in 32 starts and trail the fourth-place Boston Bruins by seven points.

Moore-Maxim Fight Approved For January 27

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The National Boxing Association Tuesday approved the title fight between Archie Moore, world's light heavyweight boxing champion, and Joey Maxim in Miami Stadium Jan. 27.

Col. Harvey L. Miller, executive secretary of the NBA, issued a statement in which he said Charles Johnston, manager of Moore, had advised the National Boxing Association and the Florida Federation of Boxing boards that Moore stands ready to box Al Johnson of Philadelphia at any time that any promoter offers such a contest and suitable purse."

NO OFFER YET

Johnston said that, to date, no promoter has offered to stage the match.

Miller said that "in behalf of National Commissioner Abe J. Greene and NBA president Andrew J. Putka, this meets the rules and by-laws of the NBA.

"Publicity released in reference to a possible suspension of Moore was in error. Manager Johnston's statement leaves Moore in continued good standing with the NBA."

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Kesselring Leaves For Tours Across U.S.

KITCHENER (CP)—Gerry Kesselring, the quiet, confident golfer who won every major Ontario title as an amateur, leaves on golf's money trail Saturday. He feels "pretty good" about it.

Kesselring, 24-year-old native of Kitchener, starts Jan. 8 with the Los Angeles open at the Riviera club and will work eastwards across the middle states to Florida, then back north in the spring, repeating the trip next year.

He will meet some of the "best competition in the world"—Sam Snead, Doug Ford and Cary Middlecoff.

How does he feel about his chances?

"We'll find that out when I start playing," he said. "It's not going to be easy and I'm not counting any chickens yet. It might take as long as a year to make a creditable showing."

TOP TOURNAMENTS

Tournaments along the route include the Bing Crosby pro-amateur tournament, the Eastern Open at Houston, Tex., and the Mexican Open at Mexico City.

His wife, Helga, is travelling with him but their five-year-old son, Freddie, will stay at home to continue his schooling. He admits she "might become more or less of a golfer's widow" but she's not worried about that.

Kesselring says he now wants to become "the best golfer in the business."

"It's up to me now and I have one goal in mind," he said.

BEING SPONSORED

His tour is sponsored by Toronto sportsmen Bud Knight and Don Ross. He is under contract to represent their Downsview Club as playing professional for two years.

He first attracted attention in 1945 by winning the Ontario junior championship in 1945 and has beaten some of the world's best amateur golfers, including former British champions Max McCready and Harvie Ward. He won the Ontario open in 1952 and '53, and the Ontario amateur in 1949, '51, '52 and '53.

Coming Crop Of Hockey Players Bunch Of Softies NHL Scouts Say

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Men who look for tomorrow's hockey stars say the kids of today are a bunch of softies.

"You can't find the kind that pull you right out of your seat and make your eyes pop," said Harold (Baldy) Cotton, chief scout for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, in an interview.

Carson Cooper, chief scout for New York Rangers, said they "don't seem to care any more."

"With so many teams organized these days the kids don't get the opportunity to get on the ice as they used to," comments scout Bob Davidson of Toronto Maple Leafs.

CROWDED RINKS

Cotton and Davidson blame organization of hockey in early age groups. With ice time limited on crowded rinks, the youngsters have little chance to develop.

"The small teams used to be the pee wees and bantams," said Cotton. "Now they've even got atoms."

Some 350 teams were registered with the Ontario Minor Hockey Association last season and 737 teams were registered as members of local leagues. Total registration—the largest in the world—was 16,665, made up of 5,060 boys taking part in OMHA groups or playdowns and 11,055 as members of affiliated local leagues.

Cotton, a Leaf forward in the 1930s, said the present crop "all seem to be poured from the same mould."

Davidson, a former Leaf leftwinger, blamed it on too much coaching.

NEED SOME SHINNY

"What they need is to get out on the ponds and rinks for an old-fashioned game of shinny," he said. "Get 40 or 50 kids and five or six pucks on the ice at the same time. Let them scramble for the puck and practise some checking. Then they would pick up the finer points of the game. Right now they lack finesse."

Cooper, whose famous shovel shot made him a star with Hamilton Tigers in the 1920s, said the boys practise for an hour or so a week and spend the rest of the time "with their cars and their girls."

Cotton said the market for players has diminished. Most minor teams are sponsored and consequently the players are retained by one particular organization at an early age. Three years ago the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association raised from 16 to 18 years the age limit that a professional club can sign a player.

Gilliam Named Rookie Of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—James (Junior) Gilliam, who took over second base for Brooklyn Dodgers last spring and handled the job like a veteran, has been named the National League rookie of the year.

The 24-man selection committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America gave the 25-year-old 11 votes, nearly three times that of his closest rival, Harvey Haddix, St. Louis Cardinals' southpaw pitcher. Haddix received four votes.

Gilliam, most valuable player in the International League in 1952 while with Montreal, batted .278 in 151 games. He drove in 63 runs and included in his hitting six homers, 17 triples and 31 doubles. His 17 triples led the league.

Guelph Whips Kitchener In 5-1 Triumph

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores, cellar dwellers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Tuesday night showed some of the spark that made them 1952 Memorial Cup champions when they turned back the fourth-place Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 5-1.

Big gun for the Biltmores was Bob Attersley, who climbed into a tie with Brian Cullen of St. Catharines TeePees for the scoring leadership with his two goals and an assist on a goal by Minnie Menard. Irv Scott and Wally Para were the other Guelph marksmen.

SCORE IN 2ND PERIOD

In Galt the Tigers proved their superiority over the Hawks for the third straight time when Dennis Riggins' goal-tending sparked his team to the win.

Hamilton scorers were Tom Dietrich with two, and Brian Kilrea. Pete Kowalachuk scored for Galt.

St. Catharines is at Guelph and Toronto Marlboros are at Barrie tonight.

Niagara Upsets Tigers 2-0 Scores 3rd Straight Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Cataracts, fledgling entry in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, appear to have finally got their wings. In defeating Hamilton Tigers 2-0 Tuesday night they scored their third straight win.

In 27 games played Niagara Falls has lost 18, won eight and tied 1, a record that has left them mired in the cellar all season. Their recent upsurge in game winning has moved the Cataracts to within six points of the sixth-place Stratford Indians who were defeated 4-2 by the second-place Owen Sound Mercurys.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group Pembroke Lumber Kings moved into fourth place by shutting out Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians 8-0.

REFEREE INJURED

Referee Hugh McLean suffered a fractured right wrist in the first period at Owen Sound when he was caught between two players along the boards.

Lionel Barber paced Pembroke with three goals. Emile Dagenais and Bruce Giesebrecht scored two each and Hal Meyer one. Gordon Buckley stopped 20 shots for the shutout.

1953 In Great Britain

Political Scene Unchanged Deadlock Remains Unbroken

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Britain's political deadlock remained unbroken in 1953 despite illness among government leaders and dissension in opposition ranks.

Through the year the same uneasy balance was maintained between the two big parties—Prime Minister Churchill's Conservatives and the Labor opposition led by former premier Clement Attlee. The Conservatives returned to power in 1951, clung grimly to their narrow majority in the House of Commons.

There was no sign during the year of any decisive trend in the balance between the two main parties. A series of by-elections left neither party completely satisfied, with Conservative gains in one sector offset by an apparent increase in Labor popularity in other ridings.

At the annual Conservative gathering in October, Churchill—now in his 80th year—disclaimed any intention of retiring in the near future. He also indicated he was not thinking in terms of an early general election.

Churchill is reported intent on remaining at the helm of British affairs pending some settlement which might reduce the cold-war climate. In a speech May 11 he electrified public opinion at home by calling for early talks with Russia, but he fell ill June 27 on the eve of proposed Big Three talks at Bermuda. He attended the postponed meeting held in December.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was also on the sick list, suffering from kidney trouble. Late in September Churchill and Eden returned to their desks bringing the government's "first team" to full strength for the first time in six months.

The Labor opposition also had difficulties. The party was still plagued at intervals by feuding between its right or moderate wing and a rebel group led by former cabinet minister Aneurin Bevan. The moderates plumped for a cautious approach on nationalization and the "Bevanites" called for full-blooded socialism. The exchange of discourtesies became so intense that Professor Richard Tawney, one of the Labor pioneers, said the party was making a noise likke "a mob of pekinese puppies."

The official trade union leadership came down on the side of moderation, making its stand clear at its annual meeting on the Isle of Man in September. The Labor party met later at Margate and adopted a platform which put a temporary end to the dispute and enabled both factions to claim unity had been achieved.

The new Labor program specifically promises only nationalization of water supplies but is so worded that far more sweeping measures could be undertaken in the event of Labor returning to power.

Parliament's 1952-53 session ending in October was regarded as one of the dullest since the Second World War. Legislatively the main accomplishment was the reversal of previous Socialist policy by the return of the steel and truck-transport industries to private ownership. The new session was opened by the Queen Nov. 3.

Among the main legislative developments in the new session were a revision of rent restrictions, enabling landlords to raise rents in return for certain repairs, and a change in the Regency Act enacted Nov. 19, four days before the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh left Britain on a six-month Commonwealth tour.

Under the change, the Duke of Edinburgh instead of Princess Margaret would be regent if a child of the Queen and the duke succeeded to the throne while under the age of 18. In such an eventually the duke would have the guardianship of the young sovereign since under existing law the regent is also the guardian.

The duke would also be regent in the event of the incapacity of the Queen, and if there were neither child nor grandchild qualified to act as regent in such an eventuality.

Queen's Christmas Broadcast Will Come From New Zealand

TORONTO (CP) — Radio's biggest day of the year since the Coronation comes Christmas Day, when millions of persons around family firesides hear the Queen's Christmas message and the world-wide greetings from Commonwealth and Empire points.

The Queen's message this year comes from New Zealand, but the world-wide exchange of greetings which precedes the Queen's speech will be centred on Australia, where Sydney provides a more convenient distribution point for the world-wide hookups. In Canada, the Queen's message will be heard at 10 a.m. EST.

Hundreds of radio men will have spent many days checking transmitters and relay stations at lonely spots to ensure clear, world-wide reception of the Christmas Day program, the 21st annual world-wide performance of this nature by the BBC.

HUGE NETWORK

The Queen's speech will travel by land-line from Government House in Auckland, N.Z., to Wellington. From Wellington it goes by radio-telephone to Sydney and to London; by broadcast transmitters to Sydney and to London; and by New Zealand navy transmitters to the admiralty at London.

Sydney sends the message on by radio-telephone to London, and broadcast transmitter direct to London and also to London via Ceylon and Singapore. These radio paths across the oceans and continents are the communications veins of the huge operation.

The narrator for this year's Commonwealth program is the Australian broadcaster and war historian, Chester Wilmot. The music has been written by the Australian composer John Antill for the Sydney Symphony Orchestra.

Canada's contribution to the program opens in Quebec, where the visit by Elizabeth and Philip in 1951 will be recalled by a choir of French-Canadian school children. A different Canadian scene will be the broadcast from the nickel-mining town of Lynn Lake in northern Manitoba, where it will be recounted how the entire community was transported to its present location from Sherridon, 150 miles across the snow.

The program opens from New Zealand, with the Maoris of Rotorua preparing to welcome the Queen in an historic ceremonial chant. Australia's greetings come from a Sydney children's party, followed by the United Kingdom and Jamaica.

After Canada, greetings will be heard from the Pacific islands of Fiji and Tonga, from New Guinea and Korea, Hong Kong, Borneo, Singapore and other Asiatic spots; from India, Ceylon, Mauritius and South Africa, other African territories and then back to the Australian antarctic before the circle is completed with a New Zealand message from Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest.

All Tanked Up For Sea Travel

On land the combo rolls along at 30 miles per hour.

LATEST DEVICE to move a tank across water to a combat area is the T-15 flotation device, developed by Army Ordnance. Equipped with a portable power plant, it can keep a 47-ton tank afloat indefinitely. To be used in an emergency only, the unit is portable and can be assembled in a short time. While on ground it can move about 30 miles per hour, but its speed in water has not been disclosed. After it crosses a body of water the flotation unit can be dropped to give the tank more speed. Developed at the Detroit Arsenal, it will soon be contracted out to private industry.

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP)—The tremendous production capacity of the auto industry was demonstrated again in 1953.

Despite labor troubles and other factors that interrupted the flow of parts from its supply sources the industry will show unit output from U.S. plants of approximately 6,200,000 passenger cars and more than 1,200,000 trucks and coaches this year.

That volume tops any previous year's output in the industry's history excepting the record 1950 when slightly more than 8,000,000 vehicles were built.

Outstanding events of the year for the car industry included:

1. Cancellation and stretch-outs of many of its military contracts.

2. Kaiser Motors (Kaiser Frazer) purchase of Willys Motors (Willys-Overland), for $62,000,000.

3. An $80,000,000 fire that destroyed General Motors' hydra-matic transmission plant in Livonia, near Detroit.

4. GM's purchase of the Willow Run wartime bomber plant from Kaiser Motors for $26,000,000 to continue hydra-matic transmission production.

5. Removal of government controls that enabled General Motors, Ford and Chrysler to increase their over-all percentage of the industry's output.

6. Protests from retail dealer associations that the industry was over-producing.

DEFENCE JOBS CANCELLED

Military contract cancellations affected virtually every auto maker. Hardest hit were those with tank and aircraft contracts.

The Kaiser purchase of Willys brought together the youngest and one of the oldest of the auto companies. It also started a series of rumors about other impending consolidations of so-called "independent" auto makers.

Tacitly confirmed were negotiations for a projected merger between Nash Motors and Hudson Motor Car Co. to bring together two concerns with assets in excess of $320,000,000.

The fire that destroyed General Motors' transmission plant shut off automatic transmissions for GM's Cadillac, Oldsmobile and Pontiac divisions and several non-GM users. GM solved its immediate problem by switching temporarily to another type of transmission for its own three divisions.

More spectacular, however, was the speed with which it got back into production of hydra-matics in space rented from Kaiser Motors at Willow Run. Just 12 weeks after the fire wrecked the Livonia plant and damaged thousands of machine tools, it had transmissions moving out of Willow Run in limited quantities.

OUTPUT CUT 100,000

Authoritative sources estimated the shortage of automatic transmissions resulting from the fire cost the industry about 100,000 production units in September and October.

However, growing new car inventories in dealers' hands and the imminence of model changeovers forced the industry to cut back its production schedules in November. Its projections for November went down by considerably more than 100,000 vehicles from October.

Removal of governmental controls on production early in the year was quickly followed by an upsurge in the production volume of the larger of the car makers. Most of the smaller companies cut back their output schedules earlier in the summer because their dealers were overstocked.

Th latter weeks of the year brought many protests from dealer organizations that factory output exceeded their retail market. They said sales were being made only through price slashing and over-allowances on trade-ins.

Auto industry executives picture the year ahead as the most competitive since before the war but offering a market for from 5,250,000 to 555,500,00 new cars.

"BIG THREE" BATTLE

Most industry analysts are predicting a terrific squeeze on the so-called "independent" companies through 1954. The big competitive battle, of course, will be among the industry's "big three" of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Some of the industry's leading sales authorities have said there is nothing wrong with the retail market that all-out sales efforts will not cure. Others are saying the merchandising division will make money in the first half of the year but will have to fight hard to break even in the latter half.

The industry has attractive models for the 1954 sales campaigns. For the most part relatively few major styling and engineering changes have been made. However there is more than ordinary emphasis on interior and exterior colors and color combinations.

In the industry's engineering department right now are more V-8 engines of increased horsepower, scheduled for introduction in 1955 models. Also in early stages of construction are several luxury models.

Ugly Arrival

Fears Of Wheat Failure Turn To Problems Of Plenty

By A. B. GARRETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Fears of failure turned to problems of plenty for western wheat farmers in 1953.

The early fears centred on a spring drought which posed a threat to the season's growth. But the picture rapidly changed to another extreme with record rains over many areas bringing the third successive bumper grain crop.

The country's storage bins already were bulging with 362,000,000 bushels of wheat carried over from 1952 when new grain began pouring from harvester spouts in August. The new crop was estimated at 594,000,000 bushels and Canada was confronted with twin problems: Where to store the grain and where to sell it.

STORED IN FIELDS

With country elevators congested and farm granaries full, many farmers stored grain in open piles in the fields. One grain company estimated 58,000,000 bushels of wheat were piled in the open at one time.

At the outset, farmers could deliver only three bushels for each cultivated acre. They collected an initial payment—the remainder to be paid in later instalments as the Canadian wheat board which sells all Canada's wheat, oats and barley, completed marketing.

The board said things worked out better than expected.

It gave these figures for the crop movement in bushels from Aug. 1 to Dec. 9, with comparative figures for last year in brackets: Producer marketings — 288,000,000 (358,000,000). Rail shipments out—oats, barley exports — 206,000,000 (254,000,000).

In mid-December, the delivery quota was raised to five bushels an acre and farmers rushed to convert stored grain to cash. In a single day they delivered more than 7,000,000 bushels of grain to western elevators.

MARKETINGS NEAR NORMAL

Chief Commissioner George McIvor of the wheat board said that possibly 325,000,000 bushels of grain could be delivered by the year end. He said this was close to the normal August-December marketings for an average wheat crop.

In the crop year ended July 31, Canada regained her position as the world's leading grain and wheat exporter with total exports of a record 582,000,000 bushels. Officials were cautious in forecasting the current crop year's trend.

Up to Dec. 9, exports were running 48,000,000 bushels behind last year's figure. Mr. McIvor said 15,000,000 of the decline resulted from reduced shipments of low-grade wheat to the United States. Low-grade supplies were not available.

Other new factors included: Huge world wheat supplies which Stanley Jones, president of the Winnipeg grain exchange, said could mean a carryover of 1,400,000,000 bushels for the four principal exporters next July; an increase of more than 40,000,000 bushels in continental Europe's wheat production, increased mechanization in European agriculture; the decision of the United States to sell subsidized wheat on the world market.

In the face of this, Canada—still producing the world's best milling wheat—sought new markets. Mr. McIvor said Asia, Central and South America and Africa have become important outlets.

A handpump was used Tuesday night to put out a chimney fire at Alfred Mattucci's home, 532 Chamberlain St. Early today there was a false alarm at the home of M. Reynolds, 211 Stewart St.

CONFIRM APPOINTMENT

City council Tuesday night confirmed the appointment of George A. Macdonald to the utilities commission to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. G. R. Langley, effective December 31. Mr. Macdonald will serve for the remaining year of Dr. Langley's unexpired three-year-term.

TENDERS RESIGNATION

R. T. Bogle, CGE works manage, who will be transferred to his company's head office in Toronto at the first of the year, has tendered his resignation from the co-ordinating committee of the city's civil defence organization. City council Tuesday night referred the letter of resignation to the civil defence committee.

SEE LACROSSE CHAMPS

Anonymous $100

Some Peterborough kiddies are ging to be assured of a merry Christmas as the result of the anonymous gift of an elderly Peterborough lady. Mayor Hugh Waddell was handed a cheque for $100 at noon today by a local clergyman, with the stipulation that the gift was to be used for needy children this Christmas. His Worship will consult with local welfare organizations as to the best manner of spending the donation.

To Name Chief Fire Marshal For District

City council Tuesday night granted a request by the Ontario fire marshal for permission to appoint Fire Chief William Sorrie district deputy fire marshal for Peterborough county. The post will be the same as that held by the chief's predecessor, Ralph Leonard.

In answer to a question by Ald. T. D. Miller as to whether or not the appointment would necessitate the fire chief spending time out of the city, Mayor Hugh Waddell said it was understood the chief would be required to make a survey of fire equipment available in other municipalities in the county but it would not entail inspections of fires other than those in the city.

His Worship explained that it was the provincial fire marshal's policy to appoint the fire chief in the largest urban municipality in each county as deputy marshal for the district.

Ald. J. A. Dewart explained that the policy is in connection with the province's civil defence organization and that the duty of deputy marshals is to co-ordinate fire services in their districts in matters of civil defence. Ald. Dewart is chairman of the co-ordinating committee of the Peterborough civil defence organization.

Ald. H. T. Rehill thought the chief would only be called out of the city in case of an air raid or similar disaster, in which case he would work with the other fire departments in the district.

Police Chief Warns Drivers, Be Careful

The Christmas rush always brought a large number of accidents, but in his opinion many could be avoided if drivers and pedestrians took just a little extra care.

He requests that motorists take special care of children on the street. Further he suggests that a motorists partaking a little Christmas cheer would do well to avoid driving.

"If it's necessary for drivers to take cheer to someone then they should make sure they do not bring misery to another enroute," added chief Thompson.

Roads, Sewers Approved By Council

Some Must Get Approval Of Municipal Board

City council Tuesday night passed a number of bylaws involving construction projects by the works department. In some cases, the bylaws were given first and second reading but will require approval of the municipal board before third and final reading can be given. In others authority was given for borrowing money to pay the city's share of works already completed.

Third and final reading was given to a bylaw authorizing construction of a storm sewer on Jackson Ave., and an outlet on Chamberlain St. This project had previously been approved by the municipal board.

First and second readings were given a bylaw authorizing construction of a 12-inch sanitary sewer on the west side of Monaghan Rd., from the existing manhole near Frank St. northerly to a point 550 feet north of Frank St., to serve the west side of Monaghan Rd.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Final reading was given a bylaw to provid for borrowing $30,781.57 to pay for the construction struction of crushed gravel on Ford St., Aberdeen Ave., Devon Ave., Hayes St., Lloyd Ave., Hilltop St., Brunswick Ave., Walkerfield Ave., Ephgrave boulevard, Chester St. and Howden St.

First and second readings were given a bylaw to authorize construction of a five-foot sidewalk and curb fall on the south side of Dufferin St., for 284 feet from Elgin St. to Ross St.; construction of a six-foot concrete sidewalk on the east side of Monaghan Rd. for 305 feet south from Wolfe St.; construction of a five-foot sidewalk on the west side of Monaghan Rd. for 346 feet from Romaine St. to Lundy's lane and on both sides of St. Catharines St. for 391 feet north from Cameron St.

Final reading was given to a bylaw to authorize borrowing $89,866.34 to pay for the construction of sewers and storm sewers on Clonsilla Ave., Chester St., Archibald Ave., Rogers St., Erskine Ave., Monaghan Rd., Maria St., Brock St. and Howden St.

Council also:

Gave permission to the chief constable to station wrecked cars at different points throughout the city in connection with the current safety campaign.

Received the following letters: from Mrs. Joe Jebson, expressing appreciation for flowers sent to her husband, who is seriously ill in a Toronto hospital; from the sister superior of St. Vincent's orphanage, expressing appreciation for the council's Christmas donation; from the women's study group on civic affairs, expressing appreciation for the use of committee rooms in the city hall during the past year.

Authorized payment of the accounts of Carley, Standish, Clarke and Carley in the amounts of $253.05 and $250.75 for services in connection with the 1952 and 1950 firemen's arbitrations.

WILL NOT APPEAL

Approved a recommendation from the city solicitor not to appeal to the county judge the ruling of the Douro township court of revision that the city's vacant property on the Otonabee river is assessable by the township.

Requested the city clerk to make a report on conditions along Ford Ave., adjacent to Bruce Parker's woodyard, following complaints of residents.

Authorized the city engineer to employ a male clerk for a three months probationary period at a salary of $2,400 a year.

Informed Clarence LaVack of LaVack brothers, excavators, that in answer to their offer to purchase gravel from the city landfill site, the city is not prepared to sell the gravel at present.

Hugh Waddell Asks Citizens Council Support New Mayor

In his final message to the 1953 city council Tuesday night, Mayor Hugh Waddell appealed to those of his colleagues who were elected to next year's council to give all the encouragement and support to his successor that he had received as chief magistrate of Peterborough for two years.

"We have experienced a good two years—and a successful two years," His Worship said, as the final session of the current city council drew to a close.

"Programs and works already planned and about to go into effect will make the task of future councils that much easier. Our city—your city and mine—is in good shape; and, as I am about to pass the gavel, we are all proud of the city and its achievements.

"I'm going to make a final appeal to you though. Will you please decide right now to give your new mayor all the encouragement and support that was so freely directed towards me?

"Let us decide right now to make the ensuing year the best yet. Every year brings its own peculiar problems to councils, and this coming year is no exception. Let us give our mayor-elect every aid that opportunity presents. Let us make him feel that he presides over a group of people who indeed wish him well."

There was little open display of sentiment as the city fathers wound up the municipal business for another year. A note of quiet restraint pervaded their remarks.

But the tone of what was said reflected the mutual feeling of respect and even affection that had evolved from the task which most of them had shared during the period of the city's most rapid growth.

THANKED COLLEAGUES

Following the customary approval of committee reports and passage of bylaws, Ald. T. D. Miller, who had spent three of his six years on council as chairman of the important finance committee, rose to thank his colleagues for their support.

"In my six years on city council I have enjoyed the finest co-operation from all the members of council, the heads of the various departments and their staffs," he said.

"In public life, these things happen," he said in reference to his defeat at the polls on December 7. "But it has been a great experience. I came to council with no experience, and I hope the city has benefited, if only to a small degree, from my service on council."

ACTING MAYOR

Ald. Miller referred in particular to his experience as acting mayor during the two months when Mayor Waddell was attending the Coronation. He said he had been credited with doing a good job, which he attributed to the co-operation he had received from other members of council.

Ald. H. S. (Stan) Longhurst said he had enjoyed his experience in council and deemed it valuable. But Ald. Syd Black reserved his remarks until after the meeting, when he presided at a presentation from council members to the mayor in the Peterborough club.

"When I was elected mayor two years ago this month, it hardly seemed possible that the time could pass so quickly," Mayor Waddell told council. "I well recall my feelings at the time — pride in the appointment to the highest position which this city could bestow, and determination to do the job as well as I could. But I must confess that I commenced the discharge of my new responsibilities with some misgivings.

"However, as time passed, I found myself having greater confidence, and my task seemed to become progressively lighter. And now I know that these things happened, not because of myself, but because of you in the council, both past and present, because of the energetic assistance you and all civic employees and various boards and commissions, and also the citizens at large gave me, because everyone tendered his unselfish support and assistance to one who needed and welcomed it.

"The two years drawing to a close were marked by the warmest co-operation between council, staff, press and citizens alike. May I, as your retiring mayor, express to one and all my sincere appreciation for the encouragement and assistance that has been so generously offered during my term of office.

"These two years will long stand out in the memory of Mrs. Waddell and myself, largely because of the help we have received when needed most.

"As I look back, there are one or two events that stand out so clearly in my mind. I recall the decision to go into the landfill method of garbage disposal, when our incinerator was breaking down due to the heavy demands put on it by our increased population; but we put it in charge of a committee headed by Ald. Beggs, and you all know the results.

"Then came the resignation of the medical officer of health, his two assistants and the head nurse. Ald. Dewart headed the board of health, who were responsible for the reorganization of that department. But they did not stop there. They went so far as to get for Peterborough an amalgamat-

Turkeys, Fowl Main Items In Yule Market

The special Christmas market held today consisted mainly of fowl, eggs and Christmas novelties. Both markets were operating, but the in-door market was a more comfortable place to shop. Icy winds off Little lake kept the out-door market swept clear of buyers.

Those who did brave the blast soon made their purchases and headed for warmer places, but by noon most of the fowl was sold. A few evergreens, stacked around a truck, looked lonely. The last of garden vegetables were on sale and a few stalls displayed apples.

At the market hall fowl and eggs were on display at almost every counter. Choice hen turkeys were selling from 70 cents a pound down to 60 cents; larger tom turkeys went as low as 55 cents a pound. A large number of geese were also on sale at 55 cents a pound, the same price as ducks. Chickens were 50 cents a pound.

Grade 'A' large eggs were 60 cents a dozen, medium were 55 cents and pullet eggs were as low as 45 cents a dozen.

KNITTED ARTICLES

Home-made knitted articles were on sale with socks and mitts ranging in price from $2.50 to $1.00. Christmas decorations made of plants, and others artificially, were displayed at a number of stalls, and were enjoying a fair sale.

The boiler-shaped stoves attracted their share of customers, who stood momentarily around them, soaking in the heat.

Dynamite-Laden Car Crashes Into Bridge; Occupants Jump Before Explosion

MADOC (Staff)—Five men escaped death Tuesday afternoon when their dynamite-laden car exploded after an accident north of Madoc. Force of the blast knocked a four-foot hole in Keller's bridge on Highway 62, demolished the car and shattered windows of nearby houses. The car, driven by Thomas Elliott, 30, of Highland Grove, had caught fire after Elliott rammed the bridge in an attempt to avoid a second vehicle. The 1951 model sedan climbed the bridge support, then fell to the road.

Elliott and his four passengers, Wallace Howley, 35, William Ayotte, Emerson Lewis, and Alphone Hogan, all of Highland Grove, scrambled to safety.

When the flames reached the case of dynamite and box of caps inside the vehicle they exploded.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Rowley was later taken to Bancroft Red Cross Hospital for treatment of facial and body cuts and undetermined internal injuries sustained in the crash. He is "resting comfortably" today, a hospital authority said.

Elliott told OPP Corporal Jack Hatch and Constable Arthur Bolyea he had been driving north on Highway 62 when he reached the bridge.

Due to heavy fog he couldn't see the southbound vehicle already on the bridge until he had almost come to it himself.

To avoid an accident, he pulled his car to the side. It struck the support, ran up the diagonal girder, then toppled onto the road. The second car was not damaged.

When the dynamite exploded, the car was reduced to "scrap metal," a large hole knocked in the structure, and windows of several nearby houses broken.

Elliott and his passengers had sufficient presence of mind to back away from the burning car and escape any further injury.

Besides injuries sustained by Rowley, the other men all received cuts and bruises when the car toppled over.

Keller's Bridge is about 15 miles north of Madoc.

Man Answered Summons, Gets No Satisfaction

A man committed the almost unforgivable sin of appearing in court to answer a mailed summons for a minor breach of the traffic act, had magistrate's court officials somewhat at a loss Monday.

The Crown was unable to proceed with a prosecution because Dave Walsh of Ashodel township pleaded not guilty to a charge of failing to stop at a crosswalk, and, as is the usual practice, no crown witnesses were present.

Walsh informed Magistrate W. R. Philp, Q.C., that he could not come to court again and was adamant that the case be concluded at once.

Magistrate Philp explained that as 99 per cent of traffic offenders failed to answer a mailed summons except to send in written pleas of guilty, it was the practice for crown witnesses not to be subpoenaed for appearance until after the summons had been personally served.

Walsh: "Then why don't they tell you that on the summons?"

Magistrate Philp: "All I can say is that you could take the matter up with the department in Toronto."

Walsh pondered a brief moment, changed his plea to one of guilty, paid the fine of $5, costs $2.50 and stalked out of the courtroom.

Use Helicopters To Take Census

LONDON (CP)—The lands and forests department is using helicopters to take a census of muskrats, southern Ontario's most important fur-bearing animal.

The helicopters flew over the marshes of Rondeau provincial park, 20 miles southeast of Chatham, and counted the muskrat houses.

Department research men also intend to find out what the animals like to eat, where they live, their age and sex ratios and the condition of their fur.

Almost 200,000 muskrats were trapped for their fur in southern Ontario in the 1952-53 season compared with 95,000 the previous year. The 1954 season has been set for March 1 to April 21.

Experimental trapping will be carried out in the park this year to aid the census.

Information obtained from the tests, which may last for several years, will be evaluated by wildlife experts and the results distributed to trappers.

Pembroke Rocked By Four Explosions

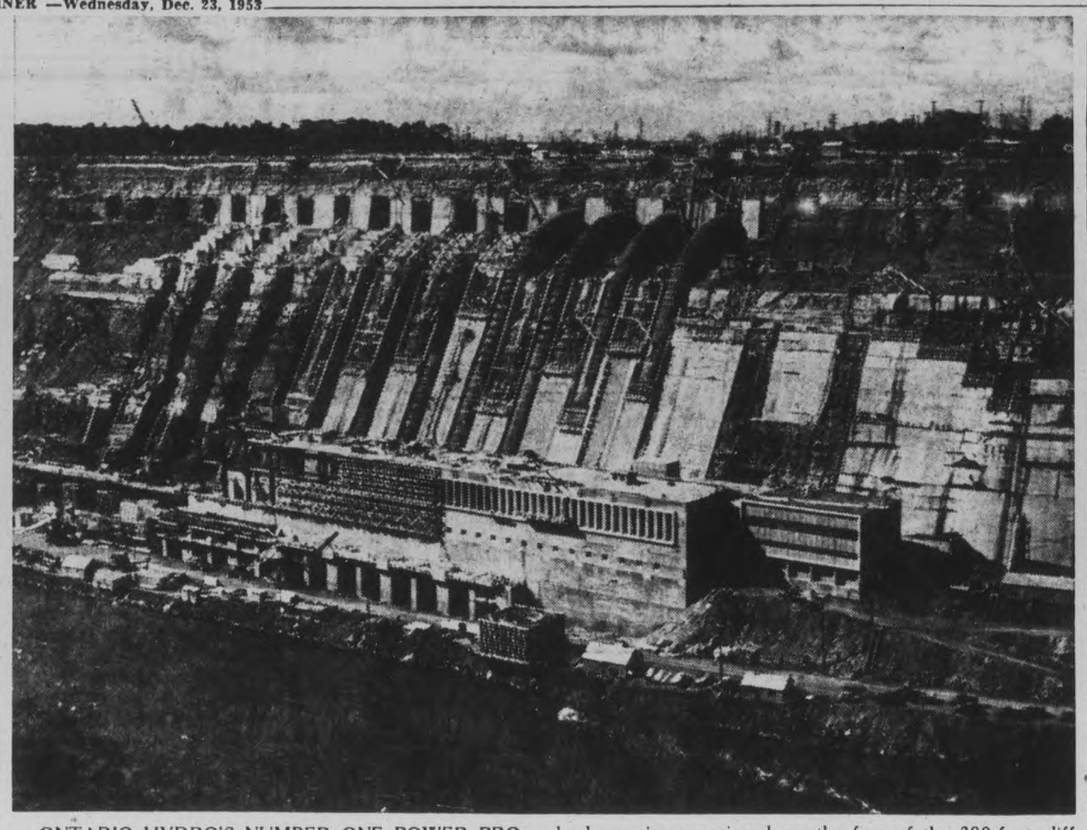
PEMBROKE (CP) — The business area of this Ottawa valley town was rocked Tuesday by four explosions in sewer mains.

Fire Chief R. P. Day said he believes the explosions were caused by quantities of gasoline apparently dumped into the sewers. The sewer system was flushed to prevent further explosions.

The explosions were strong enough to rattle stocks in stores crowded with Christmas shoppers, but no major damage was caused.

The last explosion blew a manhole cover a few feet in the air on Main street, and started a small fire. It was extinguished by firemen.

Siamese Twins Born



COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Siamese twin girls have been born to a 27-year-old peasant woman of Dandagamuwa village, 50 miles from Colombo, it was reported today. The twins are joined at the head. A doctor in charge of the rural hospital where they were delivered said they had a good chance of being separated, but personnel and facilities for such an operation are lacking in Ceylon.

Liability Argued

STRATFORD (CP) — Defence counsel F. G. Thompson argued Tuesday it is an owner's liability to provide proper lighting on vehicles driven by employees. Mr. Thompson pleaded for Lloyd J. Davis of Fullarton, charged with careless driving and improper lighting. Oct. 8. William A. Meyer of Galt collided with a cultivator drawn by a tractor driven by Davis. Judgment was reserved until Jan. 4.

Shipping Season Closes

HAMILTON (CP)—The busiest shipping season in the history of Hamilton harbor ended Tuesday when the oil tanker, Britamolene, arrived. Tonnage is expected to total 7,000,000 tons, an increase of 600,000 tons over last year. New facilities of the Steel Company of Canada, whose operations account for more than 60 per cent of Hamilton shipping, have been largely responsible for the record season.

ONTARIO HYDRO'S NUMBER ONE POWER PROJECT at present is the Sir Adam Beck generating station at Niagara. Eventually it will generate nearly 2,000,000 h.p. A construction force of 7,000 workmen is employed on the project which is advancing on schedule. What appear to be huge pipes running down the face of the 300-foot cliff are penstocks that will carry tons of water to turn the generators manufactured at the CGE's Peterborough Works. Huge CGE-made oil circuit breakers are also being made in Peterborough.

Taxi Driver Issues Writ Against Mayor

Ross was refused a licence to operate a taxi by the Toronto police commission last spring. Mayor Lamport is commission chairman.

The suit was sworn in connection with statements made by the mayor at a subsequent court action Oct. 30. Mayor Lamport charged that Ross was "trafficking in cab licences."

Too Many Bosses For Superintendents

TORONTO (CP) — Superintendents of Ontario reform institutions are suffering from a surplus of bosses, W. J. Stewart (PCS-Parkdale), said Tuesday.

Mr. Stewart told the legislature's select committee on reform institutions, of which he is chairman, that one superintendent had to watch public works department employees sit around in idleness because he had no authority over their construction project.

He said the situation was "handcuffing" the superintendents.

Plan Court For Drunks

TORONTO (CP)—A court solely for drunk cases will open here about Jan. 15, Mayor Allan Lamport said Tuesday. He said the new court will relieve congestion at city hall courts by taking care of 40 to 70 cases a day.

Two-Headed Baby Possesses 3 Lungs, 2 Hearts, 2 Stomachs

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Intensive tests indicated Tuesday that Indiana's two-headed baby, now 10 days old, has two normal brains and normal vision for its age.

The little boy also has three and possibly four lungs, two normal spinal cords, two hearts, two normal esophagi and stomachs, with outlets joining an intestinal tract.

In a summary of findings, Indiana University medical centre specialists said the two heads are on duplicate shoulders with four normal arms.

The heads and shoulders are at an oblique angle — not directly facing. The point of juncture begins just below the armpits and extends down to the pelvic region. The body below the pelvic region is normal.

Examination showed normal lungs and diaphragm in the torso section on the right facing the observer. Only one lung and diaphragm are apparent in the other torso. Further studies are to be made to determine whether there may be a fourth lung.

The specialists said the right foot and leg transmit nerve impulses to the head on the right side, while those on the left transmit to the head on the left. Both heads and sets of arms function independently.

The baby boy, born Dec. 12 to Mrs. Cecil Hartley at Washington, Ind., is on a routine infant-feeding formula, with both mouths being fed. One is satisfied with a lesser quantity.

The baby's development has been comparable to that of a normal new-born, except that oxygen is administered at intervals because of the paler color of the left side.

There has been no indication when the baby might be taken to its parents home in Petersburg, Ind. It was delivered by caesarian section.

Corporal Just Lucky Work Proves Fun

The 39-year-old medical assistant with Canada's 25th Brigade in Korea recently spent a "leave" in Tokyo that included a geisha party, paid for by the government. It wasn't a leave at all but "temporary duty." To top it off, he'll soon appear on television.

Firemen Get Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—An arbitration board Tuesday awarded Ottawa's 400 firemen a salary increase of nearly $400 a year. The increase, retroactive to the first of this year, boosts the salary of a first-class fireman to $3,550 from $3,169, an increase of $381 a year. Increases for other ranks amounts to 12 per cent.

Man Convicted Of Attempting $20,000 Extortion

TORONTO (CP) — A pretty blonde waitress was freed Tuesday on a charge of attempting to extort $20,000 from a Toronto business man, but her alleged accomplice was convicted and sentenced to a six-month jail term.

A county court jury, after deliberating for five hours and once requesting additional explanation, declared Ursula Shueler, 23, not guilty.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty in the charge against Edwin Hefner, 27, with a recommendation for clemency "on the grounds of non-premeditation."

The complainant, a 64-year-old real estate man whose identity was not disclosed at the request of Judge Robert Forsyth, charged Hefner broke into Miss Shueler's room and took flash photographs after the complainant had been "lured" into bed by the woman.

DEMANDED $20,000

He charged that Hefner demanded $20,000—later lowering the demand to $5,000—and threatened to show the pictures to the complainant's wife unless the money was paid.

Miss Shueler testified she had had intimate relations with "Mr. X" on three occasions because he promised her a new coat, dress and shoes. She said all she ever received from him was a box of chocolates.

SERIOUS OFFENCE

Judge Forsyth, handing down sentence, told Hefner:

"This is the type of offense we don't take lightly, and I think the jury has taken a most charitable view of the evidence against you. However, that is their opinion."

Of "Mr. X," he said:

"Of course, I haven't got a great deal of sympathy for (the complainant). He was certainly up to no good purpose in this matter, as far as I know. He was fooling around with this girl, and he wasn't fooling around with her for any good purpose."

Both of the accused, German immigrants who met on a ship carrying them to Canada two years ago, denied any attempt at extortion.

Lift Ban On Gifts Behind Iron Curtain

OTTAWA (CP)—The trade department has lifted restrictions on shipments of gifts to Iron Curtain countries.

An order published Tuesday in the Canada Gazette said the gifts not exceeding $25 in value, may be shipped without departmental permit.

Previously, a general permit covering all gift shipments had to be obtained by the sender before the goods could leave the country.

PoWs Reject Last Appeal With Wild Dance

PANMUNJOM (AP)— American war prisoners who embraced communism chanted Red songs, shouted and linked arms with fellow captives in a wild swirling dance today, drowning out last-minute broadcast appeals to return home.

The United Nations command said the broadcast a few hours before the midnight (10 a.m. EST) deadline for explanations to balky prisoners ended efforts to woo home 22 Americans, one Briton and 327 South Koreans who stayed with the Reds.

The Communists, who have pressed repeatedly for an extension of the explanation period, asked to interview more Chinese prisoners from the anti-Communist south camp Thursday. But the neutral nations repatriation commission ruled that the explanations end tonight.

TO MEET CORRESPONDENTS

The commission, however, approved a request from the pro-Communist Americans and the Briton to meet Allied and Red news correspondents Thursday inside their compound.

Loudspeakers outside the barbed-wire enclosure today broadcast 12 times—four appeals each to the 22 Americans, one Briton and 77 South Koreans who were not interviewed individually. All of the 250 South Koreans interviewed earlier elected to stay with th Communists.

The broadcasts were greeted by wild demonstrations as the prisonrs danced, sang, shouted and cheered in unison.

Correspondents standing outside the compound wire identified from pictures Sgt. Richard Corden of East Providence, R.I., striding about the enclosure with a short coat thrown over his shoulders as he led the demonstration.

IDENTIFIED AS LEADERS

Corden and British marine Andrew Condron previously had been identified as leaders of the non-Korean prisoners.

Correspondents also identified Richard Tenneson of Alden, Minn. Tenneson's mother, Mrs. Portia Howe, flew to Tokyo to try to persuade him to come home. Tenneson wrote his mother than he is not going to return.

With the end of the explanation period all of Americans non-repatriates become absent without leave. In another 30 days they will be listed as deserters.

Under terms of the armistice, all unrepatriated war prisoners are to be held in the neutral zone until Jan. 22, when they are to be released as civilians. During the 30-day period they can still ask for repatriation.

The Communists want the prisoners kept in custody until a peace conference decides their fate, but the Allies have refused to agree.

A few miles from the compound where the Allied broadcasts were made. Communist explainers won back 11 of 250 Chinese and one North Korean out of 42 interviewed on the final day of explanations.

It was the ninth day that the Communists have tried to change the minds of some 22,500 Chinese and Korean prisoners.

During that time they have talked with 3,173 prisoners and have won back 138, or about 4.3 per cent.

The tape-recorded broadcast to American prisoners in the north camp was made by Maj. Edward Moorer. His voice booming from the loudspeakers sent the prisoners into a demonstration described by one observer as "an awsome display of the collective mind shutting out what it fears."

HERRING CATCH GOOD—The fishing season in the Port Arthur, Ont. district, is reported as the best in the last few years. About 12 tons of herring are spread out on a wharf waiting to be processed and frozen. Paul Bougie, in charge of freezing the fish, stands in the centre of the catch. The best of the herring will be shipped to customers across Canada. The rest is sold for food scrap.

Stalin's Death Top News

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stalin's death was the outstanding world event of 1953, in the opinion of Canadian newspapermen.

And the Canadian-United States exchange over questioning of Igor Gouzenko was the top news story of the year at home.

These stories headed the list in a Canadian Press poll of daily newspaper telegraph editors. Second among world news events they placed the Coronation; second in Canadian news, the Morrisburg bus crash which took 20 lives July 31.

Editors were asked to pick the six top world and six top Canadian stories.

Their selections:

World: 1, Stalin death; 2, the Coronation; 3, conquest of Everest; 4, Korean truce; 5, Greenlease kidnapping; 6, Rosenbergs executed.

Canadian: 1, Gouzenko case; 2, Morrisburg bus crash; 3, Gaspe murders; 4, federal election; 5, Sarnia tornado; 6, Quebec fliers' rescue.

Stalin's death March 5, with Malenkov's succession and its unknown implications for Soviet policy, barely edged out the pageantry and color of the Coronation for top spot. The drama of Mount Everest was a comfortable third. The Korean armistice signed July 27, the Greenlease case which began with the kidnapping Sept. 28 and ended with execution of the killers Dec. 18, and the long-drawn-out Rosenberg atom spy case, were well up in the voting.

Other world stories which just missed the top six included Mossadegh's overthrow in Iran, last winter's North sea floods, and ouster of Lavrenty Beria as head of the Russian secret police.

CANADIAN SCENE

On the Canadian scene, editors had no hesitation in picking the effort of U.S. Senate investigators to question Gouzenko, and the international imbroglio that ensued, as top story. It outdrew the Morrisburg crash by several votes. Grouped in third, fourth and fifth places were the mysterious killing of three hunters in Gaspe in July, the Dominion election in August, and the Sarnia tornado May 21. For sixth place, the rescue of seven fliers missing 36 days barely edged out Calgary's DuPre hoax case.

Name Pearson Newsiest Person

Bow-tied Mike held first place easily over Igor Gouzenko who finished second in a Canadian Press poll of newspaper telegraph editors. As minister of External Affairs, Mr. Pearson was a central figure in the controversy that blew up over the efforts of U.S. Senate committees to question Mr. Gouzenko.

Pup Trapped In Deep Well Scores Of Rescue Plans

CARLSBAD, N. M. (AP)—Bolstered by a multitude of suggestions, Fire Chief Ira Stockwell took his turn today at trying to rescue a two-month-old pup from the bottom of a dry well.

Ideas by the dozen have been offered by newspaper readers and radio listeners in New Mexico.

It all began nine days ago when five-year-old Teresa Curtis pushed two pups into a hole in her back yard. It's about 10 inches wide at the top and 38 feet deep.

Her cousins, Dan Hardin, 15, and Poe Hardin, 12, rescued one of the pups. They lowered a burlap sack and the pup walked into it. But the other little mongrel shied off.

The Hardin boys have been keeping the trapped pup alive by lowering bowls of milk and cereal.

Tuesday a couple of Boy Scouts tried unsuccessfully to drop a rope loop over the pup and haul him to safety.

Newspaper and wire service offices in this area have been beseiged with suggestions for rescue. One of the plans came from a woman who said:

"Send the other puppy down in a basket. The trapped puppy may be so glad to see him he'll climb in the basket too."

A fisherman: "Drop a piece of net the size of the bottom of the hole to the bottom with ropes tied to the four corners. When he reaches for the piece of meat in the centre, jerk him out like a catfish."

In contrast to the usual soft-hearted suggestions, one man asked: "Why all the fuss? Kick the hole in on top of him."

Another offered, "fill the well to a depth of two or three feet with corks. Do it slowly so the pup can crawl on top. Then fill the well with water so he'll float to the top."

"Lower a little boy in a stout pair of coveralls on a rope," suggested a woman, "and let him bring the puppy back."

Fire Destroys Cattle

MARKHAM (CP)—Fire Tuesday night gutted a barn on the farm of Howard Larose, killing 41 head of cattle and destroying several farm implements and tons of feed. Loss was estimated at $50,000.

Transportation Strike Threatens Tie-Up In Regina

REGINA (CP)—The threat of a transportation strike mars Regina's pre-Christmas season—all because a bus driver was fired for "sassing" a passenger.

Thousands of office and trade workers will have to find alternative methods of getting to work today while the dismissed driver's union holds a general meeting to discuss what action to take. The meeting, called for 5:30 a.m., is expected to last four hours or more.

The 100 drivers and 65 other workers could strike legally immediately after the meeting.

The strike threat was made Monday night at a special meeting of city council by George Morrison of Vancouver, international vice-president of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees (AFL-TLC).

He asked that an arbitration board be set up to settle a dispute between the union and city officials which began when bus driver C. H. McGregor was fired Sept. 29 for telling a passenger on his bus to "shut your mouth."

Union Discovers Running Major Strike Big Business

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press staff Writer

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—Canada's biggest union has been running the most highly organized strike in the country's history in the hardrock mining areas of northern Ontario-Quebec.

Now the first break in the long dispute has come with the settlement, pending union membership acceptance, of the strike in Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines at Timmins.

The strike operation of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) has been a combination of big business, government-type administration and military discipline among about 7,200 gold and base-metal workers.

Since the series of about a dozen walkouts got into full swing, the union has been spending strike funds at the rate of $6,000,000 a year — more than the combined municipal budgets of all the communities in the big mining camp—and has worked out a 26-department setup to take care of all the angles.

Strike strategy and strike administration are distinct. Strategic moves here are directed by Leo (Buck) Behie and at Rouyn-Noranda across the Quebec border by Pat Burke, area supervisors for the UWA.

OPERATIONS COMPLEX

The administration here, where the union has the much bigger establishment, is a complexity of operations run by Howard Conquergood of Toronto, a steel union man who has been on loan to the Canadian Congress of Labor as its director of education.

He supervises the work of 3,800 of the strikers, whom the union keeps busy on a five-day 40-hour week at a multiplicity of jobs.

Biggest single group consists of the pickets, 1,200 of whom patrol the gates of eight gold mines scattered over 65 miles in this Porcupine camp.

Between 60 and 70 are employed issuing the 10,000 strike-welfare vouchers that go out weekly. Another 50 send out cheques to cover these food orders.

A morale department of 200 persons and a personal - problems branch of 60 deal with various household and individual troubles of the strikers.

ORDER MAINTAINED

A transportation department of 400 men runs 400 cars and trucks, mostly owned by strikers. Twenty mechanics in the union's garage keep the cars in repair, and the USWA also has bought its own filling station since the strike's start.

Two kitchens employ 300 and serve 7,500 free meals a day to those on strike duty. Two logging camps operate in the woods 34 miles from here, where around 100 men cut some 1,700 cords of birch weekly. Strikers buy it at the cost price of $2.50 a cord—less than half the commercial price — with the union extending them credit.

The womenfolk operate a clothing exchange, where new and made-over clothes can be obtained on the vouchers.

A toy shop has been manufacturing hundreds of toys for the 5,213 kids under 13 getting Christmas boxes.

HALLS KEPT CLEAN

Miscellaneous activities include two barber shops, where free haircuts are provided by eight barbers; a shoe repair shop, a sign painting branch, an inventory department and a sanitation department of 60 men to keep the halls, offices and picket lines cleaned up. An expeditier steps up any lagging workmen.

Forty persons turn out 8,000 daily copies of a 10-12 page mimeographed strike bulletin, which has its own artist.

A staff of four strike historians records all this and other activities for union posterity.

Conquergood doesn't think many of the departments will be kept up after the strike, though he says the union may continue the toy manufacture, which has been turning out commercial quality articles at about a third of store prices.

"But if the strike is still running by next summer," he adds, "I think we'll be in the co-operative housing business by then, with our own architects."

Lanskail-Brownlie

MARMORA — (ENS) — In Christ Church Cathedral Vancouver B.C., Saturday a wedding of local interest took place as Marjorie Anne Brownlie RegN. daughter of Canon and Mrs. J. M. Brownlie of Marmora, was united in marriage to Donald Alexander Lanskail of Vancouver.

The bride's father officiated, assisted by Very Rev. Northcote R. Burke dean of the Cathedral. White chrysanthemums and holly formed a lovely setting for the ceremony during which organ music was rendered.

Given in marriage by her uncle Mr. Gordon Cooper the bride wore a gown of white velvet and lace with traditional veil of tulle illusion. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses. Miss Catherine Clifton of Belleville and Miss Ruth Watson of Toronto were attendants. Both were gowned in deep turquoise nylon taffeta, in cocktail length and wore matching headdresses and carried hand bouquets of white carnations centred with holly.

Mr. Donald Ross of Vancouver was groomsman and Perry Millar and Frank Lewis both of Vancouver, were ushers.

The reception was held at "The Hollies" Vancouver where the bride's mother received wearing slate blue nylon. She was assisted by the groom's mother who was gowned in blue. Guests were present from Calgary, Swift Current, Lethbridge and Marmora.

For the wedding trip to Nevada and Mexico, the bride chose grey flannel with London tan accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Lanskail will live in Vancouver upon their return. The bride attended Bishop Strachan School in Toronto and is also a graduate of Kingston General Hospital. The groom is a graduate in law of the University of British Columbia.

Fashion Flashes

Did you ever see such pretty evening costumes as we have this season? Pretty and practical is a beltless sheath dress, in blue, with a deep scoop neckline, its bodice encrusted with pearly sequins and the narrowest of velvet ribbon. With it is a cardigan-necked, deep-cuffed coat of matching blue fleece, taffeta lined.

✧ ✧ ✧

Very good for luncheon wear and for on through the evening is a sheath of dark navy blue wool broadcloth with a wide, tucked cummerbund of matching satin. A satin frame collar marks the deep oval neckline.

✧ ✧ ✧

It's fun to see the transformation worked by a smidgin of fur plus a wealth of imagination. A rich rose of pink silk and velvet has a mink-wrapped stem that makes it a beautiful accessory for any simple dress. For the same purpose there's a ranch mink collar with a beige velvet bow and pink velvet rose. Then there are fur-covered compacts and jeweled fur headbands.

✧ ✧ ✧

Tiny, but big with glitter, that's the story on the most popular dress-up hats. A tiny profile beret has its entire surface paved with iridescent paillettes, rhinestones and nailheads, and is selling like hotcakes.

✧ ✧ ✧

Much nicer than formerly are the new fur-trimmed hats. Black velours is used for a diminutive pillbox, trimmed in front with a mink band that ends in curve detail.

✧ ✧ ✧

Ever so striking is a skirt of leopard-print cotton pile cut wide at the hem. With it a blouse of black jersey with a flanged, asymmetric neckline that is finished with a bow. Linking the two is a black satin belt.

✧ ✧ ✧

Fascinating is the variety of suit detail that marks the latest offerings. From Dior comes a suit of fine black and white check tweed, the fitted jacket bound in braid that edges the open collar and deeply slit neckline. Three buttons punctuate the open neckline, and these continue down to a single-breasted four-button closing.

✧ ✧ ✧

Going forward is the word on the newest hats, the forward pose considered a change after all that back-of-the-head stuff. Worn well down over the forehead is a tiny black velvet platter pillbox trimmed at back with two high-rising large red roses, with velvet ribbon bow and streamers down the back.

✧ ✧ ✧

Softly fitted and beltless is the favorite line just now. It appears to good effect in a street-length dance dress of white nylon net. The top, with a high, rounded neckline, is sleeveless, and is heavily embroidered from neck to hips in beads and rhinestones. The skirt is pleated.

Pale but pretty is a coat of clipped Norwegian fox in a shade called "moonlight beige." Good for day or evening, and perfect for cruise or Southern resort wear.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Why Not A Christmas Eve Oyster Party?

Never do I want to open a letter from a reader that says my recipes and ideas are too costly or fancy for her.

Of course, if they are I want to be the second one to know, but what I mean is that I try to keep everything on an average-level: plenty good enough for our upper-income friends, but not extravagant at all, so that those who are watching every penny can participate in them too.

But today is different—caution and cash are thrown to the winds.

For on Christmas Eve we serve, in our house, oysters — stewed, broiled, raw and any way anybody happens to want them. Furthermore, on New Year's we are going to serve Lobster Bisque at a buffet supper.

So if you have similar yearnings come join the happy chorus.

EMEM'S OYSTER BISQUE
(makes 6 generous or 8 moderate servings)

Drain the liquor from ½ pint oysters, then to oysters add ½ cup cold water, rinse them in it and drain this water off and add it to the oyster liquor. To this liquid add ¾ cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons very finely minced celery, ½ teaspoon grated onion, and 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley. Simmer these together covered for 3 minutes, then add 2 cups whole or rich milk, and heat to scalding (it is safer to do this heating in double boiler). Mix together 1 tablespoon flour and 2 tablespoons melted butter, and stir this into the milk until thick. Keep hot in double boiler. About 2 minutes before serving time add oysters which have been chopped coarsely and heat. Serve garnished with finely minced parsley.

LOBSTER BISQUE

The foundation sauce for Lobster Bisque is same as for Oyster Bisque but celery is omitted. Canned lobster and liquid may be used—1 7-oz. tin. Be sure to remove bones from canned lobster and to cut the meat in chunky bits. A delicious garnish for top of soup is 1 tablespoon unsweetened whipped cream.

OYSTER CASSEROLE FOR CHRISTMAS EVE

This will serve six people generously.

Saute in 4 tablespoons hot but not brown butter 2 cups finely chopped celery and ½ cup finely chopped onion until they are wilted and soft but not browned. Stir in 3 tablespoons flour, and when blended stir in ½ teaspoon pepper. Have ready to add 3 cups fluffy hot cooked rice—wild rice if you can buy it, or failing that use long-grain rice cooked the fluffy dry way—1½ cups raw rice makes 3 cups cooked. Add the rice and turn this mixture into a shallow 2-inch deep baking dish. Have ready 1 pint oysters which have been drained and dipped in 4 tablespoons melted butter, then in ¼ cup fine dry cracker crumbs. Arrange these over the rice, strewing any remaining crumbs or butter over top too. Place 4 inches below hot broiler to broil just until oysters curl at edges—about 10 minutes if broiler is good and hot. If you want to go all out serve this with Mushroom Sauce, which is made by adding 1 cup sliced raw mushrooms to 2 tablespoons melted butter and sauteing for 3 minutes, then adding 2 tablespoons flour, blending, and stirring in 1 cup milk until thick. Season. This is just a white sauce with mushrooms in it.

If you like the idea of the above Oyster Casserole and plan to serve it you might like my idea for the menu: Hot homemade rolls (or buttered, and heated French stick), pineapple and Savoy cabbage slaw, fruit cake, coffee.

DOROTHY DIX

Plain Girl Fails To Attract Youth

DEAR MISS DIX: Three years ago Jim left our town to work in another state; he has just come home. I've known him all my life and I have always liked him, though he has paid little attention to me. I'm not pretty, not talented, not brilliant or witty. Just a plain, ordinary girl. How can I go about making him notice me? That's what I want more than anything in the world. Incidentally, I'm 20, he's three years older.—MARY.

AN ENCOURAGING WORD

ANSWER: While beauty, brilliance, and talent are certainly great assets in the pursuit of a man, you'd be surprised how much can be accomplished without them. Few girls have these attributes, yet many manage to marry fine men, often winning them over the competition of more favored females. So don't give up hope of impressing Jim. Your own feeling of inferiority is a much greater obstacle to your quest than is any lack of physical endowments. I suppose there's no question of an introduction, since in a small town everyone knows everyone else. When you meet him, don't hesitate to speak. One of the privileges allowed our sex is that of speaking first, so take advantage of it. Showing an interest in his activities and progress during the last three years is perfectly natural. Ask questions, pass on a bit of local news that he may have missed, tell him you're glad to see him back in town.

Perhaps he won't be too impulsive, but, at least, he'll remember you as the pleasant young lady who showed an interest in him. Next time you meet, he'll be quite willing to enter into conversation, and if he meets with the same warm response, be assured he won't let you slip away entirely.

There's nothing wrong with you simply because you'll never make the cover of a national magazine, so stop belittling what assets you have. Just try to put yourself in Jim's path as much as possible, without being too obtrusive. Be amiable and responsive, then let's see what results you get. I'd like to hear how you get along.

DEAR MISS DIX: After 15 years of marriage, my husband fell in love with another woman and left me, later marrying her. Now, however, they are divorced and he wants to return to me. During our separation I met a man 20 years my junior and can't decide whether to take my husband back, or marry the other man.—M. L.

ANSWER: The new man in your life is much too young for you; your best bet is to take your husband back, and see if you both can't make a better success of marriage on the second try.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have become attracted to a girl who works in my office. Although she's 23, she refuses to go out with me alone, insisting on double dates at all times. Should I continue to date her on these terms, or forget her? —H. P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you are sufficiently interested in the young lady, isn't she worth a bit of wooing? You can't expect to sweep her off her feet on short acquaintance. Probably she hasn't been meeting the right sort of men, and suspects all of them. Don't give up.

Farmers Anxious To Improve Relations With City Folk; Taking Small Part Of Profit

Take the middleman's profits out of the price spread between the farmer and the urban consumer and their relations would be greatly improved.

That is the drift of many of the Farm Forum comments on the broadcast subject of rural public relations entitled: "Telling the Farmer's Story."

City people generally have an erroneous opinion that the farmer gets all the money that is paid for the food he produces, according to the consensus of the Forum groups.

Farmers have so long been silent about the make-up of prices and other misconceptions that they now have an accumulation of wrong ideas to clear away.

Donegal Forum at the home of Max Brown in Asphodel said: "City people think farmers evade income tax. They do not realize the spread between prices and the costs of delivering foods to the consumer. Our local dairy raised the price of milk recently one cent a quart, but they did not pass that increase on to the farmers. But when the consumer is blaming anybody he thinks of the farmer."

HANDICAPS

City people have their own co-operative water and fire protection and all the rest,—the improvements and facilities farmers have to pay for individually. They have to drive a distance to the store, to church, to the theatre, and so on. They face handicaps all along the line, as compared with the conveniences of the city way of life, but they feel and know that they are not being fairly judged by urban opinion.

"There is a great variety in service charges for electric power, telephone, fire protection and so on." William Barrie was discussion leader and Mrs. Milton Cornish, secretary.

Pine Grove Forum at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hunter, with eleven present, also expressed the opinion that city people did not know the expense involved in raising and preparing produce for the markets.

SCARCITY

Dairy D Forum, near Norwood, met at the home of Mrs. Annie Knox, 15 present, Clare Telford, leader. One of their comments was to this effect: often scarcity is the cause of higher prices; it may be caused by adverse weather, drought, etc., but in that situation the farmer hasn't the goods to sell and it is likely that the bulk of the increase occurs after the products leave the farmer's hands.

City people see the country at its fairest, they see the plowing and the seeding, and appear to think everything is smooth sailing to harvest time. Storms and pests, lack of moisture and other unfavorable conditions, all add to the farmer's costs and to loss of income.

If the farmer could reduce his working day and week to the comparatively short time of the city worker, and the city people are not slow in pressing their own demands, that a shorter rural day would add greatly to the cost of farm products delivered in the city. The farmer works the longer day, and the dairy farmer seven days a week, and receives no credit from the city—only criticism based on misinformation.

Maple Row Forum at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell McCarrell, 14 present, may not have a clear idea of where the money would come from, but they said they were in favor of hiring a public relations man "as the industries do."

TELL THE FACTS

"Any way," said Stewart Hall in summary, "no matter how you tried to tell city people the facts, 50 percent of them wouldn't believe you." They met at the Harold Dawsons' home, 12 present, Charles Kindred leader.

Coldspring's Forum at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bullock, 15 present, Mrs. J. Tully leader, said they doubted the employment of "top brass" to do the public relations job which was being more widely recognized as a necessity for understanding and goodwill. "It is the ordinary missionary work done by those most interested and informed that can put public relations across."

Westwood Forum at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Patterson with Wm. Mood leader, commented that at least city people would know that farmers are seriously concerned about this matter of harmony and neighborliness and understanding and were trying to think out a plan to improve relations.

Says Noranda Citizens Against Strike

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — A citizens' committee says the "majority" of the 24,000 citizens of Noranda and Rouyn are against the wage strike of 1,600 workers at Canada's biggest base metal mine here.

The committee was appointed three months ago to bring about a meeting between Noranda Mines and the union, the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), which reached an agreement Tuesday with Hollinger gold mine at Timmins, across the border from the neighboring Quebec towns.

The committee, headed by Guy Dallaire, Union-Nationale member of the Quebec legislature for Rouyn-Noranda, met local merchants Tuesday night to discuss a company offer of a 7½-per-cent-an-hour increase.

Mr. Dallaire said the committee will press the union to accept the offer, made in a letter sent to employees. A company spokesman said it works out to an average 10-cent-an-hour increase.

The steelworkers walked out Aug. 21, asking higher wages, a shorter work week and revocable voluntary checkoff of union dues.

"We feel that the majority of the people in Rouyn and Noranda are against this strike," said Mr. Dallaire.

SS 11, Smith Presents Concert

FAIRVIEW—(ENS)— The pupils of S.S. No. 11 Smith and their teacher, Miss Marie Drain presented their Christmas concert in the school before a full house.

The school was beautifully decorated and Santa Claus arrived in time to distribute the gifts from a well laden Christmas tree.

The program which was mostly carol singing and Christmas music was presided over by one of the pupils, Bettie Black, as follows:

Junior welcome song. The senior section grades 4 to 8, consisted of carols and readings by the group. Recitations by Bettie Black and Ethel Langley; piano solo's by Jean Lewis and Ruth Olver.

The Junior section, grades 1 to 4, sang and offered recitations by Marilyn Heard, Sharon Van Allen, Patsy Dupius, Sharon Olver, Harold Van Allen; and presented a play, No room in the Inn.

Mrs. Elmer Milburn presented a gift from the local W.C.T.U. to all pupils who had written on the scientific temperance papers in the school instructed by Miss Drain.

Those receiving gifts were, Bernard Moore, Sharon Van Allen, Marilyn Heard, Philip Olver, Lewis Black, Shirley Nicholls, Billie Jackson, Victor Woodford, Jean Lewis, Shirley Moncrief, Ruth Olver, Gordon Heard, Betty Black and Ethel Langley. Bernard Moore received the highest percentage in these papers.

The installation ceremony will take place in January.

A 16-POUND TURKEY

Not that the staff of the Bank of Montreal has mentioned it, but just for the record, that was a 16-pound, not a 10-pound, turkey they included in the five boxes of Christmas gifts they sent the family near Maple Leaf.

Reginald S. Eagleton

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon from the Nisbett funeral home for Reginald Sidney Eagleton, 47-year-old resident of 317 McDonnel St., who died Saturday in hospital.

Officiating was the Rev. M. P. Poole of All Saints' Anglican church. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Pallbearers were V. Saltern, E. Saltern, A. Hargrove, G. Siegle, W. Triggs and J. Dionne, all fellow De Laval employees.

Expect Mine Operating Soon

TIMMINS (CP)—E. A. Perry, manager of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, said today the company hoped to resume full operations as soon as possible after a new working agreement is signed with the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

The basis for the agreement was reached between company and union representatives at Toronto Tuesday and now will be put to a vote of the 1,500 striking Hollinger miners.

Mr. Perry in a statement said that management was pleased a basis for settlement had been reached and added that "while certain preliminary work in the mine and plant will also be necessary, we hope to be able to resume full operation as soon as possible after the agreement is signed."

Church Organizer Rev. G. Barker Dies

TORONTO (CP) — The Rev. George W. Barker, one of the organizers of the United Church and active in the ministry for more than 50 years, died Tuesday in hospital after a brief illness. He had served as secretary and president of both the Hamilton and Toronto conferences.

Born near Paris, Ont., he was a graduate of Victoria College and was ordained a minister in the Methodist Church and subsequently a minister of the United Church.

He held pastorates in Preston, Kerr, Acton, Woodstock, Guelph, Burlington, St. Catharines and Toronto.

He was founder of the Kingsway-Lambton United church in 1934. He served as secretary of the board of secondary schools and colleges of the United Church. An honorary degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him by Victoria College.

Surviving are his widow, and one Ridgetown.

Report New Wave Of Jewish Persecution

VIENNA (AP)—Western diplomats in Vienna said today that a new wave of Jewish persecutions, apparently aimed at crushing all opposition to communism, is sweeping the Soviet Union's European satellites.

Their assessment followed an announcement by the Union of Jewish Communities in Austria Tuesday night that it had protested to Communist-ruled Hungary against a secret trial of three Hungarian Jewish leaders reported under way in Budapest.

Jewish figures in Romania and Czechoslovakia also have been reported either tried and jailed or awaiting trial.

May Settle In U.S.

OUTHAMPTON (CP) — Capt. Harry Grattidge, reuring master of the 83,000-ton liner Queen Elizabeth, says he may settle down in the United States, but refused to give any details. Grattidge gave his last orders from the bridge when the liner docked here Monday night. He now is reuring as commodore of the Cunard Steam-ship Company fleet, after 48 years at sea, 40 of them with Cunard.

Not Intoxicated Just Sleepy, Found Not Guilty

After an 80 minute hearing in the magistrate's court this morning a charge against Joseph McGrath, labourer, of 342 Welsh street, that he was intoxicated while in control of a motor vehicle, was dismissed.

Magistrarte W. R. Philp, QC, considered that the evidence submitted by three police officers was not sufficiently strong to give a conviction. McGrath was represented by Robert Carley.

OPP Corporal J. Hanson said he had found McGrath in a truck parked near Downer's corner at 5 a.m. on December 5. City police constable W. Perry had been called in company with two other constables.

Constable Perry told the court that his efforts to shake McGrath out of an "unconscious condition" had been in vain, and McGrath had to be assisted to the patrol cruiser by two policemen. McGrath had smelt of liquor and his condition suggested either a man in a very deep sleep or in an extremely intoxicated condition. He had revived somewhat on reaching the police station.

McGrath's truck had been found parked with its rear end five feet out from the curb. The ignition key was found lying on the floor.

AT STAG PARTY

Defence witnesses Gordon Finley, Murray Hallighan and James Hollingsworth, testified to having seen McGrath at a stag party held at the Aragon club on the night of December 4. Not one of them had seen him drink more than three bottles of beer during the party and in company with them he had been playing a "game of skill" called crap.

Hollingworth said that he had seen accused leave the club at 4 a.m. and he appeared not to be in an intoxicated condition.

To the defence counsel, Hollingworth stated that McGrath would not have been able to play the game (again skillful) of crap if he had been intoxicated.

To crown attorney John A. Bradshaw, Hollingworth adamantly stated he had been sober and in good condition to observe and form an opinion of McGrath's behaviour.

McGrath's explanation that he had been able to drive only 1,000 yards from the club before having to stop and go to sleep was due to the fact that he had had only an hour's rest the previous night because his child had been ill.

Mr. Bradshaw was of the opinion that McGrath would have been wiser to have left the club at midnight than at 4 a.m., seeing that he had had no sleep for two nights.

McGrath further alleged that he had had only three bottles of beer. He was used to drinking and three bottles would not have intoxicated him. He had pulled over and stopped his truck when he reached the stage that his eyes would no longer stay open.

Bustamante Asks Anti-Red Law

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) William Bustamante, the Jamaican chief minister, has sent a letter to governor Sir Hugh Foot asking that a law be enacted to curb communism in the island, it was learned Tuesday night.

He will ask the executive council today to instruct the attorney-general to draft a bill immediately.

The aim of the bill is to ban the activity of Communists in industry or any public and semi-public sphere, and to prohibit any trade union or political party from being Communist-led.

Bustamante said the British government had suspended the British guiana constitution because of Communist intrigue.

"I totally agree with the action of the British government in this respect," he said.

Appeal Filed, Tehran Quiet

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Former premier Mohammed Mossadegh has appealed his sentence to three years in solitary confinement for treason.

Troops and police patrolled Tehran to prevent his nationalist and Communist supporters from taking direct action against the penalty.

The city was tense Tuesday but quiet in the wake of the trial's end Monday. Newspapers printed only brief, factual accounts of the verdict, with no inflammatory editorials.

Mossadegh wrote the appeal personally on the document containing his sentence, a copy of which had been given him as required by Iranian law. He then signed the sentence.

An authoritative source said it would take 20 days to set up the appeals court. The new tribunal will have seven judges, none of whom served on the original court-martial. It must hear the entire case over again. That may take more than a month.

ed health service in all our schools for the first time—something Peterborough needed for a long time.

"And, incidentally, next year, due to anticipated grants, they will give this city a cheaper per capita health service — and certainly more efficient.

"Then came the termination of the Hatton sub-division agreement with the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Ald. Longhurst headed the committee responsible, with the result that a beautiful site has been made available for more homes, which we are bound to need in the future.

"Then came the reorginazation of our fire department, caused by the unfortunate retirement of our late fire chief. You all know how Ald. Rehill's committee carried this out.

"I could mention other good work you have done. But I want to be brief and yet appreciative of all your combined efforts.

"For your individual contributions to a successful term of office, Mrs. Waddell and I tender you all our sincere thanks and best wishes for the ensuing year."

Ald. Harold Rehill spoke in reply to the mayor's address, and expressed regret he felt at losing the experience and help of four members of council, especially of Mayor Waddell and Ald. Miller. Their advice had been particularly helpful to the junior aldermen, including himself and Aldermen Black and Longhurst, who had served well during their short terms in office.

His Worship and Ald. Miller had given their time and help without reservation, Ald. Rehill said.

Alderman A. B. Burrows and P. J. Anglesey also expressed their thanks to the retiring mayor and aldermen for their help and co-operation.

Dock Workers Exchange Blows

NEW YORK (AP)—A fist fight broke out today as brisk balloting continued in the struggle between two rival longshoremen's unions to represent dock workers in the port of New York.

Three hours after the polls opened in Brooklyn for the second day of balloting in the national labor relations board election, a group of 15 men identified by police as AFL union adherents, started to march toward the voting place.

Quickly an equal number of men described as members of the International Longshoremen's Association (Ind.) closed in and fists flew. Forty policemen moved in and separated the contestants before anyone was hurt.

Anthony (Tough Tony) Anastasio, an adherent of the old union, predicted that the ILA would win the election 5 to 1.

Canadians Fear Changes In Coronation

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (AP) — Proposals aimed at changing the coronation ceremony to give Commonwealth countries a greater share in the proceedings have been received with some "misgivings" by at least one interested group in Canada.

The Canadian viewpoint was made known Tuesday in Round Table, a quarterly devoted to Commonwealth affairs. Before and after the Queen was crowned in Westminster Abbey last June 2, the publication outlined a number of suggested changes designed to make the complex ceremony more broadly representative of the Commonwealth.

Among other things, Round Table suggested that the Homage should be performed not in Westminster Abbey but in neighboring Westminster Hall. This would be followed by a ceremony in which the Commonwealth countries, each in its own form and language, would declare loyalty through national representatives.

COURT SUPPORT

Commenting on these changes, believed to have considerable support in court circles, a spokesman of a Canadian group writes in the current issue of Round Table:

"First, let me say that we were all very much interested in your proposals, and would like to be able to give our blessing. However, we have misgivings.

"Take your suggestion that the English bishops should have added to their number Anglican bishops from some of the other Commonwealth countries. We are afraid that if some Canadian Anglican bishops were named to take part in the coronation ceremony, there would be ructions in this country —in other words, growls and howls from (Roman) Catholics, Presbyterians, United Churchmen and Baptists, who would all be likely to say: 'Why should the Anglican church in Canada be singled out for recognition as though it had some title to be regarded as a national church?' "

The Canadian group, which is not further identified, also suggests that Roman Catholics in Canada, described as numbering 43 per cent of the population, "might have something to say about the fact that the sovereign is required to promise to uphold the Protestant faith."

Grass-Skirted Warriors Dance Welcome As Queen Reaches Auckland

. AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Grass-skirted Maori warriors danced a welcome today as the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh arrived in the royal liner Gothic for a 38-day visit to New Zealand.

Despite a drizzling rain, half a million New Zealanders lined the streets and cheered themselves hoarse as the royal party drove from the docks through the city's main street to the town hall.

The Queen was greeted by Governor-General Sir Willoughby Norrie and other officials as she stepped from the Gothic's gangplank into the drizzling rain wearing a light, chartreuse-colored dress.

After inspecting a guard of honor, the monarch and the duke were rushed to the city hall where the Queen stood on an open-air balcony to receive the acclaim of the crowd.

ACCEPTS RAINCOAT

The Queen refused the loan of a raincoat during the dockside ceremony but gratefully accepted another one offered at city hall by Prime Minister Sidney Holland. The crowd roared as Holland took the coat from his secretary and adjusted it over the Queen's shoulders.

Lady Norrie hastily put her umbrella over her guest. Meanwhile the duke, wearing the riband and star of the Order of the Garter, sat in the downpour on the left of Auckland's mayor.

The Maoris, descendants of the original inhabitants of New Zealand, staged their spectacular welcome ceremony in front of the hall. Thirty warriors, clad only in grass skirts, shouted and stamped through their dance and treated the royal party to a ferocious "haka," a Maori war chant.

FIRST TO VISIT

The Queen, on a six - month, round - the - world Commonwealth tour, is first reigning monarch ever to visit New Zealand.

Four New Zealand naval ships and 2,000 small craft swarmed around Auckland's island-studded gulf in welcoming the royal couple to this smalest and most remote of the dominions.

It was a grey morning with gusty winds and rain, but almost all of Auckland's yachts and launches lined up to salute the royal liner.

As in London on Coronation day, tens of thousands of eager citizens elbowed each other for a glimpse of the Queen. Some people paid as much as £50 for a "room with a view" of the 10-mile procession through Auckland.

GREAT CHEER

From the hills overlooking the harbor a great cheer went up as the packed thousands sighted the sleek white liner nosing into the harbor.

As the Gothic nosed up to the central dock, New Zealanders, many of whom had camped all night for this big moment, waved flags and blew whistles and shouted their welcome to the couple who chose New Zealand for their Christmas celebration.

The Queen will deliver the traditional royal broadcast to the Commonwealth here at 9 p.m. (3 a.m. CST) Christmas Day.

Sirens, ships' whistles and bells set up a mighty roar of welcome as the Queen and the duke stepped ashore, and the din was swelled by a great chorus of auto horns from New Zealanders sitting in cars parked bumper to bumper in all the roads around the harbor of this city of 350,000 persons.

In her reply at city hall to Holland's address of welcome, the Queen spoke of her parents' visit to the dominion more than 25 years ago, before her father was called to the throne. He had planned to visit Australia and New Zealand in 1948, but the trip was postponed by illness and he died in 1952 before it could be planned again.

The Queen said:

"There is a measure of sadness in the circumstances which surround my visit.

"My father would have come here in 1939 had it not been for the outbreak of war, and he was prevented again from coming by his illness in 1948.

"I have inherited the duties and responsibilities which he bore with such courage and I am heartened by the fact that I have also inherited the loyalty of his peoples all over the world.

"I shall always endeavor to retain and deserve that loyalty."

The senior choir was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. L. Burt, while the juniors were under the leadership of Mrs. Fred McKenzie. Two anthems were sung by the senior choir with the duet part in "A Saviour Christ the Lord" being taken by Misses Shirley Bennett and Shirley Seabrooke. A solo "If I Were a Bell" was sung by David McKenzie, a member of the junior choir. Misses Dorothy Graham and Shirley Bennett sang a duet, and a trio was sung by Miss Elaine Graham, Mrs. D. Nicholas and Miss Shirley Bennett. The junior anthem was "What is Thy Light." Both choirs combined on the anthem "Silver stars were gleaming".

The Rev. R. D. Duncanson spoke on "The meaning of the Christmas Carols". He told about the attitude in which the carols should be sung. They should not be sung lightly but to the glory and praise of Christ.

Despite poor health, Mrs. Watson, ineligible for either civic relief or provincial mothers' allowance, took a job in a factory to earn money for her daughters, Nancy, 5, and Sandra, 8.

A report of the situation in a Kitchener newspaper has brought a flood of contributions of food, clothing and money. More than $1,000 has been contributed to provide security for the family until Mrs. Watson becomes eligible for mother's allowance in a few months.

Licence Suspended Drove, Fined $50

"The penalty for this offence ranges up to a $500 fine and six months in jail. You should have thought of that before you started out".

These were the comments of Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, in the magistrate's court Tuesday when Russell Oliver, farmer of RR 2, Lakefield, pleaded guilty to driving a car while his license was suspended.

"In this case it's more ignorance of the law than evil intent", said Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw.

Magistrate Philp imposed a fine of $50, costs $2.50 and ordered the car, owned by Oliver's wife, to be impounded for three months.

Find Congestion Retarding Wheat Loading

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian wheat board officials said Tuesday night that loading of wheat for west coast ports is being "retarded" because of congestion. However, they said the situation will be cleared up within a few days.

"We don't regard the situation as serious," said W. C. Mcnamara, assistant chief commissioner. "It is just that the number of cars in transit got a little heavy."

W. Riddel, wheat board commissioner, said there will be a "suspension of loading for a few days." He said he understood this applied only on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The wheat board announced that further shipments of wheat to the Lakehead are prohibited, except from certain stations in Manitoba and Saskatchewan which still need space for the initial three-bushel delivery quota.

The board said stocks of wheat now in store or in transit are sufficient for needs, and certain other grains, especially oats and malting barley, are required to meet commitments.

Ask Quebec Gov't To Intervene

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Federation of Industrial Unions (CCL) Tuesday night asked the provincial government to take direct action to end strikes of miners in northwestern Quebec.

Noranda Mines, where 1,600 of the 3,000 striking miners are employed, is reported to have offered an hourly pay increase of 10 cents. The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) representing the men, has demanded 22 cents.

Federation secretary Romeo Mathieu, in a telegram to Premier Duplessis and Labor Minister Barrette, said the conflict now is beyond ordinary labor-management and the government should intervene.

He said the four-month conflict is endangering the welfare of the province and of the 3,000 families involved and urged negotiations be started between management and strikers under the chairmahip of Mr. Barrette and "if necessary" in the presence of the premier himself."

$10,000,000 Harbor Bridge Reshaping Halifax Economy

By DAL WARRINGTON

HALIFAX (CP)—A bridge still unfinished is reshaping the economy of Halifax and its suburbs.

The $10,000,000 Halifax - Dartmouth bridge won't be completed until next October but its impact on business and community life has been evident for months.

The mile-long suspension span, talked of for decades, was seen by its original promoters as a self-supporting travel convenience between the city, on Halifax harbor's west side, and the town of Dartmouth on the east.

However, its effects are spreading far beyond the planners' dreams.

GROWING TOWN

Dartmouth civic leaders predict their town will pass Halifax in size. The town's 1953 population estimate is 19,400. Halifax's figure is 104,300. But in the last 10 years Dartmouth grew by 50 per cent, the city by only 21 per cent.

Halifax, strait - jacketed in a three-mile-long peninsula, has nowhere to grow. Dartmouth, with plenty of undeveloped land, can expand north, east and south for miles.

The Dartmouth boom already is under way. This year saw the greatest building program in the town's history. Private construction to Nov. 30 was valued at nearly $6,000,000. Total taxable assessment last year was only $21,-000,000.

Two apartment projects alone cost more than $4,125,000. In addition, 143 homes were built in the town and almost as many more in nearby suburbs.

JOINT FINANCING

The Halifax-Dartmouth bridge commission, representing the province of Nova Scotia, the city and county of Halifax and the town of Dartmouth, sold bonds to finance the bridge.

The province guarantees any operating deficit but may recover 25 per cent from the city, 10 per cent from the town and five per cent from the county. But the commission doesn't expect any deficit.

The commission plans a 40-cent toll for cars and drivers. Car passengers would pay five cents; bus passengers 2½ cents. The first year's revenue should reach $900,-000, leaving a moderate operating profit.

Big Year For Uranium In Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan government lists 1953 as the big year for its valuable uranium deposits. Next year promises to be even bigger.

At least five mines may be producing uranium ore by next summer, the department of mineral resources said today.

The optimistic outlook is contained in a year-end review of mining activities in Saskatchewan's Beaverlodge Lake district, 600 miles northwest of here and source for most of the province's uranium, the key mineral in atomic weapons.

The department says 1953 will "long be remembered" as the year uranium production started in Saskatchewan. The most notable achievement was production of ore by Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., a crown corporation.

The number of underground workings in the Beaverlodge area doubled in 1953 to 16. Active developers jumped to 150, three times what they were at the end of 1952. Expenditures topped a record-breaking $10,000,000. Private companies spurred development to unprecedented levels, a few of them reaching the mine stage late in the season.

Claim staking, prhaps the most spectacular part of the 1953 development, reached about 15,000. More than 11,000 were staked this year. Staking spread from Beaverlodge as far west as the Saskatchewan-Alberta border, north to Tazin lake bordering the Northwest Territories, and east 20 miles to the Beaver river area.

The review says a few private companies could be producing uranium ore now. But Eldorado, which has the only concentrator plant in the district, will not be able to mill ore until early next year.

Gunnar Gold Mines Ltd., one of the major companies working around Beaverlodge, plans a $7,-000,000 expansion program next year. Much of this will go for a concentrator plant with a milling capacity of more than 1,000 tons a day, twice that of Eldorado.

NEW FIELDS

The stepped-up search for new uranium deposits turned up three promising new fields: Laird island, a 16-square-mile mountain of mineralized rock in the middle of Tazin lake; the Cypress river-Shepard lake region, 40 miles west of Uranium City, and the Beaver river area, 20 miles east of Beaverlodge lake.

Extension of runways at the La Ronge air field has almost been completed. Longer runways will permit use of larger aircraft on the Saskatchewan government airways' run from Prince Albert to Uranium City.

Kelly Picture All Dancing No Dialogue

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Gene Kelly is finishing up a picture with all dancing and no dialogue, and scoffs at the idea that it's strictly for art-lovers.

Kelly, a whirlwind creator, now is acting and dreaming up the dances for "Brigadoon," which Vincente Minnelli is directing. Gene is also working with the MGM cartoon department to finish up "Sinbad the Sailor," the last sequence in his talkless movie, "Invitation to the Dance."

The gossips have printed that MGM was concerned about "Invitation," fearing that it might have a limited audience. Gene spiked such reports.

"Some people say the picture will appeal only to ballet lovers," he remarked. "I say that's a lot of nonsense. I think it will have great popular appeal. Anybody who likes to see dancing should go for it.

GOOD CHANCE

"I think it has a better chance of making money than the general Most of them are pretty darned awful.

"I've always held that you should not under-estimate the intelligence of the movie audience. That's where Hollywood has mad a mistake. I remember how everybody thought we were nuts to put that big ballet number in 'An American in Paris.'"

"An American in Paris" was one of the most successful musicals ever made and won the Academy's best picture award for 1951. The achievement whetted Gene's appetite for even ore ambitious things. He proposed a full-length dance picture—nothing else, just dancing.

Much to his surprise, the studio said, "sure—go ahead."

"Then I started getting cold feet," he admitted. "I began to think what would happen if it really flopped."

So he settled for a movie of three different sequences. One of them is stark drama and caused a run-in with the censors.

"It's quite a strong bill of goods," he explained. "In one of the scenes I'm walking down the street and a prostitute comes up to me. The censors got real up in arms over it. That's something I can't understand."

Leaders In Several Fields Of Canadian Activity Lost Through Death In '53

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Well-known figures in the Canadian political scene were among the prominent Canadians who died during the year.

Actual Trains Outnumbered By Toy Trains

Canadian and U.S railroads together operate some 48,000 locomotives and around 2 million freight and passenger cars. But last year alone, says the January Reader's Digest, one manufacturer of toy trains sold well over half a million locomotives and nearly 2½ million cars.

"The fact that you'll find toy electric trains in almost every youngster's living room is due in large part, says the Dibest article, to 73-year-old Joshua Lionel Cowen, described as the "father of the toy electric train."

Cowen built his first electric train over half a century ago, when he was still under 20. Working in a one-room shop in an old building, he contrived a wooden flatcar that concealed a small electric motor underneath it. The contraption ran on strips of brass mounted on wooden ties, and crude though it was, it represented a big advance over the wind-up train that ran a few feet over the living room floor.

Soon Sowen was manufacturing locomotives, cabooses, coal cars, cattle cars, day coaches, and even Pullman cars with illuminated interiors. By 1926, when he introduced remote controls to his "railroads", Cowen's Lional trains were in wide demand. The remote control feature enabled operators to bring their trains into stations, back them onto sidings, couple and uncouple cars—all without going near the trains themselves. There are cars that unload logs, coal, and milk cans onto a freight platform, and even put toy cattle into a corral.

Altogether, says Aeader's Digest, some 25,000 miles of toy track have been laid in the living rooms, basements and attics of six continents.

But not all the model train equipment is bought for the younger members of the family. Among adult train enthusiasts are actor Robert Montgomery, writer Ben Hecht, and Dr. James Conant, who as president of Harvard University used to set up his trains on the floor of the ballroom in the presidential mansion.

Train Crash Kills 100 In New Zealand

Holiday Express Goes In River Off Broken Bridge

WELLINGTON, N.Z. — (Reuters)—At least 100 persons were killed in a train wreck early Christmas Day, as the crack Wellington-to-Auckland night express crashed off a broken bridge into the muddy waters of the Upper Wangaehu river, 130 miles north of here. The train was carrying 275 passengers when the engine and six cars plunged 20 feet into the water. Most of the passengers were on their way home for Christmas. Several hours after the wreck, described as the worst in New Zealand's history, 31 persons were reported in hospitals and 172 were still unaccounted for.

Many of the dead were trapped in the cars and drowned immediately when the train thundered straight into the water from a broken bridge near Tangiwae.

It is reported that a cloudburst caused a mountain lake to burst its banks, flooding the river and carrying away the bridge.

The rail disaster marred what was to be one of New Zealand's most joyous Christmases. Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are in Auckland, and the Queen is scheduled to make her annual world-wide Christmas broad cast from there later today.

Midsummer rainfalls have been heavy in many parts of New Zealand this season—the Queen arrived in a downpour at Auckland Wednesday to begin her royal tour of the dominion.

Thieves Make 2 Break-ins, Loot Is Small

Add Christmas Touch To One Place By Taking Fruit Cake

Thieves broke into two commercial premises early today: the Canada Bread Co. Ltd., 421 Chambers St., and the Sidey Auto Supply Ltd., 184 Simcoe St.

Their mixed bag included $40 in cash, three cans of radiator flush, and—here's a Christmas touch—a fruit cake.

The first breakin was discovered at 12:15 a.m. by Everett Douglas, Canada Bread shipper. Entry was made through a window in the west end of the building, 12 feet from the ground.

The thieves went from the warehouse to the office, jimmying two doors to get there. The safe was pried out about five inches from the wall by a piece of two-by-four lumber found in the stockroom. They they made a hash of the job by knocking off the combination handle of the safe.

NOTHING MISSING

Nothing was missing from the safe.

Elsewhere the thieves grabbed three cans of radiator flush and, rummaging around in a warehouse cupboard, they found a fruit cake. They took it and left.

The breakin at Sidey's was discovered at 6.10 a.m. today. The lock on the rear door was broken from its mounting and the thieves went to the till, removed $40 in cash but left a couple of cheques, and then made off.

City detectives are working on the case.

Breaks Speed Record

LONDON — (AP)—A U.S. Air Force B-47 Stratojet bomber broke the speed record for an Atlantic crossing from Maine to England today, making the 2,500-mile flight in four hours 34 minutes. The plane, commanded by Capt. Russell Bishop of Riverside, Calf., started from Limestone, Me., and landed at Upper Hayford, England, shortly after noon. Bishop said the plane's average speed was slightly more than 616 miles an hour.

Car, Bus Collide Two Killed, 11 Injured

BISSETT CREEK, Ont. (CP)—Two men were killed and 11 persons injured Wednesday night when an automobile and a bus collided on Highway 17 near this community some 75 miles east of North Bay.

Dead are Hugh Kelly, 25, Matachewan, Ont., who police said was the driver of the car, and Boyd MacPherson, 24, of Renfrew, a passenger in the car.

Taken to hospital at Mattawa, about 30 miles west of here and treated for bruises and facial cuts were:

Harry Baldwin, 42, of Ottawa; Mrs. H. Hunter, River Bend, Que.; John Miller, 75, Cornwall; Mrs. Rose Winstein, 65, Montreal; Ross Peever, 23, North Bay; Rose Waddington, 27, Ottawa; Angeline Minor, 22, Mattawa; Mrs. Helen McKay, 74, Coniston, Ont.; Ronaldo Pappone, Timmins; Michael Dupuis, 23, Ottawa; Sister Michaela of the Sisters of St. Joseph order, North Bay.

PASSING MOTORISTS HELP

The injured were taken to Mattawa hospital by passing motorists. Sister Michaela was later taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in North Bay.

Although the condition of the others was described by hospital officials as fairly good, all are being detained for observation.

Provincial constables Marty Brindle of Pembroke and Denny Jones of Rolphton said it was necessary to use a winch to remove the bodies from the wrecked automobile. Damage to the bus, which was the first section of the Colonial coach Ottawa-North Bay supper-time run, was described as extensive.

ACCOUNTS ARE VAGUE

Injured passengers aboard the bus were unable to describe the accident exactly.

"It all happened so fast that there was little time for confusion or panic among the men and women aboard," said Harry Baldwin. "The first thing I knew I was on the floor of the bus. I realized then that something terrible had happened."

Paul MacPherson, driver of the bus, who suffered a minor injury to his right leg, said the impact knocked him out of the driver's seat.

"There was nothing I could do to avoid hitting the car," he said. "I was just coming over the brow of the hill when the car appeared on the wrong side of the road."

FO. William Stockdale of North Bay, who was seated beside the driver, was not injured. He assisted the injured. George Thomas, in charge of the first aid post at Bissett gave first aid at the scene.

Army Becomes New Boss In Beria Ouster

By WILLIAM M. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

The Soviet police state structure molded by Joseph Stalin during a period of 20 years suffered a severe shock Wednesday night with the announcement that Lavrenty Pavlovitch Beria had died before a firing squad.

The upheaval leaves the Communist party more and more dependent upon the Soviet army to keep itself in power. In the final disgrace and humiliation of the once independently powerful MvD (ministry of internal affairs) through the execution of its former boss, the party has run into a dangerous—though probably calculated—risk.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev, a Second hero and regular army marshal, was chairman of the tribunal which sent Beria and the other six to their deaths. This is significant, bolstering the suspicion that the army played a large part in forcing the hand of the party and government and ending the fantastic police empire of a man who was a close ally and confederate of Stalin.

BALANCE UPSET

"The Beria fantasy can only have the effect of upsetting the political balance and leaving the ruling Communist party in a weakened condition. Thus weakened, the party through the government may find itself obliged to make more and more concessions to the population.

Under Stalin, the Communist party always feared the army. Stalin's MVD, a fully equipped army in itself, and the party had

Royal Children At Sandringham

However, the prince and princess will say "hello" to their parents by telephone. The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret will also talk to the Queen. Special "scrambling" devices evolved during the war will prevent any eavesdropping.

But five-year-old Charles and three-year-old Anne can count on Christmas greetings and presents from their mother in distant New Zealand. One of the Queen's last acts before leaving England was to buy a boxful of Christmas toys for her children.

The two youngsters will also hear their mother's voice when she broadcasts her Christmas Day message to the Empire from New Zealand.

Green Christmas For Canadians

TORONTO (CP)—Mild weather, spreading across Canada from the Pacific, today dampened the hopes of many Canadians for a white Christmas. Temperatures will be up in the 30s and 40s for most centres.

The weather man says if you have snow now it'll likely stay for Friday; otherwise, you're out of luck.

The forecast for the entire Canadian region from the Rockies to the east coast was for moderating temperatures.

The warm Pacific air, which covers most of the prairies, spread into Ontario today and will reach Quebec province by Christmas Day. Moderating temperatures were forecast for the Maritimes.

Temperatures jumped 50 degrees in 24 hours at Graham, Ont., about 90 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

DIFFERENT STORY

NORTH POLE (AP)—It was clear and cold here on the day before Christmas—the time for Santa Claus to load up his cargo.

The U. S. Air Force, which sends weather observation planes over the pole, said the temperature was 33 degrees below zero, the skies clear.

Family Of 12 Homeless

UNIONDALE, Ont. (CP) — A family of 10 children and two adults was reported made homeless Wednesday in a fire in this community about 10 miles southwest of Stratford. The children, seven boys and three girls, ranged from an infant to 16 years of age. Further details were not immediately available.

Buoyed By Hopes Of Peace 1953 Joyous Christmas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christians the world around looked forward today to one of the most joyous observances in years of the birth of Jesus. They were buoyed by the greatest hopes for peace—justified or not—since the start of the cold war. Although officials were skeptical, millions in Europe felt the threat of war had ebbed with the signing of the Korean truce and indications that the Soviet government is paying more attention to its people at home than to spreading the Communist gospel abroad.

The end this year of the fighting in Korea and the release of thousands of Communist-held prisoners also brightened homes throughout the United States. There, as in other lands, traditional Christmas Eve festivities and ceremonies were the order of the day.

TROUBLE SPOTS

But some trouble spots still blotched the world's face. French Union troops fought Communist-led Vietminh rebels in Indo-China. British forces stood guard in Malaya against Red Chinese guerrillas and in Africa's Kenya Colony against the anti-white Mau Mau tribesmen.

In Korea, a special airlift flew tons of last-minute Christmas mail to the thousands of United Nations troops still stationed in that war-torn country. Special services marked Christmas Eve observances on the now-quiet front.

In line with the general prosperity and relaxation throughout the world, pilgrims poured into the little town of Bethlehem, the birthplace of Christ. Fears that Arab-Israeli tension along the border dividing the Holy Land might frighten tourists away proved unfounded. The greatest influx of visitors since the 1948 Palestine war was in prospect.

ANNUAL SERVICE

Protestants gathered for the annual service this afternoon in the shepherd's field near Bethlehem, where the birth of Christ was announced to the shepherds by the angelic host.

Carol singers spread their traditional messages of cheer in cities, towns and villages throughout the world. At United Nations headquarters in New York, singers from several countries serenaded workers and visitors with carols in English, Spanish and French.

Britain and Western Europe prepared for their best Christmas since before the war. More food and consumer goods in most countries promised a happier yuletide than many youngsters could remember.

Special midnight masses were set tonight in all Roman Catholic churches throughout the continent, on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

CHRISTMAS BROADCAST

Pope Pius touched off world-wide spiritual observances this morning with his 15th annual Christmas broadcast to the world. Vatican radio rebroadcast the message in 25 languages and beamed them around the world.

Britain's festivities will be highlighted by the Queen's annual broadcast on Christmas morning. The Queen, now on a world Commonwealth tour, will speak from New Zealand.

In Moscow, Western diplomats and their families observed the holiday with receptions, house parties and carol singing. The Russians themselves must wait a few days for their celebrations, since the Orthodox church's Christmas falls Jan. 7 and Soviet folk have their Santa Claus and Christmas tree on New Year's Day.

In the southern hemisphere, festivities were much like those above the equator, but the people of South America, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand also were enjoying the beaches, picnic grounds and shirt-sleeved outdoor sports of their summer season.

Queen Studies Yule Message

By GOMER JONES

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters) — The Queen brushed up today on her round - the - world Christmas message as this New Zealand city sweltered in its hottest weather of the "down under" summer.

Technicians forecast that the annual world-wide broadcast, delivered for the first time from outside Britain, will be transmitted smoothly and clearly.

The Queen goes before the microphone at 9 p.m. (4 a.m. EST) Friday, at the climax of an hour-long Commonwealth hook-up. Her greeting will be recorded in London and rebroadcast for the domestic and overseas service from there six hours later.

(The live broadcast will be carried in Canada by the CBC.)

Thousands of perspiring Aucklanders, getting in their last-minute Christmas shopping, cheered the Queen as she drove to and from her suite at Government House on a round of ceremonial activities. The temperature touched 80 and the humidity was intense.

But the discomfort had no apparent effect on the lively welcome given the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh on the second day of their visit here on their Commonwealth world tour.

More than 15,000 lively youngsters shrilled their greeting to the Queen as she rode by jeep between thir long ranks drawn up on the green turf on the main cricket grounds. In her speech, the Queen told the children of her furthest dominion that "we all belong to one great family."

Walter Thomson III In Toronto Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—Walter Thomson, Toronto lawyer and former leader of the Ontario Liberal party, is ill in hospital here, officials at St. Michael's Hospital said today. He is 58.

Officials said he was admitted Nov. 5 but did not disclose the nature of his illness. His condition today was good, they said.

Mr. Thomson, defeated in the 1951 provincial election, resigned as leader in May, 1952.

Yule Letter Mystery Deepens

LONDON (Reuters) — The mystery of a Christmas letter written home by a British diplomat who vanished 2½ years ago deepened today with discovery of the fact that the paper and envelope are of British manufacture.

The light blue note paper bears the water mark of a British firm and is seldom found behind the Iron Curtain.

Secret service officers combed the text of the letter for a code, on the chance that Guy Burgess was attempting to pass a secret message in the note—possibly from behind the Iron Curtain.

Today's News Chronicle said it is thought the letter was written in Moscow, sent to Prague and brought to London by an Iron Curtain diplomatic courier who posted it near Waterloo air terminal, in London's southeast postal district.

The paper states that it is known that Burgess had been working in Prague but has been in Moscow for the last six months.

Soldier Reunited With Japanese Bride

L-Cpl. Kallies, his wife and daughter left Vancouver by air early Wednesday. However, en route, L.Cpl. Kallies was forced to transfer to another aircraft which missed a plane connection at Toronto while his wife and daughter, not expected so soon by her mother in-law and brother-in-law, arrived in Ottawa.

The RCAF came to the rescue and flew L.Cpl. Kallies from Toronto to Ottawa about two hours later. By that time, the army had taken over, found his wife and daughter accommodation at a hotel and notified his mother.

When L.Cpl. Kallies reached the hotel, his family had driven the 50 miles to Ottawa from Douglas, Ont., and the family was reunited. They left immediately to spend Christmas at Douglas.

Head-On Crash 1 Dead, 3 Hurt

ORILLIA (CP)—One man was killed and three others severely injured in a head-on collision of a car and a transport on Highway 11 at the town outskirts Wednesday night.

Killed was Gaston Chartrand of Baysville, father of four small children. Taken to hospital were John Sharp, Lindsay Marshal and Eric Gibson, all of Orillia. Their exact injuries have not been determined.

Police said the crash occurred on snow-covered, slippery pavement. The car in which the four were riding rounded a curve and collided with a transport driven by Joseph Hunter of Huntsville. The transport jack-knifed and skidded into the lot of a garage.

Peron Grants Amnesty

BUENOS AIRES (CP)—John F. Griffith, former cultural attache at the United States embassy who was expelled from Argentina in 1948, is free to return to the country under amnesty, it was announced Wednesday. Griffith was arrested and expelled for his alleged part in a plot to assassinate President Juan Peron and his late wife.

$1,000,000 Fire Razes Hangar

CALGARY (CP) — Fire destroyed the RCAF's main aircraft stores building at No. 24 air materiel base here early today, causing loss estimated at $1,000,000.

Cause of the fire is unknown. Security guards inspected the building shortly before the outbreak and reported nothing amiss.

The fire, which sent flames 200 feet in the air, cast an eerie glow over the southwest Calgary.

Members of the air force fire department had their first stream on the blaze by 4:15 a. m. The Currie barracks fire department came to their aid and army authorities sent an additional 75 soldiers to help in the fight. Six rigs were despatched by the city fire department.

Sends Christmas Greetings

Queen, Soldiers Overseas Get St. Laurent Message

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today sent Christmas greetings to the Queen, Royal Family and Canada's fighting men overseas.

Mr. St. Laurent's message to the Queen, addressed to her private secretary, was sent to the royal party touring the South Pacific. Text of the message:

"I should be grateful if you would convey to Her Majesty and his royal highness, the Duke of Edinburgh, and to the other members of the Royal Family the cordial greetings of the government of Canada at this season and all good wishes for a pleasant Christmas and an enjoyable New Year."

The armed forces message, addressed to commanding officers:

"Kindly convey to all ranks serving under your command in the cause of keeping peace in the world my most cordial greetings at this Christmas season and my warmest wishes for the New Year.

"We, their fellow Canadians, remember with deep gratitude their service to that cause and we share their regret that it must unfortunately keep so many from their loved ones at this season of family reunion."

Rene Coty Unknown

New President Of France Elected On 13th Ballot

PARIS (AP) — France's new president, 71-year-old Rene Coty, drove triumphantly into Paris today. The weary parliament which elected him went home to a Christmas rest and prospects of a new year fraught with strife and division.

Coty, a Conservative generally unknown to the public, was elected Wednesday night for a seven-year term to succeed Socialist Vincent Auriol. The new chief of state will take office Jan. 17. Premier Laniel's cabinet then will resign, and France once more will be without a government.

Previously no more than two ballots had been required to name a chief of state. Thirteen were held at a two-a-day pace before Coty—first proposed on the 12th ballot—received the necessary majority of the more than 900 members of the National Assembly and Council of the Republic. Coty was a member of the latter.

Observers are certain that the deep parliamentary divisions revealed by the long stalemate, over such burning domestic issues as labor policy, church influence and especially the American-backed plan to rearm Germany within a European army, will be repeated in 1954's legislative wrangling over those issues.

The first test will come when the assembly is asked to confirm Laniel's successor.

Coty got 477 votes—436 were needed to elect—on the decisive ballot. Marcel-Edmong Naegelen Socialist, poled 329.

Naegelen had been runner-up on 10 of the previous votes and led on two of them. But the 100 or so middle-of-the-road legislators, who held the elective balance of power between right and left, refused to vote for him because his opposition to the European army won him Communist support.

Beria, 6 Henchmen Executed As Soviet Traitors

MOSCOW—(AP)—The Soviet Union has closed the books on Lavrenty P. Beria. The government announced that the longtime boss of the secret police (MVD) and six of his henchmen were shot by a firing squad Wednesday after a secret five-day trial. The Soviet Supreme Court found them guilty of high treason. Beria, 54, held the Soviet Union's highest honors and had been elevated to the No. 2 Kremlin post of first deputy premier and interior minister after Stalin died nine months ago. Three months later, in June, Premier Malenkov's government arrested him and denounced him as a traitor to the state and Communism.

The execution announcement was the first disclosure that Beria's trial had been going on since Friday behind locked doors.

The hearing opened two days after the Soviet press published indictments against Beria and announced the names of the six other defendants. The papers at the same time started blasting the seven as the vilest kind of betrayers, and reported that mass meetings throughout the country were unanimously calling for their deaths.

(In past cases of executed traitors, the bodies have been cremated and disposed of without further announcement.)

CONFESSIONS CLAIMED

The eight-man tribunal, under Marshal Ivan S. Koniev, a Second World War hero, passed sentence after "the guilt of all the accused was completely proved in court by the evidence and also by oral and written confessions," the government newspaper Izvestia said.

The official announcement said Beria and those who had conspired with him tried "to put the ministry of internal affairs above the party and the government for the purpose of seizing power" and aimed "for restoration of capitalism."

As early as 1919 Beria "occupied the post of secret agent" in Azerbaijan, acting with groups "under the control of British intelligence organs," the announcement said.

"In the following years up to his arrest, L. P. Beria continued and extended his secret connections with foreign intelligence services."

SOWED HATRED

After Beria became interior minister, the announcement said, he promoted his group of plotters in the MVD, tried to sow hatred between the people of the Russian republic and other Soviet groups and sabotaged measures aimed at raising living standards. In addition, he and his accomplices "committed terrorist acts against the people whom they feared would expose them."

Personal property of the executed men was confiscated and they were stripped of all military titles Beria's Order of Lenin—the Soviet government's highest award—and his military rank of marshal of the Soviet Union. This was the highest possible rank below Stalin.

Find Woman Injured In Home

HAMILTON (CP)—A call from an excited man that a woman had been found lying in a pool of blood in the living room of her east end home sent detectives, an ambulance, the fire department's disaster unit, and fingerprint experts racing to the scene, just before midnight Wednesday.

After the inhalator crew worked on her for about 20 minutes, the ambulance took Mrs. Robert Ongaro, 45, of Dalkeith street, to the general hospital. She was unconscious for some time.

Detectives James Slater and William Allan said the woman was found by a roomer when he came home about 11:30 p. m.

They said they could find nothing to indicate violence, and believed the woman had perhaps fallen and hit her head. Detective Slater said the woman appeared to have been drinking.

Agriculture Minister Killed In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP)—Hon. D. A. Ure, Alberta's minister of agriculture, was killed Wednesday in a head on collision between a truck and a car which claimed one other life and sent the truck driver to hospital with injuries.

Mr. Ure, 43, was a passenger in the car believed driven by James Mitchell of Edmonton, also killed when the truck and car met head-on at the brow of a hill on the Edmonton-Jasper highway 40 miles west of here.

Taken to Edmonton's University Hospital was Robert Fagnan, about 30.

Premier F. C. Manning said the minister's death was a "very deep shock." Mr. Ure's death was a tremendous loss" to the agricultural interests of the province.

Chance Games Banned

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The state Supreme Court Wednesday outlawed slot machines, punch boards, chance spindles and other games of chance in Idaho. Board Fails To Settle Milk Dispute

TORONTO (CP)—A conciliation board reported Wednesday it has failed to settle the milk dispute between Silverwoods Dairies and the Retail and Wholesale Union (CIO).

The union has refused to accept the delivery pattern established in last September's agreement between the Toronto Milk Distributors Association and the Milk Drivers Union (AFL), which represents the majority of Toronto dairy employees.

This agreement set up a five-day delivery system, with no deliveries on Wednesday and Sunday. It ended a four-day strike by the workers who walked out to enforce demands for a wage increase without a change in the delivery pattern.

ORDERED DELIVERY

The Ontario milk board ordered the five-day delivery after the dairies had maintained the restricted deliveries were the only means of effecting economies that would make possible a wage increase.

The CIO union, representing approximately 480 employees, has demanded a four-day work week if the five-day delivery remains in effect. The union has claimed that working hours for drivers have increased by eight hours a week because of heavier loads carried on Tuesday and Saturday.

Sneak Thieves Steal Wallet Containing $29

Sneak thieves at work in the Empress Hotel, shortly after midnight Wednesday, stole a wallet containing $29 from an Ottawa man and nearly pulled the same trick on another guest.

Several times the men narrowly escaped capture after they bolted from the hotel and drove out of the city.

An ironic touch was added when one of the men, only a short distance ahead of the pursuing night clerk, flipped a $20 bill onto the desk in the lobby, presumably in payment for accommodation. He then raced out the swinging doors.

There is, of course, a pretty good suspicion that the $20 bill was from the plundered wallet of P. A. Dubey, 291 Loretta St., Ottawa, who had a room a short distance down the hall from the two sneak thieves. Mr. Dubey discovered the theft later.

MAN IN ROOM

W. J. Hawkins told police that he went to bed about midnight and was wakened two and a half hours later by a man in the darkened room who was going through his pockets.

"What are you doing?" asked Mr. Hawkins.

"Sorry," said the thief, apologetically. "I guess I'm in the wrong room." Then he took out—fast.

At the bend in the hall the escaper was joined by a second man—apparently a lookout. The two of them separated; one ran down the back stairs; the other headed for the front stairs.

The desk clerk who had been alerted by Mr. Hawkins chased the thief down the front stairs and out the front door where the wanted man jumped into a car brought around for convenience by his partner in crime who had meanwhile run down the backstairs. The pair drove away and were reported later at a lunchcounter on Highway 7.

Mr. Hawkins found that nothing was missing but later today Mr. Dubey reported his wallet stolen. It had contained a $20 bill and eight or nine $1 bills.

City police wish they had been alerted sooner, believing they might have trapped the men in the building.

Army Becomes

penetrated the ranks of the army from top to bottom with a spy system to keep the officer class under control. Stalin's Communists infiltrated the MVD itself, and the MVD in turn had its spies in the party.

As long as there was a dictator at the top, a single man with absolute authority, the system worked. Both armed forces—the army and the MVD—although they had no love for one another, were answerable directly to the top. Stalin could use the MVD as the instrument of iron party control.

COLLECTIVE ALLEGIANCE

Now, however, the MVD has become unreliable. Across the length and breadth of the vast Soviet land, the secret police has been and still is undergoing a thorough cleansing of the suspect elements. None in the network can feel himself above suspicion. And there is no one man at the top to whom the MVD can give its allegiance. The allegiance must be given to a whole top-rung collective in which most probably there still are sharp rivalries.

It seems obvious now that the private army of police through which Stalin and his fellow Georgian, Beria, wielded such terrible power, is a thing of the past. The MVD will continued to perform secret police functions, but it now will be answerable to the board of directors which sits in the Kremlin, the six senior members of the ruling Communist party Praesidium headed by Prime Minister Malenkov.

Aim To Remove Charity From Theatre

TORONTO (CP)—A bid to "take charity out of Canadian theatre" is being made here by two brothers and a sister whose new theatre company offers shares on the public market.

Murray Davis, 28, Donald, 25, and their sister, Barbara, 29, have set up a permanent repertory group in the Crest Theatre, a former suburban movie house that seats 835. They believe there has been too much support asked for theatres on the ground that they deserve it.

"Theatre must pay for itself and cannot exist on appeals to public sentiment," said Donald.

The Davis family comes from Newmarket, 25 miles north of Toronto, and has already handled a sizable theatre project.

PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE

Their Straw Hat Players, incorporated in 1948, started with $1,500. It expanded into two companies with an annual turnover of more than $20,000. They alternately play Gravenhurst and Port Carling in the summer season.

Share - financed repertory theatres are new in Canada and infrequent in the United States. But they are numerous and prosperous in England.

Murray and Donald Davis, Ltd., plans 20 productions in a 40-week season and starts Jan. 5. It has a staff of 37, including 10 players.

The administrative staff, mostly British, has been brought from England for teaching purposes. It includes: Pierre LeFevre and John Blatchley of London's Old Vic, directors; Brian Maler of the Arts Theatre, London, general manager; Hutchinson Scott, London, designer and Michael Ashford of the Bristol Old Vic, stage director.

These five will train Canadian assistants to take their places when they return to Britain in about six months.

WITH JUVENILE GROUPS

The three Davises were trained from childhood in most aspects of theatre. They belonged to juvenile theatre groups and did some work with the CBC.

Murray and Donald, both bachelors, studied together at the University of Toronto when Murray returned from the navy.

During the last three years the Davis trio worked with various companies in England. But they saw to it that one of them returned each season to look after the Straw Hat Players.

Murray played London's West End in "Come Back Little Sheba" and "Albert R.N." Donald had a leading role in "The River Lines," Charles Morgan's Edinburgh Festival play.

Barbara, Mrs. Maxwell Helpmann, joined the Canadian navy show in 1943 and toured Canada, Britain and Europe. After her discharge she studied in London at the Central School of Dramatic Art. Later she had leading roles in two London successes, "Dark Eyes" and "The Young and Fair."

British Paper Lauds Hutchison's Book

LONDON (CP) — Bruce Hutchison's book about former prime minister Mackenzie King, "The Incredible Canadian," is "higher journalism at its highest," says a review published in The Economist.

The weekly publication adds, however, that the book is only an "interim" biography which leaves unanswered many questions a serious reader might ask.

Noting that the book has aroused controversy in Canada—"some of Mr. Hutchison's fellow Canadians think his particular illumination of King and his country somewhat curious"—The Economist says a more definitive study must be awaited.

"In the meantime, this biography is welcome; it is highly readable and most of it is sound; moreover, Mr. Hutchison's style gives a relish and piquancy to his fascinating narrative."

HAMMER ARTIST—Misha Reznikoff, who says he is the first artist to put a frame around a piece of shattered glass and sell it as a piece of art, displays his masterpiece in New York City. First he made an abstract drawing and covered it with a piece of safety glass. Then, with a hammer, he made six splintered spots. These, he said, brought the original design to life. The abstract in the background is his conception of jazz singer Lee Wiley.

'Smog' Is Old English Word Coined By Dr. Des Voeux

There's a faction abroad that is busy labelling "smog" and "smaze" as horrid, ugly, subversive words and is seeking to have them drummed out of the dictionary (into which they are said to be infiltrating), John Allan May writes in the Christian Science Monitor.

We must rouse ourselves. Let us put on our thinking caps, and let us make sure the caps are on straight. The fact is, of course, that we need more such words.

SMOG DATES TO 1905

Smog is a good English word. I do not mean that it is a good American English word, either. I mean an English English word. It is as English as it could possibly be. It has a venerable and respected history. According to an authority in the Times, of London, the word was first printed in the Globe newspaper on July 3, 1905. It was coined by Dr. Des Voeux, who himself was first president of the British National Smoke Abatement Society.

The good doctor coined the word as expressing a mixture of smoke and fog. It was the only one he coined. Which is a pity. Probably if he had not closed down his verbal mint so suddenly it would not be a fact that today smogs, or smoky-fogs, are worse in London than ever—and that after 48 years of ceaseless service by the Natsmabsoc, or National Smoke Abatement Society.

For words are needed to give definition to things. One of these things is the communication of thoughts to help understanding. The sharper the focus of words the better, for a problem thoroughly understood is a problem already overcome.

When people go around talking of plain "fog" they may very soon fall victim to the idea that, after all, there is not much they can do about it. But when they talk about "smog," and know that it is a natural mixture of smoke and fog, they realize at once that there is something they can do about it.

DIFFERENT KINDS

Logically, it would be better still if people became even more exact in their words. Smogs differ. We should consider their composition. By sharpneing our words we will get a more pointed solution. There is sulphur dioxide in smog. Also carbon monoxide. Also soot, tar, dirt, and a small quantity of air. Then there are some smogs that hover on account of temperature inversions and unusual cloud conditions. Let us not forget these things.

Thus, in addition to smog, there is a smaze, which is a mixture of smoke and haze.

But there is also fmoke, which is a mixture that has more fog than smoke, and hoke, which has more haze. Furthermore, through inversions, there may be frequent days of goms and ezams, ekomf and ekoh.

There is smist, which is smoke and mist, and misoke, which is mist and smoke. There is smulphog dihazeide and there is tarfog monsulphide, and so forth.

Nor should we forget that local conditions differ. The "London particular" or "pea-soup" fog has vanished and something quite different has taken its place. The condition nowadays is more like lentil soup.

The Los Angeles particular, sometimes considered as a sort of high-flying umbrage, has a flavor of raw onions. San Francisco's is more a puree or catsup, according to Carl Sandburg.

QUAINT NAMES

There are some quaint weather names back in the Old World. Who has heard of Scotland and has not heard of MacCloud? But the Scottist mist also has many less-well-known phases, like the Macdrizzle and the McLather. In Ireland, Fogarty is a family name and is not what it might seem, but there is often the O'Drool coming up from the Liffey. And Wales, of course, has not only Abermistwyth but also both Llanfaiweather and Llandudweather.

We can all learn from each other. And we can all learn more by finding or coining more and more descriptive and definitive words, as did Dr. Des Voeux. Smog and smaze, it seems to me, are good words as long as the conditions they describe persist. It is the conditions that must be removed, not the words.

For those who are not convinced by this argument there seems only one thing to do. That is to depart at once for Santa Barbara, where the worst they have are sweet white sea mists, or bobbyfogs.

2 Policemen Hurt In Riot

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C. (CP)—Two policemen were injured late Wednesday night in a riot that began in a New Westminster cafe and spilled out into the street.

Police said about 15 persons battled with four policemen sent to the Honey Dew Cafe after a waitress had complained about patrons drinking liquor.

Police arrested three men and a woman.

Police said some of the mob wielded liquor bottles.

Population Hits 15,000,000 Now In Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's population has hit 15,000,000 persons, compared with 3,000,000 at Confederation in 1867 and 5,300,000 in 1901.

BIGGEST ADVANCE

Government experts estimate the historical milestone was reached a few weeks ago, either at the end of November or early in December. The complex job of compiling figures now is under way and a bureau of statistics report likely will be issued early in the new year.

Though still small in numbers compared to other world powers, Canada almost tripled her population in the first half of this century. Many officials predict she may triple them again to about 45,000,000 in the next half.

The biggest advance came in the post-war-years when the population rose by about 3,000,000 in the eight years 1945-53. She gained 1,000,000 in the last three years.

Part of the increase has come from immigration and from Newfoundland's entry into Confederation four years ago, giving Canada another 350,000.

But the major source was natural expansion. Experts estimate that in the century 1851-1951, births exceeded deaths by 11,000,000,.

President Warns France Again

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower has gravely told France that the United States will reappraise its basic European policies unless the proposed European Defence Community, providing for German rearmament, is set up soon.

The president expressed this view in a statement late Wednesday as the third move in an extraordinary campaign directed by State Secretary Dulles to carry the EDC issue directly to the French people and win their support of it.

Eisenhower acted little more than an hour after the French parliament, on the 13th ballot, elected Rene Coty, a member of the upper-house Council of the Republic, to be the new president.

Thus the first important foreign-policy step of the American government following Coty's emergence as a figure on the world stage was a sharp reminder that the U.S. is counting on EDC to provide security for Western Europe.

EDC is a proposed six-power army, to include under a united command and in one uniform troops from France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. Originally proposed by France, it has been stymied by inaction of parliament due to fear of a rearmed Germany.

White Christmas Just Memory For Europeans

LONDON (AP)—Christmas Eve brought bright sunshine and mild temperatures, with some mist, to much of western Europe, but winter sports enthusiasts growled sourly over the lack of snow.

Only Moscow among the capitals had any great quantity of snow. It lay so deep in streets and squares that 1,000 mechanical snow-removal machines were kept busy, Moscow radio reported.

But from virtually every other area came reports of unseasonably high temperatures and blue skies with scattered patches of fog.

SUNNY IN BRITAIN

London was bathed in sunshine as was much of the rest of Britain. There was a stampede to get out of the cities. Thousands of special trains took holiday travellers to resorts. Highways were crowded.

There were jams at airports. Most planes were taking off on schedule, but there was delay in flights to Paris.

Some French airports were shrouded in mist, and because of strikes of ground staffs, planes were obliged to land at Paris without radio aids.

BOB-SLEDDERS, SKIERS SAD

Winter sportsmen were, for the most part, frustrated. "The worst Christmas for the skiier in 60 years," said Peter Kasper, tourist director of St. Moritz, Switzerland.

At Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, there was so little snow that the international bobsled competition, scheduled for Jan. 3 on the 1,650-metre Olympic track, has been postponed.

But trucks are hauling in snow from the hills to the Olympic ski jump where international contests will start the day after Christmas.

Bandits Rob Woman, 78

WINNIPEG (CP)— The RCMP today sought three men who grabbed a 78-year-old woman by the throat in an effort to get her to reveal where she kept her money. They escaped with about $20.

Mrs. Alice Schram of the suburban Middlechurch district told police she was confronted by three masked men when she answered her front door.

"I was thrown on a cot and tied hand and foot with my stockings, an electric cord and some rags."

As they were leaving, Mrs. Schram said, one of the men returned and untied her hands and feet.

Dionne Yuletide Quiet Affair

NORTH BAY (CP)—Christmas will be a "quiet family affair" for the Dionne family at nearby Callandar.

Missing from the celebrations for the first time in 19 years will be one of th famous quintuplets. Marie, the smallest of the Quints, will spend her Christmas in the Holy Sacrament Convent in Quebec City, where she is in training to become a nun.

There will be an exchange of gifts and a big dinner at noon.

CASH GIFTS

The parents plan to give their daughters money, because "we feel they are at the age when that is the most acceptable gift." Marie has been sent "a few useful articles" at the Quebec City convent, Mr. Dionne said.

Cecile and Annette were to arrive home tonight and Yvonne and Emilie arrived last week-end. Yvonne has been studying art at the Notre Dame Congregation in Montreal, and the other three are studying domestic science at the Institut Familial in Nicolet, Que.

Birth Of Christ Brings 2 Warring Lands Together

By WILTON WYNN

BETHLEHEM (AP)—The anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace brought together in temporary acts of peace today two countries which are technically at war—Moslem Jordan and Jewish Israel.

The first act came early this morning when Israel allowed more than 1,000 Christian Arabs who live in Israel to pass through the Mandelbaum Gate in Jerusalem across a rubble-strewn no man's land into the Arab section of the city to visit relatives and friends in or near Bethlehem.

This annual Christmas visit had been arranged after negotiation between the Israeli and Jordan governments.

The second peaceful act came in the afternoon when Israel opened the old road between Jerusalm and Bethlehem. Before the Palestine war broke out in 1948 this road was the direct route between the two cities, but since 1948 the Jordan Arabs have held old Jerusalem and Bethlehem, while Israel controls the road.

Israel opened the road to allow the consuls of Jerusalem to visit Bethlehem for the midnight Latin mass in the Church of the Nativity. By tradition, the consuls of Jerusalem have seats of honor.

TRADITION STAYS

The custom was established hundreds of years ago when the Moslem Ottoman Turks ruled Palestine. The country then was only a small province, and the consuls of Jerusalem were the chief diplomatic figures in the country.

The fact that Jordan and Israel are in these modern days sovereign states with many ambassadors accredited to them has not affected the consular tradition.

While thousands of pilgrims prepared for the Roman Catholic mass in the Church of the Nativity, a protestant group gathered down the slopes from Bethlehem in the Shepherds' Field for a service commemorating the angelic announcement of "Peace on earth, goodwill toward men."

The field now is enclosed by a low stone wall and is partly covered with terraced olive groves. In the area around the field, flocks of sheep and black goats forage for food on the hillside, while shepherds in black cloaks and Bedouin head-dress lean on their staffs and brace themselves against the icy December wind.

These shepherds work, dress and eat almost exactly as did those shepherds to whom the angels announced the birth of Jesus Christ.

The service in Shepherds' Field takes place near an ancient stone grotto which might have sheltered those shepherds on the first Christmas Eve.

Sinatra Flies To Visit Wife

LONDON (AP)—Frank Sinatra flew in from New York today, made a quick change of planes, and dashed on to Madrid on the trail of his wife, movie actress Ava Gardner.

"I'm going to spend Christmas with my wife," the singer told reporters at London airport.

Frankie wouldn't talk about Ava's recent announcement that she will seek a divorce. Asked if there would be a reconciliation, he said:

"I never talk about my personal affairs, but my wife is expecting me."

Sinatra couldn't get a place on the regular airliners for Madrid so he rushed by taxi to Croydon airport, about 15 miles away, and chartered a plane for £160.

In Rome Wednesday, Miss Gardner denied any knowledge of a report that Sinatra was making an effort to patch up their difficulties. She said she did not even know her husband was flying to Europe, but she left by air for Madrid for a Christmas break in her film work.

Street Lights Cut Town Short Of Power

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—An acute power shortage has resulted in reduction of street lighting in this town. Through an arrangement with the council the public utilities commission does not turn on the street lights until after 6 p.m. A request has been made to local consumers not to use Christmas tree lights and other decorative lighting until after 6 p.m. The power house is at present operating at near peak output and additional power must be purchased from the HEPC. This is steam produced power and is very expensive. The town has no contract with the HEPC at the present time but hydro has agreed to sell a small amount of steam power. The condition is expected to prevail until early in January.

The Christmas Story

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed . . . And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth into Judea, unto the city of David which is called Bethlehem (because he was of the house and lineage of David), to be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child. And so it was that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered, and she brought forth her firstborn son; and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child. And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds. But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart. And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

SAINT LUKE

* * *

Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judaea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

When Herod the king heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him. And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

And they said unto him, in Bethlehem of Judaea: for thus it is written by the prophet:

And thou, Bethlehem, in the land of Juda,
Art not the least among the princes of Juda:
For out of thee shall come a Governor, That shall rule my people Israel.

Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared. And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh. And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

Opera At Christmas

We do not customarily think of opera in connection with Christmas, though Humperdinck's delightful Hansel and Gretel has often been performed at this season since its first appearance in 1893. But Gian-Carlo Menotti (whose comedy The Old Maid and The Thief was seen in Peterborough this autumn) has written an opera of specific Christmas significance, called Amahl and the Night Visitors, and it had its first Canadian presentation in Hamilton recently, where it was performed by the choir of Knox Presbyterian Church. The presentation of a new opera is always interesting, and in this case, as so often in the past, we are indebted to an amateur group for their enterprise and imagination.

The story of the opera concerns a shepherd boy called Amahl, who is a cripple, and who lives in great poverty with his mother. Their poor hut is visited one winter night by three strangers of great wealth who have been benighted on their journey in search of an infant king, to whom they are carrying presents. Amahl's mother, embittered by her poverty, steals some of the strangers' gold, and is caught; when she tells the strangers of her plight they readily forgive her, and tell her of the great king whom they seek, and who must build his kingdom upon the love of all mankind. Amahl and his mother add gifts to those of the Kings, the boy's gift being his crutch. This act of sacrifice brings him a miraculous cure for his lameness. When dawn comes and the Magi set out once more toward Bethlehem, Amahl follows them to give thanks to the Infant Christ.

The story, as you may see, is reminiscent of many Christmas legends; the music is in Menotti's strongly personal idiom, filled with pleasing melody, and striking, frequently-repeated phrases. It is a notable addition to the repertoire of Christmas music which is, as we have said, poor in opera. We may hope that performances of Amahl will be many, and that it will not be too long before we have an opportunity to see and hear it in this city.

A Canadian Theatre Pioneer

It was with shock and deep regret that we learned of the sudden death on Monday last of Filmore Sadler, of Knowlton, P.Q. He was well known in Canada as a man of the theatre, as an excellent teacher, director, and actor. He was known to many Peterborough people, for he once visited this city to give advice and assistance to the local Little Theatre. It would have been supposed that he had many more years of happy and useful life before him.

It is the quality of his contribution to the Canadian theatre which makes his death a matter of genuine sorrow to people who are interested in that movement; there are actors everywhere in this country who owe something of their early training to Filmore Sadler, and who have found that training an admirable groundwork for a professional career. In his own establishment, which was the most firmly rooted summer theatre in this country, he trained dozens of young men and women, humorously and enthusiastically instructing them in the elements—yes, and the fine points—of their job. They remembered him and respected him, and his theatre at Brae Manor was a regular port of call for scores of people who were pursuing happy and sometimes distinguished careers in New York, in London, and at home in Canada.

It takes pioneers of many sorts to make a country. Filmore Sadler was a pioneer of the theatre, and his work and his memory will not quickly fade.

Why We Do It

For some years it has been our custom on Christmas Eve to print the Biblical passages describing the Birth of Christ in place of a leading editorial. We have frequently been asked why we do this, though we should have thought that the reason was plain enough: who, on this night of all nights, knows of any better news? Who can think of anything to read that will give him greater joy? Who can think of a subject for comment which is more pressingly contemporary?

And yet, someone may say, it is not the task of a newspaper to print what people know already, or what they can easily find somewhere else. That is true enough, but have we any overwhelming evidence that the news of the birth and teaching of Christ has so utterly taken possession of the hearts of men that public reference to it is unnecessary? Is the present state of the world such as to suggest that the Christian doctrine of love is so widespread that it need no longer be mentioned? If this is the case it is news indeed, and such news as we should be overjoyed to send over the press wires of the world.

Until the news of Christ's birth and Christ's teaching is indeed old news we shall think it our duty to give it the place of honour in our paper every 24th of December. And if some readers find it so familiar that they do not feel impelled to read it, we can only say how glad we are that it is so.

The Queen has awarded the George Medal to Robert Thomas Waters of Comox, B.C., for his heroic rescue of an airman from a burning plane. Robert is 14. Bravery, like gold, is where you find it.

Christmas 1853 In The Backwoods Of Peterborough

By
CATHERINE PARR TRAILL
(First published in 1853)

WHEN I first came to Canada, I was much surprised at the cold indifference which most people showed in the observance of Christmas day—with the exception of the then few residing English families, the church was scantily attended. For in those days there was no dressing of the houses or churches with evergreens as is now so generally the custom, (long may it continue); and I missed the heartfelt cordiality that seems on that sacred day of Christian gladness to overflow all hearts, and break out into smiles of loving kindness to the poorest and least cared for of our fellow creatures. There be many—who with a scoffing eye look upon the decoration of our hearths and altars on that day, and loudly condemn it as a rag of Romanism. But are we really better Christians for casting aside all those old customs, that tended to hold us in the bond of unity and Christian love? I cannot but think that this old custom had its origin in the palm branches that were strewn in the way of our Lord when the multitude cut down the branches from the trees and strewed them in the way, crying "Hosannah to the son of David." Did Christ reprove the people for this simple sacrifice in honour of him?—Why then should our observance of this old custom draw upon us the rebuke of our neighbours?

✧ ✧ ✧

I REMEMBER the first Christmas day I passed in Canada—being laughed at because I wandered out on to the plains near Peterboro', and brought in a wreath of the box-leaved trailing wintergreen (which with its scarlet berries reminded me of the varnished holly with which we were wont to garnish the old house at home), and hanging it over the mantel piece, and above the pictures of my host's parlour, in honour of the day. It seemed to me these green branches might be held as emblems to remind us that we should keep faith bright and green within our hearts.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT while the nativity of our Lord was little regarded, all its honor and glory was conferred on the New Year's day. This is with the Canadians the day of days. The world claims that which used to be given to Christ.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE INCREASE of British settlers however has done something towards restoring a Christian feeling among us, and now our churches are duly dressed with evergreens, our hymns and anthems sung, and our friends and families meet together as of old.

✧ ✧ ✧

I REMEMBER one Christmas day in the Bush. It was the year after the memorable rebellion in Canada: my brother-in-law had been appointed to a company in the provincial Battalion then stationed in Toronto: my sister who had remained behind with her infant family was alone, and we were anxious that she should spend this day with us, and that it might look more like an English Christmas day, I despatched Martin, the boy, and old Malachi, the hired man to bring a sleigh load of evergreens from the swamp to dress the house with, but when all our green garlands were put up, we missed the bright varnished holly and its gay joy-inspiring red berries, and my English main Hannah, who was greatly interested in all our decorations, remembered that there were high-bush cranberries, at the lake shore, and winter greens in the swamp, but these last were deep beneath a covering of two or three feet of snow. With the red transparent berries of the cranberry we were obliged therefore to content ourselves, and little Katie brought her string of coral beads and bade me twist it among the green hemlock boughs, clapping her hands for joy when she saw it twined into the Christmas wreath.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEN we sent off the ox sleigh for my sister, and her little ones, for be it known to you, my reader, that our settlement in those days was almost the Ultima Thule of civilization, and our roads were no roads, only wide openings chopped through the heart of the forest, along which no better vehicle than an ox sleigh could make any progress without the continual chance of overturn. We bush-settlers were brave folks then, and thankfully enjoyed every pleasure we could meet with, even though we had to seek it through mens so humble as a ride in a rude vehicle like an ox sleigh, through the wild woods, with the snow above, and the snow below, and in good truth many a pleasant ride have we enjoyed travelling through that dim forest, through bowers of snow-laden hemlocks and dark spruce, which shuts us out from the cold wind, like a good fur-lined cloak.

✧ ✧ ✧

REPOSING on a bed of hay covered with buffalo or bear skins, or good wool coverlets, and wrapped in plaids, with well wadded hoods, we were not a whit less happy than if we had been rolling along in a gay carriage, drawn by splendid horses, instead of the rudest of all vehicles, and the most awkward and clumsy of all steeds. At night our lamps, the pale stars and the moon, walking in brightness in the frosty sky, casting quaint shadows of gigantic form across the snowy path, or wading through misty wrack or silver-edged cloud.

✧ ✧ ✧

A GLORIOUS GOOSE fattened on the rice bed in our lake, was killed for the occasion: Turkeys were only to be met on old cleared farms in those days, and beef was rarely seen in the back woods.—excepting when some old ox that was considered as superannuated was slaughtered to save it from dying a natural death. ' Remember this was sixteen years ago, and great changes have taken place since that time in the condition of all ranks of people in the Province; now there are luxuries, where before necessities were scarce. However there was no lack of Christmas cheer in the shape of a large plum pudding, to which our little ones did ample justice. A merry day it was to them, for our boy Martin had made them a little sledge, and there was a famous snow drift against the garden fence, which was hard packed and frozen smooth and glare—up and down this frozen heap did James and Kate with their playmates glide and roll. It was a Christmas treat to watch those joyous faces, buoyant with mirth, and brightened by the keen air, through the frosty panes: and often was the graver converse of the parents interrupted by the merry shout and gleesome voices of their little ones; and if a sadder train of thought brought back the memory of former days, and home, country and friends, from whom we were for ever parted; such sadness was not without its benefit, linking us in spirit to that home, and all that made it precious to our hearts; for we knew on that day our vacant places would be eyed with tender regret, and some kind voice would murmur:

'Ah, would they be here.'

THAT NIGHT unwilling to part so soon, I accompanied my sister and her little ones home. Just as we were issuing forth for our moonlight drive through the woods, our ears were saluted by a merry peal of sleigh bells, and a loud hurrah greeted our homely turn-out, as a party of lively boys and girls, crammed into a smart painted cutter, rushed past at full speed. They were returning from a Christmas merry-making at a neighbour's house, where they too had been enjoying a happy Christmas; and long the still woods echoed with the gay tones of their voices, and the jingle of their merry bells, as a bend in the river-road, brought them back on the night breeze to our ears. There then we were breaking the Sabbath stillness of the dark forest with the hum of joyous voices, and the wild bursts of mirth that gushed forth from those glad children, who had as yet known little of the cares and regrets that later years bring with them as the inevitable consequence of a mature age. But soon overpowered by excess of happiness, and lulled by the low monotonous creaking of the runners of the sleigh, and heavy footfall of the oxen, one by one, our happy companions dropped off to sleep, and we were left in silence to enjoy the peculiar beauties of that snow clad scene, by the dreamy light that stole down upon our narrow road through the snow laden branches above our heads.

AND OFTEN in after years, when far removed from those forest scenes, has that Christmas night returned to my memory, and still I love to recall it; for it, brings with it the freshness of former days and the array of infant faces now grown up and fulfilling the state of life into which they have been called by their Heavenly Father.

Carving

(LONDON TIMES)

"CARVING" says the encyclopaedia, "is one of the oldest forms of artistic expression." The media in the author's mind were wood and stone, but the thoughts of the preoccupied reader at this season of the year will fly perhaps first to flesh and fowl and to carving for the table, which after all is art enough, and old enough, and frequently accompanied by words and gestures that are not inexpressive. Carving in this sense, like the driving of fours-in-hand, has suffered a decline among the Smaller families and smaller joints began it, and rationing has still further reduced the opportunities for a deft exercise of the art. Christmas will increase the carver's scope, but only temporarily. The old hand, gratefully grasping the chance to show off, will be fortunate if he does not discover that lack of practice and the passage the years have robbed him of some of his cunning. Younger men, lacking that thorough training which their forebears had, will find the season far too short for a proper apprenticeship.

"Have you learned to carve?" Lord Chesterfield inquired in one of those letters to his son. "Do you use yourself to carve adroitly and genteelly, without hacking half an hour across a bone, without bespattering the company with the sauce, and without overturning the glasses into your neighbors' pockets?" These awkwardnesses, as his lordship pointed out, are extremely disagreeable and easily avoided—but then there was something to work on in those days, at least in the circles in which his lordship's son was accustomed to dine. A man could take pride in his carving: and a hundred years went by, after the writing of that letter, before the members of the Athenaeum ceased to carve for themselves and consented, under protest, to let a professional do for them.

A GREAT MANY housewives still are blessed with a hand that can wield a pretty carving knife, but how many English castles there are with a youngish master whose youth was so ill spent that he knows all about landmines and nothing about turkeys. Two courses are open to this unfortunate. He may study those well-meant diagrams in the cookery textbooks and subsequently learn at the table how unrelated are some forms of literature to life; or—magnanimous surrender—he may leave the carving to his wife.

Husbands who follow this easy way out have been known to feel twinges of conscience, not on the wives' behalf, but because, they fear, they are letting the men's side down and opening the way to new assaults on masculine privilege. They should not worry unduly. It is not a new heresy they are guilty of; there are worthy precedents for it. That good, long-suffering woman, the wife of the Vicar of Wakefield, did all the carving at dinner, "it being her mother's way." And so did the wife of Archbishop Benson. Those neighbouring gentlemen, one fancies, were a little disconcerted; nowadays, perhaps, they would only be relieved.

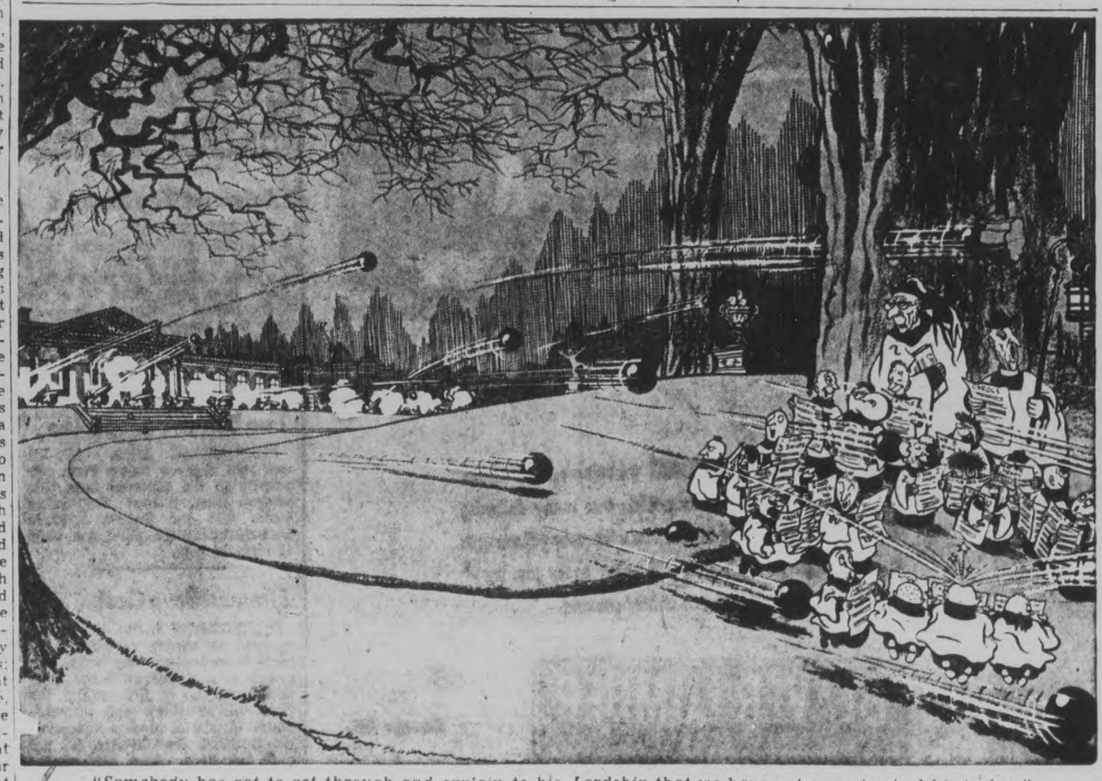
Ballade of a Christmas Query

By H. S. Mackintosh



Wan winter sunshine on the snow
(Assuming Christmas will be white):
The holly and the mistletoe
And "fire and fleet and candlelight";
We know the Saxon Geol sprite
The Weihnachtsfest Sacaean cause,
The Christus-Kind's Gemutlichkeit,
But who on earth was Santa Claus?

The Shepherds and their flocks we know,
The Herald Angels in their flight,
Cathedral choirs (by radio)
Hailing the Holiest in the height;
We know the Christmas-tree bedight
With tinsel: Good King Wenceslaus
Who fed the forest eremite:
But who on earth was Santa Claus?

O what a hotchpotch! yule-fire glow
And lurid Saturnalian rite,
Dark liturgies of long ago,
With Noel and the Holy Night;
Crisp Chinese lanterns burning bright
And mighty Celtic usquebaughs
To make the carol-singers tight.
But who on earth was Santa Claus?

ENVOI (to the Magi)

Prince, Patriarch and Neophyte,
You knew the roving star would pause
Where lay a child in piteous plight—
But who on earth was Santa Claus?

"Somebody has got to get through and explain to his Lordship that we have not come to steal his turkey."

Laventry P. Beria Lost Power Race, Not Traitor

By TOM WHITNEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Lavrenty P. Beria up to a few months ago was Russia's super-policeman and the most dreaded man in the U.S.S.R. Now he is dead, labelled by the Soviet government as a traitor and foreign spy.

The simpler truth is that Beria lost in the race for power following Stalin's death. He has paid the price for his failure.

In the period from Stalin's death till his arrest last June 112 days later, he was No. 2 man in the U.S.S.R. He was Premier Malenkov's first deputy. In this capacity he exercised broad influence over all Soviet policy.

He also was minister of internal affairs. In this capacity he controlled (as he had controlled from 1939) all secret police and intelligence, all normal police, the well-equipped and large private armies of the ministry of the interior, the large formations of border guards, the vast system of concentration camps and their forced labor, the largest construction projects in the U.S.S.R., all highways, and vast areas of the country including most of Siberia and the Soviet Far East.

A-ENERGY CZAR

He was the Soviet atomic energy czar. From the end of the war he ran all Soviet atomic weapons development and was responsible more than any one man for Soviet success in developing the atom bomb and the hydrogen weapon.

He controlled his native Georgia and exercised direct, strong influence in the affairs of the other two trans-Caucasian republics, Azerbaijan and Armenia; and in Soviet central Asia, where his police generals occupied key posts.

Beria at the time of Stalin's death last March played a key role in the formation of the new Soviet government. Within a few hours after the official declaration that Stalin was dead his ministry of internal affairs took over the entire centre of Moscow. He held it in his grip until Stalin was buried four days later.

Beria spoke along with Malenkov and V. M. Molotov at Stalin's funeral. He used the occasion to "recommend" Malenkov to the Soviet peoples. He spoke as a king-maker. He probably was.

Beria spoke Russian with a marked Georgian accent, similar to that of Stalin. A short, bald man, he was distinguished by his pince-nez. At public gatherings though he had the title of marshal of the Soviet Union he disdained any uniform. He wore instead dark blue or grey business suits which tended to be at bit baggy.

SAT BESIDE MALENKOV

Always in his public appearances he sat beside Malenkov. There seems but little question that for a number of years these two men were the closest of collaborators.

Beria was brought to Moscow by Stalin in 1938 but put an end to the great purge of 1937-38. As Stalin no doubt intended, this purge decimated the country's leadership and intelligentsia. As Stalin probably did not intend, it brought a near state of chaos in military and industrial rule.

Beria's first act in his new job was to liquidate his predecessor as minister of internal affairs, Nikolai Yezhov, widely thought in Russia to be insane. Yezhov simply disappeared early in 1939, never to be heard from again.

To run the Soviet police, then organized under the peoples commissariat of internal affairs (the MVD), Beria brought in many men from his native trans-Caucasus. While other portions of the Soviet apparatus including party and army were more and more Russified, his police remained, as long as he headed them, a rampart of strength of non-Russians with many Georgians, Armenians, central Asians and other members of minor Soviet nationalities.

During the Second World War Beria was Stalin's first deputy on the small "state defence committee" which was the wartime organ of supreme power. Beria personally directed the armaments and ammunition industry and other large sectors of the war in addition to his police an intelligence this police leadership even during leadership. He never relinquished the period from the end of the war till Stalin's death when he no longer held the official title of the interior.

ENGINEERING STUDENT

Beria was born in 1899 in the village of Merkeuli near Sukhumi on the Black Sea coast. During the immediate pre-revolutionary and civil war period he was an engineering student in Baku, the oil centre on the Caspian sea. He joined his lot with the Bolsheviks.

From the very first he received responsible assignments in the secret police (then known as the Cheka). He rose rapidly to head all secret police activities in the trans-Caucasus (Azerbaijan, Armenia and Georgia). In 1931 he was directed by Moscow to take over leadership of the Communist party in the trans-Caucasus.

Beria assured his position with Stalin by writing in 1935 a work on the history of the Bolsheviks in the trans-Caucasus. This was one of Stalin's major weapons in his campaign for rewriting Soviet history. Dealing with the revolutionary movement in the trans-Caucasus at the time when Stalin himself was there, it exalted Stalin's role and denounced his rivals and enemies.

Few men have ever held as much power as did Beria during the years 1938-53. Few men have ever sent so many men to exile and death.

Omemee School Ends Term With Party

OMEMEE (ENS)—School closing for Omemee Public School Tuesday was featured by a Christmas party held in Coronation Hall, with Christmas tree and Santa. There was exchange of gifts, and a treat for each child from the Home and School Association.

After a period of carol singing led by a group of the older boys and girls, the Rev. A. W. Smith, of Christ Church, addressed the children briefly on the subject of progress.

Before Santa began his task of distributing gifts and goodies, he asked Mrs. Curtis to join her husband on the platform, for it happened to be the day on which Mr. and Mrs. Curtis were celebrating the 30th anniversary of their wedding.

Bob Young and Marilyn McQuade, on behalf of the student body, offered congratulations, and presented Mr. Curtis with a book and Mrs. Curtis with a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The time has come again to extend greetings of the Christmas season. To all city and district sports' officials, athletes, fans and readers of this column, we wish a happy and safe Christmas. Those who don't read our pillar will just have to get along without our best wishes! But we might on second thought include those, too, as it is a time of peace and goodwill, or it should be. The only time of the year when this spirit prevails so generally, when charity (the greatest virtue) dominates our lives. So, best to all. And our sincere thanks to the many friends who sent gifts, cards and the season's greetings. Have fun, folks.

Comes the final bulletin of the year from the Canadian Olympic Association. It starts off thusly: "In 1909, following the 1908 Olympics in London, England, the late Baron de Coubertin, founder of the modern Olympic Games in 1896, spoke as follows: 'The next Olympiads must not have exactly the same character; they must not be so comprehensive. There was altogether too much of the last Games. The Games must be kept more purely athletic; they must be more dignified; more discreet; more in accordance with classic and artistic requirements; more intimate and, above all, less expensive. The Olympic Games now stand at the parting of the ways'."

* * * * * *

Amity In Sports First

The bulletin goes on to say that this 1909 plea met with little response and there is some doubt as to the success of an effort made last year by Avery Brundage of the USA to improve the standard of international sports' competitions. Nationalism is over-emphasized for one thing, and there is always the suspicion that some of the top athletes at Olympic Games are not as purely amateur as the rules require. Until there is amity, understanding and goodwill among all nations in international athletic competitions, there will never be political peace in the world. And you can put that in your pipe of peace and smoke it!

Tireless Canadian Press writers are still busy tracking down the top Canadian and top Ontario athletes of the past twelvemonth for year-end sports' roundup stories. So, scribes and radio guys are kept busy filling out ballots and mailing 'em back to CP headquarters for final decisions. We know now that the leading persons for the award of outstanding athlete of the year in the province are: Marlene Stewart, Cliff Lumsden, Tip Logan, Bob Cunningham, and Jerry Kesselring. Several others mentioned, too, like Carol Ann Duthie, Earl Walls, etc. The third annual award will be made early in the new year by the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

Re Petes And Juniors

Both local OHA teams are resting over Christmas, and the TPT Petes certainly rate a rest after some strenuous senior "B" games at home and abroad in the past week or so. They returned from a hectic hockey match in Belleville the other night in third spot and within striking distance of the leading Kingston and Oshawa clubs, though Orillia isn't far back of Petes. Quinte club have the cellar to themselves now. Ed Redmond's men entertain the battlers from Bella Villa here Monday eve and should be ready for action again by then. Young Petes of the junior "B" group have been idle for about a week and should be set to go all out Saturday p.m. in Port Perry.

Not so long ago there was a drive on in some centres to get rid of old ice-boxes, since a number of children had died in them. Someone last night remarked on this, saying that possibly Civic Arena should be considered in this category! Well, it sure was cold down there last p.m. and that's why an almost record crowd of some 2,400 fans stayed away. Perhaps a hundred frostbitten fans rattled around in the rink as they watched Ned Vitarelli's Port Hope Redmen snatch a 5-4 OHA intermediate "A" win o'er Cam Wasson's crew from Lakefield, now dubbed the Lakefield Lumbermen. They're being sponsored by the Kingdon Co. up there. Future home games for the Lumbermen are expected to be in their own arena now that winter has arrived. A speedy clean tilt Wednesday eve with the losers rallying too late. They notched two of their four goals in the final minute of play.

TV Sponsors Now Sport Santa Clauses

NEW YORK (AP) — Television and radio sponsors are becoming "sports Santa Clauses" for a lot of United States colleges—and conferences—represented in the post-season football bowl games.

The spectators at the annual New Year's Day gridiron spectacles will pay nearly $2,000,000 to watch the games, but the TV and radio rights will bring in almost $1,000,000 more, an Associated Press survey shows.

That's a pretty nice collection of pies for the football teams to slice up among themselves. Most of them have to count their conference brothers in, too, however, so the athletic funds at many colleges will be swelled by the TV-radio take along with the gate receipts.

ROSE BOWL TOPS

Biggest bonanza of all is the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., matching UCLA of the Pacific Coast Conference against the Big Ten's Michigan State. The TV-radio money there even tops the gate receipts, since the sponsors have an advantage by coming on the air after the other major games are over. Also, the game pits the No. 3 team in the country, Michigan State, against the No. 5 team.

The combined TV-radio take for the west coast classic is $610,000, well ahead of the gate of $340,000. After game expenses, stadium rental, taxes and other expenses are taken out, each conference figures to get about $350,000.

OTHER CONTRACTS

The Sugar and Cotton Bowls also are reported to have TV-radio contracts in six figures to go with ticket sales in the $300,000-$400,000 range. But the Orange Bowl—probably the day's best attraction from the spectator's point of view since it matches Maryland, the No. 1 team, against Oklahoma, No. 4—has a TV-radio contract calling for only $70,000.

However, 3,000 seats have been added to the bowl this year, making the capacity close to 70,000. That should push the gate receipts to around $386,000. Each team gets $120,000, which they'll split with other conference members.

Port Hope Grabs A 5-4 Win Over Lakefield Squad In Speedy Lakeshore Contest

Two quick goals in the last minute of play by Lakefield made it close but Port Hope Redmen took a 5-4 OHA intermediate "A" victory over the Lakefield Lumbermen—now sponsored by Kingdon Lumber Co. of Lakefield—before nearly a hundred chilled fans in Civic Arena last night. It was a speedy, clean lakeshore tussle, with Coach Ned Vitarelli's victors drawing four of the six penalties. The result of the joust didn't materially change the group standing as most of the "A" clubs in this loop are closely bunched, Port Hope being on top. It was probably the last league game for Lakefield here, as they expect to have their own ice for future OHA engagements this season.

BIRCH GETS TWO

Tommy Birch scored twice for the losers, Ab Carravaggio and Mike Gooley each getting one. Gooley, the two Wassons and Birch and Ken Floyd had an assist apiece. For the winners, Downey, Turner, Freeman, Buckton and Douglas were the snipers. Turner aided on two, as Fennell, Medhurst, Racine and Douglas got one assist each. Both Cam Wasson's squad and the Hopers were shy a few regulars.

Downey tallied early from Turner in close. Hogan was back from a holding penalty when Birch rapped in Gooley's rebound. Turner got that pass from Fennell and Medhurst on a forward pass. They made it 3-1 when Freeman slipped around defence with Racine's pass to tally. Sabatino served a late penalty for playing with a broken stick.

Good goaltending on both sides kept down the count in the speedy, even but scrambly middle heat. Richlark almost counted early but the only score came halfway through when Birch notched one in a scramble with Dean Wasson aiding. Hunter later served a tripping penalty, but play was quite clean all through this chukker.

LENGTHEN LEAD

Buckton lengthened Port Hope's lead in the third on in-close speedy combination with Douglas. Fennell went off for hooking and Red Robinson got a cut and had to leave the game. Lakefield pressed hard in this period but Goalie Wasson kept kicking them out. McKeen went over for hooking and Downey followed for holding the puck. But all were back when Douglas gave the Vitarelli pack a 5-2 lead with an angle backhander inside with Turner's pass. The Lumbermen erupted too late in the final minute of play to sweep in fast for two neat markers. Carravaggio got one at 19.25 from Birch, and then Gooley scored with 10 seconds to go on a play with Neil Wasson and Floyd. Teams:

Lakefield: Goal, Harding; defence, D. Wasson and Richlark; centre, McCracken; wings, Floyd and N. Wasson; alternates, Hunter, Carravaggio, C. Wasson, Gooley Birch and Sabatino.

Referee, D. Calhoun; linesman, B. Kingdon.

Guelph Upsets Tee Pees In 6-2 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores are on their longest winning streak of the 1953-54 Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series—three games.

But even though they have won only three consecutive games the Biltmores must feel as if they are riding a 10-game streak because their latest victory was a 6-2 defeat of the second-place St. Catharines TeePees Wednesday night. It was the season's first win over the Teeps.

Guelph also climbed into sixth place in the standings. Only 11 points now separate the last place Galt Black Hawks and Barrie Flyers from the league-leading Toronto St. Michael's College Majors.

SHARED SCORING

Bob Attersley, Hillary Menard, Burley Dimma, Bob Forhan, Wally Para and Bily Graham shared scoring for the Biltmores. Wilf Roberts notched both for St. Catharines.

Bill Harris and Charlie Burns were the Marlboro marksmen. Jim Robertson and George Raneiri counted for Barie.

Hamilton Tigers are at St. Catharines Saturday, St. Michael's play Marlboros in Toronto Sunday.

Canadiens Down Royals 7-5

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League Wednesday night defeated Montreal Royals 8-5 to win the Kennedy Cup, symbolic of the city's professional hockey championship. The Royals play in the Quebec League.

Bernie Geoffrion was the star for Canadiens, getting three goals, while Maurice Richard, Doug Harvey, Claude Vinet, Johnny McCormack and Dave MacCready netted one each.

Eddie Litzenberger, Orval Tessler, Lorne Davis, Glen Harmon and Paul Meger counted for Royals. Referee Georges Gravel called three penalties in the generally clean but hard-fought game, two of them on the Canadiens. None figured in the scoring.

FLOODED WITH OFFERS

LONDON (AP) — Gordon Pirie, Britain's best distance runner, said Wednesday he is being "flooded" with scholarship offers by American universities.

The 22-year-old bank clerk, who is tops at 5,000 and 10,000 metres, told a reporter:

"I am flattered and not a little fascinated. I would like to make the trip but I cannot decide whether I want to go there and study. I am just thinking it all over."

NEW BOXING GLOVE

NEW YORK (AP)—A new boxing glove with a shorter thumb and additional pading on the side of the fist will become mandatory in New York state bouts on New Year's Day.

Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, said the commission feels the new gloves will cut down on thumbing and cause fewer cuts.

The additional padding does not increase the weight of the glove, which remains eight ounces, but it increases the punching area from 16 square inches to 23 square inches. The pading decreases the space between thumb and fist.

PAIGE WAIVERS PASSED

BALTIMORE (AP) — Satchel Paige, a baseball star before some of his Baltimore Orioles teammates were born, has been passed up by other American League clubs for the $10,000 waiver price.

Art Ehlers, Oriole general manager, said Wednesday the Negro righthander had been put up on waivers while Bill Veeck was running the club. That was when it was known as St. Louis Browns and before the franchise was shifted to Baltimore.

The passing up of Paige by the American League teams makes it possible for the Orioles to trade for him with National League clubs but Ehlers said he doesn't plan to do this because Paige couldn't be considered prime trade bait any more.

Satch won three and lost nine games for the Browns last season. Estimates of his age range close to 50, but the official Oriole statistics list him only as "aged."

Marlene Stewart Chosen Canada's 1953 Athlete

By JAK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—By the margin of a good tee shot, Marlene Stewart, freckle-faced golfer from Fonthill, Ont., Wednesday night was acclaimed as Canada's outstanding female athlete of 1953. The country's sports editors and sportscasters left no doubt about that.

In an all but unanimous vote, they chose Miss Stewart for the third year in succession, enabling her to equal the three-year record Barbara Ann Scott set up in the late '40s when she was winning world and Olympic figure-skating titles.

Asked to name the three individual performers among women in order of preference, they hoisted "Little Ben" to the top with 232 points in the annual Canadian Press year-end sports poll. The votes were computed on a 3-2-1 basis and Marlene's total was nearly double the points received by the other 21 women mentioned by selectors.

HORSEWOMAN SECOND

Her closest rival with 53 points was Shirley Thomas, the 18-year-old horsewoman from Aylmer, Que., who rode to international fame in Canada and the United States. Third place went to Shirley Campbell, 17-year-old swimming prodigy from Fergus, Ont., who won her second successive world professional three-mile women's title at Toronto. She received 40 points.

Many voters wrote only Miss Stewart's name on the ballot and asked "Who else is there?" They vividly recalled last June 25 at Porthcawl, Wales, when Marlene won the British women's amateur golf tournament, only Canadian to do it in the 60-year history of the championship.

Great things had been expected of her since she took up the game just seven years ago at the Lookout Point Golf Club on the outskirts of Fonthill, Niagara peninsula town. But hardly any one figured she would take the prized British title, one of the most sought-after championships by women golfers.

The manner in which she made golf history that day—a 7 and 6 triumph over Irish champion Philomena Garvey in the 36-hole final—brought her international fame. British sports writers dubbed her "Little Ben" after the great Ben Hogan.

Marlene returned to Canada, won the Canadian women's closed title at London, Ont., in a breeze. And then the roof fell in on her as she went after the Canadian women's open and U.S. amateur titles.

TWO LOSSES

She lost both, the Canadian tournament in the final to Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., 2 and 1 and a 19th-hole loss to little-known Joyce Ziske of Waterford, Wis., in the opening round of the American championship. She received a verbal spanking from some American sports writers for conceding an 18-inch putt to her opponent on the 19th, the only time in her career that she had been panned.

Miss Thomas holds the distinction of being the only woman to ride on Canada's four-member international equestrian team. And she justified her selection by winning premier events, even over fellow team members, in competition against leading American, British and Irish riders at New York's Madison Square Garden and at Toronto.

Barbara Ann, who won the outstanding award in 1946-47-48 to become the first triple winner of the CP poll in its 19-year history, received two votes, first-place choice of Cam Church of CHLO St. Thomas, Ont., and second choice of Len Walsh of the St. John's, Nfld., Evening Telegram.

BA is "still the best," Church said. Marlene was his second choice with this observation: "Coming fast."

Dutchmen Whip Owen Sound Mercurys 7-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

During their seven losses this season Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, last year's Allan Cup champions, have been beaten by all kinds of teams—top-notchers and last-placers.

But when their leadership of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league is in jeopardy, the Dutchmen have a knack of coming through.

Wednesday night they trounced Owen Sound Mercurys 7-1 to climb four points ahead of the Mercs. The Mercurys had been defeated once in their previous 12 games.

Chatham Maroons stopped the three-game winning streak of Niagara Falls Cataracts by taking a 6-5 decision. The win left the Maroons in fifth place.

In the NOHA, North Bay Trapper netminder Boofy Casola, filled in for the injured Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., goaltender, Jim Shirley, to lead the Indians to a 3-1 victory over Sudbury Wolves.

NEVER THREATENED

Tommy Burlington scored with less than five minutes remaining to save Owen Sound from being shut out.

Newcomer Bobby Palmer fired the payoff goal for the Maroons less than three minutes before the end of regular time. Jim Connelly notched two goals for Chatham, the others going to Bill Lee, Joe Carveth and Ernie Dick.

COUNTED TWICE

Connie Bonhomme, Eddie Joss and Laurie Petersen each scored one for the Indians. The Sudbury tally was scored by Fiori Goegan.

THE SHEPHERDS IN THE FIELDS

In the fields with their flocks abiding
They lay on the dewy ground,
And glimmering under the starlight
The sheep lay white around.
When the light of the Lord streamed o'er them,
And, lo, from the heaven above
An angel leaned from the glory,
And sang his song of love:

He sang, that first sweet Christmas
The song that shall never cease:
Glory to God in the highest,
On earth good will and peace.

To you in the city of David
A Saviour is born today:
And suddenly a host of the heavenly ones
Flashed forth to join the lay.
O never hath sweeter message
Thrilled home to the souls of men:
And the heavens themselves had never heard
A gladder choir till then.

For they sang their Christmas carol
That never on earth shall cease:
Glory to God in the highest,
On earth good will and peace.

And the shepherds came to the manger
And gazed on the Holy Child,
And calmly o'er that rude cradle
The virgin mother smiled.
And the sky, in the starlit silence,
Seemed full of the angel lay:
"To you in the city of David
A Saviour is born today."

O, they sang—and I ween that never
The carol on earth shall cease:
Glory to God in the highest,
On earth good will and peace.

A very merry Christmas to all!

Players Believe In Santa Claus

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Players and coaches of Baltimore Colts really believed in Santa Claus after each received a $500 bonus cheque from their owners after winning only three National Football League games.

The cheques and a "thank you" note were mailed to 40 team members who had no idea they were coming. In addition, their wives received a personal gift.

"Been in the game seven years and never played for bette men," commented halfback Buddy Young. "Don't let anybody tell me there isn't a Santa Claus."

Rangers Defeat Red Wings In 2-1 Triumph

By WALTER GRAY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Referee Frank Udvari was almost a silent figure Wednesday night as New York Rangers defeated the leading Detroit Red Wings 2-1 in a National Hockey League game in New York. Udvari, one of the most controversial referees in NHL history and a key figure in the latest storms of penalty protests, called only eight penalties in a game that saw left-winger Nick Mickoski score his fifth goal of the season at 18:20 of the final period to break a 1-1 deadlock.

In Montreal Wednesday, NHL president Clarence Campbell said the mounting public blasts at responsible club officials will be discussed at the top level in the near future.

MAY RESIGN

Udvari, who handed out a mass misconduct penalty against Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs during a giant rhubarb in Toronto two weeks ago, has hinted he may resign.

The league president said referees should not be made the objects of "public pillory."

"They have the toughest job in the world. And they are forbidden to criticize other people."

Detroit's loss Wednesday night was their first in six starts. The Ranger win, the club's first over the Wings in eight meetings, put them within five points of the fourth-place Boston Bruins.

FIRST GOAL

The Rangers scored the first goal at 15:08 of the first period when Don Prentice scored his first of the season on a pass from Ike Hildebrand. Glen Skov, assisted by Red Kelly and Tony Leswick, knotted the count in the second period.

Mickoski scored the winner on a 20-foot shot from in front of the net.

Says Loyalty To Firm Cause Of Row

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Studebaker Corporation said Wednesday it was "employee loyalty" rather than company or union policy that led to penalties against more than a dozen South Bend, Ind., auto workers last summer for refusing to buy Studebaker cars.

The company and Local 5 of the CIO Autoworkers have been jointly charged by the labor relations board with conspiring to have a group of 15 employees fired or disciplined because they drove other makes of cars than Studebaker.

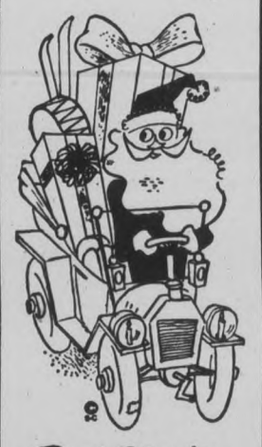
This couldn't be true, Studebaker president Harold S. Vance said in a press release, because a look at the South Bend plant parking lot "will show that virtualy every competitive make is represented."

Vance said "the great majority (of workers at South Bend) drive the cars they build," meaning Studebakers.

EMPLOYEES OBJECTED

What really happened last summer, Vance's statement said, was that employees themselves "became angered because one of their fellow workers reportedly bought a car of a competitive make."

"The men refused to work with the employee who had bought the car," the Studebaker president said. "It became a question of either closing the entire plant or asking the employee to turn in his badge until his difficulties with his fellow employees could be cleared up.



"To have closed the plant would have meant that thousands of our people would have been thrown out of work indefinitely."

Vance said he has reported all this to the NLRB, which is to hold a hearing on the charges at South Bend Jan. 25.

Syracuse Holds 3-3 Overtime Tie

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The cellar-dweling Syracuse Warriors held the leading Buffalo Bisons to a 3-3 overtime tie in a rough American Hockey League game Wednesday night.

The Warriors took a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Walt Atanas and Del Franche. They added another in the second, by Harry Pidhirny, before Gaye Stewart tallied for the Bisons. Kenny Hayden and Gord Pennell got the next two goals, in the third.

Busy Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's night traffic court, instituted to handle offenders without delay and reduce the "mail order" system of paying fines, had 29,000 cases during its first 12 months. On its first anniversary recently, Judge Emmett J. McManamy called the experiment "eminently successful."

Says Canadiens Bullying League

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leaf manager Hap Day Wednesday came out with some accusing words about Montreal Canadiens in general and their coach, Dick Irvin, in particular.

Canadiens, he said, are trying to "bully" the rest of the league.

"Don't you think it's more than coincidence that it's always Canadiens who get into these brawls?"

"It couldn't be that Canadiens are getting a little touchy now that Detroit is putting on pressure for the league lead, could it?"

And about Mr. Irvin:

"Mr. Irvin resented it when most people picked Detroit to finish first, ahead of his Canadiens, before the schedule started. It looks like he's resenting the fact Detroit is making the going tough and he's making the rest of the club feel the same way."

Waterfront Vote Not Known Till Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — The national labor relations board today said the outcome of a neck-and-neck New York waterfront bargaining election will not be known until Monday, with final results hinging on disposition of 4,405 challenged ballots among 21,244 cast in the two-day voting.

When the counting of unchallenged ballots ended early today, the NLRB said the independent International Longshoremen's Association was 1,492 votes ahead of the newly formed ILA-AFL.

Inter-union rivalry flared into sporadic pitched battles along the waterfront Wednesday in Brooklyn and Staten Island, where the voting took place. Heavy police reinforcements quelled the disturbances.

STRIKE UNLIKELY

Charles T. Douds, NLRB regional director, said he does not believe either union will call a strike at midnight tonight, when an 80-day "cooling-off" injunction expires.

The old ILA, ousted from the AFL for failure to rid its ranks of racketeers, staged a five - day strike last October. The strike was halted by the injunction under the Taft-Hartley labor act. The no-strike order was extended later to the ILA-AFL.

Results of the election will determine only which union will represent New York-New Jersey longshoremen, but some 40,000 other dockers along the United States east coast have their eyes on the outcome.

Lindsay Honors Retiring Mayor

LINDSAY (ENS) — The Town Council met Wednesday night with officials of the various town departments to honour the retiring veterans of municipal life. Mayor Chas. Lamb, retiring after 11 years as chief magistrate, and Ald. John L. Baker, who was the first opponent defeated by Mayor Lamb 12 years ago when he began his record succession of years in that office. Ald. Baker has served in Council for 16 years. The occasion was marked by a dinner attended by all the councillors and officers and was presided by Mayor-elect A. E. Hick.

Town Clerk W. R. Allely made the presentation of a wrist watch to Mayor Lamb. In doing so, he said Mayor Lamb had been one of the finest mayors he had worked with during his 30 years as clerk and treasurer.

Mayor Lamb, in replying, concluded by recommending to Council that they introduce a bylaw this year to raise the pay of councillors and suggested a pay of $1,500 for mayor, and $600 per year for councillors.

A presentation of a pen and pencil set to Ald. Baker was made by Mayor-elect Hick.

Sees Luncheon Sparking Dipomatic Move

LONDON (AP)—The Communist Daily Worker today said "important diplomatic moves are afoot" as a result of a luncheon meeting Wednesday between Prime Minister Churchill and Russian ambassador Jacob Malik.

It didn't say what is in store, but intimated that the meeting had to do with the forthcoming Berlin meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers.

DISCUSSED TALKS

"A full discussion of the forthcoming four-power talks in Berlin had taken place," The Worker said in a front-page report on the Churchill-Malik discussion. Malik "will be returning to Moscow in the next few days to report."

All of this was news to spokesmen at the foreign office and 10 Downing street, who said they know nothing of what passed between the prime minister and Malik.

One Downing street official said his impression was that the occasion "was largely social."

Do You Remember When You First Heard That Wonde rful Story?

Was there ever a tale that held you in such suspense—such promise of the future—such a feeling of goodness deep inside—Yes, you believed whole heartedly in old St. Nick . . . went to bed early, and dreamed of sugar plums, and what might be under the tree in the morning. A lot has happened since—you've grown older—now you hear arguments as to whether he actually exists. He is not flesh and blood—you can't "see" him they say—well you can't "see" Love . . . Freedom . . . Hope . . . or Faith either.

Very late tonight there will suddenly appear beneath the Christmas trees all over the world, another few Million new Dolls, a Million Wagons and Tricycles, Thousands of Electric Trains, and untold Millions of other gifts . . . and Santa Claus will "live" in the hearts of Millions of "Little People" . . . Isn't it Wonderful.

Union Reacts Against Vote

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), striking against Noranda mines, have reacted against a planned back-to-work vote by a citizens' committee with a twin counter-move of its own.

The union leaders said Wednesday night there will be a mass street parade Sunday afternoon during the voting hours and a union-sponsored vote to be held Monday.

The citizens' committee, headed by Guy Dellaire, Union-Nationale member of the Quebec legislative assembly for Rouyn-Noranda, has announced it will conduct a vote Sunday and Monday on a company offer of a 7½-per-cent-an-hour wage increase for the 1,600 workers.

The committee says the "majority" of the 24,000 citizens of Noranda and Rouyn are against the wage strike of the workers at Canada's biggest base metal mine. The steelworkers walked out August 1, asking higher wages, a shorter work week and revocable voluntary checkoff of union dues.

Ottawa Plans "Insurance" For Growers

OTTAWA (CP)—New Brunswick potato growers, expected to be hard-pressed to find buyers for their product, are to get marketing "insurance" from the federal government.

Under an agreement signed with the New Brunswick potato marketing board, the agriculture department will guarantee the initial payment to growers next year. The payment will be about 40 cents a bushel, it was learned Wednesday night. It is based on 80 per cent of the average price during the last three years.

That does not mean the government will be paying 40 cents a bushel for New Brunswick potatoes. The provincial marketing board pays the grower an initial price and then tries to peddle the spuds for as much as they'll bring.

PAY DIFFERENCE

If they bring more than the initial payment, the grower gets more. If they bring less, the federal government, under the agreement, pays the difference.

The agreement, signed Tuesday, is similar to that rached between the Prince Edward Island potato marketing board and the agriculture department about three months ago, Deputy Agriculture Minister J. G. Taggart said.

Last month a committee of federal experts predicted to the annual federal-provincial agricultural conference here that potato marketing may be tougher next year because of increased supplies of potatoes in Canada and the United States.

The committee said then that the heavy supply of potatoes likely will keep their price, currently lower than in 1951 and 1952, from rising in 1954.

Court Hears Arguments On Power Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States court of Appeals has under consideration arguments for and against joint construction of a St. Lawrence river power project by New York state and Ontario.

The court heard arguments Wednesday attacking and defending the huge project, in which the United States Federal Power Commission has granted New York's Power Commission has granted New York's power authority the right to participate. The development is planned for the International Rapids section of the river between Massena, N. Y., and Cornwall.

Opponents of the project in the courts were the Lake Ontario Land Development and Beach Protective Association, the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association, and Public Power and Water Corporation, Trenton, N. J. Public Power was an applicant for the licence granted New York.

The court may hand down a decision as early as next month. The administration has urged prompt action and has promised Canadian authorities that it will do everything to bring the case to an early conclusion.

HAD NO RIGHT

Walter Freedman, counsel or the coal producers, contended the FPC had no right to grant a licence for a project that will be half in Canadian territory.

That contention was disputed by Robert L. Stern, acting U. S. solicitor-general, Willard W. Gatchell, general counsel to the FPC, Orrin G. Judd, special counsel to the New York power authority, and Murray Preston, counsel for the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Association.

Pans call for the New York and Ontario generating plants to meet in mid-stream. The plants and two reservoir dams aid in construction of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway, on which Canada will proceed alone if the U. S. fails to join her in it.

Stern submitted that the project would be the largest source of elettric power in the East, with an output greater than Hoover dam.

Gatchell disagreed with the Lake Ontario group's argument that the project would raise the level of Lake Ontario and endanger nearby properties. He said spillways of the Iroquois dam, one of two proposed would maintain full passage of the lake's waters.

In opposing Public Power's petition to reverse the FPC's decision, Gatchell declared that during earlier hearings the firm had failed to show ability to finance the project. He also criticized what he called Public Power's failure to understand the engineering problems involved.

Clayton Burwell, for the Lake Ontario group, said his clients were interested mainly in protection from possible high water. He wanted to make certain his clients would be recompensed for any water damage they might suffer.

Judd said the operation would not affect lake levels. He added that indemnities are not the concern of the FPC, but of the International Joint Commission. However, anyone suffering damage had a constitutional right to indemnities, and New York state would be liable.

Preston disputed Freedman's contention that coal miners would be displaced by the project. By the time it is completed, he said, there will be a need for coal-generated energy.

22 PoWs Fail To Appear For Conference

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Twenty-two Americans who disowned home for communism failed to show up today for a press conference they had requested to explain their choice.

Instead, three Koreans, also converts to communism, appeared. They said the Americans had changed their minds about talking.

The Koreans denied reports that fear instead of belief in communism is holding some of the Americans.

"Look into the matter and see," they urged Indian custodian troops.

The Americans packed for a Christmas Eve trip back to their main prison compound in the neutral zone, leaving the area where they spent the final days of Allied efforts to win them home. The explanation period ran out last midnight.

At the main barbed-wire compound, all the former Allied soldiers who have chosen communism will be reunited—22 Americans, one Briton, 327 Koreans. They were separated when 250 Koreans attended Allied explanations and the others balked.

The prisoners will observe Christmas with a special menu of beef, chicken, pork, fruit, wine and beer furnished by the Communists. They plan special athletic events Christmas afternoon with Red-supplied equipment—skates, footballs, javelins, a discus and other gear.

The 22 Americans will spend the next 30 days at the main compound. They, like all other prisoners who have refused repatriation, are due to be released Jan. 22 as civilians.

However, their status at that time in the eyes of the United States government remains undetermined.

IT IS JUST AS MUCH FUN to see what the other fellow received in the way of gifts as it is to open one's own, almost. The three little girls shown here offer a study in complete concentration but the little chap on the right is more interested in Santa Claus who is still handing out gifts; though he received his there might be some left over, he hopes.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Technological Progress Blinding Men To God—Pope

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius today warned a festive world that modern technological progress is blinding men "to the great light" radiating from the manger at Bethlehem.

It was his 15th consecutive Christmas message since he became Pope in 1939, and as he has in all of them, the Pope made an earnest plea for world peace.

But he warned that this peace would not be found through materialistic, technological progress.

The gravity of the hour was especially great for Europe. There "the materialism of which we have spoken, instead of solving, only aggravates its fundamental problems. These problems are intimately connected with peace and order in the whole world."

URGES EUROPE TO UNITE

For Europe he suggested a continental union of its people to eliminate differences in standards of living and production.

The 77-year-old Pope spoke for 35 minutes, more briefly than usual in past Christmas messages.

Without directly mentioning communism, he spoke of many "persecuted for their loyalty to Christ and His church."

As his eyes scan the horizon, the Pope said, he sees "the grey vision of a still unsettled Europe."

Declaring that the time "seems mature" for the idea of European union to "become a reality," the Pope said:

"Hence we exhort to action first and foremost Christian statesmen, deeming it sufficient to recall to them that Christianity always considered its task to promote every sort of peaceful union between nations."

A strong encouragement to such a union was the "manifest failure of the contrary policy."

The Pope spoke in reply to Christmas greetings brought to him by the College of Cardinals. His words were carried around the globe by the Vatican radio over an international hook-up. During the next two days the radio will broadcast translations of the speech in 24 languages, including Russian and Chinese.

Referring to man's preoccupation with technology, the Pope said: "Around the radiant cradle of the Redeemer there remain zones of darkness, and men go around with their eyes closed to the heavenly light."

The Pontiff warned against "excessive and sometimes exclusive esteem" for what is called "progress in technology."

"This dream," he said, "was first cherished as the omnipotent myth and dispenser of happiness."

But "it has finally imposed itself on the minds of men as the final end of man and of life, substituting itself therefore for every kind of religious and spiritual ideal."

The Pope said undue exaltation of technological progress has blinded men's intelligence towards God's work.

"Still more today the supernatural world and the redemption, which is above all natural things and was accomplished by Jesus Christ, remain wrapped in total obscurity for those men who walk in darkness."

NOT A CONDEMNATION

The Pope made clear that his words were not intended as a condemnation of technological progress."

But "technological progress comes from God, and so it can and ought to lead to God."

Technological progress was a gift which, like those of gold, frankincense and myrrh brought by the wise men, could be placed before the Babe of Bethlehem.

As he has in all his past Christmas messages, the Pope made another appeal for peace.

But he warned: "No materialism was ever an apt means to establish peace. For peace is above all an attitude of the mind, and only secondarily an harmonious equilibrium of external forces."

Livestock Sales In West Popular Events

EDMONTON (CP)—The annual farm excitement has died down in the West with the end of Prairie livestock shows and retirement until another season of that remarkable fellow, the livestockkk auctioneer.

The list of livestock sales throughout the three provinces this year allowed only a day or two at most between the different events. The opener at Moose Jaw in early October was the annual feeder and stocker show, largest in the West.

The men who work in the aucticneer's stand had a hard time keeping their voices in action, selling one week at Calgary and perhaps calling for bids the next week at Regina, Prince Albert or Brandon.

ATTRACT CROWDS

The livestock sales were the big events in the Prairie sales picture, taking in almost every community of town size and stretching to the farm for the odd private sale. Several breeders jjojijned forces to put their animals on the block at farm sales. On top of these were straight auction sales of farm machinery, equipment and household goods.

Although smaller towns had livestock auctions, it was the major centres which drew the crowds.

The Moose Jaw sale drew many buyers from eastern Canada and the United States. Moose Jaw also was the centre for one of surviving horse sales.

HELD TWO SALES

Saskatoon held two sales on the same dates, a dairy cattle show and sale and a show and sale of advanced registry swine. Clgary's big sale of purebred beef cows, sheep and swine ran from Oct. 19 to 23 with some of the top animals in the West going into the pens.

Manitoba aberdeen angus breeders held their sale of hornless cattle at Brandon Oct. 21 This was followed by a sheep and swine show Oct. 21-23.

Purebred cows and current year bull calves went under the gavel at Prince Albert's two-day sale. Another large sale was put on at Regina by the Saskatchewan Sheep and Swine Breeders' Association.

Other sales and shows were held at Edmonton and Lethbridge in the last days of October. The Prairie auctions concluded with sales at Lacombe and Red Deer in Alberta Nov. 4 and Nov. 9. Other big livestock sales are held in the spring.

Lofty View

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP)—Two new constables, each standing six-feet-eight, bring the average height of local policemen to an inch over six feet. Chief Constable A. Popkess thinks his force is the lankiest in Britain.

HISTORIC DESK

4,000 Salmon Lost A Fin, Checking Habits

PORT DANIEL, Que. (CP) — More than 4,000 salmon spawned in Port Daniel river lost a fin last summer before they were allowed out to sea for the first time. It will not keep them from getting around, but they will be known wherever they go.

And that is what Quebec biologists who performed the snipping job on the six-inch-long young salmon want. The tagging operation at a weir five miles upstream from this southeastern Gaspe coast town was the start of a 10-year study of the Atlantic salmon's migratory habits.

The Quebec department of fisheries, working in co-operation with the Atlantic salmon commission and the four Atlantic provinces, is trying to find answers to such questions as: Do Atlantic salmon always return to the river in which they were spawned? Is there a pattern to their migrations? Will, say, Newfoundlanders catch salmon spawned in Quebec rivers? Does angling hurt commercial salmon fishing?

TO WATCH CATCHES

Commercial and sport fishermen have been asked to watch their catches for salmon with a missing adipose fin, a small fatty fin near the tail.

When the marked two- and three-year salmon reach maturity in three or four years, they will start looking for spawning ground.

A Quebec biologist said there is a theory that salmon have a "home instinct" and return to spawn in the river in which they grew up. If any confirm the theory, the biologists will be at the weir to know about it.

Another question is: How many times will they return to spawn? Most Pacific salmon are known to die after spawning once, the biologist said, but it is believed Atlantic salmon spawn two or three times.

Next summer, he said, salmon coming upstream will be tagged—by a metal capsule attached to a dorsal fin—and these, too, will become part of the research program. Capsule-type tags attached by wire are useless on small fry salmon because they do not stay on.

MAY EXTEND STUDY

Young salmon in other rivers in Gaspe peninsula probably will be included in the study later. They will be marked differently, probably by cutting off other small fins —or combinations of two or three— so they can be identified.

Biologists also will study the ravages of predatory birds which feed on young fish. The salmon population in one New Brunswick river increased "by several thousands" after kingfishers and flycatchers were eliminated from the area, a fisheries official said.

Gaspe fishermen, whose salmon catches were worth slightly more than $200,000 this year, compared with nearly $300,000 in 1952, claim fishing limits are not close enough to river mouths. If the limits were set closer in shore, catches would be higher, they say.

Private fishing clubs, however, claim that if the limits are brought closer, too many young salmon will be destroyed and population of the species will be threatened.

GEORGE BROADWORTH, reeve of Percy township, and Mrs. Broadworth are today observing the 40th anniversary of their wedding. On Wednesday night members of their family, friends and neighbors visited them and made several presentations.

Percy Township Reeve And Wife Mark 40th Wedding Anniversary

ROSENEATH (ENS) — Reeve George Broadworth, of Percy township, and Mrs. Broadworth marked their 40th wedding anniversary at their home three miles east of Roseneath.

Mrs. Broadworth, the former Maggie Yule, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Yule, and Mr. Broadworth, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Broadworth, were married by the late Rev. D. A. Thomson in the Presbyterian manse. In reminiscing, Mr. Broadworth said that the previous day he had the horse sharp shod because of the rain and they were anticipating ice. The next day there was three feet of snow. When the minister asked as to why the bride and groom were delayed in arriving, Mr. Broadworth said that if he had come through 20 miles of snow he would be late also.

Of this union, four sons were born, Fred, a former reeve of Alnwick township; George, Cliff and Melville. There are five grandchildren.

Mr. Broadworth became active in municipal affairs in 1942 as councillor and remained in that office for three years. Since that time he has served three years as deputy and has just begun his third term as reeve.

Mr. Broadworth has lived for 66 years on the family homestead.

A large crowd gathered at the home on Wednesday evening to honor them. Arthur Ward was chairman for the program, which consisted of choruses by the school, readings by Mrs. Arthur Ward and Mrs. Don Pollock, a solo by Gordon Atkinson, a quartette consisting of W. A. Atkinson, Ambrose, Jack and Carman Atkinson.

Fred Broadworth read an address on behalf of the immediate family and Melville Broadworth presented them with a chest of sterling silver. Mrs. Dick Nicholson, a great-niece, presented gifts on behalf of the relatives. Mrs. Hayden Atkinson read an address on behalf of the community, and Jack and Hayden Atkinson made the presentation. Reeve and Mrs. Broadworth made suitable replies. A bountiful lunch was served. Guests were present from Havelock, Warkworth, Ottawa, Roseneath and Dartford.

"SANTA'S HERE," cried the children at this Christmas party. For 15 minutes while he gave out gifts to the 35 children (from the Children's Shelter, St. Vincent's Orphanage and foster homes), Santa held them spellbound. Mrs. James Wharry, Children's Aid Society president, and Mrs. Charles Pilon take the gifts from under the tree and Santa hands each child a present. All eyes are on the jolly bearded visitor as other children patiently wait for their gift.

Millbrook Audience Fills Town Hall For Concert

MILLBROOK — (ENS) — The town hall was filled to capacity Friday evening. Extra chairs were placed along the aisles and people stood at the back for the public school Christmas concert.

It was the first school Christmas concert to be held in the town hall for 12 years. In recent years there has been an afternoon concert in the school. This year, to accommodate a larger crowd and so that the fathers of the children could see the performance, it was held in the evening in the hall.

The first part of the program was put on by Grades 1 and 2, under the direction of their teacher Mrs. L. J. Stuart. Grade 1 rhythm band played two numbers with David Heustin conducting the first and Julie Armstrong the second. Dressed in drum major and majorette style, each conductor announced the number to be played and tapped on the floor with the baton to get the band's attention.

Grades 1 also sang an action song, "We're going to make a cake," dressed in caps and aprons and carrying kitchen utensils.

RHYTHM BAND

Grade 2 rhythm band played two numbers, conducted by Paul Ouellette. Grade 2 also did a drill in which they sang.

Miss Jean Burnham, intermediate room, consisting of Grades 3, and 4, presented a playlet, with Ashton McMaster as Santa and Judy Gilbert as Mrs. Santa. Barton Medd kept Santa's record book and Gayle Sanders was in charge of Christmas dolls. Christmas fairies were Susan Hickey, Betty Raper, Lvonne Scott, Dianne Alan, Patsy Hobbs, Karen Powell, Shelkji Broekstra and Nancy Nattress. Grade 3 and 4 boys presented an action song.

The pupils of Mr. Hamilton's senior room, consisting of Grades 5, 6, 7 and 8, opened their part of the concert with three 2 part choruses. Helen Wright was at the piano for the first two. The final one was unaccompanied. Elinore Crowley gave a humorous monalogue. There was a boys' flag drill with the boys wearing union-jack hats and carrying flags, and a girls' drill in which the girls were dressed in pastel shades with matching headdress.

HARMONICA BAND

The harmonica band played two numbers. It consisted of Sharon Ball, Jane Ouellette, Glenn Hickey, Bobby Hamilton, Gleen Earle, Larry Gibbs, Bernard Ingham, Martin Broekstra, Wayne Raper and Jean Funderberg, with Marlyn Chapman playing the guitar and Wayne Challice the mandolin and with Helen Wright at the piano.

Gloria Raper, Gail Gibbs and Nancy Powell, dressed as angels, gave a pantomime, with different colored lights turned on them, as a girls' choir sang a hymn.

Principals in the play presented by the seniors were, Helen Wright, Pat Peebles, Glen Forsyth, Glen Hickey, Dorothy Dawson, Carol Ridge and Jeanette Branscombe. In it also were a group of boy and girl carolers.

Attendance Awards Given Scholars

MARMORA (ENS)—St. Paul's Sunday school held their Christmas party in the parish hall on Tuesday evening.

In the absence of the rector, the assistant superintendent W. J. Cottrell was in charge of the program. Some carol singing with Mrs. Roy Frost at the organ came first followed by two primary scholars, Barbara Ann Bell and Joy Neal each singing a Christmas song. Mrs. Percy Gray, senior, sang a Christmas solo "The Gift" and three senior girls joined in "The First Noel."

Parents and senior scholars helped to serve the refreshments. Santa Claus arrived and took part in the gift exchange from the Christmas tree.

Awards for best attendance during the year, some being silver attendance pins and the others books, were presented to the following scholars: Patricia Spry, Eva Keating, Annette Provost, Dorothy Phillips, Madeline Frost, Anne Neal, Heather Frost, David Reynolds, Jack Herman, Harry Keating, Glen McCaw, Joyce McCaw, Doris McFarlane. Scholars of the primary classes also received books.

Canada Medal Awarded Arthur Davison

MONTREAL (CP)—Violinist Arthur Davison of Montreal has been awarded a medal by the British Overseas League which makes awards annually to outstanding representatives of Commonwealth countries in the United Kingdom.

The medal, known as the "Canada Medal" was recently presented to the 34-year-old violinist-conductor by Princess Marie Louise in London for the greatest Canadian contribution to music in the U.K. during last year.

Mr. Davison, at present in Britain, is combining recital work with a job as concertmaster of the Hull, Essex and Peterborough symphony orchestras. On top of that he conducts a series of London youth concerts.

Mr. Davison won his first diploma at the age of six and that year gave his first recital in a Montreal church. He studied at the Academie de Musique de Quebec winning the Associated Board of Royal Schools of Music Canadian Scholarship.

A bursary presented by a Montreal women's club enabled him to study further at the Royal Academy of Music in London. In his second year he was named concertmaster of the school symphony and took the most prizes for violin and chamber music.

Mr. Davison returned to Canada in 1950, and before leaving again for London appeared as guest soloist with the CBC Little Symphony, and in chamber music broadcasts on national and international hookups.

Navy Sea Anchor Used To Rescue Pup In Well

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — It's going to be a merry Christmas after all for a little pup and her well-wishers.

Two strangers with the same idea combined efforts Wednesday night, lowered a navy sea anchor baited with bread and milk, and hoisted the two-month-old pooch out of a dry well.

Wayne Gregory, 26, held the rope, and W. W. Burr, 34, a flashlight to do the trick.

There were a couple of anxious moments when it seemed their try would be unsuccessful like others during the last 10 days.

Their angle principally was the bread and milk. What else would a hungry pup that age go for?

There she was in the middle of the collapsed nylon sea anchor—a gadget like an airport wind sock, only with a bottom to it.

They started to raise the startled pup. About one-third of the way up the 10-inch wide shaft the struggling little black and white mongrel almost got out.

Gregory, a machinist, and Burr, who pent four years in the navy, hastily lowered away. The terrified pup calmed down and the men hoisted him almost to the top.

The pup began struggling again, but Burr reached down about two feet, grabbed her by the scruff of her neck and hauled her to safety.

"In general," said Mrs. Norvelle Thacker, president of the Cavern City chapter of the Humane Society "the puppy is in good condition, although a bit dehydrated from lack of water."

For Burr and family, it was a Christmas gift. He said he had been looking for a dog for his three children.

"All the time we were pulling the pup out," he said, "I was thinking what a wonderful Christmas present it would make for my kids . . . We're going to call her 'Wimpy'—even if it is a she."

Just how the pup got in this predicament still remained confused. Its former mistress, Teresa Curtis, 5, said it jumped from her arms into the well. But her cousins, Poe Hardin, 12, and Dan Hardin, 15, said she pushed it.

Even after Wimpy was hauled up, rescue suggestions continued to roll in from people hoping a little pup could share their Christmas happiness. Said one:

"It's a part of me that was saved."

Merry Christmas!

Have Mountains Of Yule Mail

PARIS (Reuters) — Mountains of Christmas mail lay undelivered today on Paris railway station platforms as a walkout of post office sorters at stations and on long-distance trains went into its second day.

Soldiers drafted for special duty struggled to ease the hourly pile-up of letters and parcels, but postal inspectors believed it would take at least 10 days for deliveries to become normal again, even if the sorters returned to work on Christmas.

Socialist post office workers have also joined the strike, which started Wednesday to press wage claims and the immediate payment of a bonus. But the Socialist Union urged members to return to work Friday evening "to preserve their strength for future struggles."

Slow Delivery

OAKHAM, England (CP) — A package mailed from London now takes 14 days to arrive in this Rutland town, because of a new railway routing system. That's several days longer than the old stage coach used to take, say local historians.

ROOMING-HOUSE FIRE — Firemen battle a fire at a central Toronto rooming-house in which one man died and five others were injured. An overheated furnace was blamed for the fire which caused damage estimated at $8,000.

Committed For Trial On Rape Charges

BRANTFORD (CP) — Frank Marchildon of Hamilton and Peter Stefan of Brantford Wednesday night were committed for trial by magistrate R. J. Gillen on charges of rape. The alleged offences occurred Dec. 11 at a motel east of Brantford.

A 29-year-old mother of two children told the court she met the men in Brantford and drove with them to the motel.

Meet Father Christmas

By JOHN GALE

LONDON — (OFNS) — Warm mists have been hovering over London; bathers have been lolling in the sea at Brighton. Many of the shops have conceded little more than a robin or two, or a touch of holly and tinselled cotton wool in their windows. So with less than a week to go, it seemed only right to find out what Father Christmas was up to in this not-always-seasonal atmosphere.

I tracked him down at last in a dolls' fun fair, on the ground floor of a large store specialising in bargain prices. Children were milling about; there was a hot smell and a fearful noise, with dolls suawking, hammering, conjuring, and performing a series of acrobatics. I approached Father Christmas up a rop maze. There was a gap in the flow of children and I stepped forward.

He was a tallish, stooping figure, with surprised eyebrows and a long, friendly nose peeping out from his hood and stained whiskers. The white trimmings on his red robe were no longer as pure as driven snow, which was not surprising; he told me he's been on the job without a change of costume since early in October. He looked very warm. Every few seconds he would say: "Excuse me," and step forward to pin a Father Christmas badge on a child, accompanying it with a nice seech about the nearness of the great day. Then the child moved on to receive a present from one of Father Christmas's ladies, who were dressed up as gipsies.

"Got to be careful hoy you tackle some of them,' said Father Christmas out of the corner of his mouth. "One little boy said to me only yesterday: 'Can I have a baby brother?' I started to fence—that's where my stage training comes in useful—when all of as udden the grandmother jabbed me in the ribs and hissed: 'Say yes!' There'd been a baby born that morning."

Just then the floor manager, a spiky, silver-haired man with rimless spectacles, moved down on us: Father Christmas, it seemed, was forbidden to give away secrets in working hours. Father Christmas said he's meet us in the bar next door at seven o'clock.

He came in on the dot, wearing a military raincoat and a smart dark hat. He was as brisk as ever, although he'd been on his feet nearly ten hours—"I have a stand-in for lunch, but he's very slow, I'm afraid: Not much good for anything but sitting nodding in a window."

I mentioned the manager. "That manager," said Father Christmas. 'He tried to stand over me once. I told him he could say what he liked afterwards, but not while I was on duty."

ONCE IN A MUSICAL ACT

Father Christmas had once done a musical act with the lady who was now his wife; she played the piano and sang, he was the gag man. They did all the old circuits, including the Isle of Man. After a spell on the legitimate stage, he was swallowed up in the First World War: he was twice wounded and came out as a lieutenant, with a life disability pension as the result still a lieutenant in the local of gassing—Father Christmas is Home Guard near his home in Streatham, South London.

After the first war things were difficult in the theatre business, so he became a clerical officer in the Ministry of Health, where he remained for thirty-three years—most of that time he was running a concert party in his spare time. He retired two years ago, but, Civil Service pensions being what they are, he'd kept his hand in with compering at concerts and toastmastering at official dinners. The Father Christmas offer came up last year, through a friend in a musical agency.

"Why not? I thought," said Father Christmas. "It's all theatre. NoNt everybody can do it. The money's good, thought I'd rather not mention figures. This year they asked for me again. It's very interestig work."

He produced a sheaf of letters. "I get dozens, though the management doesn't pass on the ones they get about me. I wish they did. Look at this." He showed me a letter. "This is to tell you I want a wetting dol , . . Sinderella book . . . ballerena braslet."

"It's marvellous, isn't it?" said Father Christmas.

"Sometimes they come in the shop and they're not uite sure about me, you know. The fathers say 'Come on,' but it's enough to cause hysterics. You can't be too careful."

He shook his head. "On Christmas Eve last year I had one surely little beggar. 'I'll be coming to see you tomorrow,' I said, but it took some time to open him up. The man with the boy told me later that he was a probation officer, taking the boy home from an approved school. He wanted to give him a bit of human life, before getting him back to his parents. I think that probation officer was a damn good feller, don't you?"

Father Christmas said he didn't find the standing about too bad; he trained up to it. The worst time was Monday morning, after a Sunday night spent at his club. "I go in feeling like nothing on earth, but of course you must master your nerves on a job like this. It's the same in the acting profession. I don't put on my wig and beard till they say; 'Look out, someone's coming through—of course I have my cloak and boots on.

"The children look at me as I'm something supernatural — it's a bit embarrassing at times. And if they give me a sweet I swallow half my beard. But there are only two real drawbacks: I can't do any Christma s shopping for my grandchildren; and I get damned hot because there's nowhere to change, and I havet to keep my clothes on underneath, so there's always a chance of catching a chill going home."

Father Christmas is spending his Christmas with his daughter and her family She is married to a suadron leader in the Royal Air Force and they live on a R.A.F. station.

Last time he was there, Father Christmas pladed Old Father Time in a mess party on New Year's Eve. "I wore my beard and had a sickle, of course. I wheeled in a pram with a flight-lieutenant dressed as a baby and sucking a giant bottle of stout. He was called 'Sport' Rogers.

"With my training, I can turn my hand to anything, you know," said Father Christmas.

GREETING CARD—Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, couldn't find a Christmas card so he sent this card to his friends in Canada. The inscription in Russian reads "For the New Year." The card shows the clock-tower of the Kremlin's Spaski Gate with the red star shining. Boss, who says that Christmas is just a date on the Soviet calendar, points out that Spaski is the Russian word for Christ.

A VERY Merry Christmas

With all the gay trimmings of an old-fashioned Yuletide — that is bright with glowing candles and rich with golden carols — is our hearty thanks for your friendship: May you all enjoy the Best Christmas ever....

The Christmas Tree... a custom at Christmas

The Christmas tree, as we know it today, has been used in Germany since the 16th century but was not adopted in English-speaking countries until 1841, when Prince Albert set up a Christmas tree in Windsor Castle. Nowadays the family Christmas tree is one of our happiest customs.

AMHERST, N.S. (CP) — The "penny-a-meal" campaign for St. Charles Roman Catholic church yielded a total of $2,435 up to the end of November. Under the plan each wage-earner drops a penny in a special box at every meal.

Brightest Yule In Years, But Miss Snow

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Christmas 1953 may not be the whitest but it is one of the brightest Yuletide seasons in Canada in many years.

Stores, home and streets throughout the Dominion are decked with millions of lights and gay decorations.

The main attraction in Edmonton is a 50-foot civic Christmas tree near Jasper Avenue with 400 lights. Winnipeg homes are ablaze with what is described as the most colorful display of lights and decorations seen in the last 20 years.

UNSEASONAL LOOK

Except for isolated areas in the south-central prairies and northern Ontario, the countryside from the Maritimes to Vancouver has taken on an unseasonal look. High temperatures and barren fields are frustrating skiers and other winter sportsmen.

Alberta and Saskatchewan have reported abnormally high temperatures while in Vancouver umbrellas are the order of the day. A chinook moving east from Calgary was responsible for unusually warm weather in Winnipeg.

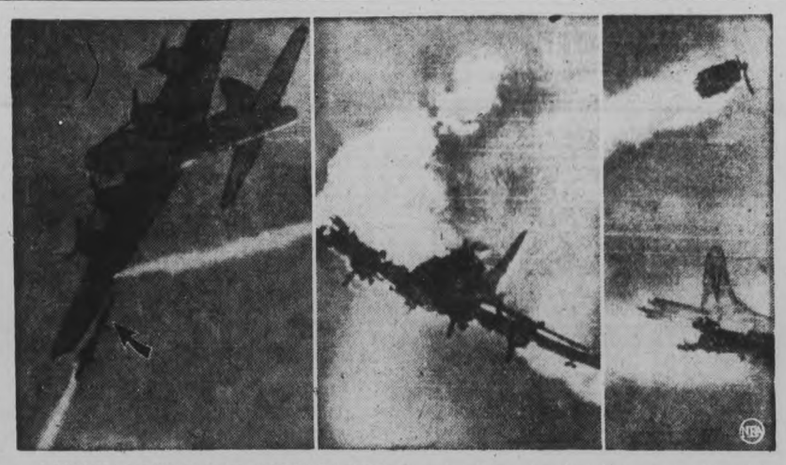
In the east, the outlook in New Brunswick is a little whiter; the weatherman has promised a possibility of a white Christmas. Colder weather was also welcomed in Montreal after residents were pelted with rain and thunderstorms.

In Ontario, government snowplow operators looked back wistfully to the heavy snows of 1947. However, the forecast for the next few days is lower temperatures and snow.

HOME STRETCH

Today marks the home stretch for Canadian commercial interests who have outdone themselves with elaborate window displays, Christmas shopping services and advertising campaigns.

Many stores have adopted a policy of late closing hours to accommodate last-minute shoppers, while a Winnipeg credit jeweller is offering for sale anything in the store up to New Year's Day without a down payment.



Christmas entertainment is following the usual pattern with movies, hockey games and private parties. Activities of the younger set has been curtailed in Edmonton where a polio scare prompted health officials to recommend against gatherings.

Once wide-open Montreal will be somewhat less gay this year due to early closing regulations imposed by the Quebec government. But Montrealers nevertheless were making big preparations for private celebrations.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

Holiday liquor-law offenders are being dealt with severely by Ontario police who have launched a clean-up campaign with individual fines for driving while impaired as high as $500. They have also raided private office parties.

Prison inmates will get a break from their usual diet. At the Kitchener jail and the Ontario reformatory at Guelph the menu for Christmas includes roast goose, steaming plum pudding, mince pie and ice cream preceded by a concert and religious program.

Presbyterian Pupils Present Concert

NORWOOD (ENS)— St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Sunday school held their Christmas concert in the Sunday school room. The children were treated to a turkey supper, after which the parents came and the program began.

A play was put on by Mrs. Duncanson's and Mrs. Morgan's classes. Another film was shown by Mr. Duncanson. A play was presented by Mrs. Duncanson's class. Recitations were given by Donald Sinclair, Jo-Anne Rogers and Murray Ross.

Santa Claus arrived and distributed the gifts that the children had bought for one another by the exchange of names. Candy was also given to the children.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CVI. No. 300 — THURSDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1953 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

Main Street Topics

LOCAL MAN ON TV

Jim Hawthorne, son of Mrs. Jessie Hawthorne, 172½ Hunter St. W., will appear on the CBS network play, "The Omnibus," which is presenting a children's fantasy Sunday night at five o'clock.

CITIZENS COMPLAIN

Residents of Dalhousie St., between Aylmer and George Sts., have petitioned city council outlining conditions on that street and asking council to pass necessary legislation to cure the situation. Council referred the petition to the special traffic committee.

ENTERTAIN CHILDREN

Kinsmen and Kinettes on Wednesday night entertained their children at a Christmas party held in Knox Church Sunday School hall. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments served. The program consisted of Nancy Norris, 11, giving several step-dance numbers.

OUTDOOR SKATING

Although the parks department won't guarantee the smooth quality of the ice, outdoor rinks will be ready Christmas Day at King Edward and Riverside parks for city children who receive new skates from Santa Claus, Superintendent Armar Butcher reports. Some children have already been seen testing their blades as the cold snap set city employees scurrying to prepare ice surfaces on city playgrounds.

UNDERSTATEMENT

Two Examiner reporters mounting the steps outside the Court House Wednesday afternoon noticed a caretaker hoisting what could only be described as a faded old, and disgracefully tattered Union Jack. As it fluttered fitfully from the flagpole they asked the caretaker if he knew hold old it was. He replied: "That I can't rightfully say boys, but it has just about served its purpose I guess." A masterpiece of understatement.

TREES AND THEIR LIGHTS

One of the most attractive Christmas trees in the down town area is on the lawn of a residence on King St., opposite the bus terminal. Its lights stand out brightly, as seen from George and Aylmer Sts. Some one stripped a tree of its night glowing colors near the street bus turn, Water St. north.... And some of the sockets of the yellow lights on a pillar tree in front of the Capitol theatre, were missing the other night. They were within reach of a long, mean arm.

NO PERMITS FOR 15-YEAR-OLDS

No more driving permits for boys and girls under 16 years of age. This was the order received by James Fraser of the Chamber of Commerce from the department in Queen's Park. Formerly boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 16 years could get permits to drive providing they received certificates from the city police and their parents. The order comes into effect on January 1. Boys and girls who in recent months received permits will not be able to get them renewed until they are 16.

All Mail Out Of Office For Record

Mail In Post Office By 7:00 A.M. Today Will Be Delivered

The crestal volume had passed through the hands of the augmented staff Monday and Tuesday.

"Every letter properly addressed that had come to the office by seven o'clock this morning will be delivered today," Postmaster Clare Stuart told the Examiner at the noon hour. "We had to draw the line somewhere, and that is why we made it 7 a.m. That applies to the incoming mail, deposited locally and from out of town. At that hour we had five trucks of parcels loading at the temporary depot at the Armouries.

Three of the trucks were full, and the two others were piling up to take off early with the first loads.

Thanks to the co-operation of the public, we have never been in better shape with our deliveries, letters and parcels for the day before Christmas."

WAIT UNTIL SATURDAY

Sortition at the noon hour showed letters that had come through the stamp cancelling machines dated Dec. 24, 11 a.m. If they were after-thought Christmas greetings, they were too late. They had to be held until Saturday.

Mr. Stuart said the helpers of the letter carriers started out this morning with all the mail they could manage by bag and sleigh. Meanwhile, the carriers were parcelling up other bundles of letters in the office for this afternoon.

"It may be dark by the time the last carrier has delivered the last of the holiday mail," Mr. Stuart said.

And that may be the last Christmas in the old post office at Hunter and Water Sts. With greatly increased space and elbow room, new facilities for handling mail and getting it into the stream of delivery, the staff may be disposing of the 1954 Christmas peaks of letters of good wishes and goodwill, and the heaps of gift parcels, in the new building on Charlotte St.

The racks of letter slots, on the main floor of the post office, and the temporary files upstairs in the old rooms that used to house a department of the Trent Canal staff, were rows of emptiness at noon today.

The upstairs accommodation was put together of cardboard. Maybe it will be stored in the attic as a standby for a year hence, unless there is some assurance that the postal-customs building will be occupied by then.

WRONGLY ADDRESSED

The only mail diverted from the recent heavy stream of postal business was a collection of letters that were wrongly addressed, others directed only to "Peterborough," and still other letters for streets from which houses have been removed. One of them was Dobbin Ave., another Victory Crescent, on the former Hatton property at the west end of Charlotte St.

Rural mail men had brought back letters for people who had moved from township routes. A similar variety of obstacle also impeded delivery within the city, people of changed address, a few others gone from Peterborough.

"Every change of address is

Nature Club To Take Bird Census

Following last Christmas season's encouragement in listing 700 local birds of 18 species, members of the Peterborough Nature Club will hold their annual district bird census on Boxing Day, Saturday.

They hope to have about 30 volunteers to assist in the project and the areas to be observed are as follows: Jackson Park, Lily lake, Chemong Park, Otonabee river, Little lake, Nassau, Burnham's woods, Rifle Range, Stewart Hall, Otonabee, Warsaw Road, Heronry and Crawford Grove South.

Members are asked to assemble at 8.15 at the corner of Park and Bolivar Sts., and bring field glasses and field guides with them. They will be supplied with detailed area maps, check list sheets, complete instructions and Nature Club posters.

Those who wish to make this an outing are requested to get in touch with J. Larry McKeever (7866) or Frank Pammett (6493) for further information.

Routine Visit Saves Barn

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—A routine visit by Eldon Johnstone to the chicken house in the upper floor of his barn prevented what otherwise would have been a disastrous fire about 10.30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mr. Johnstone noticed sparks from some electric wiring which he had wrapped around a water pipe to keep it from freezing up had ignited the flooring. He ran into the house and called the fire department before returning to the barn with a hose.

Both trucks of the village fire department answered the alarm, but by the time they arrived at the scene, Mr. Johnstone had the blaze under control. Little damage was done, according to Deputy Fire Chief William Hamblin, who attributed the cause of the fire to a short circuit in the wiring around the water pipe.

The barn is situated on the northern edge of the village near Lakefield Preparatory School, about three-quarters of a mile from the centre of the village.

$225,312.44 In Treasury Nov. 30 Council Advised

City spending for the 11 months of this year to the end of November was $225,312.44 below the total expenditures for the full 12 months of the year estimated by the 1953 council when it drew up the budget. The property and sanitation committees were the only ones to have exceeded their annual appropriations before the end of the year, City Treasurer A. S. Couper reported to council. With an estimated budget of $12,000, there had been $13,330.32 spent on property by the end of November, while, with an appropriation of $93,312.85, there had been $96,206.75 spent for garbage disposal.

With another month of spending to be accounted for, there was a chance that some departments might spend slightly in excess of their appropriations but no other items on the budget had exceeded the amount budgeted for them by the end of last month. Meanwhile, several items of revenue were already higher than council had expected.

Here are the items in which revenue exceeded the estimates at the end of November, with the amount of the estimated revenue for the year in brackets following: sign licences, $522 ($500); parking meters, $42,773.44 ($34,000); police court fines and tickets, $30,018.18 ($25,000); Liquor Control Board, $8,860.78 ($8,200); penalty (interest on taxes), $8,559.36 ($7,500); payments on wartime housing in lieus of taxes, $14,679.68 ($13,000); fire department subsidy, $26,421.47 ($24,000); police department subsidy, $25,558.14 ($24,000); additional assessments, $18,036.20 ($17,000); payments in lieu of taxes from Hydro and PUC, $14,890.53 ($10,000); plumbing inspections, $2,407.75 ($2,200.).

Most other sources of revenue showed collections only slightly below the estimates for the year by the end of November but market tolls and scale revenues were only $1,633.05, compared with estimated collections for the year of $2,000, while rentals from city property were $30,801.50, compared with $35,000 total estimated for the year. City hall rentals totalled $23,906.83, compared with an estimate for the year of $27,000.

With December collections still to come in, however, revenues from sources other than property taxes were $7,589.97 higher at the end of November than had been estimated for the whole year. The estimate was $399,327.52, while collections to the end of last month were $406,917.49.

Drivers Need Expect No Leniency

Chief Constable John Thompson's campaign during the holiday season to crack down hard on drunken drivers netted its first two victims late Wednesday night and early today.

Remanded in magistrate's court today on charges of drunk driving, as well as lesser charges, were Earl J. Twomey, 25, of 455 Gilmour St., and Maxwell Turner, 26, of 184 Dalhousie St.

Twomey also faces a careless driving count, and Turner a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

"We mean business," Chief Thompson said today. "Drivers need expect no leniency if they go about the city streets while drinking."

Turner was arrested early Wednesday night after it was alleged he was in a sideswipe collision with a car on Charlotte St., driven by Mrs. Ruth Hart, 32, of R.R. 1, Fenelon Falls. In the accident, damage totalled $650 and Mrs. Hart received bruises from a blow on the left side of her head.

Mrs. Hart said she was driving east on Charlotte St. when Turner came up the wrong side of the road and struck the left side of her car.

Police, who later arrested Turner for drunken driving and failing to remain at the scene, said he was drunk and abusive.

Twomey wasn't in an accident but was observed driving south on George St. "in an erratic manner." Officers reported that they had to chase him in their cruiser and he took corners so fast the manoeuvre left skid marks.

Both men were remanded to December 30.

Russo-Egypt Pact Near

CAIRO (Reuters)—A trade agreement between Egypt and Russia is expected to be signed shortly, an Egyptian foreign office spokesman said Wednesday night. Under the agreement Egypt will export cotton and other goods to Russia in exchange for wheat and machinery.

A. W. Archibald Widely Mourned

Hundreds of his friends attended the funeral Wednesday of the late Alex W. Archibald who as a young Scotsman came to Peterborough nearly 50 years ago.

That assembly at Comstock's funeral home in the afternoon was an impressive tribute, accentuated by the wealth of flowers, to the memory of the man who had become widely known in business and municipal life of the community, and in social and sports activities.

The township of North Monaghan was represented by the former Reeve, Melville H. Johnston, with whom Mr. Archibald was associated for some years as deputy-reeve, and together they were members of the county council.

The service was conducted by Rev. Henry Cotton. Pallbearers were Ray P. Best, John L. P. Smith, James Richmond, Bruce Johnston, clerk of North Monaghan, Robert Ralston and Ernest Reid. Interment was at Little Lake cemetery.

Beat Off Ambush

Rain, Snow Give Farmers Needed Water

Rain and melting snow Tuesday have improved the supply of rural water, and particularly for suburban and country dwellers who have to depend on their own wells for the flushing of their plumbing.

F. J. Hughey who provides this emergency service of trucking water from the city said today he understood that the levels in farm wells has been raised considerably of late. For the present, at any rate, that farm need has been relieved.

The long dry season of the fall has affected domestic water supply in homes using septic tanks for disposal of sewage.

When that water runs low the tank truck has to be called into use, a job Mr. Hughey has been doing in refilling wells nature has neglected. Mild weather melting the recent snow, plus Tuesday's rain, have provided surface water restoring water systems in homes beyond the city.

Tuesday's weather was an inconvenience in the city, but on the rural fringe it was a boon, an example of the saying that it is an illwind that blows nobody some good.

Two Cars Crash 5 In Hospital

LINDSAY (ENS)—Five persons are in the Ross Memorial hospital, suffering from various injuries sustained in a head-on collision of two cars at Hillhead curve, on number 7 highway, south-east of Lindsay, Wednesday night. The cars involved were driven by Roy Polit, of Lindsay, and Lawrence Chynoweth, of Coboconk. There were three passeners in the latter vehicle and all were injured. Hospital officials said that Polito and Jos. Peirce, of Coboconk, were the most seriously hurt. Albert Peirce, Joseph's brother, and Joseph Kerr, of Bethany, are also resting in hospital today. Total damage in the accident was estimated at $1,500.

Detailed Survey Being Made Of North Monaghan For Suitable Airport Site

Hope To Present To Council In March Complete Details Of Survey; City Must Decide On Course To Follow

The Department of Transport, Ottawa, are part way through a detailed survey in North Monaghan township to find out if there is a suitable site for a municipal airport. The suitability of the land is just one problem that has to be overcome if the city is to have an airport. Assuming the land was all right, it would still be up to city council to decide (1) whether or not they really want one; and (2) whether or not if would be a good investment for the city to buy several hundreds of acres of farmland for the project.

A number of men who have been sizing up the situation have privately expressed doubt that the project will go through. Initial outlay for the farmland will be heavy; maintenance costs will be high; and the experience of other cities with municipal airports (including Toronto and Oshawa) has not been encouraging.

READY IN MARCH

When the detailed survey is presented to council—in March sometime, probably—council may well decide that the airport would be a "white elephant."

One local industry, the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., is "vitally interested" to quote Clarence B. Neal, president and general manager. Other industries are also strongly supporting this point of view.

"Yes, we are vitally interested," said Mr. Neal. "We use airplanes in our business . . . We feel that an airport is needed if Peterborough is to grow and expand . . . In the meanwhile we're waiting for the department's report on whether an airport is feasible."

Last summer, by resolution, city council asked the department to come to this area and do a survey. At first the department wanted the city to do the work, but city officials explained that they weren't aware of all the departmental requirements.

In November surveying crews started to work on the area. The department are paying for the work.

"We have to study the drainage and look over the high and low spots," explained S. S. Foley of Toronto, district controller of air services. "On this detailed survey rests the decision whether it is worth while developing the site or not."

4,000-FOOT RUNWAYS

Mr. Foley said that, assuming the airport would be built to accommodate DC-3s—now the standard type passenger plane— the runways would have to be 4,000 feet of hard surface. The whole airport would require the buying up of several hundred acres of land.

How this would be financed is a problem that would have to be faced if and when the surveyors recommended the North Monaghan site.

The airport might be owned and operated by the department of transport, but this is thought unlikely. Or it might be a partnership with commercial interests, the city and the department each chipping in so much.

At the moment, though, city council haven't committed themselves. Their policy, until the report comes in, is wait-and-see.

Christmas Is Season Of Love, Goodwill

"If I were to attempt a smart report to the question: Is Christianity declining, I would say, "Yes, through twenty centuries Christianity has been declining to die, and has been declining to be destroyed," Very Rev. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson said today in a Christmas message at the Kiwanis Club luncheon.

Archdeacon Robertson quoted G. K. Chesterton's remark: "Christianity has not been tried and found wanting; it has been found difficult and untried."

"We all become men in Christ Jesus," he quoted, as the Christian answer to the world's question, who or what is God; who or what is man.

NOW ATHEISTIC

The world sees today once holy Russia become officially atheistic; Germany, the cradle of the Reformation, rejecting Christianity under Hitler; the explosion of Christian missionaries from China. Wherever it appears, Communism is hostile against all religions, not against Christianity alone.

Archdeacon Robertson quoted: "History is the best cordial for drooping spirits," and "the centuries tell the tales the years do not know." He recalled the early attempts by the pagan world to suffocate Christianity in its cradle and the seeming success of its enemies as suggested in the crucifixion of Jesus on Calvary.

Persecution followed through three centuries, but in the end of that era the teaching of Christ had become the official faith of the Roman Empire by the fifth century.

REPLY OF LEPAUX

Archdeacon Robertson quoted the reply of Lepaux who had conceived the idea of forming a new religion but he found it going very badly. And so Talleyrand advised him that it was not easy to found a religion. "You should have yourself crucified, and then rise on the third day."

The message of Christmas was very simply set forth in respect and love for man and the dignity that has come to him through the sacrifice of Jesus. Christmas is the season of love and goodwill, and through it all runs the faith in God, contrasting with weird ideas that seek to entrap men's minds and loyalties, to drag everybody down to a low level in which the Christian gospel of love is driven out.

At right, near boxes of other cold weather gifts, Chaplain (Major) Edward Kirkpatrick, of U.S. 8th Army headquarters, holds more knitted goods as he watches the operation. The clothing—in time for Christmas and Korea's cold—came from the United States where thousands answered the call for the "Knit for a Korean Child" project. Returned PoW Will Have Happy Yuletide

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What is Christmas like behind barbed wire?

Bob Wise can answer that. This will be the first Christmas in four years he has spent outside a Communist prison camp. Another Christmas, longer ago, he spent in a German prison camp.

Wise will fly today to his home in Tacoma, Wash., to spend his first Yuletide with his son, four-year-old Robert Kent. The United States Army captain is here as technical advisor on a film called "The Prisoner-of-War Story."

"On Christmas night we ended a 25-day march through the bitter cold. Most of the men—those who survived—were sick, starving and frozen. Our only solace was a chaplain, a Catholic priest and a saintly man, who would not rest until he had ministered to each man, even though he knew that would infuriate the Reds. Later he died of an infection; the Communists did little to save him.

NEXT CHRISTMAS BETTER

"The next Christmas was better. It appeared that the truce talks were coming to a head, and the Reds didn't want us to appear starved. (Wise himself dropped from 175 to around 110 pounds.) So they brought in a truckload of frozen chicken and pigs and gave us a feast. After the talks stalled, we went back to our miserable life.

"The same thing happened in the Christmas of 1952. They even let us have a program, but everything was censored. We couldn't sing 'Don't Fence Me In.' Even a song about 'fields of yellow corn' was deleted; they were that conscious of their color. Anything that indicated the downtrodden was allowed. They approved Dickens' 'Christmas Carol' because of the capitalist Scrooge."

As Wise celebrates Christmas with his family, his thoughts go back to a fellow in his outfit, who was also captured but chose not to return.

"He was a boy 17 years old, very immature and unhappy," the officer recalled. "He had no family except a sister. I'm sure that if he returned to this country he would spend many years in a mental institution."

Yuletide Supplies Grow Plentiful For Great Britain's 1953 Christmas

LONDON.— Strikes and threats of strikes, a markedly increasing cost of living, squabbles in the House of Commons over everything from commercial TV to the color bar in the Colonies—all these are with us but they will affect not one whit the Englishman's determination to whoop it up in the home at Christmastime. Street musicians are out by the dozens, writes David M. Legate in the Montreal Star. You can trip over carol singers every second block at night and the shops have dressed themselves up with ancient gusto.

There is nothing one cannot buy this Yuletide—for the first time in years — providing one has the money. Foodstuffs are plentiful and the delicacies which have been missing since 1939 are back to tempt the housewife.

Sandringham is nearly ready to give the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret and other members of the Royal family, including Prince Charles and Princess Anne, a seasonal welcome when they converge on "The Big House," as the local people call it, next week. Rehearsals have been taking place for the Christmas carols to be sung on Christmas Eve. Mainly boys and the choir of Sandringham church, they will assemble at the grand hall entrance and, after singing carols, they will be invited to the dining room for cakes and wine.

And on Friday afternoon at three o'clock London time the nation will be still as radios will be turned on to listen to the voice of The Queen speaking from New Zealand.

MIDDLE AGES CUSTOM

This week in the town of Aldermaston, Berkshire, a custom was carried out which has not changed since the reign of George III and which probably dates back to the Middle Ages. Aldermaston is where the United Kingdom's atomic energy research is being done. But this ceremony involved a candle.

The local vicar sold by candlelight a two and a half acre meadow to farmers who want to graze their cattle. A pin was stuck through the candle an inch from the top and the wick was lit. As the candle burned down to the pin the auction started and the farmers made their bids. When the flame reached the pin and it dropped to the ground the last bidder got the land.

Once this custom was common throughout Britain but now it is observed only at Aldermaston and at two other villages in Lincolnshire and Somerset.

There is a constant controversy about which is the oldest inn in the land. Well, now it is fairly well established that The King and Tinker, at Enfield, on London's outskirts, at least has the oldest licence. It is believed to date back one thousand and forty years.

The inn got its name from a story about King James I. It is said that while hunting the King met a tinker and had a drink with him there. Guy Fawkes is also supposed to have used the place. There is an underground passage which he and his conspirators are supposed to have inhabited when making plans to blow up the Houses of Parliament.

Originally The King and Tinker was a monastery.

All around Great Britain in the summer-time holiday resorts put on traditional concerts under the auspices of the municipal councils concerned. Up until now these have not been subject to entertainment tax. Henceforth they will be as a result of a court ruling. The Treasury will either receive a healthy chunk of money or else the municipalities will simply close down the attractions.

The whole matter arose when the South Coast town of Eastbourne was haled into court. Now the High Courts have ruled that four out of five concerts staged there were variety entertainments and not concerts and therefore liable to tax.

In England you can apparently put on a concert with singing and recitations and the like and pay no tax. The moment you get into variety, you make people laugh —and that cost the promoters money!

BE NO CHANGE

Assurances have been forthcoming that there will be no change in Brighton's Regency character when the new twenty-year development, now the subject of hot debate, begins to function.

There had been a threat that the new town hall, to be built on a site opposite the ugly though nonetheless historic Royal Pavilion, would mean tearing down Regency houses by the dozens.

The town's enraged citizens forced the authorities to hold a meeting to discuss the matter. The meeting was held in The Dome, which holds nearly three thousand people. One hundred and fifty attended!

"Is His Face Red" Dept.: A Church of England cleric, speaking up in Yorkshire the other day, remarked: "When Senator McCarthy goes to Heaven he will get a shock because he will find that even angels have left wings."

ANCIENT DEFENCE

The art of self-defence known as ju-jitsu was practised in Japan as early as the seventh century BC.

France's New President Noted For His Simplicity

VERSAILLES (Reuters) — Rene Coty, France's new president, told reporters Wednesday night: "I hope to get home early for my soup and cheese."

This simplicity is one of the characteristics of the tall, stoop-shouldered 71-year-old senator whose name was mentioned as a possible candidate for the presidency only after five inconclusive days of voting.

Coty, who like Premier Joseph Laniel comes from Normandy, has been a member of three post-war governments as minister of reconstruction and town planning. Although he hails from the moderate conservative right wing of French politics, and is on extremely good terms with the French Roman Catholic hierarchy he is generally well liked by the centre and non-Communist left.

He was born March 20, 1882, at Le Havre, and first entered parliament as a deputy in 1923.

A member of the Le Havre bar since 1902, he entered local politics in 1907 and in 1908 became a member of the Le Havre town council.

A volunteer in the First World War, he holds the Croix de Guerre for gallantry.

Married for 46 years, he has two daughters, both married, and 10 grandchildren.

The new president takes an active interest in federalist movements though he has never committed himself on the European Army and indeed speaks rarely in the Senate.

He is also one of the constitutional experts of the Senate. He retired from politics during the Second World War but returned to become a member of the post-war constituent assembly.

In 1947 he became reconstruction minister and remained at the head of that ministry for three successive governments.

His two hobbies are reading and listening to recorded classic music. He has given up smoking since a slight throat operation early this year.

Two-Headed Baby Called Cuddleable

Following is a condensation by The Canadian Press of the Toronto Telegram's column "Science Report":

By RON KENYON
Toronto Telegram Science Editor

A child is lying in a hospital in Indianapolis kicking lustily, squalling with all the abandon of new life.

Specifically, it has two heads, two stomachs, two hearts, two spinal cords, two sets of lungs and four arms.

A surprising number of people think this child should have been smothered by the doctors at birth. They have told me so. Of what use is it, they ask, to itself or anybody else?

So I picked up the telephone and sought the child's father, who lives far out in the country in the southern part of the state of Indiana.

The father, Cecil Hartley, had no telephone, I was told. A messenger could be sent to get him.

Several hours later, when Mr. Hartley came home from work he kept his boots on, bolted his supper and walked the darkened roads to the nearest phone.

LITTLE ATTENTION

I had doubted that he would call. I had pictured him deluged by requests for information and knee-deep in the American press. But apparently such was not the case. Despite the fact that the Hartley baby is one of the most remarkable children the world has ever known, the American press gave it the once-over lightly.

Mr. Hartley is 44 years old and is a naval ordnance worker. This particular child, which most of all needs the protection of money, is the son of a man earning $50 a week, living in a three-room cottage.

Into this cottage, he told me, he crowds seven normal children (four by his first wife, three by his second). The wire reports I received from the U.S.A. said four.

I asked Mr. Hartley what he thought of his son. He said he was proud of him.

"My wife and I want to bring him home and raise him as near like a normal boy as we can," he said.

He insisted that the baby was not shocking or horrifying.

TWO CUTE FACES

"I saw him in hospital and the covers were drawn up. I saw two little faces and they were cute as could be."

This seemed to be the general opinion of people who actually saw the baby.

For instance, newsman Jim Jordan of the Indianapolis Times, who watched a dozen nurses seeing the baby for the first time, said there were no "sad undertones" or turning away of heads. On the contrary, the girls echoed delight. Jordan said the baby made you want to cuddle him.

The truth is that this child has as much right to live as any other.

Obstetricians say he was formed from an embryo that started to divide too late.

When a single egg is twice fertilized it normally divides and both halves grow, producing twins. If this division takes place a little later the result will be Siamese twins (two people joined at some point). In the Hartley baby's case the egg became an embryo before it started to split—and the result was two people confined partially in two bodies, partially in one.

TWO PERFECT BRAINS

Yet still there are two perfect brains and minds to suffer by the rejection of other people.

I telephoned the university of Toronto's genetics department and learned that there had been another case, in Russia, in 1937, and that, furthermore, Life magazine had printed pictures of it in October, 1938.

The Russian baby, a girl, was almost exactly the same as the Hartley child.

It seemed hardly likely that the Russian child could have made any contribution to humanity. It died of pneumonia at the age of one.

Yet, incredibly, this child had repaid the time spent on it. Scientists had studied it and had learned something through its abnormal structure.

THEORY DISPROVED

For instance, there had been a very erudite argument in progress on the subject of sleep. Why did people fall asleep when they got tired? And what bodily process caused them to wake up again?

One group of experts argued that perhaps tired cells made a substance which circulated through the blood-stream and put the brain to sleep. Then, as the body rested, this substance might be removed and cause the brain to awaken.

An excellent theory, which the Russian baby disproved.

For this child had two separate brains but only one blood-stream. While one head slept the other was gay and frisky. Obviously there could be no sleep-inducing substance in the blood-stream.

So the Russian baby, at the ripe age of one, settled an argument the experts couldn't decide.

GRIM HUMOR

Meanwhile, through all the tragedy of the Hartley baby's birth runs a thread of grim humor. Is the child to be considered singular or plural? The hospital instructed Mrs. Hartley to provide two names and when she did so it issued a single birth certificate with both names written in.

Some reports referred to the baby as "him" and others to "them" while a few incorporated both "him" and "them."

Since the brains are quite separate they will have individual personalities. If the child lives long enough presumably he will be able to carry on two intelligent conversations with different people simultaneously.

Mr. Hartley admitted that walking would be difficult. By pricking feet with pins doctors established that one legs sends its nerve impulses to one brain, the other to the other brain. For instance, when the right foot was pricked the right face yelled in pain, and vice versa.

PHYSICAL DIFFICULTIES

This may imply that in walking the brains will somehow have to get together to the extent of controlling the feet co-operatively.

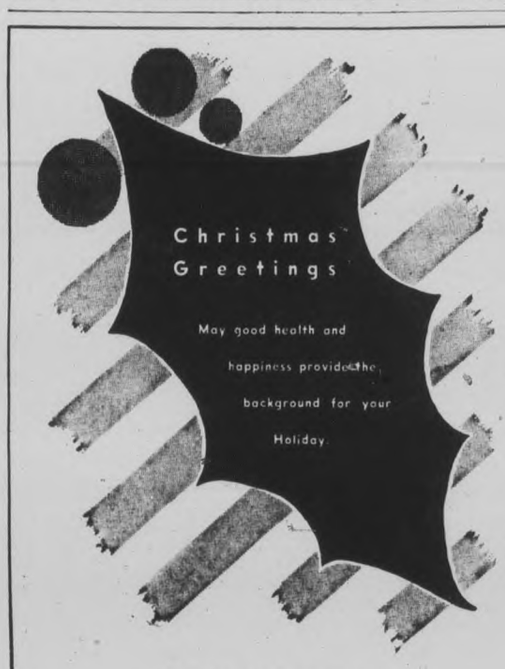
This child will have many physical difficulties.

One side, named Donald, is stronger and more robust than the other, named Daniel. If Daniel should die, so will Donald.

Mr. Hartley said doctors had told him that they would attempt to remove one side if it died, but chances of a successful operation were remote.

Despite all this Mr. and Mrs. Hartley want their son.

"We expect to go to see him Saturday—the day after Christmas," said Mr. Hartley. "That'll be the first time my wife's seen him."



I hung up the phone, leaving Mr. Hartley to walk his quarter-mile back home (he does not own a car).

Spirit Of Christmas Proves Better Than Medicine For Ailing Lou Costello

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lou Costello is walking proof that there is no medicine like the spirit of Christmas.

Last Oct. 29 Lou suffered a serious collapse. This was the rotund comic's sixth critical illness in 10 years and it understandably started mumblings that the little guy had taken his last pratfall.

Since 1943, Lou has had three rheumatic fever attacks, one gangrenous gall bladder operation and one near internal drowning from fluid that invaded his tisues.

Lou's doctor was worried. He told the comic a month ago that he must close his home and move to Palm Springs for a rest.

But Costello refused because of Christmas. People who have known him for a long time will tell you that no one gets more fun out of Christmas than Lou.

HOUSE ALL LIT UP

His home is a mecca for children. He has spent as much as $3,000 in decorations. This year the whole house is lit up like a giant Christmas tree. Gliding across the roof is a life-sized Santa with reindeer and sleigh. On another wing is a chimney with bubbles blowing continually, and another Santa.

In the yard is another life-size Santa, talking by electrical animation to greet all the children. Christmas carols play off recordings around the clock. Cars loaded with kids creep bumper-to-bumper down the street.

On Christmas Eve comes the climax. Lou will gather all his family and close friends in the den and then, with a little ritual his own that begins promptly at midnight, will hand out lavish gifts one by one.

How is he bearing up under this mad Christmas rush?

"Well," answers his doctor, "a few weeks ago I said he should be well enough to go back on television in March. I must revise that as of today. Christmas is a better doctor than I. Lou is well enough to go back to work tomorrow."

Judge Sentences Fred Blaby To Six Months

Fred Blaby, 23, of 554 Romaine St., was sentenced in the County Court Wednesday afternoon to six months definite and six months indefinite imprisonment for having abducted a 10-year-old Peterborough girl without her parents' knowledge or consent.

Originally charged on two counts—one of abduction and the other of indecent assault—Blaby was convicted on the former charge December 14. The other charge was ruled invalid by Judge John de N. Kennedy because the defence had not elected speedy trial and the court had tried both cases at one time.

The charge arose after Blaby had picked up a schoolgirl before dark one Saturday evening and driven her out to a concession road in North Monaghan where the car had become bogged. The two had spent the night in the car and walked back to the city next morning.

REPORT ON BACKGROUND

Sentencing Blaby, Judge Kennedy said it would have been unfair to the prisoner to impose a sentence without knowing something of his background and so he had ordered the probation officer to prepare a report for himself and counsel.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, who had had the opportunity to peruse the report, said he could not consent to a suspended sentence which he understood the defence might attempt to gain. "In view of the nature of the offence I very much doubt if you could give such a sentence, your honor," he added.

"I am sorry to say that in your case I can find very few extenuating circumstances," commented Judge Kennedy to the prisoner. "You have a good home, good health and parents who are willing to help you. There is no reason why you should not have made a success of your life.

"I have given careful consideration to the penalty in this case, bearing in mind your future and my duty to the public," he continued. "I also must bear in mind the fact that I must impose sufficient penalty to deter any others who may be tempted to do as you did."

THE McCARTHY BROTHERS were intensely preoccupied, for the moment, at one of the city's large industrial parties last Saturday. Bernard, left, with a new toy, seems to have his strings crossed but didn't take long to manipulate the workings. His brother Jerry is so engrossed that he forgets to open his own present but in case it is the same he will know the right strings to pull immediately after he opens it.

Charmed Wealthy Women Almost Landed TV Job, But Crook Jailed 7 Years

LONDON (Reuters) — "Major" Arthur H. Rowson, 37, whose suave way of charming wealthy London women almost landed him a lucrative contract to make American TV films, is settling down to seven years in prison.

Rowson posed as a big-time producer from Hollywood and his line with the ladies: "I find you very lovely. Would you care for a screen test?"

His chief victims were:

1. Lady Liane Winston-Davis-Demarris, whom he fleeced of nearly $3,000 after promising to get her into the movies.

2. Margot Garcia, 24, heiress to a drug company's millions. Rowson talked her out of nearly $3,500 for a "screen test" and investment in his "film company."

3. Night-club singer Brunhilde Jorns. He met her in Germany on a "scouting" trip, evaluated her lush brunette charms and gave her the "I'll put you in big lights" line to the tune of nearly $900.

ONE SPECTACULAR "NO"

During the fraud trial, which ended here Tuesday, it was disclosed that the smooth-talking defendant had one spectacular failure.

His screen test technique completely flopped in the case of blonde Lady Carey Coke, 19. Lady Carey's mother, the Countess of Leicester, gave him a firm "No."

Rowson had done so well in penetrating the blue-blood inner circle of London that he had almost persuaded a Hollywood firm to give him a contract to make TV pictures here, the court was told.

A New Christmas

By ABBE ARTHUR MAHEUX

One of the heavenly angels decided to take an original initiative. We will call the angel Paxi-El, the equivalent of Peace of God. He decided that this Christmas 1953 he would find something new to put on the Christmas tree, something which he would place secretly in a corner of heaven as a surprise for Christ the King of Peace.

Paxi-El succeeded beyond all his dreams. His purpose was to place in this Christmas tree all the signs of peace he found in the world of humans. As a matter of fact there are to be seen many small packages, expressions of the desire, or at least slight signs of the will for peace; it is better than nothing.

Here is another package, a bigger one, marked KKK. That is a well known sign of itself the symbol of war. What is it doing there? It contains a singular document, a declaration made by the head of the Ku Klux Klan in the United States. He renounces the terroristic methods of his associates and exhorts the latter to disperse and renounce all the militant practices which they have adhered to until now. This is a good move towards Peace.

There are other packages more than twenty of them; they bear the names of countries. Which are these countries? Germany, England, Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Denmark, Egypt, United States, France Finland, Holland, Iraq, Iceland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Mexico, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Uruguay and Yugoslavia.

All these countries have placed in the Christmas tree, first of all, a confession, an admission that until now each has wrongly taught its national history by making of it an instrument of hate and war; with this confession, a regret, regret for having done wrong, and finally, a resolution to transform its history books into instruments of peace, in a contribution to friendly relations between peoples.

No other present could please the King of Peace greater. He examines these documents: it is desirable to avoid all error of fact; sinning by calculated omission is not desired; it is desired to avoid all tendentious assertions; it is desired to avoid all expressions injurious to other peoples, especially neighbors; it is desired not to exaggerate the heroic stature of nationals, nor depress enemies; it is desired to accept scientific strictness; above all, it is desired that no nationalism shall be allowed to color facts.

The Angel Paxi-El has noo need to explain these documents further for they are sufficiently eloquent. The King of Peace makes only one reflection: Will the Nationalists understand, accept, and be resigned?

Identify Five Canadians Held

OTTAWA (P)—The external affairs department has identified five of 10 Canadians reported in London to be among a group under arrest in Communist China without conviction for any crime.

The five:

Bishop Gustave Prevost, a native of St. Eustache, Que., of the Foreign Missionary Society of Quebec; the Rev. Louis Vendam of the Scarboro Foreign Missionary Society; the Rev. George Beauregard, Marieville, Que., the Rev. Maurice Garneau, Quebec City, and the Rev. Edward La Fleche, Winnipeg, of the Canadian Jesuits.

A department spokesman said the names of the other five are not available here.

However, in Montreal an official of the Canadian Jesuits said the Rev. Armand Proulx of Ste. Agathe de Lotbiniere, Que., and the Rev. Fernand Faucher of Montreal are under house arrest in Shanghai with Father Beauregard.

Former Professor Dies In Australia

TORONTO (CP)—Word was received here Wednesday of the death in Australia Tuesday of William Kirby Rolph, 36, former professor of history at the University of Western Ontario.

He had also been on the staffs of the University of Saskatchewan, New York University and Tulane University.

He was engaged in research work for the Australian Country party during his tenure of a three-year fellowship at the national University in Canberra. He was granted the fellowship, which had two years more to run, on the strength of his book, "Henry Wise Wood of Alberta."

Fair Profit Down

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The Western Fair Association operator of western Ontario's biggest fall fair, has reported a profit of $62,839 for the year, compared with a profit of $68,396 last year. Attendance at this year's fair in September—341,161—was the lowest since 1950. Attendance last year was a record 387,063.

Scholarships Increased

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Research Council has announced a $200 increase in the value of scholarships awarded to university graduates in science and engineering. Bursaries have been increased to $800, studentships to $1,100 and fellowships to $1,500. Students receiving the scholarships also are eligible for a supplementary award of $800 for summer studies. The council also announced that the value of special scholarships has been increased to $1,900 from $1,700.

INDICTED—Patrolman Elmer Dolan (above) has been indicted by a federal grand jury at Kansas City, Mo., on perjury charges in connection with the disappearance of over half of the Greenlease ransom money. Five other indictments were returned but they were kept secret on orders of Judge J. Duncan.

THE TRIPLE CURIOSITY of these 11-month identical triplets just couldn't be put off until Christmas. That's why they're photographed here making prett yribbons and colored paper fly under the tree in their home. The tots are Pamela, Patricia and Priscilla, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harris of San Diego, California.

Union Calls Meetings To End Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), armed with a basis for settlement of the 1,500-man strike at the big Hollinger mine, late Wednesday called for meetings aimed at ending strikes at other mines in the northern Ontario gold fields.

The union headquarters here wired the managements of seven mines in the Timmins area asking for the meetings "in view of the Hollinger settlement."

The agreement at Hollinger, largest of the Timmins district mines and Canada's biggest gold producer, was reached by the company and union at Toronto in a conference sponsored by Labor Minister Daley. It has yet to be approved by the mine's 1,500 workers in a vote to be taken at Timmins Sunday.

OTHER MINES

The other seven mines at which the union now seeks settlement talks employ about 3,500 men. They are Preston East Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Broulan Reef, Aunor, Hallnor, Coniaurum and Delnite.

Settlement was reached at Hollinger about three months after workers went on strike there, but employees at some of the other mines have been on strike much longer. The wave of strikes began July 11 at Broulan Reef and workers at Preston East Dome and Hallnor went out soon afterward.

Union demands at the eight Ontario mines and mines in northwestern Quebec where another 2,000 USW members are on strike, are essentially the same—higher wages and the checkoff.

In the glowing spirit of Christmas we take leasure of extending holiday greetings to our old and new friends.

Council Orders Survey Made Of City's Ambulance Service

City council has ordered a survey of the city's available ambulance service and the possible need for increased facilities and equipment.

Some months ago, council approached the board of governors of Civic Hospital with the tentative suggestion that they consider setting up an ambulance service of their own but the board stated they were not prepared to undertake the project.

Council subsequently appointed a special committee to study the problem. Chairman Ald. H. T. Rehill brought their report to Tuesday's council meeting, when it was endorsed. The committee recommended that the city clerk be authorized to make enquiries to establish the quality and completeness of the city's present ambulance service. All information regarding ambulance service is to be presented to the 1954 council for consideration and action.

The clerk has been instructed to write the Peterborough county medical association and the medical staffs of St. Joseph's and Civic Hospitals for their opinions as to whether the present service meets the current needs of the city.

Plan Edmonton Will Be Thoroughly Functional City

EDMONTON (CP) — A general town planning program for Edmonton, Canada's fastest-growing major city, will be ready in a year for study by city council.

Noel Dant, a former architect with experience in many parts of the world, has taken over as town planner for a "thoroughly functional" city of 350,000.

Right now the city proper has a population of approximately 180,000, double what it was 10 years ago, and greater Edmonton including suburban areas has a population of approximately 225,000.

Mr. Dant, a native of London, England, was employed after council decided to embark on a system of full comprehensive planning for the whole urban area as a unit.

When the general development plan is approved, Mr. Dant said, a new zoning bylaw will be drawn up in keeping with requirements of the general plan.

Some of the problems faced in the plan which will attempt to lay down sound general principles for Edmonton's growth are highways, downtown congestion, lack of parking, housing and such things as the size of lots.

Mr. Dant, who helped plan some of the stations in Toronto's subway system and who has town-planning experience in Chicago, Boston, Cambridge, Mass., and Singapore, says Edmonton's services and utilities were set up for a city of 90,000.

"We know now that our city has already doubled this original population, and, in all likelihood," said Mr. Dant, "will more than triple this original figure, within the nex t 10 years, if the current growth trend shows no ign of abating."

Mr. Dant said Edmonton's road system is outmoded and outdated and what is needed is a decentralized system of super highways. This means at least four more four-lane bridges and many miles of new four-lane arteries.

Mr. Dant said a city housing authority is needed. He also urged, in spite of recent changes, better legislation regarding housing finance at both "federal and particularly provincial levels." There is still need of provision for the lowest income bracket, he said.

Crime Takes Biggest Slump Of Any Activities In Strikebound Mine Area

By JOHN LeBLANC

TIMMINS (CP) — Crime has taken about the biggest slump of any of the customary activities in this strikebound mining area.

Some violence tied directly to strike activities spotted the early stages of the 5½-month series of walkouts, but the general run of lawbreaking is in a nose-dive.

"Crime is off about 50 per cent," said Police Chief Gordon Beacock as he relaxed with his 28-man town force that patrols this largest of the strike communities.

"The outstanding feature," he added, "is that there has been no serious crime at all. We haven't had a holdup since the strike started, and for serious crime this must be the best period in the last 10 years."

He's not too surprised, he said, because this is generally a peaceable district at any time.

NOT SO TOUGH

"Like a lot of people from further south," the Toronto-born chief said, "I used to think this was a rough-and-tough brawling community. It's an idea many people have about northern gold camps. Just the opposite is true."

A rundown of police statistics for a typical pre-strike month reinforces the chief's statement. Three court appearances for assault, two theft and one shop-breaking were among the items on the book.

Just 22 drunks answered the morning call during the month, though Timmins has 28 taverns for a population of 26,000.

"For the situation during the strike," the chief said, "we have to give considerable credit to the union."

The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), which has 7,200 men on strike in this Porcupine district and in Quebec's nearby Rouyn-Noranda area, has organized its own police force to keep law and order among its members.

"SPECIAL DETAIL"

A 250-man "special detail" is equipped with identifying armbands by the municipal police. Its members are not sworn in as officers, but the regular police co-operate closely with them.

The union police have a man at dances and at every tavern nightly —the union gives him an allowance for a few 10-cent beers. A striker misbehaving or sinking too much money in beer is advised to leave.

If the regular police get a call on minor ruckuses involving union members, they turn the case over to the union police. It has worked out well, says Chief Beacock.

TAX ARREARS LOW

Other town officials say municipal activities have not been hit too hard by the strikes, though these have dried up most of the money normally in circulation.

Mayor J. Wilfred Spooner of Timmins said tax arrears are about $50,000 higher than usual for this season but the municipality, which spends $1,200,000 a year, is in good shape financially with a cash reserve of $107,000 in the bank.

From the civic viewpoint, the most serious aspect of the strike has been that the town has had to postpone the start of a $400,000 home for the aged.

The mayor said the town's small welfare department has had few calls for financial help since the strike outbreak.

"We have been called on by some non-strikers, bush workers and so forth, but the amount involved was negligible," he said. "We have really been surprised at the way things have held up."

On the other side of the border in Quebec, Mayor Maurice Caouette had the same expression of "surprise."

"Tax collections have not been too bad," he said, "and our total arrears are only $75,000."

Asphyxiated In Car

TORONTO (CP)—A dispute with his wife ended with Frank Green, 53, sleeping in his car Tuesday night. In the morning, he was found dead in the vehicle parked in the family garage. Police said he was accidentally asphyxiated when a garage door blew shut during the night.

Convert Freighter

TORONTO (CP)—The SS Assiniboia, flagship of the Canadian Pacific Great Lakes Steamships, is undergoing a $285,000 conversion job at Midland shipyards, it was announced by a company official here. The ship's four coal-stoked boilers are being replaced by two oil-fired units. The work is expected to be completed by April when the Assiniboia will be ready for the run between Port McNicoll and Fort William.

THE BIG BUNDLE for a little boy seems of less interest to Glenn Harman at the immediate moment of contact than having an intense look at Santa Claus. There were no confidences exchanged on this occasion but some sort of understanding was set up between them, just the same.

Kissing Under Mistletoe Approved By Doctors

MONTREAL (CP) — Although kissing under the mistletoe may have its health hazards, a Quebec medical journal sees no reason why the custom should be discontinued.

In its December issue, the Canadian Doctor states there are many more hazards in kissing beneath the venerable twig than many an unwary female might think.

Even the dutiful peck on the cheek of a spinster could cause a type of skin disease. In scientific terms the journal states:

"It can lead to dermatitis or furuncles in this region (the cheek)."

The "passionate, full-blooded kiss which is applied to the lips" can result in certain infections in the throat from passing of germs from one party to the other.

The custom of hanging mistletoe at a strategic point "with the object of trapping for osculatory salutation" unwary (and at times not so unwary females) is not as common in Canada as it is in Europe, says the journal. A possible reason was a shortage of women in this country.

In the old world mistletoe has been prized for healing powers, "for epilepsy, ulcers and barrenness in women and cattle. . . Swiss people regarded it as a cure-all, especially for children . . . and in other parts of the world mistletoe was recommended as a useful fire extinguisher, a master key to open all locks and a lightning conductor."

Getting back to the dangers of kissing, the journal states:

"The risks of kissing, though serious, can be exaggerated. Many bacteria and viruses expelled by air, even in ordinary speech have considerable powers of survival and one need only be talked at, not kissed to acquire them."

And tradition is saved with the remark:

"It is, of course, worse to be sneezed at or coughed at than to be kissed."

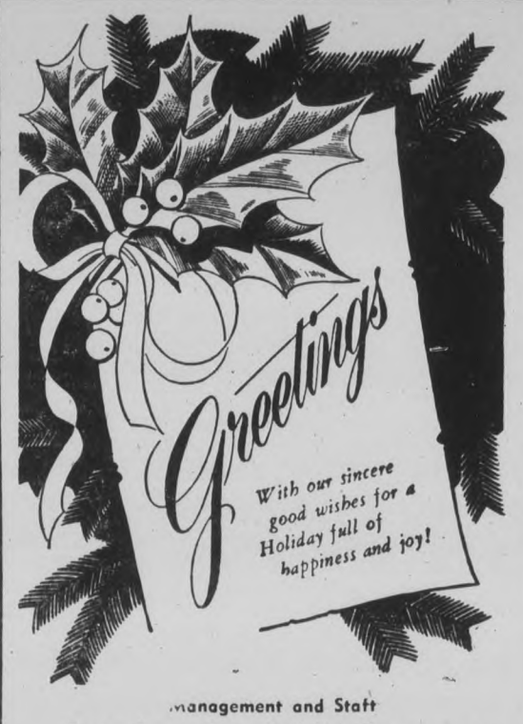
Compensation To Be Discussed

SARNIA (CP) — City council Wednesday night agreed on a joint meeting with the tornado relief fund committee to decide whether or not to pay compensation for uninsured automobiles and businesses damaged in a tornado that struck the city last May.

Council objected to a committee decision to pay 75 per cent of approved claims for these damages. Council members said those who contributed to the fund did so to help needy individuals, not businesses.



The Dec. 14 meeting of council ordered the city treasurer to withhold further fund payments. The fund committee replied that its decision would stand unless council had "some new information" to change the situation.

The committee reported that almost $39,000 was spent to pay approved claims for home damage and personal injury and more than $36,000 is left in the fund.

Irene LaPointe Is Chosen Miss Holly, At Holly Hop

A "Miss Holly" was picked from the 115 very lovely young Peterborough girls attending the YWCA Friday Night Supper Club's annual Holly Hop in the Y gym last evening.

Miss Irene LaPointe was the selection committee's heartily approved choice for the honor. She was crowned with holly by Mayor Hugh Waddell and presented with a bouquet of roses by Mrs. Waddell. The Mayor then claimed Miss Holly as his partner for a dance and Mrs. Waddell danced with her escort, Don Boorman.

First queen of the Holly Hop is a striking brunette who radiates a lively personality in her smiles. She wore a strapless ballerina gown of white net, complemented with a rhinestone necklace and drop earrings. (In choosing the queen it was her general appearance, her dress, her deportment and signs of pleasing personality that were considered.)

Club president Miss Millie Hayward, a lovely blonde girl who wore a black velvet gown with metallic front panel, called upon the Mayor to tell Miss Holly's name. Indicating the difficulty the committee had experienced in choosing one girl, Mr. Waddell gave the announcement step after step till it was a girl "in a white dress," then finally the climax, and Miss LaPointe was brought to the platform with fanfare and applause.

Miss Hayward made a speech of welcome on behalf of her fellow club members, and was also in the receiving line, assisted by her escort Dave Fanning, Mr. and Mrs. Waddell, and Miss Orra Henan, the club advisor.

Chaperones for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rehill, both ladies being members of the Y Board of Directors.

Decorations were highlighted by murals sketched in white on red depicting in caricature activities engaged in, from can-can dancing to tobogganning, and bright metallic colored gyros hanging from the balcony all around the dance floor. Lighted Christmas trees, candy canes and wreaths added to the effect.

Balloons were kept suspended overhead until the multiplication dance started by the Queen and the Mayor, and then they were dropped on the crowd. Clusters of balloons were also decorating the walls and were in the lounge where punch was served and in the lunch room and green room.

Chairman of the decorating committee was Carol Wood, with Jane Buckland, Sandra Edkins, Betty Macdonald, Margaret Munro, Marie Robinson, Wynne Whyte and Pam Neal assisting. Pair Getting Along Well Until Marriage Discussed

DEAR MISS DIX: I was going with a man of 28 for ten months (I am 22) until a few weeks ago. Coming home from a friend's house one evening, we were escorting another girl home when she asked, "When are you two getting married?" Up to that point nothing had ever been said between us about marriage, but when we arrived home that night, I foolishly brought up the subject. My friend said he realized he hadn't been fair in taking up so much of my time, and perhaps we had better stop seeing each other. I did not want to hear that, and I'm terribly upset over it. Since we have a group of mutual friends, our paths will undoubtedly cross, but do you think I'll ever get him back as a date?

Marjorie

CARELESS QUESTIONS

ANSWER: It's unfortunate that a series of careless remarks could lose you a friend, but there are many men who prefer to make their own decision concerning matrimony. When, on the same evening, your young man was given two leads into the subject, I guess he thought it was just too much. Obviously, for one reason or another, he's not ready to trek to the altar. Perhaps he's not as settled in his career as he wants to be before acquiring a wife, or he has family obligations, or he's just a man who wants to be sure before he plunges. Naturally, girls like to know where they stand with young men, but the very worst way to find out is to appear too eager.

The next move had better be left up to the man. Don't avoid him, but don't make too much of a point about being where you're likely to meet him. Have your meetings appear casual. He'll probably come back, but it may mean a long wait until he proposes, so why not go out with other men in the meantime?

DEAR MISS DIX: I share an apartment with another girl. Recently she had relatives in to dinner, and also invited a young man she has dated several times. About 10 o'clock the relatives left, but the young man stayed. He seemed quite irritated because I stayed in the room with them. My friend, however, didn't object because she thinks he's inclined to be "wolfish." Since we usually don't retire until midnight, I see no reason why I should have left my own living room.

D. R.

ANSWER: When two girls share an apartment, there should be a definite agreement between them covering situations such as this. In this instance, your actions coincided with your roommate's wishes, though they weren't expressed, but this might not be the case at other times. In the future, when either one of you is entertaining, settle delicate points before the guests arrive.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a young woman of high ideals and have never lacked friends of either sex. I have been very shocked to discover that about half the men I meet at parties, dances, etc., are married. That probably means that, unknowingly, I have been out with married men. How can one tell a man's status?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The best way is to know something of the man's background through mutual friends. If you meet men at public dances, and are not introduced to them, you take chances.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Never Underestimate Power Of A Mother

Nobody's going to argue with me when I claim I've done my duty by food for Christmas.

This column has been so stuffed with rich food it nearly burst its seams, and now I'm going to wax philosophical to see if I can shrink it back to its proper proportions.

I'm glad Christmas comes but once a year for many reasons. The minor ones being that physically and financially I couldn't stand the strain oftener.

But the major reason is because I love Christmas so much I love to have time to savor it and meditate over its true significance.

The mother in every household has a priceless opportunity to point up and indeed personify the essential unselfishness of the Christmas anniversary.

But do we?

Most mothers do I think, but because they do not care to appear over-pious or over-righteous they neglect to remind their young ones — when those young ones are torn with curiosity about what they are going to receive—that the reason gifts are given at all is because they are a reminder of what Jesus gave for us.

In view of the bare-faced commercial attitude of merchants regarding the volume of Christmas business it is difficult to even keep reminding oneself that "Christmas business" is only a giant parasite that prospers because Christ was born on December Twenty-fifth and died that we might have eternal life.

Ludicrious isn't it?

It is in your power to instil into the heads and hearts of your immediate family a dramatic reminder of the reason we celebrate this anniversary.

Just as it is an accepted and devout custom to say Grace before meals, so too on Christmas morning before or after or in the midst of opening gifts annually you could read the Christmas story from the Bible.

In one family that I know intimately this was done by a different child each year (as long as the children lasted—in this family there were only two, and a great fuss was made by the child whose duty it was in the current year. He or she had to practise reading aloud on Christmas eve, to be letter perfect. While the solemnity of the occasion often broke down — for instance when a certain young miss was reading the 21st verse of Matthew First she said "for he shall save his people from their sinks"— all in all it was a delightful ritual and you may be sure those children know as well as they know their own names, exactly where in the Bible that story is.

To put on the cloak of a goody-goody would irk me and you know that well, for there is jolly fun to be had even on the most worshipful occasions.

(I am reminded of a group of ministers and lay people of whom I was one, who were discussing a Ladies' Aid cookbook which contained a full-page advertisement by an undertaker. I asked what the point of the ad. was. Did it say "Eat this, then call me?" One of the most dignified ministers there happened to be sipping his coffee as I said this, and the resultant explosion of laughter was nearly disastrous).

Have fun. Have uproarious fun but remember...

... with the house shining clean, with the gifts all wrapped, with the food prepared, with your loved ones around you, take time for your soul to catch up with your body and remember why you are indeed having a Merry Christmas, then bust out all over with joy.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Used Kettles At Christmas 60 Years Ago

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Inspiration for a plan that helps many needy persons at Christmas came from a cauldron swinging on a crane near the San Francisco docks, years ago.

During the winter of 1894, Capt. Joseph McFee of the Salvation Army was a worried man. He ran a soup kitchen in the San Francisco dock area and the stevedores and longshoremen were on strike. McFee was having trouble keeping the pot boiling for the hungry families.

While walking to his kitchen one morning, a huge cauldron on a crane drew his eye. It reminded him of his large soup kettles and from that moment the plan began to take shape. Capt. McFee slung one of his kettles on a tripod and placed it at the foot of market street. The response was wonderful and the idea spread.

This Christmas the Salvation Army had about 350 of the familiar tripods placed in cities and towns across Canada and many more in the United States.

The kettles, or pails, once so familiar, are gradually being replaced by a plastic sphere hung from a metal pole.

GENEROUS GIFTS

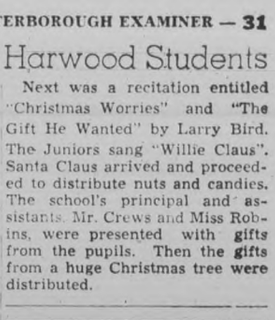
For some years an unknown donor used to put a $20 bill into each of the 15 or 20 kettles in Toronto. The procedure followed such a regular pattern the Salvation Army was sure it was the same person each time.

The Salvation Army rarely, if ever, has trouble with thefts from the kettles. Some people pop notes into them which say such things as "Keep up the good work," or "God bless you."



One Salvation Army officer who has done his share of manning the kettles, says, "It's a cheerful duty and gives you a real Christmassy feeling."

DID YOU KNOW? Freshen wilted vegetables by soaking them in a basin of cold water which contains a tablespoonful of vinegar or the juice of a lemon.

The twinkle of tree ornaments, the glow of warm hearths and the bright sparkle of holiday greenery—all reflect our gay, friendly wishes for your Happy Holiday!

6—In Memoriam

COOKE—In memory of F. Gordon Cooke, who died one year ago Christmas morning, December 25th, 1952.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his wife, Olive, and mother and dad.

DWYER—Treasured memories of my dear dad, and granddad, Robert James Dwyer, who passed away Christmas Eve, 1952.
Always so good, unselfish and kind,
None on this earth, your equal we'll find,
Honorable and true in all your ways,
Loving and faithful to the end of your days.
Honest and liberal, very upright
Just in your judgement, always right;
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew,
One in a million, dear dad that was you.
If I could talk with dad today
Laugh with him in the same old way,
Just to hear his voice and see his smile,
Life again to me would be worth while.
—Lovingly remembered by Beatrice, Bill, Rose Marie and Joe.

DWYER—In memory of Robert James Dwyer who died December 24, 1952.
You're not forgotten father, dear,
Nor ever shall you be;
As long as life and memory last
I shall remember thee.
—Ever remembered by his daughter Gladys and family.

DWYER—In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Robert James Dwyer, who passed away one year ago today, December 24, 1952.
Since you've gone first and I remain
to walk the road alone,
I live in memory's garden, dear, with happy days we've known:
I hear your voice, I see your smile
though blindly I may grope,
The memories of your helping hand still buoy me on with hope.
We've known so much of happiness,
We had our cup of joy;
And memory is one gift of God
That death cannot destroy.
Since you've gone first and I remain,
One thing I would have you do:
Walk slowly down that long, long path,
For I will follow you.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife Lillian, daughter Myrtle and grandson Mervyn.

DWYER—Treasured memories of my dear Dad and Granddad, Robert James Dwyer, who passed away Christmas Eve, 1952.
His charming ways and smiling face
Are a pleasure to recall
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
—Lovingly remembered always by Grace, Dave, June and Delores.

DRURY—In loving memory of mother, Winifred Jane, who passed away, December 24, 1952; and Dad, Robert William, October 1, 1933.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they left behind.
—Remembered by son George, daughter-in-law Lillian and Family.

HASTINGS PUBLIC SCHOOL

HASTINGS (ENS)—The Home and School Association held their Christmas meeting with a large gathering present to enjoy the concert by the children.

Inquiries as to the purchase of black-out curtains had been made but so far only one reply had been received. President Mrs. S. Perchaluk is to appoint a committee of three to be responsible for the curtains.

Thanks was voiced to Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hoad for the electric tea kettle they donated. The lot at the back of the school is to be levelled, for the children to play there.

Theme of the program arranged by Mrs. C. M. Baker was "The Church Home and School." The Rev. N. Cole spoke for the church. He mentioned the part the church played in the lives of both ourselves and the children. Mrs. Baker spoke for the Home and School on the responsibility of the home.

The program opened with three songs by the senior room. Miss Stapley accompanied the children's chorus. Bob Jones, Peter Crate, Paul Humpheries, Brenda Thompson, Ella Radford, Lorraine Whitred, Charlotte Woodcock, Andrus and Elaine Skinkle, Nancy Wellman, Shirley Sherwin, Ruth Baker, June Clark, Grades 1 and 2, sang "Upon the Rooftops" and "Frosty the Snowman."

Moderator Gives Yule Message

TORONTO—The Right Rev. A. A. Scott, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, said today "only by putting Christ into every day of the year can we be sure that he is not left out of Christmas."

Dr. Scott said in a Christmas message:

"Once more at the Christmas season we hear the echoes of the angels' song, dimmed perhaps by the commercialism and secularism with which this holy festival of the Christian Church has been overgrown.

"There are, however, in our world many men and women who, in spite of the cynicism which has been ground into them by their contact with the hard facts of life, are at heart people of goodwill.

"May Christmas of this year be to all a real Christ mass."

Italian Island Of Sardinia Is Famous For Its Bandits

By JOHN CAIRNCROSS

ROME (OFNS) — Like its French neighbour, Corsica, the Italian island of Sardinia is notorious for its bandits and its vendettas. Most of the inland areas are wild, sparsely populated and desperately poor. Whole parishes have never seen a car and it is possible to drive from Nuoro—it has only 15,000 inhabitants but is the main town apart from the coastal cities—down to the approaches of the capital, Cagliari, without passing any traffic except the regular bus service. The buses always carry an armed guard. So, on this route, do the trains. If you are wise, therefore, you will not travel under your own steam.

The road is particularly dangerous just south of Nuoro, at a place called Orgosolo. In some ways the villagers there are no different from the other Sardinians. They have the same round, full faces and liquid brown eyes; the men wear the green or brown velvet suits and jackboots which have replaced the picturesque combination of black beret, white tunic, breeches and black leggings; and the women, in their long black dresses, may be seen moving gracefully along each with a pitcher of water on her head.

PREHISTORIC CUSTOMS

But there are differences. The old, almost prehistoric customs have lingered here far longer than elsewhere. The sport of killing a cock, buried up to its neck in sand, at one blow, for example, or the lament of the widow at her dead husband's grave, when she urges the relatives to avenge him, or denounces the spy who betrayed him. And this is not just a quaint medieval survival. Two years ago a list of thirty-five "spies and traitors" was nailed to the door of one of Orgosolo's churches (there are eleven to a population of 4,800.) Few of the thirty-five are alive today.

It is only one step down from vendetta to banditry. Sometimes it is not even that. The wild country above Orgosolo is inhabited almost entirely by nomadic shepherds. They are desperately poor, their daily outgoing being one or two shillings a day. They are, as often as not dressed in sheepskins. They are pale, savage and dirty, and they are individualists. When they come down from the hills at the onset of winter, the crime rate rises sharply. And only about one-third of the misdeeds actually committed are reported to the police.

It was near Orgosolo that the road contractor, Davide Capra, was found dead on November 26 with a bullet hole behind his right ear. That is the trade-mark of the local bandits. In other places it is decapitation or lapidation.

He was kidnapped on November 6, on the main highway near his road building depot. At first the bandits tried to establish direct contact with Signora Capra, and put his ransome at £3,000. She tried to get the price down. Then, as the drive to track down the criminals gathered weight, the negotiations were handed over to go-betweens. The sum could not be paid.

An intensive search began, with two thousand police and armed guards covering every inch of ground in the area of the crime. But it was only on November 26 that a patrol came on two of the gang. One was shot down. The other escaped into the woods.

FATHER A SENATOR

The dead bandit was only twenty-four. (It is known that the other members were young). He was no impoverished shepherd, but came of a well-to-do family. His uncle was a senator. But his father, and his grandfather before him, had fallen under the bullets of the police, and his cousin is Tandeddu, bandit number one of Sardinia. It is believed that the boy was sent to persuade his cousin to give himself up, and that it was the impressionable youngster who was converted to the more exciting profession of robbery. Outwardly, however, he continued to lead a blameless life. But he was known to be violent, and was suspected of having hanged a fourteen-year-old boy.

Near his corpse was found a hut so skilfully camouflaged that that very morning a police patrol had breakfasted only thirty yards away. In the hut was the body of the missing contractor, murdered, presumably because the bandits thought his family had betrayed them to the police. The case has been front-page news in the Italian press. Some papers demand full-scale police action; others stress the fact that the present gangsters are well-to-do, and suggest that the poverty of the island has nothing to do with the trouble. But, clearly, it has. Neglect, injustice and backwardness have created a climate in which the law is thought of only in terms of the tax-gatherer and the policeman. Poverty has led to a tradition of honorable stealing. The feudal system, with its emphasis on honor and individual vengeance, has kept alive an atmosphere of violence. And modern education is unable to hit back. Only thirty-five per cent. of the boys in Sardinia go to school, and of these fifteen per cent. have the eye disease trachoma.

The Italian government is aware of the complexity of the problem. A scheme worked out three years ago provides for the splitting up of land into holdings, the creation of villages to bind the nomad shepherd to the land, and the building up of a mixed farming and pastoral economy to ensure a better standard of living. These measures and the construction of new roads and clearing of the thick undergrowth, will not only make it easier for the police to track down the gangsters. It is hoped that ultimately they will do something to break down the tenacious hostility to the law, the feeling that it is dishonorable to "talk" (as well as being dangerous) and that, as a local woodcutter put it, "the bandits have their destiny just as we have ours."

In Orgosolo itself, relatively simple measures like the opening of a cinema and a sports ground may help. Although no one imagines that an age old condition can be abolished overnight.

Cody With Wood, Canvas Pioneered British Flying

By O. M. GREEN

LONDON—OFNS—It is impossible to look at pictures of the crazy flying machines of 50 years ago — seemingly no more than sheets of canvas and wires—without being amazed at the daring of the pioneers who conquered the air. Icarus at least had the sea to fall into when the sun melted the wax of his wings. For this century's first aviators there was only the ground to hit; and they hit is again and again without discouragement.

Of these pioneers, none was more brave and resourceful than Colonel S. F. Cody (he was not really a colonel, but King George V called him that, and the title stuck) whose extraordinary life and adventures are told in "Pioneers of the Air" by G. A. Broomfield, who almost from boyhood was closely associated with Cody and his family.

Cody was the son of an Irishman, born in 1861 in Texas, where he fought Red Indians, hunted buffaloes and acquired great skill as horseman and shot. He joined a Wild West show in 1888, but in the nineties came to England — where he stayed, and was naturalised in 1909—and went about giving exhibitions of horsemanship and shooting.

KITE FIRST

Cody's first attempt on the air was by means of man-lifting kite. He tested the pull of the air successfully by crossing the English Channel in a canoe drawn by a kite (Benjamin Franklin had done the same thing a century before, floating on his back in a pond). But Cody's first flight with a kite was nearly his last; swept by a sudden blast, the kite crashed in trees and Cody was left hanging in the branches.

Later he sent up a group of kites to carry a cable, to which the man-lifting kite was attached by a pulley. This worked perfectly, and in 1901 Cody patented his kite.

Soon he was giving demonstrations to the Royal Engineers. Even a fifty mile per hour wind did not disturb the kites; and one of Cody's pupils was drawn up to a height of over six thousand feet and stayed there for an hour. In 1906 the British Government appointed Cody Chief Kiting Instructor to the Army.

Cody also demonstrated to the Navy. Once a cruiser took him in tow, but unwittingly made a turn to starboard which put Cody's kites on a following instead of a head-on wind, whereupon kites and Cody fell into the sea.

As early as 1903, Cody had written in Pearson's Magazine that he had invented a machine which he was certain would fly. In 1907 he began to build one, with $140 granted by the Government and an engine borrowed from a dismantled airship. His first trial took place in May 1908, when he was unquestionably airborne for a distance of about 50 feet. But by October that year Cody had progressed so far that he made a flight of 4967 yards at a height of between 50 and 60 feet—and then came to grief among some trees.

POOR ENGINES

From this point the book is a record of Cody's continual improvements in aeroplane design. The bugbear of those days was that the engines were too heavy and unreliable, and prone to heat up. Yet by 1909, Cody took up his first passenger, Colonel J. E. Capper, for a flight of one and a half miles; after which dauntless Mrs. Cody flew with her husband—the first woman in England to fly.

Cody worked entirely single-handed and built his own machines himself, with no wealthy corporation, and certainly no Government, behind him. He had many accidents—once he hit a cow on landing—but nothing affected his nerve. His greatest triumph was to win the War Office military trials in July, 1912, against 32 of the best aviators in Europe. He took first prize of £4,000. But only a year later came the end.

On August 7, 1913, Cody was testing a new biplane, of which he was particularly proud, to take part in the round-Britain race for water-planes promoted by the late Lord Northcliffe. The plane, with Cody and a passenger, was flying beautifully when suddenly its movements became erratic. It broke in pieces, and Cody and passenger fell to their deaths. What caused the breakup was never decided.

WALTER DAINARD

Peterborough boys will be represented again this year in the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament by Walter Dainard, of 492 Bolivar St. He first represented the city last year at the sessions held in the Ontario Ladies' College in Whitby.

Returned by acclamation this year, Mr. Dainard, a PCVS student, will leave Peterborough Christmas Day for parliament which will be held this year in the University of Western Ontario, London.

A member of George St. United Church, Mr. Dainard has been interested in boys' work within the church and the Peterborough Boys' Work Board. In the 1953 finance campaign he was top salesman for bonds in the province, selling $450 worth.

The Older Boys' Parliament is for boys between the ages of 16 and 21 years. Each district, just as in the provincial legislature, sends a representative, therefore totalling 95.

The aims of the boys' parliament are to help boys lead a Christian life, to train boys in the method and procedure of parliament and to help them express themselves better as public speakers.

Nine Perish In Two Fires

ELLINGTON, Mo. (AP)—Flames swept through two frame farm houses in southeast Missouri early today, killing nine members of the two families. Eight victims of the Christmas Eve tragedies were children. Five other persons were injured.

The fires, one near Ellington about 6 a. m. and the other some 60 miles to the southeast near Poplar Bluff four hours earlier, came on the coldest day of the year for this section of Missouri. The temperature was slightly above zero.

Both were attributed by survivors to overheated wood stoves.

Six of the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Esteep died in the fire near Ellington. The parents were seriously burned.

In the blaze nine miles east of Poplar Bluff, Mark Rogers, 34, and two of his three children perished. Three other persons were injured.

Second Twin Dies In Northern Ceylon

COLOMBO (AP)—The second of Siamese twin girls born to a 27-year-old peasant woman in northwestern Ceylon two days ago, died Wednesday night.

The first died earlier in the day. The second girl's death occurred while doctors were preparing to separate her from her head-joined dead twin.

All Mail Out

written in a book as a temporary record, and with that information to fall back on, we should finally deliver practically every piece of mail that came to the office," Mr. Stuart said.

ALL TAKES TIME

"But we could not take time these last few days to dig up the present location of those people. Another source of help is the memory and recognition of carriers, identifying names of people who have moved from one residence to another. But those were the exceptions to the postal service working under the pressure of the Christmas volume. We have had fine help from our temporary helpers. They have done a real good job."

Mr. Stuart expressed an opinion, mostly from observation, that the number of letters this season might not exceed the total of a year ago.

"That was a big Christmas mail and we still remember it," he remarked.

So the thousands of greetings among friends, with wishes for a merry and happy Christmas, and a prosperous New Year, are brightening probably every last home in the city, and the others throughout the county. They are not casually placed about living rooms, some them strung along lines of colored lights. And when the calendar brings the new year and its first days, all this beauty, especially of sentiment, becomes a domestic problem of loath disposal. Meanwhile the Canadian post office has performed its part in the traditional spirit of the Christmastide of this country and its people.

Unions Gained In Wages As Labor's Year Reviewed

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian labor has come through a good year, on the whole.

It held the line, and even gained a bit, on the ratio between wages and living costs. It obtained some favorable legislation. It took a tentative step in the direction of unification of the country's labor organizations.

The first break in these strikes came in late December when Hollinger Consolidated gold mines Limited and the united steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) came to terms, still to be ratified by the union membership. It was hoped the agreement could set a pattern for settling the other mines strikes.

On the other hand, the labor outlook was blotched by spotty unemployment as the year-end came up. And 1953's biggest strike—in the gold and metal mines of northern Ontario and Quebec—was still running.

SMALLER INCREASES

In wages, unions generally gained over the year, though the advances were smaller than in the last few years. The levelling-off of prices hardened employer resistance to wage demands. It also made unions more inclined to settle for lesser pay increases than in other post-war years.

"The cost of living is not moving away from the earnings now, and 'real' wages are better," a union official said.

In employment, the country had the anomaly of more people at work than ever, but also more people out of work than for many years, in the late weeks of 1953.

This came about from such factors as the highest labor force on record—more than 5,000,000—and spotty unemployment in several industries. There have been layoffs on the railways and in the textile, coal-mining, aircraft and rubber industries.

STEPS TO UNITY

On the labor unity front, December developments pulled Canada's two chief central bodies more closely together, though any solid amalgamation appeared still in the distant future.

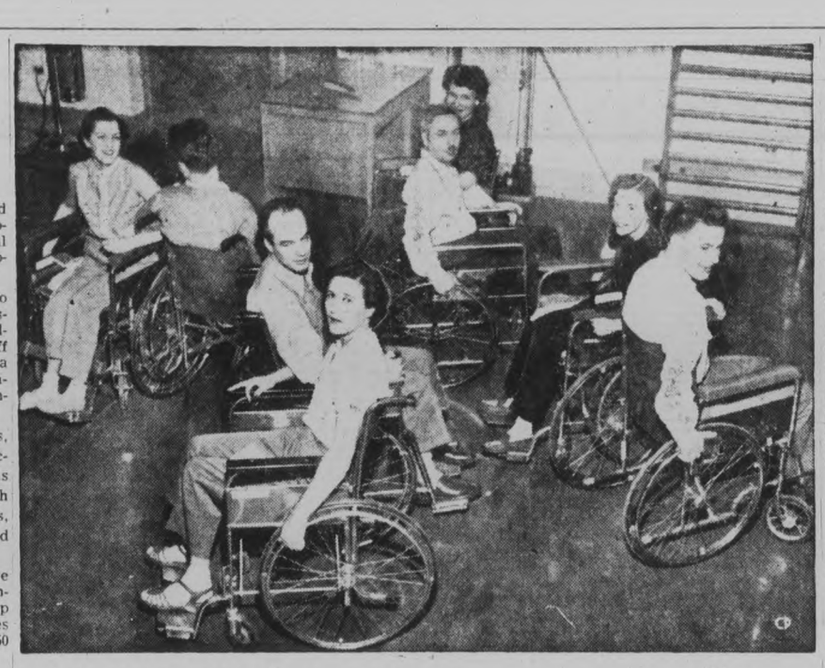
The moves were the establishment—by the 580,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the 375,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor—of committees to explore means of cooperation.

However, these were tentative steps. Similar action was shipwrecked two years ago. And still on the outside were the other central labor groups—the 100,000-member Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor and the railway running trades, which have about 40,000 members.

LEGISLATIVE ADVANCES

In the legislative field, the two major actions were taken by the federal Parliament. These were:

1. Extending unemployment insurance benefits to those who become sick or injured after being put out of work for other reasons.



2. A bill that makes it a criminal offence to discriminate in the employment of anyone on the ground of race, color or religion. This applies to industries under federal jurisdiction such as railways, shipping and communications.

Labor lost out—at least up to the year-end—on such other legislative proposals as having the federal Parliament put the checkoff of union dues into effect on a mandatory basis—as far as employers are concerned—in the industries under its control.

It was a heavy year for strikes, though time lost did not hit records. At times, there were as many as 20,000 on strike, in such industries as the northern mines, British Columbia lumber, and some construction work.

As Christmas neared, there were still 7,000 men on strike in northern Ontario's Porcupine gold camp and the gold and base metal mines across the Quebec border about 150 miles away.

By the end of November, these strikes had caused a loss of 464,000 man days. However, this was well below the 1,000,000-man-days figure for the general rail strike of 1950, the biggest in recent years.

Polio Victims Seek To Cheer Others Stricken With Disease

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Merry Menders, polio victims on the road back to health, roll through hospital corridors in their wheel chairs with gifts of courage. As they give, they receive.

The Merry Menders Club was started by polio patients convalescing at Princess Elizabeth Hospital here. Their aim is to help other polio victims, as well as themselves.

Princess Elizabeth patients who have graduated to wheel chairs pay visits to the more than 50 iron-lung cases at King George Hospital. They read to them, gossip with them and write letters for them.

TWO-WAY DEAL

The visits pay off in two ways. "The iron-lung patients see how much we have recovered and how we are improving," says Stu Millet, visiting committee chairman. "That gives them courage.

"We see how much worse off some polio patients are than we ourselves, and that gives us courage. It's a two-way deal."

The Merry Menders keep busy in other ways, too, and one of their interests is square-dancing.

The dancing is done sitting down and the command of "Swing your partner" is complicated by an occasional interlocking of the front wheels of the wheel chairs.

ORGANIZE RECREATION

Organization of nightly entertainment in the hospital is another Merry Mender chore. The entertainment schedule goes like this: night; Tuesday, bingo; Wednesday, quiz and games; Thursday, concert. Friday is unplanned entertainment as many patients go home for the week-end.

President of the Merry Menders is school principal Vic Dotten, who says:

"Time can hang terribly heavy in your hands in hospital. None of us are actually ill now. It's just a matter of therapy treatments and a scheduled routine.

"But there is still a lot of spare time. The club and its activities use up that extra time very nicely."

Queen Visits Survivors Train Crash

Monarch Saddened By New Zealand Christmas Disaster

AUCKLAND, N.Z. —(CP)— The Queen made a personal sympathy visit today to three of the survivors of New Zealand's Christmas Eve railway disaster.

She went to the suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Leman to talk to Mr. and Mrs. F. Fallon and their 21-year-old daughter. The Fallons, from Christchurch, were on their way to visit the Lemans for Christmas and their silver wedding anniversary when the Wellington-Auckland Express plunged into a gorge, killing at least 166 persons.

Mr. and Mrs. Fallon and their daughter were in the last car of the train to plunge into the river. This was the one which teetered on the brink of a wrecked bridge before it followed the engine and five other cars into the gorge.

The Queen spoke to the three for eight minutes.

SADDENED BY DISASTER

The monarch was deeply saddened by the disaster which came as New Zealanders prepared for the double celebration of Christmas and the visit of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

In her traditional Christmas broadcast to the Commonwealth, the Queen added these words at the end of her prepared text, and her voice wavered as she spoke:

"And now I want to say something to my people in New Zealand. Last night (Christmas Eve) will have brought tragedy into many homes and sorrow into all upon this Christmas day. I know there is no one in New Zealand and indeed throughout the Commonwealth who will not join with my husband and me in sending those who mourn a message of sympathy in their loss. I pray that they and all who have been injured may be comforted and strengthened."

EQUAL PARTNERSHIP

In her broadcast, the Queen vowed to give herself heart and soul to furthering the Commonwealth ideal—"an equal partnership of nations and races."

Referring to the oft-expressed comparison of her regime with that of Britain's first Queen Elizabeth as a golden age, she said "frankly, I do not myself feel at all like my great Tudor forebear."

The first Elizabeth "was blessed neither with husband nor children . . . ruled as a despot and was never able to leave her native shores."

"But there is at least one very significant resemblance between her age and mine. For her king-

AN EXPLOSION started a fire in the boiler room of Immaculate Conception Church about 1:30 p.m. today that billowed out heavy smoke and made it difficult for firemen to deal with. However, using oxygen masks, they managed to bring it under control within about a half hour. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Famous Architect Dies In N.Y.

Higgins, who died in New York Hospital after a brief illness, was also a prominent Roman Catholic layman.

In addition to his many beautiful buildings in Washington which followed classic Greek tradition, he displayed modern artistic feeling in such work as the interiors of the superliner United States and the America.

Among his works are the daughters of the American Revolution's Constitution Hall, the Senate office building, the American Red Cross Building, all in Washington; the University Club, Milwaukee; Union Gas and Electric Bldg., Cincinnati; and various buildings on the campuses of Yale, Syracuse and Indiana universities as well as at several military installations.

Sees Prospects Better For World Peace

NEW DELHI (AP)—Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, president of the United Nations General Assembly, said today that as the year ended she saw greater prospects for peace "than for some time past."

Speaking at a press conference, she gave as reasons for her hopes for a peaceful year:

1. A general softening attitude by both sides of the power blocs.
2. A general endeavor to stop, pause and think.
3. A general repeated and decided attempt to arrive at united decisions on the part of the world's nations.

Wavell's Son Killed By Mau Maus

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Earl Wavell, 37, only son of the late field marshal Earl Wavell, was shot and killed Christmas Eve while leading British troops and police in a 10-hour battle with Mau Mau terrorists.

Archibald John Arthur Wavell, a major in the famed Black Watch, was killed early in the engagement in the Thika area, 25 miles north of here.

An African policeman and five Mau Mau also were killed. Four terrorists were captured.

Army headquarters said Friday the battle began when a force of Black Watch troops and police, led by Wavell, chased a 60-man Mau Mau gang which had beheaded a loyal Kikuyu tribesman.

About 20 of the terrorists took refuge in a small copse, and opened fire on their attackers with a light machine-gun, rifles, pistols and shotguns.

Earl Wavell succeeded his father in 1950—three years after the title had been created. His father earned fame by holding the Axis thrust in North Africa and later as viceroy of India.

The first earl lost an eye in battle, the second an arm—fighting with the Chindits in Burma in the Second World War.

He was unmarried. There is no heir to the title.

Queen Sends Thanks

OTTAWA (CP) — The Queen has replied to the Christmas message sent her by Governor-General Vincent Massey on behalf of the Canadian people, Government House officials announced today.

The Queen said: "Please convey to the people of Canada the sincere thanks of my husband and myself for their kind and loyal message of good wishes."

Boiler Room Explosion Starts Fire in Church

A fire believed started by an explosion in the boiler room about 1:30 p.m. today endangered Immaculate Conception Church on Mark St. in Ashburnham until firemen with oxygen masks brought it under control about 2 p.m. The fire was difficult for the firemen to get at because dense smoke forced them to don their gas masks and even then it was hard for them to see.

But at 2.15 p.m., the fire broke through beneath the right hand altar. Firemen and volunteers joined desperately to remove decoration, statues and cloth.

The base of the fire was finally located, but the damage inflicted so far will probably prevent services for Sunday, and possibly much longer.

A heat pocket was finally located between the ceiling of the basement and the upper church, but before firemen could get water into the space, flames were licking around the altar base.

At press time, one hose was playing on the open flames and Number 4 pumper had joined the other trucks.

A dull explosion was heard by two men as they prayed at the crib in the church. Joseph Robicheau, 367 Roger St., an orderly in St. Joseph's Hospital, and Joseph McCarthy, 180 Dufferin, were both in the church when they heard the explosion that seemed to come from under the sanctuary in the boiler room.

FORCED BACK

They went to the door leading to the basement to investigate, but thick smoke rolled up through the door forcing them back. They ran to the rectory to report it to the Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan, who phoned the fire department.

Four fire trucks answered the call and despite the difficulty, appeared to have it under control within half an hour until it broke out again.

Smoke filled the church, but in spite of this priests managed to take out the host (material symbol of the body of Christ) from the chalice.

Reporter Sees Crash Scene

By FREDERICK NOSSAL

WAIOURU, N.Z. (AP)— When the first light of day came Christmas morning, I stood near the approaches of the wrecked Sulphur Creek bridge, scene of New Zealand's greatest rail disaster.

All around now is desolation: Black volcanic soil, torn, and twisted metal and horrible reminders of people who are dead.

In the river, parties of soldiers are diving and dredging for bodies as I write.

An almost endless stream of anxious people is arriving to see the bodies, dreading lest they recognize friends or relatives. The passengers went to their deaths when a sudden unexplained flood in the river swept a bridge away.

The flood has passed now and the river is nothing more than a sluggish, dirty, brown stream. From where I sit, 25 feet above the shallow creek, I can see only four battered carriages, through which the water now swirls gently. The fifth is a few hundred yards downstream. The sixth is five miles away.

WRECKED CARRIAGES

Just downstream from the wrecked carriages is a 16-ton bridge girder 43 feet long. On the other bank is an entire bridge pier, torn completely from its foundations and carried downstream as though it were a pebble. But this pebble weighs 80 tons.

Doctors Say "Human Tears"

Weeping Image Of Virgin Prelude To Christmas Birth

By PATRICK GROSSE

SYRACUSE, Sicily (Reuters)—A son was born on Christmas Day to a poor woman of Syracuse over whom a plaster image of the Virgin Mary is reported to have wept for four days.

The birth of the child was the latest of the extraordinary happenings which have brought hundreds of thousands of pilgrims to this dusty tumbled-down Sicilian town in the last four months.

Antonia Giusto, 26, the mother, was recovering from an epileptic fit last Aug. 29 in her room when she felt drops falling on her face.

She said later that she saw tears which come pouring down the face of the brightly painted plaster image of the Madonna, showing the head and shoulders of the Virgin with a white veil and blue mantle.

The Spracuse police force — a sergeant and four men—was helpless against the crush. Finally the parish priest was induced to come and see the image.

He fetched two doctors and a chemist. They took a sample of the Madonna's tears.

An official announcement from the Syracuse provincial laboratory said: "The liquid, containing traces of sodium chloride (salt), corresponds to the composition of human tears."

From that day, Sept. 1, the Madonna has not wept. Also from that day, Antonia's epilepitc fits have ceased.

Ten weeks later Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Palermo and chief prelate of the island, announced that a meeting of Sicily's bishops had "unanimously concluded that there can be no doubt about the reality of the weeping."

U.S. Forces To Leave Korean Front

Eisenhower Orders Big Reduction In Ground Units

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower today ordered a progressive reduction of United States ground forces in Korea and announced that two army divisions will be returned home soon "as an initial step."

"The fighting in Korea was ended by an armistice which has now been in effect five months. We do not need as much ground strength there now as when there was fighting. That is the more true because of the capabilities of the Republic of Korea forces which were substantially built up during the war.

"Also our growing national air power poses greater mobility and greater striking force than ever before.

"Accordingly I have directed that the United States ground forces in Korea be progressively reduced as circumstances warrant. As an initial step, two army divisions will soon be withdrawn and returned to the United States."

An Eisenhower aide who asked not to be named estimated there are upwards of 32,000 men in the two divisions, which were not identified.

The president stressed that while the United States is "acting in good faith to preserve the armistice and accomplish its purposes," he also emphasized that "the action being taken does not impair our readiness and capacity to react in a way which should deter aggression and, if aggression should nevertheless occur, to oppose it with even greater effect than heretofore."

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, told newspaper men Eisenhower's decision to reduce the strength of U.S. ground forces in Korea was communicated to President Rhee of that country this week.

NO INDICATION

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Nations has given no indication that it wants Canada to reduce her ground forces in Korea and Canada hasn't asked to withdraw any troops, a defence department spokesman said today.

The spokesman was commenting on an announcement by President Eisenhower that the United States will reduce U.S. ground forces in Korea progressively with an initial reduction of two army divisions.

"We put in what the UN asked and agreed to keep them there until the UN said that it could get along without them," the spokesman said.

At present Canada has about 7,000 ground troops in Korea, made up of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade and supporting troops.

Police Charge Father With Murder Of Son

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Norman Russell Young, 59, was arrested today by Ontario Provincial Police and charged with murder in the Christmas night shooting of his son, Daniel, 29.

Police said the slaying followed an argument in the elder man's three-room shack a mile west of Port Arthur.

Police said the shooting took place outside the shack and that a .22 calibre rifle was the weapon.

Four persons are held as material witnesses, provincial police reported—Thomas Kabatiy, Fred Primeau and brothers Joseph and Robert Kishigby.

The father, an unemployed laborer, was arrested at his home. He opened the door of the shack to provincial police and displayed no emotion when told that he would be held for questioning.

The charge of murder was laid in Fort William police court today at 11 a.m.

Toronto Motorists Heed Police Warnings

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto motorists heeded police warnings against drinking and driving over the Christmas holiday, traffic inspector Robert Kerr said today.

Fifteen persons were arrested on charges of driving with ability impaired between 8 a.m. Dec. 24 and 8 a.m. today compared with 26 the corresponding period in 1952

However, inspector Kerr said he was "disappointed" that there were three deaths from traffic accidents this year, compared with one last year.

Russia Rejects Date Set Talks

MOSCOW (AP)—Informed Western sources reported today that the Soviet Union has rejected the proposed Jan. 4 date for a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers in Berlin, and proposed instead Jan. 25 or later.

Western diplomatic sources said the Russians stated that there were "administrative difficulties" in the way of the Jan. 4 date proposed by the West Dec. 8.

The Soviet counter-proposal was given in notes delivered to the United States, British and French ambassadors here at noon.

The notes, reported "very brief," have not yet been officially published.

KITCHENER. (CP)—Waterloo taxi driver Glenn Gefros picked up four passengers Christmas Eve and ended up with five. The fifth was a baby born at busy King and Queen Sts., during the height of the supper-hour traffic-snarl. In the cab were the parents and two friends—a man and a woman. The woman assisted in the delivery. Mother and baby are doing well.

Mexicans Mourn 23 Killed Mass Stampede

TOLUCA, Mexico (AP) — The little mountain village of Temoaya mourned today for 23 friends and neighbors killed in a panic-stricken stampede after a Christmas Eve midnight mass in the local church. Some 200 other worshippers were injured in the rush for the doors.

The tragedy was touched off by a failure of the church's electric lights. Many of the 3,000 faithful jammed in for the mass were country people unused to electric lights.

The parish priest, Rev. Jose Cruz, said he tried vainly to quell the crowd pushing toward the churches' two doors.

STEPPED ON WIRE

"Mass was just finished," he said, "and the congregation was leaving the church. Somebody stepped on a wire laying on the floor. There was a blue flash and lights went out. They rushed for the doors.

"The loudspeaker system has its own batteries and was still turned on. I told them there was no danger and to go out in an orderly manner, but they didn't pay any attention. We couldn't see much by the light of the candles on the altar and around the shrine.

"Then, when the lights came on again, there was nobody in the church but me and the victims. I went around and administered the last sacraments to them. There was nothing else I could do."

Bodies of the victims, who included a two-month-old baby girl, were brought here from nearby Temoaya for burial. Most of them apparently died of asphyxiation.

Authorities of this Mexico state capital 40 miles west of Mexico City went to the village Friday to make the official investigation.

Vast Changes Seen In Russia

The Soviet Union, rid of Joseph Stalin and L. P. Beria, is in the midst of vast changes that may shift the course of history.

William L. Ryan, Associated Press foreign news analyst, has seen some of the underlying conditions, as well as the surface aspects, of today's Soviet Union in a three-month assignment which took him 6,000 miles into eight republics of that vast country. He talked to scores of persons and got an intimate glimpse of how many live.

Four Train Wrecks Take 350 Lives 2 Worst In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four countries around the world today counted a death toll of more than 350 persons as a result of Christmas train wrecks. Two of the rail disasters—in New Zealand and Czechoslovakia—were among the worst in history. The other accidents were reported from Peru and Pakistan. In New Zealand, an estimated 166 lives were lost when a speeding Wellington-Auckland passenger train plunged into a river gorge Christmas Eve after a bridge was washed out 250 miles north of the capital. The catastrophe cast gloom over the little dominion at the time it was entertaining the Queen on her Commonwealth tour.

The Bratislav-Prague express in Czechoslovakia smasned into another passenger train near Sakvice, killing 186 persons according to unofficial reports from the Iron Curtain country. The wreck, also on Christmas Eve, may have been the third worst train crash in history.

The worst ever was the wreck of a troop train in the French Alps in 1917, in which some 600 perished. A wreck in Poland in 1949 killed an estimated 200

MAJOR DISASTER

In the two other major rail disasters this Christmas, 10 freight train crew members were killed. A heavily loaded ore train jumped the tracks on an Andes mountain grade 12 miles from Lima, Peru, and the six crew members were killed. The seventh man aboard the train was badly injured.

Another freight derailment in Pakistan took the lives of four of the crew. This accident occurred Christmas Day about 30 miles from Quetta in the western part of the country.

In Auckland, the Queen, broadcasting her annual Yuletide message around the world, paused to express her sympathy to the families of the New Zealand wreck victims. The young monarch's voice wavered as she spoke of the disaster.

TRIP SCHEDULE MAINTAINED

Prime Minister Sydney Holland rushed to the scene of the accident on Mount Ruapehu as soon as he was notified. His internal affairs minister, W. A. Bodkin, was appointed minister in attendance to the Queen, and it was announced that the schedule of her tour would not be altered.

At Christmas Services in St. Mary's Cathedral Friday, the Queen joined the congregation in silent prayer for the victims, and today she visited thr of the survivors in their homes.

No Hope Held Victims Of Iceland Crash

LONDON (AP)—Hope was given up today for any survivors of a United States Navy bomber that crashed on an Iceland glacier nine days ago.

U. S. Air Force headquarters here said the search has been suspended because of bad weather.

Earlier, a helicopter rescue team landed beside the wreckage and reported that the nine crew members of the bomber apparently perished.

Red Delegates Angered At Ending Talks

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The two Communist members of the Korean repatriation commission have accused the other three members of a "very serious violation" of "international agreements" in ending efforts to win prisoners home, the official Peiping radio said today.

The charge was made in a statement issued by the Czech and Polish members which was broadcast by the Chinese Red radio.

The Red delegates were angered by the majority decision of India, Sweden and Switzerland to end the 90-day explanation period at midnight last Wednesday.

The Communists have insisted that there should be 90 days of actual explanations. They had talked with anti-Red Chinese and North Koreans only nine days during the period which began in September, and accused the Allies of obstructing the explanations.

The repatriation commission's ruling agreed with the UN Command position—that the truce agreement set a 90-day period available for interviews rather than specifying 90 days of actual interviews.

60,000 Homeless After Fire

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Officials today estimated that up to 60,000 persons are homeless following a Christmas Day fire here which killed three and injured 51.

The blaze roared through a crowded area of half a square mile in Kowloon, where refugees from communist China live in flimsy huts.

More than 10,000 huts were destroyed as a high wind fanned the flames.

The government said it will take special measures and use all its resources to help in the emergency. The British Army also is giving every assistance, the statement added.

French Withdraw In Face Of Rebel Thrust

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—The vanguard of Communist-led Vietminh forces moved today into the abandoned town of Thakhek, on the Mekong river border with Thailand, completing a rebel drive to cut Indo-China in two.

First reports from the area said the Vietminh units that drove boldly across the country from the coastal areas of Annam sent light elements into Thakhek, previously evacuated by the French.

The withdrawal of the French had been announced earlier today in a communique from the high command. It said the evacuation was ordered to pull as many troops as possible together in order to meet the Vietminh attack.

Vietminh occupation of the town gives the rebels a base from which to strike either north or south along the Mekong river. The Vietminh began their lightning thrust across the country four days ago.

PROPOSALS IGNORED

The invasion of Laos from Annam followed repeated offers from Vietminh chief Ho Chi Minh for a negotiated peace in the seven-year-old Indo-China war. The French attitude toward the Vietminh proposals is that they have not been officially communicated, and that consequently they will be ignored.

(A dispatch from the Thailand capital of Bangkok reported the government has declared a state of emergency in nine northern and northeastern states adjoining Indo-China and Burma as a result of the Vietminh offensive. Thakhek is just across the river from the Thailand town of Lakhon.)

The French population of threatened Thakhek, which lies about 240 miles south of Hanoi and dominates the Mekong valley, has been evacuated to Savannaket, 50 miles to the south.

The Vietminh forces started their thrust from the rebel-held coastal area of north Annam. Indo-China is only about 100 miles wide at this point.

The French said hard fighting was in progress today in the jungle along a main road connecting Annam with the Mekong river. This would place the rebels about 100 miles south of the area they overran last year in the first drive into Laos, one of the three French-associated states of Indo-China.

(Unconfirmed reports in Bangkok said, however, that other Vietminh troops had opened a surprise attack on Luang Prabang, the seat of Laotian King Sisavang Vong's royal residence. Luang Prabang, one of the targets of the previous Vietminh invasion, is more than 200 miles north of Thakhek.)

The attack apparently marks the beginning of the Vietminh winter campaign, already delayed several times by French thrusts

The holiday season gave Britain a chance to see two consecutive days of football, on Christmas and Boxing Day, featured by a neck-and-neck race for the leadership of the first division.

Wolverhampton Wanderers ended up one point ahead in the race with a 2-1 victory today over Aston Villa, while West Bromwich had to be content with a scoreless draw with Liverpool.

Friday, West Bromwich caught up with the Wolves by trouncing Liverpool 5-2 while the Wolverhampton team was idle.

TOOK OVER

Hudersfield today took over third place, winning 2-1 over Sunderland after a 1-1 tie with the same team Friday.

In the second division, Leicester strengthened its hold on first place, gaining points at Rotherham's expense both days, with a 1-1 tie today and a 4-1 victory Friday.

Doncaster stayed in third place today after losing an opportunity to catch up with second-place Everton which was not playing. Doncaster bowed to Blackburn 2-0, the same score it lost by on Friday. Everton beat Bristol 4-0 Christmas Day.

MAINTAINED LEADS

Queen Jostled By Race Crowd

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (AP)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh today joined 50,000 Aucklanders in going to races on the fourth day of their visit to New Zealand.

And, like any other couple in so vast a crowd, the royal visitors got squeezed in the crowd.

It happened after the first race at the Ellerslie track when the Queen asked to visit the paddock and see the horses. Leaving the royal box with the duke she set out to walk the intervening distance. Only two policemen were on hand to escort the Royal couple.

Within seconds they were besieged by enthusiastic welcomers. When the mass of people were only a few feet from the Queen, onlookers noticed the manner in which the duke protected her. He was bumped and jostled by the throng but he spoke reassuringly to the Queen as she glanced apprehensively over her shoulder.

Queen Talks To Family On Christmas Day

Infant, Mother Die

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A baby boy died Friday—along with both his parents—as the result of a Christmas Eve car crash that happened before he was born. Mr. and Mrs. Luther Dickson were fatally injured when their car hit a pole as they were returning from a shopping trip. Doctors delivered the baby in hospital to Mrs. Dickson by caesarian section, but he died immediately after birth. Mrs. Dickson died a few minutes later. The husband died earlier.

Mixed Yuletide Feelings

Prayers, Feasting, Gunfire Feature Christmas 1953

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prayers by the devout, feasting by merrymakers and the crackle of gunfire in troubled areas marked Christmas Day 1953, throughout the world.

It was a more peaceful Christmas than in recent years. While Allied and Communist troops still faced each other across the Korean no-man's land, the sounds of battle were gone from that war-torn land.

But guns still blazed in the jungles of Malaya and Indo-Chia and in the terrorist preserves of Kenya.

There was a tense air, too, on the Israel-Jordan frontier as thousands of Christian pilgrims thronged into Bethlehem.

Elsewhere, however, it was one of the jolliest, most prosperous Christmases in a long time.

The world heard the Queen, making her annual Christmas broadcast this year from Auckland, promise to try to further the ideal of the Commonwealth as "an equal partnership of nations and races."

Canadians and other troops of the Commonwealth forces in Korea feasted in the bleak cold on the UN side of the demilitarized zone. Many were confined to bunkers and trenches, still alert, but there was no shortage of extra rations and beer.

St. Paul's Cathedral and most other churches in Britain included prayers for those who suffered in the New Zealand train disaster in their Christmas services.

In the Vatican, a pet canary was the only company of the Pope at his Christmas dinner. The Pope said midnight mass privately in his little chapel.

The Communist Peiping radio suspended its English language propaganda broadcasts for one day, presumably because of Christmas.

On the continent, only the Alps reported enough snow for skiing. Warm sunshine bathed Paris, London, Rome, Vienna, Brussels, Berne and Frankfurt.

The Soviet news agency Tass, reporting on Christmas in Russia, said midnight mass was held at St. James Cathedral in Riga and there was "heavy attendance" of worshippers at services in village parishes.

First Two Days Of Yule Bring 38 Violent Deaths

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thirty-eight persons died violent deaths in Canada in the first two days of the Christmas holiday. The Thursday-Friday death toll included 32 traffic fatalities. In terms of lives lost, Canada's blackest holiday in history was last Christmas when 96 persons died in accidents in five days.

Ontario led the 1953 death toll with 13 lives lost, all but one as the result of accidents on crowded highways. The worst traffic mishap occurred Christmas Eve eight miles east of Brockville. Arthur Young, 28, and Mrs. Alma Perrin, both of Brockville, were killed in a head-on collision involving three automobiles. Frederick Seeley, 73, of Ogdensburg, N.Y., died in Brockville hospital next day.

Alfred Hindrea, 78-year-old former Toronto contractor, was the only non-traffic death victim in Ontario. He was bludgeoned to death in a St. Catharines shack Christmas Eve. William Jacobs, 32, a neighbor and father of five children, was charged with his murder.

OTHER PROVINCES

The death toll in other provinces: Quebec 10; British Columbia five; Nova Scotia four; Manitoba three; Saskatchewan, Alberta and North West Territories, one each.

Non-traffic fatalities in Quebec included two Montreal infants found dead, apparently suffocated, in their cribs.

Fred St. Pierre, 46, and M. Fortin, 40, were smothered under a pile of coal at Arvida, Que., and Henri Dorion, 43, was fatally injured when he fell into a tank of boiling water at a wood-manufacturing plant near St. Leonard d'Aston, Que.

Russia Rejects

The Soviet messages were in reply to the Western notes sent following the Big Three conference in Bermuda.

Western sources said the Soviet Union also appeared to object to the Western proposal that the Berlin conference be held in the former allied control authority building, in the American sector of the divided city.

It was reported the Russians proposed instead that the four high commissioners in Germany confer in advance on an alternative site.

However, they were still willing to meet in Berlin, which was originally their suggestion. They had previously agreed to the idea of a four-power conference, but did not specify a date.

The Soviet note, coming only today, gives the West short notice for altering the Jan. 4 plan. It is believed here that the delay in the Russian reply might have been caused by uncertainty over the recent prolonged French presidential election.

In their last note, the Western powers suggested that the questions of Germany and Austria be discussed at the parley, but left the way open for the Russians to bring up any other questions.

A later message from diplomatic quarters says the west will almost certainly accept Russia's proposal to delay the Berlin session of the Big Four foreign ministers until the end of January instead of the beginning, diplomatic quarters said today.

But the West is much less likely to accept the Soviet bid to change the place of the meeting from the allied control building in the American sector of Berlin.

The two proposals are believed to be the highlights of a Russian note to the United States, Britain and France handed over in Moscow today. The official text has not yet been released.

Soviet opposition to the Jan. 4 date proposed by the West was not unexpected. The Western Powers agreed on it at their recent Bermuda Conference because it fitted a tight American timetalbe leading to a Congressional debate on foreign aid in March. This consideration doubtless influenced Russia's decision to ask for a postponement.

Though the building is in the American sector of the divided city, it is regarded as "neutral" territory.

Diplomatic quarters here said Moscow's suggestion that a new site be considered is either a delaying manoeuvre or an attempt to stage part of the conference in Russia's eastern sector of the city.

The later the conference starts, the better it will suit Russia because it means a further postponement of the European Army plan.

BIG FOUR REACTION

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Soviet note on a Big Four foreign ministers meeting, asking a delay, was under study at the state department today and appeared likely to be accepted.

The state department would confirm only that the note had been received and was being studied by State Secretary Dulles and his aides.

According to Moscow dispatches, the note was handed to British, U. S. and French representatives at the Soviet foreign office.

Western diplomatic sources in Moscow said the note suggested holding the ministers conference at Berlin on Jan. 25, instead of Jan. 4 as suggested by the West.

"No, It's Me" Says Queen

AUCKLAND (AP)—Queen Elizabeth told a guest at a government function here that when she drives past crowds she often hears amusing snatches of conversation.

At a children's gathering in the Auckland Domain (park), when the royal car had almost stopped, Elizabeth heard two little girls arguing whether she was the Queen or Princess Margaret.

"I tell you it's Princess Margaret," said one girl.

"I couldn't resist that impulse," the Queen said, "so I learned over and said 'no, it's me.'"

"From other carriages we heard the screams of women trying to find their children. It was pitch dark. It was bedlam."

The boy—he gave his name simply as John—continued:

ATTEND CHURCH

The Queen and the duke spent Christmas with their host, Governor-General Sir Willoughby Norrie, and attended divine service at St. Mary's Cathedral, where prayers were said for the wreck victims.

During the day the royal parents spoke by radio-telephone to Prince Charles and Princess Anne, who spent Christmas at Sandringham, England, with Queen Mother Elizabeth.

Today the royal couple attended a race meeting at Ellerslie track here as the Dominion's summer racing season opened.

MORE BODIES RECOVERED

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (Reuters) Prime Minister Sidney Holland announced today, as search parties recovered still more bodies from the Wangaehu river, that a public inquiry will be held into New Zealand's worst railroad disaster.

Many of the bodies found today were naked, stripped by the raging waters of the river into which the Wellington Auckland Express plunged Christmas Eve with a loss of 166 lives.

Authorities said there is no hope for the 86 persons still missing. Some, swept down the river to the sea, may never be found.

Some were on the banks of the river several yards above the water level, left there when the high waters subsided. Others are still buried in silt on the river floor. Some have been found miles from the washed-out bridge.

PASSENGERS ASLEEP

Many passengers were asleep when the train thundered at more than 50 miles an hour onto the broken span.

A minute earlier a passer-by, postmaster Cyril Ellis, 27, had tried desperately to prevent the disaster.

Seeing that two bridge piers had been carried away by the raging river, he tried to flag down the train with his flashlight. But the engineer failed to see him and Ellis was forced to jump from the tracks for his life.

Ellis said later:

"The engine simply nose-dived off the bank and seemed to go with a bellowing splash nearly against the opposite bank."

Only the last three cars of the nine-car train escaped.

D. C. McLean of Cargill, N. Z., who escaped with his wife and two youngsters, said he was dozing at the time of the crash.

DOWNHILL SENSATION

"There was a sensation of going downhill at a tremendous speed," he said.

"There was a jolt and water started pouring in.

"I noticed a window behind me had broken, and I struggled out through it. I grabbed my son's hair and pulled him out.

"Then I heard my wife calling and reached in to pull her and our daughter onto the carriage roof.

"I think we were the luckiest family on the train."

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A small passenger boat, the Golden Dawn, running between Wesleyville and Gambo in Bonavista Bay on Newfoundland's east coast, has been unreported since it left Wesleyville Christmas Eve and ran into stormy weather.

Authorities here think it may have put into some small port to wait out the storm. It was not known how many passengers or crew are aboard.

Guests of Soviet Youth

Non-Whites Still Manage Slip Through S.A. Customs

By JOHN WORRALL

In spite of South Africa's strict passport regulations, which make it virtually impossible for non-Whites to leave the country, six African and Indian leaders have recently visited Moscow and Communist Europe; and two of them have been to Communist China. Chosen as guests of Soviet Youth, they were among more than forty South Africans—twenty of them students in London—who visited the Communist - sponsored International Youth Festival in Bucharest, capital of Rumania. Three have now returned to South Africa and police and immigration authorities are busy trying to find out how they managed to slip through the net.

Two of the most important of these travellers, Mr. Walter Sisulu, general secretary, and Mr. Duma Nokwe, assistant secretary, of the African National Congress, travelled ten thousand miles behind the Iron Curtain. Both of them broadcast on a national Russian network. When Mr. Nokwe returned by air to Johannesburg, the police were waiting for him at Palmietfontein Airport, and confiscated photographs, books and pamphlets he had brought from Russia.

Neither has revealed how he managed to leave South Africa. It cannot have been easy, for cases frequently arise of Africans and Indians being refused passports for the most innocent reasons.

The fact that some of those who have secretly slipped through the security net hold key positions in bodies which have been involved in the passive resistance movement, and would almost certainly have been refused passports even to go to England, will no doubt lead to a tightening up of emigration restrictions as far as non-Europeans are concerned—and will give the authorities an excellent excuse for their actions.

The principle behind the Government's reluctance to allow non-whites to travel overseas is the justifiable belief that they may come into contact with Communist, Left-wing or liberal influences, which could turn them into anti-white agitators when they return to the Union. The only emigration encouraged is that of Indians to India—and that usually means a one-way ticket.

Actress's Ermine Swimsuit Definitely Off

SEOUL (AP) — Actress Terry Moore has packed away a controversial ermine bathing suit "that makes me look like a little Santa Claus," and will continue her 10-day Korean tour entertaining American troops.

The robust young blonde said she had been ordered home by George Murphy, chairman of the Hollywood committee for the United Services Organization, after four shows in the suit. But she added that now "everything is straightened out."

The last 20 hours have been "awful," said Miss Moore, who sings and plays straight girl to disc jockey Johnny Grant in the USO troupe. Until today she wore the ermine suit.

Grant—Miss Moore called him the "commanding officer" of the troupe—said Murphy ordered the actress home because she wore the ermine against Murphy's instructions.

In Los Angeles, Murphy said: "It is unfortunate that with so many entertainers making such a fine contribution that one of them should use such a tour as a means of personal publicity. If this is true, it is a great exhibition of bad taste.

"Before she left I made it clear to Miss Moore that she was not to take that bathing suit with her. On three separate occasions she assured me it was not in her luggage."

Both Grant and Miss Moore indignantly denied that the hubbub was a publicity stunt.

Miss Moore's remark that the suit made her look like Santa Claus was apparently a reference to the fact that the fur padded out her shapely figure.

The controversial suit is a one-piece strapless affair with a sash around the waist. In her appearance before the troops she also wore a matching hat, gloves and boots, and an ermine cape which she removed in response to yells from her audience.

Bomb Kills 19 Persons

CASABLANCA, Morocco (Reuters)—A bomb exploded in Casablanca's crowded central market Thursday, killing 19 persons, injuring many more and setting off a mass search for the culprits, believed to be Moroccan nationalists. The explosion occurred in the European section of the market.

Sixteen of the victims were killed on the spot. Three others died in hospital.

Men, women and children were hurled to the ground by the explosion while others scattered in panic. Six Europeans were among the dead.

FOUND BOMB

An eyewitness said he found the bomb—An old gasoline tin filled with explosive and pieces of metal —in the main aisle between the European butchers' stalls in the market. Unaware of the danger, he put it out of the way against the stall, a few seconds before the explosion.

Two other bombs were discovered before they exploded in Casablanca's main post office, also filled with pre-Christmas crowds.

Four Train Wrecks

50 miles an hour, shot into the swollen Wangaehu river shortly after floods had swept away a section of the railway bridge. Another car tottered on the brink for a few moments, then toppled into the flood.

A rescue organization was set up within a few minutes, but 86 of the 267 persons on the train were still unaccounted for today and there was little hope they would be found.

Searchers recovered 97 bodies by nightfall from the Wangaehu river—site of the worst train wreck in New Zealand's history—Prime Minister Sidney Holland announced in a radio message tonight.

The search continued for 69 other persons trapped in their carriages when the crack Wellington-Auckland night express plunged into the flooded river from a broken bridge Christmas Eve.

Police say there is no hope for any of them.

Only 39 bodies have been identified. All of them are New Zealanders, except one Fijian schoolboy on a vacation.

The force of the crash mangled the bodies and tore off most of their clothes, making identification difficult. Dead and injured were taken by train to Auckland.

The government-controlled press in Czechoslovakia released little news of the accident in that country, and Western correspondents do not operate there. An early announcement over radio Prague said only that "many persons were killed or injured."

The radio added, however, that Interior Minister Rudolf Barak and Traffic Minister Antonin Posposi had rushed to the scene, about 12 miles north of the Austrian border, indicating its serious nature.

A telephone operator at Brno told The Associated Press in Vienna that she overheard Czech officials place the death toll at 186.

Train Hits Car Twice Man Escapes Unhurt

KITCHENER (CP)—Harold Lippert will probably tell his grandchildren of Christmas 1953 for that was the day a train hit his car twice and left him uninjured.

Lippert was driving across a level crossing when an engine struck his car, flipped it around and hit the vehicle again virtually wrecking it.

Pallbearers were Mr. Meagher's six sons: Fergus, Cyril, Joseph, Leo, Bernard and Philip.

William Williams

Funeral services for William Williams, 74, of 276 William St., were held from the Nisbett funeral home today, with burial in Little Lake cemetery. The Rev. H. G. Douglas of the Knox United church officiated.

Pallbearers were George Clark Sr., and George Clark Jr., Joseph Henderson, Morris Parry, Philip Weir and James Weyer.

2 Intermediate Rugby Championships Came to Peterborough In Early Days

By HARRY THEOBOLD

Still vivid in the memory of Arthur J. McClellan, 599 King St., is the touchdown he scored against Westmount of Montreal for Peterborough's first intermediate football chamiponship of Canada by the score of 4-1, November 25, 1899, at Nicholls Oval.

Two years later a Peterborough team that included Chris Graham and Bill Meagher defeated the Quebec City winners of the eastern provincial title on the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association's frozen field by 17-9, Thursday, November 28, 1901. In the following year Quebec reversed the decision. Those are the only entries of the name of Peterborough in the records of the intermediate division of the Canadian Rugby Union's cup winners.

WORTH THREE POINTS

McClellan blocked a Westmount half-back's punt, scooped up the loose ball, and ran 50 yards to the goal line. The "try" was then worth three points, instead of today's five, and was the margin of Peterborough's victory.

This flash-back of a sports event of 54 years ago, when the game was young and a recent offspring of English rugby, was recalled in a casual conversation with Mr. McClellan that Grey Cup afternoon back in November.

"There was no forward pass when I broke into the game" he said. "And more than that there were no three "downs." A team could keep possession of the ball until they scored or lost it."

That radical difference from today's Canadian game invited other questions, and to supplement his memory and verify it, Mr. McClellan suggested reference to The Examiner file of the autumn of 1899.

STORY OF THE SAME

Here is an incident Mr. McClellan will never forget as it was reported by the sports writer of this paper on Monday, November 27.

"On a punt from (Vic) McWilliams, Ross (Westmount) caught the ball, but failed to make his mark. McClellan blocked it, and on a pretty pick-up made the play of the day by a 50-yard dash resulting in a touchdown. Excitement was intense. Hal Burnham failed to convert."

("Making his mark" meant that a back, catching a punt, was entitled, if he wished, to make a thrust of one heel into the grass as a protection against tacklers. Infraction by an attacking wingman incurred a penalty. In after years it was replaced by a five-yard rule.")

With only ten minutes to go, Peterborough nursed its lead of 4-1. As soon as the final whistle blew "the two babies of the team, McClellan and MacDonald, quarter), were lifted high on the shoulders of the conquerors, and carried off the field."

And, so the Canadian championship came to the little inland Ontario town after a schedule that included Westmount, Ottawa and Hamilton.

DINNER FOR TEAMS

In his notes the reporter mentioned a dinner down town that night, and both teams were the guests of George W. Hatton, Crown Attorney in later years, at the Opera House. The Opera House was on the third floor of the Bradburn Building in the east George St. block between Charlotte and Simcoe streets.

"We had a cracking good team, if I do say so," Mr. McClellan recalled. "I think rugby was introduced here by Fred Lefevre of Lakefield, who is still alive. That was before the most of us got into the game. In that season of 1899 we had half a dozen or more fellows who had been to university and played there. As they say today in the sports columns Rollie McWilliams was the spark-plug of the team. He was enthusiast about anything he went into, and that included his municipal service as alderman and mayor."

ARTHUR McCLELLAN

(The Hon. R. F. McWilliams of Winnipeg retired this year as Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba.)

"There was his brother Vic, afterwards a doctor, a really outstanding athlete, played football, lacrosse, hockey and a great punter. I think he was on a par with Hal Burnham who booted with his left foot. As the saying goes, they could kick it a mile.

"There was Frank Burnham, Rev. Mr. Bushell, a burly Anglican clergyman from the parish of Norwood, Garnet Bell and others.

"This was the team in the final game: Fullback, A. White; halves, Vic McWilliams, Garnie Bell and Hal Burnham; quarter-back, MacDonald, I'd take that half line in any man's game.

"Then in the scrimmage: Bushell, Archie Stethem and Frank Burnham.

"The wing line: Collyer, Bill Crowley, Bruce Rickey, A. E. Brundrette, Rollie McWilliams (captain), A. A. Hollingshead (manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and a clever defence man in hockey), and McClellan. Also with the team were: Norman Bell, and Roger Davidson. The referee was Christmas of Montreal Amateur Athletic Association.

KNOWN AS "BEEF"

"Brundrette was a hefty wing man. Lads at the CGE nicknamed him "beef." It was mostly sinew and he could hit a line as afterwards did the famous Ross Craig who went to Hamilton Tigers, and Frank O'Connor who made a fortune in candy.

"Recent pictures in the Toronto sports pages of several rugby teams in action, still playing the English game, were just about the way we played. We had no pads or other armor, only short pants and a light jersey, and we bought them ourselves."

An Examiner of late in 1899 carried a note of thanks from A. J. McClellan as secretary-treasurer of the Football Club, thanking citizens for their donations. Specially mentioned were: R. B. Rogers, Wm. H. Bradburn, E. A. Peck, G. W. Hatton, James Hamilton, William H. Hill, W. A. Sanderson and others.

"You notice that we had a team of 15. The scrimmage was three players in the centre spot of the line, who locked arms together. The ball was put in play by the quarter-back. He thrust in from behind the "scrum," and it was their job to heel it back to the quarter or half as the case might be.

"The opposing scrimmage tried to heel the ball themselves and pushed at their opponents. The inside and middle wings also got into the act, the defence supporting their scrimmage, and the other side trying to break through.

"Frankly, we revelled in it, but for the most part it wasn't much of a spectacle from the side lines, except in spots, as compared with modern football."

In their first championship season, Peterborough won in Ottawa October 28, 1899. It was a cold, wet autumn afternoon. The Examiner's report says: "It was a very hard, rough game. Peterborough scored the first point when McClellan followed up a punt by Hal Burnham and forced Hutton to rouge. Rickey scored a try and Burnham converted it . . ."

"Pete" McClellan, the familiar name to his old friends, came out of the Ottawa game with a broken nose and a cut inside his lower lip that required five stitches. They are souvenirs to this day.

PILE-UPS FREQUENT

Nine men a side along the front line, and only one referee! As Mr. McClellan says, the pile-ups were so frequqent as to be just about monotonous. They virtually became one phalanx meeting another, with the scrums at the central point of contact, and one line was nearly always in close reach of the other, while the ball was getting into play.

The Gentlemen from Ireland, touring eastern Canada, defeated Peterborough 16-0 at the Oval. They won most if not all their games in their schedule. That night there was a "grand ball" in the old rink on Charlotte St. that later disappeared in flames. The Examiner printed the names of the belles and beaux, a column or more, that makes interesting reading, particularly those who attended that social gala.

The 1901 Peterborough team that trounced Quebec 16-9 in Montreal (snowbanks were four to five feet deep along the sides) were: Back, Andy Scott; halves, A. W. MacPherson, Hal Burnham, MacDonald; quarter, R. N. Bell; scrimmage, George Revell, Alex Noble, Jack Deannard; wings, Ed. Dillon, Joe Picard, Bill Meagher, Bruce Rickey, Chris Graham, Fred Smith and Bill Crowley. Referee, Phil McKenzie, Montreal. Umpire, W. Christie.

Quebec was in front 9-8 at half time. Early in the second half Noble and Graham "worked the ball down the field for a touch."

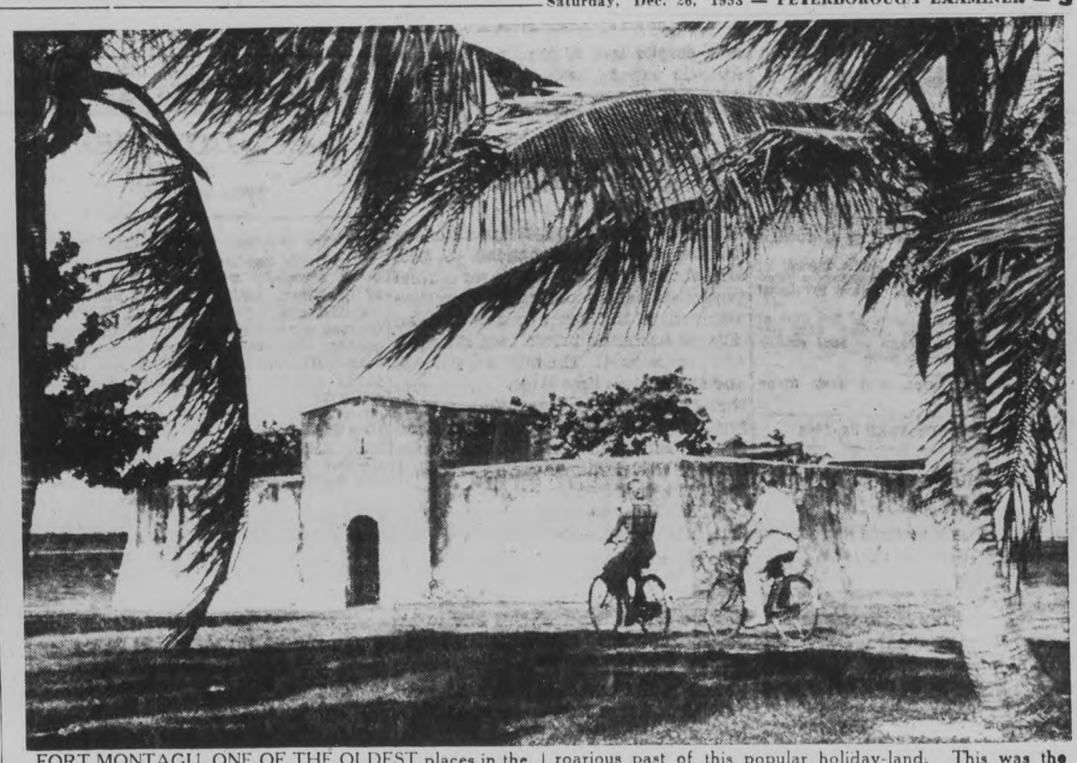
That title was slightly clouded. Peterborough lost in London 27-6, but the game and the London team were thrown out by the initiative of the ORFU for playing a half-back, Harry Peel, of a London hockey team that had been expelled by the OHA for professionalism.

The Peterborough club of which R. F. McWilliams was president, and Hal Burnham captain, did not protest. The disciplinary action was taken by the ORFU without any urging.

OUT FOR 20 MINUTES

In the Montreal game Bill Meagher was in a daze 20 minutes or more, revived on the side lines, and couldn't remember what had happened to him. "I think I was in a football game," he said when he came to.

"Of course there was no western football in 1899," Mr. McClellan said. "The CRU was chiefly Ontario and Quebec. There wasn't much of anything in the west, although the cities were beginning to expand."



Football gradually discarded the scrimmage, but a recent advertisement in the Examiner mentioned the fact that in 1903 the proposed new Burnside rules, featuring the snapback method of putting the ball in play, were tossed out by the CRU.

The old rugby tradition died hard, but eventually the national union acceded to the demand for change from the old ways of the "scrum."

As a final quotation from the 1901 Examiner, MacPherson, teacher at the Collegiate Institute and afterwards physician and for some years Medical Officer of Health, starred with his ball-carrying in the back field. Another item mentions two football teams at the collegiate, student groups. The youth of that day could take it—and they could hand it out, too.

Seeking Pact To Limit Lake Shipping

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Lake Carriers Association disclosed Thursday it is seeking a pact to limit lake shipping between the United States and Canada to vessels of those two nations.

Foreign ships have a great advantage in Great Lakes trade and could weaken American and Canadian lake fleets, the association said.

Admiral Lyndon Spencer, association president, said the proposed pact will be discussed next Monday at a White House conference.

The lake carriers group is particularly concerned about competition from European ships in the event the St. Lawrence seaway proposal becomes a reality. That, it said, would bring large European vessels into the lakes in quantities that could supercede the American and Canadian fleets.

EUROPEAN SHIPS

The association said the number of European ships operating into the great Lakes has increased from 20, representing three countries in 1937, to 144, representing eight countries, this year. So far, most of the tonnage moved on the lakes by European ships is either going to, or coming from, European ports.

This year, two European vessels made about 10 trips between America and Canada, carrying mostly grain.

Under present law European vessels are permitted to engage in any lake commerce. In addition to lower operating costs, these ships escape many taxes under American and Canadian laws.

TRAVEL: with Jean Stenton

Nassau Rivals Bermuda For Lovely Beaches, Quaint, Tropical Settings

One of the most atractive holiday spots winter or summer are the Bahamas which have been overlooked by Canadians in the rush to Jamaica and other Caribbean tourist centres which have basked in publicity for many years.

The same delightful setting that is found in Bermuda can be had at Nassau, capital of the chain of hundreds of small islands. The city is typically British, very formal and utterly lovely. A visitor can spend days lying on magnificent Paradise Beach, which is famous the world over, and the nights dancing under the Bahama moon on a terrace of one of the island's luxurious hotels.

The climate is almost always warm and sunny. But some of the evenings are cool. The social season is from Christmas to Easter, but a visit there is enjoyable the year round.

There are many beautiful and interesting spots to include on sightseeing jaunts. One of the musts is a visit to Nassau's forts. There is Fort Charlotte with its eerie dungeon about one mile west of Rawson Square. It is the largest and at the western entrance to the harbor. At Fort Fincastle on Bennett's Hill, you have a magnificent view of the city and harbor. Historic Fort Montague overlooks the bay.

OPEN AIR MARKET

One of the most popular spots with tourists is the open air market where the craft work is sold. It is on Rawson Square between Prince George's Wharf and Bay St. A short boat trip will take you to the sea gardens famous for underwater growth of coral anemones, fans and plumes. An esplanade just west of the British Colonial Hotel, which overlooks the harbor, is always popular.

Paradise Beach, one of the most famous in the world, is a 15-minute ride from Prince George's Wharf. There are bath houses, cabanas, tennis courts, bar, restaurant, games rooms, etc. There is also a palm-shaded boardwalk. It is fascinating to see the sponges for sale at "sponge dock." The sponge industry used to be the mainstay of the Bahamas.

Nassau has some of the loveliest hotels on the islands. The most famous is the British Colonial, but there are others like the Royal Victoria and the Prince George hotels which are in the same luxury class. There are many other smaller places which are both comfortable and reasonable.

NO SHORTS ON STREET

As in Mexico, visitors are warned not to wear shorts or backless dresses any place but at the beach. Nassau is very conservative.

With the exception of vegetables and fish, most of the food is imported. Delicious native foods include: conch chowder, turtle soup, turtle pie and wonderful coconut ice cream. Liquor is cheaper than at home.

There are few restaurants as such in Nassau. The hotel dining rooms have wonderful food and even though you are not staying there, you should arrange to have a meal at Buena Vista and at Cumberland House (guest houses). The food is excellent. There is one restaurant, Grand Central, which is air conditioned and also the Candy Kitchen with an American-style soda fountain.

GOOD CONNECTIONS

Travellers can make excellent connections to Nassau by either ship or air. One ship cruise has a minimum round trip fare of $135. Tipping is the same as at home—10-15 per cent. Taxis are 28 cents for the first mile and 14 cents for each additional mile per person. There are horses and carriages for hire as well as bicycles and cars.

Light summer clothes, topcoat, sweater and swim suit are practical for a Bahama wardrobe. Formal evening clothes are important too because it is almost a must to "dress" during the season (December 20-Easter).

Nassau has the same attractive pastel-colored buildings that delight Bermuda visitors. Its streets are lined with historic old churches, beautiful colonial buildings and interesting public buildings which can be visited. The Bahamas are truly a gem worth exploring."

Press Women Name Stars Unco-Operative

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—With an unseasonal lack of charity, Hollywood Women's Press club this week passed out the annual scallions to the most unco-operative stars of the movies.

Why certain selections are made are often a mystery, even to some members of the club itself. This year the "winners" are Dale Robertson and Esther Williams.

It's not hard to see why Robertson was chosen. One of his notions is that a new star can have his career nipped in the bud by permitting his name and face to be plastered in every magazine and newspaper. He also believes there are certain phase of his life that are his own private property.

CONSIDERED HERESY

This is heresy to some of the lady writers who earn their livings by telling all about the stars' lives.

The selection of Esther is more mysterious. She is one of the darlings of the male press corps. It usually has been true that anything goes with Esther; she even did publicity while expecting her third child. But some of the gals claim Esther is lax about keeping appointments.

TV and radio seem to have a sameness during this holiday season, and no wonder. Many of the shows bring back the same Christmas programs they have had every year.

Sometimes I wonder if that is smart programming. Supposing the movie houses played only reissues around the holidays. They wouldn't do much business.

Good Job Done By The Post Office

From time to time we have had reason to criticize the Post Office service, locally and generally; it is therefore with special pleasure that we find occasion to commend it. This Christmas season the local office handled a staggering quantity of mail, as many as 175,000 letters and cards in a single day and thousands of parcels. It has to cope with this business in the old, inconvenient and inadequate building. Yet so good were the arrangements and so efficient and hard-working the Post Office staff that the service suffered very little delay or impairment. It was the best it has been since Christmas mail locally took on its present proportions. The regular schedule of deliveries continued, pretty well on time; there seemed to be little hold-over on letters; on Thursday ordinary mail from Montreal was being delivered in Peterborough within twenty hours of its being posted. Further, despite the strain of the last fortnight's work and congestion, the staff at the Post Office, and the delivery men too, were neither snarling at each other nor biting the ears off customers. Their courtesy was equal to the season.

We congratulate the Postmaster and his staff on a heavy job well done, and compliment the persons responsible for planning the operation so adequately. What better compliments of the season can one offer Post Office people?

The Almighty Car

The automobile industry has become the biggest single element in the economic life of Canada. The value of the cars manufactured in Canada last year was greater than the total value of all the wheat produced. More gasoline was consumed than the total consumption of milk, beer and spirits. Buyers of cars in 1952 paid more in sales, excise and gasoline tax than the total income tax paid by persons earning $10,000 a year or less. Most Canadians spend in buying, operating, maintaining and insuring their cars about a quarter of their total income. The car is now the biggest single item in the life of individuals and of the country, and the condition of the automobile industry and its subsidiaries is a barometer of the economic condition of Canada as a whole.

If all the cars in Canada were put end to end and dumped into the sea, the economy of this country would sink with them. We would be back in the horse-and-buggy era physically, socially—but, most shocking of all, we would be back in it financially.

The post-war boom has been rolling on automobile wheels. You have only to guess at the total investment on cars which you see on a score of miles of a busy Ontario highway to guess at the enormous influence of the car, not only on the Canadian pattern of living, but on its financial and industrial structure—the capital and credit it represents, the taxes it has drawn into Federal and Provincial treasuries, the importance on the family budget, the number of jobs it has created. The boom during the war was based on war industries; since the war it has been, to a remarkable degree, based on the automobile. Last year alone 433,710 cars were produced in this country, to add to those already on the roads. In 1932 there were 10.6 persons for each motor vehicle in Canada; last year the ratio went down to 4.6 persons for each. In 1952 3,157,269 motor vehicles were registered, including 2,296,479 cars, 770,050 trucks and 12,021 buses. These represent a tremendous investment, a fantastic amount of money or credit.

The money in the cars is only part of the story. The industry in its nineteen Canadian plants last year paid salaries and wages amounting to $113,607,071. It spent in capital equipment and repairs to plants $40,045,000. The selling value of automobile parts (at the producing works) was $276,370,735. The selling value of of petroleum products in 1952 was $634,735,983. The value of the rubber industry's products was $286,120,829. The car on the road is sometimes considered a menacing behemoth; in the light of these figures it is a colossus astride the Canadian economy.

NATO Has Changed Power In Europe

The Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, meeting in Paris, can look back on some great achievements as well as look forward to great and perplexing problems. Only three years ago was the decision taken to create an "integrated" force in Europe; now, despite lack of ground troops, the Atlantic nations have together created a defence system which is a formidable reality; as General Gruenther says, the build-up has been "fantastic". It has changed the balance of power in Europe and lessened the danger of aggression and of a new war.

This power of NATO is the result of the decision of fourteen nations to pool armies, navies and air forces for mutual protection and to deter the aggressive ambitions of the Soviet Union. Such an alliance has never before been attempted in peace-time. The task was delicate and at the same time large. Apart from the three armies of occupation in Western Germany the available military men and machines were few. National contingents therefore had to be raised and transported. Airfields had to be built. Port facilities had to be secured. Communications had to be established. Expenses had to be alloted, equitably so as not to interfere too drastically with the economic health of the independent member states. And all this had to be welded into one international force, under a unified command.

These things have now been achieved; the NATO Armed Forces and the NATO defence system exist. The ground forces are still short of the twelve German divisions which the Lisbon planning council decided upon in February, 1952, and there is still a deficiency in air power. But the NATO force—and the actual existence of it—seem to have ended the Cold War and induced a change of attitude of the Kremlin.

The most serious deficiency is that neither the European Defence Community nor its army, have yet come into being. This is primarily because of the traditional French fear of Germany. France is reluctant to accept Germany as an equal partner in the E.D.C., or to see Germany re-armed. The fear is very real. The logical French, who have three times in the last eighty years seen their country overrun by German troops, want to run no risk of there being a fourth time. No French government, no matter how urgently it recognizes the necessity of co-operation in a European Army and a European Defence Community, has had strength enough in the Assembly and the country at large, to ratify E.D.C.

Despite the weaknesses that exist in NATO it is a significant creation. Fourteen nations have united in common defence, contributed money, troops and machines to a common pool, and put them under a common commander. Canada has taken a large part in organizing NATO and in its development. Mr. St. Laurent was one of the first to propose the organization; Mr. L. B. Pearson has taken a leading part in its creation and policies. Why has Canada this special interest in a far-off defensive organization? The reason is that Canada, a middle power, knows that it can never defend itself by itself and must co-operate with other. Further, Canada has taken a costly part in two great European wars in this century; anything, therefore, that can prevent a third war is of intimate concern to Canadians. Even if such a war were to begin in Europe, it would not now stop short of Canada's coasts. Canada's first line of defence is now on the Rhine, as was Britain's in the past.

A Curse On Tax-Collectors

Very little cursing goes on nowadays. We do not mean simple swearing, which is sometimes called cursing by people who use words loosely. We mean the unmistakeable, forceful expression of an ill wish toward somebody or something, which supernatural powers are called upon to witness and execute. Perhaps people do not believe in curses anymore.

But a man died in Patcham, England, recently, who believed in curses and who hated tax-collectors. His name was Eric Poore, and he died worth £30,000, which, without being wealth, is a good round sum. In his will he said: "From my grave I curse the Board of Inland Revenue who have ruined my life. All inspectors of taxes are sadistic and depraved. That is common knowledge". There it is—a curse, uttered in deep seriousness by a man who felt himself aggrieved against those whom he believed had wronged him.

We shall not waste any time watching for news that the curse has borne fruit. We shall expect to hear that several tax-collectors have fallen off their office stools, stricken by some hideous seizure. Curses do not work quite so violently and dramatically as that. Anyhow, if curses had any effect on tax-gatherers, the whole tribe would have been extinct years ago. There are people who insist that being a tax-collector is, in itself, a form of hideous punishment—but this is a metaphysical proposition which we do not feel capable of discussing. We leave it to the clergy to decide whether tax-collectors are among the elect or the damned.

We call attention to Poore's curse simply as a curiosity. People do not curse their enemies much these days. Neither do they bless those who are dear to them. In fact, people today are remarkably stingy in the way in which they express love and hate. They seem to have lost the zest which found its outlet in a blessing or, in case of need, a curse which was supposed to linger, even after the curser was in the grave.

Two Kinds Of Christmas

By IVOR BROWN

WE are officially assured that the cost of living has been stabilised; and which of us, especially when under the influence of Christmas benignity, could possibly be sceptical about the veracity of Whitehall? On the other hand, the unofficial experience of Christmas shoppers is that, however static our cost of living, the cost of giving remains conspicuously mobile. Faced with a price-list of acceptable gifts or with the charges marked in the toy-shop window, our natural impulse is to moan with King Lear, 'Down, thou climbing sorrow!" Prices, unlike pedestrians and the less highly-powered lifts, are much better at going up than at coming down. Still, the spirit of the season forbids calculation; we must unbutton the purse, buy and give what we can, and seek what consoluation there may be in that inventor's horn of plenty which has replaced the old and simple Christmas stocking.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE WILL BE, on the air, at the end of this week, a fathomless abundance of greetings, guffaws, and jocund goings-on. All the charmers and comedians of the day will be cheerful beyond measure on your behalf; you may hear, or see, these starry ones pulling crackers and making 'cracks' in parties arranged to keep you, also, in jocundity. No case, here, of 'a penny for the peep-show.' For those who organize their own Christmas parties in order to watch the C.B.C. having its own Christmas parties the total cost of the entertainment laid on is to be considered in farthings. Not all of us believe this to be our own conception of delight; but millions will revel in the revealing of their beloved ones. It would be cant to pretend that, because you would rather have a party of your own and make your own games and even mime your own charades, the great majority do not glory in vicarious junketing. A press-button or turn-the-knob Christmas may sound a sluggard's paradise; but it works out to the general satisfaction, especially after the traditional diet of the day.

✧ ✧ ✧

HEREIN we meet a marked change in Christmas fashion. The emphasis now is all on the giving of presents and much less on the gay performance. Christmas presents are either a fairly modern invention or a change from the New Year gift. In 1560, as John Stow relates, Queen Elizabeth was given by her 'silke woman' a 'paire of black knit silk stockings." In returning thanks the Queen said that they were 'pleasant, fine, and delicate,' adding 'henceforth I shall wear no more cloth stockings.' Nor did she. The 'silke-woman" had started something. But that was stated to be a New Year's Gift, not a Christmas one. Christmas was not then a shopping operation. 'I hold it,' wrote Nicholas Breton 'the holy time,' 'a memory of the Heaven's love and the world's peace, the myrth of the honest and the meeting of the friendly.' He said nothing of gifts. The most famous of the Christmas parties in English literature was that at Dingley Dell. The Pickwickians, it is true, added some sea-food to the bulging larder of Manor Farm, including a vast cod-fish which we should not greatly esteem as a seasonable tit-bit. But they did not think it necessary to bring presents for all members of the household; no need for them to agonize in the shops, wondering what on earth to get for Emily or Mr. Wardle. The only gift mentioned is a wedding-present. Manor Farm provided 'the myrth of the honest and the meeting of the friendly' and that gave total satisfaction.

✧ ✧ ✧

THOSE who remember Christmas forty years ago think rather of the 'open house' than of preparations beginning in November. An admirable description of such a Christmas at that time occurs in one of J. B. Priestley's best novels, 'The Bright Day.' Its picture is a Bruddersford, before the First War ended that sort of living. It did not begin till Christmas Eve and then 'You went not to one friend's house but to a dozen: acres of rich pound cake and mince pies were washed down by cataracts of old beer and port, whisky and rum: the air was fragrant and thick with cigar-smoke as if the very mill chimneys had taken to puffing them? It was like 'a vast Flemish still-life' of victuals, but all the fun was not in feastings. For the parties made their own music and their 'myrth of the honest' and the music was of the first order. No turn-the-knob for Mr. Priestley's Mr. Ackworth. Two wars broke the heart, cut down the rations, and sent the prices soaring.

✧ ✧ ✧

Invention provided the knobs and television has added the party seen by proxy. So millions will be seeking a quite different happiness from that of Mr. Pickwick and Mr. Ackworth. It is ridiculous to suppose they will not enjoy their Christmas with knobs on! And, by the time the presents have been bought at present prices, who can be blamed for accepting the bounty of radio and the chance to be a non-paying arm-chair critic of day-long, night-long jollification?

But some of us will manage without.

Letters To The Editor

CORRECTION ON THE SAULT

SIR: Re. your editorial in the Examiner "Sedate and Leisurely"—it is a safe bet that the citizen of Sault Ste. Marie at the turn of the century had tea for breakfast and instead of doughnuts, baked beans and fried potatoes with his porridge and salt pork.

The city of Peterborough today uses more coffee in a year than the whole of Canada at that time.

Also I doubt if the word—goloshes—was in use then, they were known as overshoes and only worn in the bigger citys. He would more likely have worn shoes-packs—mocassins—or gumboots with leather legs in winter and if he was not at work at 7 o'clock he was not a working man and there were not many of any other kind in the Sault at that time.

Yours,
J. J. McDONALD,
62 Hunter St.,
Peterborough, Ont.

KEY TO UTOPIA

Sir: Christmas prompts most people to go all out in an effort to have one grand day of the year and completely lose the other 364 days. After all, what do these other 364 days mean and bring to humanity the world over? Are they not play, work, sweat, tears, struggles, frustration, fights, harmony, ill will, good will, wars, murders, suicides, bankruptcy, prosperity to some, downfall to others and a million and one other things? Let's peer for a moment into possibilities that should and can make every day Christmas. The authorities are barking about sharing Atomic Energy while others say, if you don't ban the bomb how can we share anything? So much for muddled twaddle, but has anyone proved you can eat it? has anyone proved that it's a road to peace, or that any good will can come of it or feed the masses or satisfy the power greedy? I doubt it will accomplish anything for the simple reason the main and most important of all things is either forgotten and left out entirely that one thing is the World Stomach. Well, now for the solution of a changed economy for the world. First: set up a World Control Board to mete out equally as possible, shelter, clothing, fuel and food. That's all. After that everything takes cares of itself, you see; then everyone can follow his or her favoured occupation without wages, you won't need the filthy lucre any more; the Board takes care of everything. Looks and sounds complicated but actually simple and plain as the nose on your face.

GOODWILL TO ALL MEN

A WORD ABOUT RENTS

SIR: It may be quite a surprise to find that the Examiner is read with great interest in this part of the world, but I keep receiving copies from relatives whom are at present residing in Peterborough.

My friends and myself are extremely interested in your paper which is read very diligently from cover to cover, and I must say that your reports both national and local make very interesting reading and enables us to obtain a far greater knowledge of your country and its people.

However, I would like to point out a rather misleading statement which appeared in your publication of November 7th under the heading "Britain Adds 300,000 Units in Effort to Solve Shortage." Your writer, Ronald Maclurkin states that loans received from "building societies" are usually repaid at the rate of 12 shillings, but at this rate a person borrowing for example £2,000 and this amount is possible, would have to repay at the rate of £128-6s.-8d per month which is approximately 3 times as much as a highly skilled workman receives in salary per month. Another rather misleading statement is the writer's assessment of rents for "Council Houses." In the early 1930's there were council houses whose rents were approximately 9 shillings per week but these have increased at least 50% and new houses now range from 18 shillings to 50 shillings per week depending on size and locality.

In addition to rent a further charge for local rates is paid weekly with the rent and the amount ranges from 6 shillings to 25 shillings per week once again depending on size and locality.

Therefore at the present time the living cost of a new four roomed house plus usual conveniences and situated in a thickly populated manufacturing area is roughly 24 shillings per week and a 7 roomed house in a rural residential area 70 to 80 shillings per week.

Trusting you do not mind the pointing out of what seems to me to be errors in this report, and hoping to be able to continue to receive and read your excellent newspaper. No doubt by the time you receive this letter the Christmas season will have arrived therefore please accept my best wishes for a happy Christmas and prosperous New Year.

Yours faithfully,
Mr. NAYLOR HURLEY,
Cleekheaton, Yorkshhire,
England.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Saul, yet breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high priest, and desired of him letters to Damascus to the synagogues, that if he found any of this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem.

And as he journeyed, he came near Damascus: and suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven: and he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. And he trembling and astonished said, Lord, what wilt thou have me do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city and it shall be told thee what thou must do. And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus.

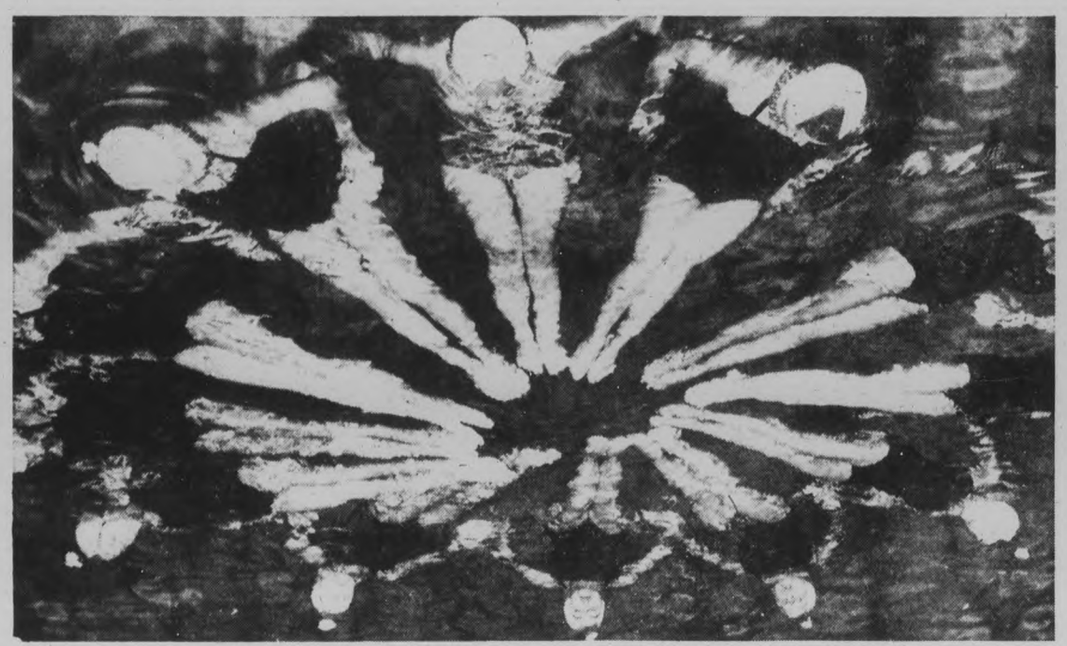
And there was a certain disciple at Damascus named Ananias: and to him said the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I am here, Lord. And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and enquire in the house of Judas for one called Saul, of Tarsus: for, behold, he prayeth, and hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his sight. And Ananias went his way, and entered into the house; and putting his hands on him said, Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost. And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales: and received sight forthwith, and arose, and was baptized. (Acts 9:1-6, 8, 10-12, 17, 18.)

Sewage Problem

(Hamilton Spectator)

Sewage is not a particularly savory subject but it is one from which the citizens cannot afford to shy away. The plain fact is that Hamilton Bay has already become an overloaded cesspool and that the Lake Ontario shoreline is in danger of a pollution which would deprive thousands, young and old, of summer recreation.

Not so long ago space seemed unbounded in this part of the world—a few septic tanks would not contaminate a broad countryside; a few sewer outlets would not pollute the limitless lake waters.



But suddenly we find ourselves in the heart of one of the most densely settled areas of the continent. Thousands of new homes sprouting on what five years ago was farmland are the symptoms of the problem.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

Today is Boxing Day.

It bears no resemblance to its origin which, we understand, originated in England when the landed gentry and others of high rank gave peasants and servants gifts in boxes the day following Christmas. Perhaps the boxes contained left-overs of food from the great feasting. There would be little left for that sort of thing these days.

THE GREAT TURKEY has been reduced to a cold clean frame. Dabs of rich food overflow the refrigerator and cupboards. No one is very hungry, not even the family dog and cat that got special hand-outs on Christmas day. It would be a good day to do nothing . . .

However, we must bring some sort of order to the menage and everyone should help. But they don't. The children have fled to try out new skates on rink and river or can't be pried from the phone where they spend hours arranging for some big dance or party.

BOXING DAY is the day when all the clutter of boxes and wrappings must be sorted out and gift cards salvaged. It is a headache. Though we try each Christmas morning to write the nature of each gift on each donor's card as it is delivered from the tree the handling tempo is too fast, we are too sleepy or pencils become lost after the first few minutes.

You shouldn't thank great-aunt Agatha for a bottle of wine when she sent you a crocheted mauve teapot cover; but it's so easy when you get the cards mixed, and so embarrassing.

AS FAR AS CHRISTMAS wrappings go the man of the house is all for bundling up the whole caboodle and having a quick roaring fire in the back yard. The females think otherwise. The pretty papers have to be smoothed out and folded and ribbons rolled, all to be stored in the attic, and thrown out before next Christmas rolls 'round because the squirrels have got at them. Consequently, the fire is a fizzle.

So, if we don't make too much headway with housecleaning we can at least study the greeting cards at leisure after the flurry has died down.

Cards that arrive in batches before Christmas we often miss seeing altogether. They are snatched away to form festoons for room decorations. Now we are able to asses them as a group.

The kind that leave me cold are those with the donor's names printed on them that come in typewritten envelopes. Then there are the cards that are so large they won't go through the Post Office mailing chutes. There are also the cards that bear no relation to Christmas or seasonal messages, whatsoever.

Snow-covered trees and landscapes, Santas, chimes, stars and the endless variety of seasonal motifs are fine and dandy. But pictures of the Nativity, where are they? According to my count religious designs make up a bare two per cent of Christmas card designs these days, the majority of these from clergymen acquaintances.

It was good hearing from people far and near, even their brief messages of good wishes and their hopes for OUR Happy New Year.

Another New Year's Day will have come and gone before this column appears again and looking back on the old it was a happy one, most of us will agree.

A happy and prosperous NEW Year to you all.

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

Our "wee" tummy is so full of turkey, sauce, Christmas pudding, shortbreads, candy, potatoes, dressing, ice cream, and oh my goodness so much else, it keeps shoving the tyyyyyppp——wwwwrrrrriiiittteeerrrr aaaaaaway from my hands.

Boy! What will the coach say when he sees me. He spent months building this frame into shape, gradually developing a 52-inch chest (Yukon Eric's size) and a 26-inch waist (oooIllaalaaa, Marilyn Munro's size).

Gad!! Look at me now!! I look like that bell-shaped reporter-photographer who covers our games.

But enough of this fooling around, I say, I'd better say it before the boss does, dear fellow.

Just a second before we branch off into some random shots at the sports scene, here's a little poem a little fellow said at the Children's Aid Shelter Christmas party. It certainly applies to many today.

"What's the matter with you!
I have been your friend, I have!
I have been a partner to you.
All my pennies, don't I spend

In Getting Nice things for you?
Didn't I give you lots of Cake
Say stomach! What's the matter
That you had to go and ache?

Why I loaded you with good things on Christmas,
I gave you more potatoes, squash and turkey
Than you've ever had before.
I gave you nuts and candy, pumpkin pie and cake
And last night, when I got to bed,
You had to go and ache!

I've been a friend to you, I have
But you're not a friend of mine
They gave me castor oil last night
Cnuse you made me whine.
I'm awful sick this morning
And I'm feeling mighty blue
Because you don't appreciate the things I do for you.

It's quite cute, isn't it? But it was much cuter the way the little chap, Ralph by name, said it. His expressions, both facial and vocal, made the verses twice as good.

A special little bow to this fine young boy.

Back to the more serious business and the question, Is there a Santa Claus? There's only one answer, a definite Yes. He's the supreme Power and plays Christmas every day to new-born babes, gifting them with special abilities in mind and body.

Through the years these men and women use His gifts to become lawyers, doctors, machinists, hockey players, and other life-work.

To the sportsman, the hockey, lacrosse, baseball and other sports players, God has added something else besides the gift to play. He has provided friends who are true, sincere the world over. The sports fraternity is truly great.

A number of young men and boys in Peterborough have been gifted in sports.

Beginning at the top there's little Ike Hildebrand, playing professional hockey with the New York Rangers. Besides this great gift in hockey the genial Ike is also rated one of Canada's best lacrosse forwards. He is certainly making the most of his gifts.

Who can forget Ashburnham's George (Red) Sullivan? The redhead has stepped along, especially leading the American League this year. He's also gifted in many other sports, particularly softball, baseball and golf.

While running along the hockey lineup, there's a number of others such as Bill Stewart with the Hamilton junior A club, Bud McDougall, Bob Gardner, Jerry Frizzelle and other Pete junior B players.

Of course one remembers when talking of sport gifts of Les Ascott, ye olde Orfun and Toronto Argonaut, of course good olde PCVS. Being a lineman he maybe over-looked by sportswriters at times, but Les has certainly made the best of his gift.

Still in football there are many others from high school to college to intermediate and senior.

In fact there are many others who have made full use of their sports' gift such as Don Griffin and Ray Thomas, basketball players with the senior Tri-bells! Bev Goulding in coaching, Lloyd (Moon) Wootton in lacrosse; Bill Lech and Al Marshall in swimming, and these are only a few in the many successful ones.

Yes, there is a Santa. One whom we all should respect, honor and obey, and praise to all.

Albion Shares Top Place In U.K. Soccer

LONDON (AP)—West Bromwich Albion scored a 5-2 victory over bottom-of-the-table Liverpool Friday and drew level with Wolverhampton Wanderers at the top of the English League Division I soccer standings.

Wolverhampton lost 2-1 to Aston Villa Thursday in the major upset of the Christmas games. That means Wolverhampton and Albion share top spot in the first division with 35 points from 25 games.

Liverpool, which spent about £20,000 on two new players last week, plunged into the transfer market again during the Christmas holiday.

The team laid out another £30,000 for left back Frank Lock and inside right Johnnie Evans, both new men will turn out today in the return games against West Bromwich. The other Liverpool newcomers are goalkeeper David Underwood and centre Half Geoff Twentyman.

Albion goes to the top of the first division on goal average. Burnley, which whipped Preston North End 2-1, moves into third place over Huddersfield town. Huddersfield managed only a 1-1 draw at Sunderland. Burnley is three points behind the leader.

GOALIE INJURED

The holiday games were marred by an injury to Birmingham and England goalkeeper Gilbert Merrick who was carried off unconscious in the second half against Nottingham county.

He collided with Notts centre forward Tom Leverton. Merrick was unconscious for 20 minutes but was allowed to go home after the game. It is doubtful if he will be fit for today's return game. Birmingham won Friday's match 3-0.

Leicester City moved into a clear lead in the second division with a 4-1 victory over Rotherma. Inside forward Eric Rowley scored three times to give Leicester 33 points from 24 games.

Doncaster Rovers faltered 2-0 against Blackburn Rovers and surrendered second place to Everton which defeated Bristol Rovers 4-0. Everton has 32 points and Doncaster 31.

The English soccer program calls for two games in two days over Christmas. Return matches of Friday's games will be played today.

Soccer's Style On Continent Said Superior

"Why Scotland can never be a Hungary" is the caption of an article by a sports writer in the Sunday Post, a British weekly paper. Dealing with a game when a team of soccer players from Hungary played against a team of stars of England, the writer points out that the visitors from Hungary had a smooth style throughout the match which baffled the British team, showing many weaknesses on the latter club, and sending the spectators into rhapsodies with passing plays from end to end of the pitch.

They dealt the biggest body blow ever to British soccer tactics, showing a brand better than anything the Old Country has to offer, and the conclusion of the officials was: Something has to be done.

But, let us face it, said the writer, nothing can be done. The whole setup of the game in Britain is against improving on play. Points are more precious than pretty football. By taking the fire and fierce competition out of our game, our players would get a chance to develop.

HAND-TO-MOUTH

Most of the top clubs in Britain's league are living a hand-to-mouth existence. Cash they draw at gates is divided between players' wages and government taxes.

On the continent, the players are amateurs and government puts cash into, rather than takes out of, the game. In other words, football is more or less nationalized. But politics introduced into the sport in Britain would evidently put the soccer game on the rocks. And the question still remains: What can we do about the game?

There is talk in Scotland of inviting an Iron Curtain team to visit Parkhead, Celtics' football field, for an exhibition match soon.

Vancouver's Weight Lifter Canada's Leading Athlete

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Doug Hepburn, 280-pound weightlifter from Vancouver and an unknown outside his native province a few months ago, is Canada's outstanding male athlete of 1953.

OUTSTANDING ATHLETE—Doug Hepburn's biceps won him the accolade as Canada's outstanding male athlete in 1953 in the annual Canadian Press sports poll. The 280-pound Vancouver weightlifter won the world heavyweight championship in Stockholm last August with a total lift of 1,030¼ pounds.

He won the accolade by a shade, perhaps by the margin of his biceps, in the annual Canadian Press sports poll among the country's sports editors and sportseasters. It was the closest vote in the 19-year history of the poll.

On a point basis of 3-2-1 for the first three choices, Hepburn polled a total of 100 points, just five more than Toronto's Earl Walls, heavyweight boxer whose feats brought him country-wide recognition during the year. Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wing right-winger in the National Hockey League, placed third with 84 points.

Maurice Richard, chosen Canada's top athlete and her outstanding sports personality in 1952, placed fourth and well out of the running with 36 points. The Montreal Canadiens' right-winger caught the eye of only seven selectors for first place, five for second and five for third.

From there in the list was well strung out, ranging from 27 points for Gerry Kesselring, No. 1 Ontario amateur golfer from Kitchener, now a professional, to single points for 12 others.

The selectors named 40 men for the honor and the list represented practically every sport in the book. Besides weight-lifting, boxing, hockey and golf there was football, track and field, skiing, baseball, swimming, badminton, basketball, tennis, harness horse driving, squash and a football coach—Annis Stukus of British Columbia Lions who will play in the Western Interprovincial Football Union in 1954.

But at no time was it a wide-open race. From the first returns it was evident that the 27-year-old Hepburn, Walls and Howe were the choices of the voters as first one and then another took over the lead until the 85th, and last ballot, was in.

And it was one night's work far from home that decided the issue for the Vancouver strong man.

Already holder of the Canadian and British Empire weight-lifting titles—a fact little known outside strong-man circles—he went unheralded to Europe last summer. On Aug. 30 at Stockholm he won the world heavyweight championship with a total lift of 1,030¼ pounds.

He defeated John Davis of the United States, world and Olympic champion, and Argentina's Humberto Selvetti.

He didn't receive the acclaim of other Canadian world champions but selectors remembered his feat months later.

It was no surprise that Howe and Walls were high up in the list. Howe has been a standout pro hockey player for years and is a better-than-average ball player. Walls hit the headlines during the year with his exploding fists that gave him knockouts over contending heavyweight title fighters.

The selectors put the finger mainly on football and hockey players although they did recognize the achievements of Toronto's Cliff Lumsden in the professional long-distance swimming world; Tommy Burgess of London, Ont., an outstanding international baseball league player with Rochester; golfers Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, Henry Martell of Edmonton, Don Doe of Granby, Que., and Toronto's Ernie Howard, North American squash titleholder.

PLACES IN POLL—Gordie Howe, right-winger with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, placed third among outstanding male athletes in Canada in 1953 in The Canadian Press annual poll. Howe, a standout hockey player for years, is a better-than-average baseball player also.

WINS RECOGNITION—Earl Walls, of Toronto, heavyweight boxer, won second place among Canada's athletes in the Canadian Press annual sports poll for 1953. The Toronto heavyweight boxer hit the headlines during the year with knockouts over contending heavyweight title fighters.

Canadian Buys English Filly

By JOHN HISLOP

LONDON, (OFNS)— Kerkeb, a three-year-old filly bought from Prince Aly Khan by a Canadian buyer, Vernon C. Cardy, of Alpine Inn, St. Marguerite, Station, Province of Quebec, is the highest-class filly to be exported from Britain this year. Bred and raced by the Aga Khan, Kerkeb, who is by the 1943 Derby (English classic) winner, Straight Deal, out of Brenda Mar, by Nearco, was one of the best-staying fillies of her generation, winning four of her nine races, running second three times and third once. Her most important victories were the Park Hill Stakes at Doncaster, the Yorkshire Oats at York and the Newmarket St. Leger. She ran second to Ambiguity (whom she later beat) in the Oaks, but a number of observers considered her an unlucky loser.

She was trained by M. Marsh, trainer of the record British stake-winner, Tulyar, and in most of her races was ridden by C. Smirke, who won the 1953 Washington International at Laurel Park in the United States, on Worden II.

The price paid for Kerkeb is said to be about £20,000, which indicates that Canada is on the way to building up its bloodstock industry to a far higher standard than it has achieved in the past.

TOPS—Canada's most outstanding girl athlete is still Marlene Stewart who climaxed her 1953 season by w...ing the British Open Championship. This is the third time the ... golfer has been named the Dominion's best. She was ... out in front when the voting poll closed, being an almost unanimous choice for the leading lady honors.

Boston Bruins Win 4-1 Match From Black Hawks

By WALTER GRAY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The turkey bones were well picked over. The last plum of the pudding was eaten. Boston Bruins won a 4-1 sweetmeat over Chicago Black Hawks and the Christmas Day feast was over. But Montreal Canadiens had a sudden attack of indigestion, the result of a well-seasoned announcement by the National Hockey League: Canadiens' high-scoring forward Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, along with Ron Murphy of New York Rangers will remain on the suspension list until an official inquiry is made into events resulting in match penalties to both players during last Sunday's game in New York. The decision of the inquiry, scheduled to open in Montreal today, is not expected before next week.

NEED STRENGTH

And the Habs, trying to overtake the leading Detroit Red Wings, need all the strength they can muster. They face the Rangers in Montreal tonight.

Murphy is still taking hospital treatment for head injuries allegedly inflicted by Geoffrion's stick. Geoffrion claims Murphy struck him first.

The on-again-off-again Jean Beliveau will be off again tonight, still recuperating from a fractured cheekbone. A mask has been designed to protect his face and he will wear it when his doctors say he is able to play again.

The Rangers are also minus Max Bentley, out with the 'flu. They haven't won a game on Montreal ice in four years.

OTHER ACTION

In other action tonight, the Red Wings meet the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs. Sunday, Chicago is at New York and Boston is at Detroit.

In Boston Friday night, defenceman Hal Laycoe assisted on the winning goal and then scored himself to give the Bruins their win over the last-place Hawks.

The Bruins opened the scoring in the first period when Joe Klukay snared a pass from team captain Milt Schmidt and slammed it in. Three minutes later George Gee slipped onto Larry Zeidel who, with his first goal of the season, tied the game. Laycoe's pass to Cal Gardner set up the tie-breaker with less than two minutes remaining in the second period and with a man missing from each line-up.

Laycoe scored early in the third and Schmidt scored the final.

Lions Set To Meet Browns In NFL Final Sunday

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Lions and Cleveland Browns were set for final drills today in preparation for the "big one" Sunday when the championship of the National Football League will be decided on the frozen turf of Briggs Stadium.

The bettors have installed coach Paul Brown's Cleveland club as 5½-point favorites, mainly on the strength of the passing arm of quarterback Otto Graham, the line-crashing of fullbacks Marion Motley and Harry Jagade and the place-kicking of Lou (The Toe) Groza.

But Brown is not counting his Lions before they are skinned. The Detroit team, defending champions, has met Cleveland seven times in the past, and six times the Lions have walked off the field with victories. They settled for a tie in the other meeting earlier this year.

NOW OR NEVER

Coach Buddy Parker of the Lions wasn't making any predictions for his squad but said "if they aren't ready now, they never will be."

Both teams went through brief Christmas Day workouts, and following the Detroit drill, the players found six $50 bills hanging on a locker room Christmas tree for each of them.

Detroit will depend on the passing of Bobby Layne and the running of Doak Walker and Bobby Hoernschemeyer in a bid to retain the crown.

The game will be carried in the U.S. on a national television hook-up with the kickoff scheduled for 1 p.m. EST. Detroit and a 75-mile radius around the city will be blacked out.

Seixas To Play Hoad Opening Davis Cup

MELBOURNE (AP)—Vic Seixas of the United States will meet Australia's Lewis Hoad in the opening singles match Monday of the Davis Cup challenge round.

Australian captain Harry Hopman named Rosewall and Hoad to represent Australia in the doubles match Tuesday. Captain Billy Talbert of the challenging U.S. team nominated Seixas and Trabert.

Both, however, reserved the right to make a change an hour before the match.

PLAY FIRST

Hoad and Trabert will play first in Wednesday's singles match, with Seixas and Rosewall following.

Talbert said: "We couldn't have had a better draw if we had arranged it ourselves. I am confident we will start off with two victories and put the pressure on the Australians."

Seixas has defeated Hoad in their last four meetings this year. Trabert and Rosewall have each won twice in four matches.

Hopman said he was not displeased with the draw, although it is known that he preferred Hoad to meet Trabert on opening day. This would have paired Seixas with Rosewall, who has trimmed the Wimbledon titleholder in the last six meetings.

The draw was held in Kooyong Stadium under a bright sun. Names were pulled from a bowl by Amos Peasley, U.S. ambassador to Australia, and Sir Dallas Brooks, governor of Victoria.

A crowd of about 5,000 paid two shillings each to witness the semi-final workout of the two teams.

Holiday Accidents In District Send 5 People To Hospital

Provincial Police were active on Christmas investigating and sorting out car accidents throughout the district that sent five people to hospital with injuries. Hugh Duffy, 25, of 203 Belgravia Ave., Toronto, was driving north on Highway 45 to spend Christmas with his wife and mother who had already arrived at the home of Charles Armstrong, RR 3, Havelock. Duffy's car ran off a second curve while driving north, skidded 190 feet, hit a rail fence and came to rest 40 feet off the pavement, south of Hastings.

Kenneth Beamish, 19, and Leon Lynch, 19, both of Hastings, located the car and Mr. Duffy; he was bleeding badly. Beamish stayed with him and Lynch drove to Hastings and brought back Chief Constable Leonard Switzer to investigate. Mr. Duffy was rushed to a Peterborough hospital where authorities today report that his condition is serious.

On Christmas morning, a car driven by Hubert Jacobs, 22, Curve Lake with Raymond Taylor 26, 1033 Water Street and Mrs. William Edwards of Curve Lake, went out of control one half-mile south of the Curve Lake and Buckhorn Road intersection. The vehicle hit the soft road shoulder, plunged down a 15-foot embankment, turned over on its roof and skidded 96 feet in that position before stopping at a clump of cedar trees.

THROWN CLEAR

Jacobs was thrown clear of the car into the bush and was not located for an hour after Dr. Hugh Gastle of Lakefield and the ambulance had arrived to take care of the other occupants. The car was a complete write-off. The condition of the four people today, hospital authorities report are, Taylor and Mrs. Edwards, resting satisfactorily; Jacobs was not admitted to hospital for attention. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable Roy Feeley.

Mac Nelson of Warkworth was admitted to a Peterborough hospital on Christmas Eve. While driving his car near Norham in the afternoon the door came open and he fell out, hitting the pavement on his left side.

After being given first aid by Dr. Roy Joliffe of Warkworth he was taken to Peterborough hospital where it was found he had broken his left elbow. He was discharged after treatment. There was no damage done to his car.

Mr. Nelson, a steam shovel operator at Camborne, had his right arm broken just about one year ago and before that had lost four fingers on his left hand in a sawmill accident at Warkworth.

His accident on Christmas Eve took place near the home of Howard Russell, whose brother-in-law, Maurice Yabfley, took him by car to Peteborough for treatment.

CAR ROLLED OVER

Norman James, 17, of 213 Westcott St., pulled around a car that had stopped in front of him about a mile east of Brookside pavilion on Highway 7, on Christmas afternoon. James' car hit a steep embankment and rolled over on its side damaging it to an estimated $300; the driver was not hurt.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Roy Huggins of RR 4, Lakefield, returning from Christmas dinner at the home of his wife's parents, were forced off the Stony lake road about five miles east of Highway 28. An eastbound car approaching Mr. Huggins made him cut his car over the soft shoulder and into the ditch to a clump of trees. Their two children, Frank, 5, and Gaile, 4, were unhurt but Mr. and Mrs. Huggins were taken to hospital by ambulance where head injuries to both were treated. Their conditions are satisfactory today but their car was a complete wreck. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constables Tom Armitage and Bruce Tillson.

Assessment Appeal Hearings Commence Monday Night

The city has retained the services of the legal firm of Carley, Standish, Clarke and Carley as special solicitors in the hearing of appeals in the court of revision against the 1953 assessment. Mayor Hugh Waddell said it was understood that one member of the firm would act for the city throughout the entire sitting of the court from December 28 to March 2.

In a letter to city council, Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis stated that, as a result of this year's re-assessment, it was considered there were too many appeals to be handled alone by City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, QC.

There have been 537 appeals entered against the assessment of commercial and residential properties. Of the former, there are 172 on which they will recommend to be corrected. Another 70 have to do with changes in ownership or tenancy or the question of whether the property should be assessed for public or separate school support.

WILL BE DEFENDED

The other residential and commercial assessments which have been appealed will be defended by the city at the court of revision.

Of the 21 appeals against assessment of industrial property, 11 consist of properties in which errors have been found in the measurements taken by the Charles Warnock Co. of Hamilton, who contracted to assess the city's industrial property.

In accordance with the terms of their contract with the city, the Warnock company will defend the other 10 appeals against industrial assessments.

The schedule for hearings has now been fixed by the members of the court of revision in discussions with the assessment commissioner. The court is composed of John A. Harstone, chairman, Thomas C. Ephgrave and Fred L. Finnie.

All appeals against residential assessments will be heard in the evenings, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Industrial appeals will be heard in the daytime beginning at 10 a.m.

FIRST APPEALS

The evenings of December 28, 29 and 30 have been set for hearing appeals against the assessment of residential and commercial properties in which the assessment department have made errors. On the evening of January 5, the court hopes to hear all appeals which are not against the assessed value of the property. These include appeals for changes in ownership, tenancy or school support.

On January 6, starting at 10 a.m., the court will begin hearing appeals against industrial assessments in which errors of measurement have been made.

Hearing of appeals against assessed values of residential and commercial properties to be defended by the city, will begin the evening of January 7 at 7:30 o'clock and will be heard each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening thereafter until Tuesday, March 2. No sittings will be held during the new year on any other night in the week.

Appeals against the assessed values of industrial properties, which the Warnock company will defend, will be heard from March 3 until March 24, beginning at 10 a.m.

In the case of every appeal, the city will send a notice to the appellant, showing on what date his appeal is to be heard. Hearings will take place in the general committee room on the second floor of the north wing of city hall.

Accidents Few In City Streets Over Holiday

City traffic accidents were relatively few over the Christmas holiday. Six minor accidents were reported but damage was small. There were no injuries.

One man, Alex Varcoe, RR 8, Peterborough will be charged with careless driving as a result of an accident involving one other car owned by Norman C. Smith, 756 Cameron St. The incident took place at the corner of Park and Lansdowne Sts. Constable G. Emmons investigated.

A 1947 model car owned by George W. Carphin, 187 London St., was damaged to the extent of $800 when in collision with a 1952 pick-up driven by Hilton Hadley, 30, of 751 McKellar St. Damage to Hadley's truck was estimated at $120. The accident occurred Thursday at the corner of Downie and London Sts.

A 1947 car, owned by Jack Saunders, 120 Aylmer St. and driven by Mrs. Walter Kent, 35, also of 120 Aylmer St., went out of control Thursday evening on Hunter St., and sideswiped two parked cars. The two parked cars, both facing east on the north side of the street, were owned by Clare G. Collins, 528 Hunter St., and Dr. J. Russell Morgan, 525 Weller St. Total damage to the three cars were estimated at $220. Constable W. G. Scott investigated.

An American car owned by Philip H. Morrow of Rochester, N.Y., and driven by Cecil Morrow, 23, of RR 1, Tweed, received $150 damage when in collision with a 1950 model car owned and driven by Herbert Hamblin, 67, of 400 Wellington St. The accident occurred at McDonnel and Stewart streets, Christmas night. Estimated damage to Hamblin's car was $200. Investigation was by Constable H. Andrew.

Damage was slight Thursday, when a Colonial Coach bus bumped the rear of an Ennismore car, owned by Mrs. Ada Kent and driven by 16-year-old Kenneth C. Kent. The accident occurred at Reid and Sherbrooke streets. The car receive about $100 damage. The bus was unscathed. Simpson Dawson, 25 Fair Ave., Lindsay, was driving the bus.

Constable H. Andrew investigated.

Little damage was incurred in a car-truck accident at Simcoe and Bethune streets, Thursday. A pick-up truck owned by W. V. Drury, 268 Charlotte St., and driven by D. S. Barringer, 28, of 308 Welsh St., received $65 damage. The car, driven by John R. Shannon received about $35 damage. Constable Wilfred Perry investigated.

Fall Kills Child

WARREN, Pa. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kervine awoke early Christmas to take their only son to see his presents, but instead found him dead on a landing at the foot of the stairway. The boy, James, 2, apparently fell down seven steps during the night. He died of a broken neck.

Two Small Fires Quickly Doused

Only two fires marred the Christmas holiday and firemen of the Peterborough fire department made short work of them. Damage was light in both cases.

A cigarette was blamed for a studio couch fire in the Swartz apartments at 748 Water. A hand pump put that one out.

An overheated heater set fire to a partition in the Quaker Oats dam tool shed when the cooling fan stopped cooling. Flames damaged the wall to the extent of $250.

Chinese Thank Geogi

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Communist Chinese workers today sent a telegram to Premier Malenkov of Russia expressing "profound gratitude for the great assistance of Soviet experts" at the opening of three new steel plants in Manchuria, the official Peiping radio reported.

Workers Held-Up By Glasgow Strike

GLASGOW Reuters)—A strike by Glasgow's streetcar and bus drivers today kept thousands from going back to work after the Christmas break.

The union ordered the strike in protest against a recent award of four shillings a week more pay, regarded as insufficient. Strike leaders have threatened to repeat the one-day token stoppage every Saturday until wage demands are met.

Restaurant Ruined

OGDENSBURG, N.Y. (AP)—The Gran View restaurant was destroyed by a wind-whipped fire Friday night and the loss was estimated unofficially at approximately $60,000. Two tanks of bottled gas exploded outside the two-storey wooden building and sent embers flying several hundred feet into the air. No one was injured.

Bull 28 Inches High Forgot To Grow Up

A little bull goes a long way. Much farther than a bigger bull that stops, prematurely, before the swinging hammer of the butcher.

"Tob Thumb," a 28-inch-high Hereford bull, owned by Hugh Stewart, is reported to be more than a year old. Many of his generation have long since filled a home with tantalizing scent, as they lay sizzling and dissected in a frying pan.

But "Tom" is still gambolling about the Exhibition grounds, pet of young David Stewart, and mascot of the horse barns. His actions are more like a puppy than any solemn bull.

Yet "Tom" is a mature animal, perfectly proportioned, relatively speaking, to a full grown Hereford bull. In fact, he gobbles up three gallons of oats a day, plus a good share of powdered milk —a diet not exceeded by his equine mates—and his equator is beginning to show the effects.

The cause of his size is not certain, but it is thought to be the result of a thyroid defect. Several inspections by veterinarians have ascertained that, except for the growth abnormalty, the animal is in good health.

Mr. Stewart intends to keep it as a curio and pet. "Tom" doesn't mind in the least.

LONG TOM? Not quite. Tom Thumb is the name this full grown midget bull sports. Twenty-eight inches high, he seems a little apprehensive as horses owned by Hugh Stewart give him the once over. He has become the pet of the Stewart family. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Program Of Alterations To Transform Appearance Of The Examiner Building

Present Conventional Style To Be Changed To One of Modern Building Structures In Keeping With Business Improvements

Work will begin shortly after the New Year on a $50,000 program of alterations, which will transform the appearance of The Examiner building from its present conventional style to one of the most modern business structures in Peterborough, in keeping with the general trend of improvement in the city's downtown section.

In a departure from local examples of traditional architecture, The Examiner building will assume a strictly contemporary aspect in black and white, in keeping with the contrast between type and newsprint of the pages of the daily newspaper.

Basis of the alterations will be the complete removal of the present brick bearing walls facing Water and Hunter Sts., to be replaced by structural steel girders fronted by a "curtain" wall of masonry-backed Macotta panels of porcelain enamel on steel and horizontal lines of clear glass.

Central to the design, at the Water and Hunter St. corner will be an 18-foot solid panel of black ceramic brick, rising to the full height of the building and containing the name of the newspaper and the masthead device in white metal.

The Hunter St. side of the building will be of white Macotta with aluminum window sash. Thin black vertical mullions, spaced six feet apart, will run the full height of the building.

The Water St. side will consist of black Macotta panels with continuous aluminum sashes on both the first and second floors. Overhead on both floors will be enclosed boxes to contain awnings which it will be possible to raise or lower from the inside and which will disappear completely when not in use.

CANOPY

At the top of the Water St. wall will be a canopy extending approximately 2½ feet out from the building, surmounted by the name of the newspaper in free-standing letters a foot high.

Eight-inch wide channeled sections of glazed Duco enamel will run the full height of the building at 17½-foot intervals on the Water St. side.

In the course of planning the alterations, it was discovered through a survey that the building at present extends seven and 13 inches over the street line. As a consequence, the new walls will be kept within the street line.

This will not affect the area of space available to those conducting business with The Examiner, however. On the contrary, first-floor offices will be re-located so that the main office, including the circulation and classified advertising departments, will be larger than before, measuring 28 by 50 feet.

None of the departments will be in a new location, including the display advertising departments, and access from the street will be from the same points as at present but through new doors of 1¼-inch armor plate glass in aluminum frames.

CONNECT FRAMEWORK

Inside the building, the new free-standing columns, which will tie in with the existing steel framework, will extend the height of the building inside the curtain walls. The interior walls will be of plaster, trimmed with wood and having a rubber tile base. The main office will contain a terrazo floor.

Besides its striking modern appearance, The Examiner's new exterior will have the advantage of being practically self-cleaning. It will require little maintenance except an occasional washing with water. No repainting will be necessary.

Replacement of the existing walls by the new curtain wall and the addition of structural steel beams will entail considerable skill in construction. Concrete piers will first be poured in the basement. On these, vertical columns will be mounted; these will carry horizontal beams which will be tied into the existing steel framing.

When this has been accomplished, a temporary dust-proof wall will be erected inside the existing wall which will then be torn down and the new curtain wall erected on the outside. The temporary wall will then be removed to permit the inside alterations to be completed.

CONTINUE PRINTING

During this entire process The Examiner will continue to be printed daily in the same building. The classified advertising, treasury and circulation departments will eventually take up temporary quarters in the Hunter St. premises recently occupied by Soden's book store. The editorial, display advertising and mechanical departments will remain in the present building throughout the alterations.

Alterations to The Examiner building mark the first change in its basic appearance since its erection. Records of the property date back to 1878 and it was operated as a hotel successively by Powie Morgan and Robert Munro untitl it was taken over as autumobile sales and display quarters by J. K. Hughes. It was purchased by The Peterborough Examiner Co. Ltd. December 10, 1935. The first copy of The Examiner to be published in the building came off the presses on September 14, 1936.

Architects who designed the alterations are W. and W. R. Blackwell and Craig and the contractor is Charles Huffman, both of Peterborough.

Thieves Have Busy Christmas Eve

ORILLIA (CP)—Thieves spent a busy Christmas Eve in Orillia. They broke into two garages, stole money from pop machines, tires from a show window, a truck from a parking lot and an auto from a street. Police, who recovered truck and auto, blame one group for the series of thefts.

HOUSE No. 63-210—A charming exterior and convenient interior are combined to make this one of the most appealing homes we have shown. Against its wooded background, this is truly a picture home. Straightforward roof lines make it economical to build too! Notice how the wide overhang of the eaves protects the living room window and entrance. While the plan shows two bedrooms, the study could easily be adapted to an additional bedroom. Built without basement, this home contains 11,340 cubic feet. (Note: Blueprints and material lists available for this home at reasonable cost through Home Building in Canada, 2842 Bloor St. W., Toronto. Plans $8.00 per set—$1.25 for material lists—plans available with or without basement.)

Along Broadway In 1953

Rosalind Russell Bursts Upon Musical-Comedy Scene

By GLADYS LENNON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—Along Broadway, 1953 is the year Rosalind Russell burst on the musical-comedy scene—the year of "Wonderful Town."

Otherwise the year followed much of the usual pattern—a few hits, a fairly high proportion of flops, and some shows that achieved substantial runs with or without the blessing of the critics.

There does not seem to be a serious rival to "Wonderful Town." The Leonard Bernstein musical about two Ohio girls in Greenwich Village is a song-and-dance version of the play, "My Sister Eileen," based on stories by Ruth Mckenney. Miss Russell's irrepressible vitality and the wry humor with which she plays Ruth, the girl with "100 easy ways to lose a man," play a large part in making this the year's top hit.

Another hit of the year is "The Teahouse of the August Moon," John Patrick's light-hearted satire on the United States occupation of Okinawa. It has John Forsythe as an army captain ordered to build a schoolhouse and teach democracy to the people of an Okinawan village.

"PICNIC" OUTSTANDING

In drama, outstanding is William Inge's Pulitzer Prize-winner, "Picnic." This is about several romance-hungry women in a small Kansas town and the havoc caused by a good-looking but worthless young man who paused briefly among them.

Also in the hit list are "Tea and Sympathy," a drama based on false charges of homosexuality in a boys' school, starring British actress Deborah Kerr; "The solid Gold Cadillac," in which Josephine Hull, as a small stockholder, takes a hand in the affairs of a large corporation with hilarious results, and "Sabrina Fair," a romantic comedy starring Joseph Cotten as a wealthy Long islander and Margaret Sullavan as a Chauffeur's daughter.

"The Prescott Proposals," just-opened drama about United Nations delegates, by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse, won the approval of most critics for the acting of Katharine Cornell as a delegate whose cherished plan for easing world tension is threatened by a potential scandal. Lorne Greene, Canadian radio commentator making his Broadway debut, also won praise in a real-life role.

Another newcomer, the Lavish Arabian Nights musical, "Kismet," has — among other things—music adapted from Alexander Borodin, and superb acting by Alfred Drake as a rogue and adventurer. In the words of one critic, however, "the good things that are in it are not artistically related."

REVUE APPLAUDED

The year's one revue, "John Murray Anderson's Almanac," also drew a round of critical applause, most of which went to the comedy team of Hermione Gingold, British comedienne making her first Broadway appearance, and Billy de Wolfe.

"The Crucible," Arthur Miller's drama on the effects of hysteria in a community, took the American Theatre Wing's best-play award, though some critics found it disappointing in comparison with his "Death of a Salesman."

A strong cast, headed by Arthur Kennedy and Beatrice Straight, included two Canadians—80-year-old Jean Adair of Hamilton, Ont., who died in May, a few weeks after ill health had forced her retirement from the cast, and Madeleine Sherwood, a former player with the Montreal Repertory Theatre.

Included in the substantial-run group were "Kind Sir," a rather thin comedy by Norman Krasna about an actress and a matrimony-dodging diplomat, with Mary Martin and Charles Boyer; the Cole Porter musical, "Can-Can," and Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Me and Juliet."

In Rosemary Casey's comedy, "Late Love," which survived a lukewarm critical reception in October, Quebec-born Lucile Watson earned orchids for distinguished acting as a mother, mistakenly believed to be a Victorian tyrant. Miss Watson, a veteran of more than 50 years on Broadway, has said that this is her last stage role.

Peter Ustinov's imaginative comedy, "The Love of four Colonels," which compares the wooing techniques of four Allied colonels in Germany, was the only import from the London stage to meet with any success here. Staged by with his wife Lilli Palmer, it was judged by New York critics the best foreign play of the 1952-53 season and ran for six months.

Among four London hits which flopped on Broadway was "A Pin to See the Peepshow," based on an actual British murder trial, which gave one performance. New York critics found the play dull but praised Joan Miller of Vancouver for her resourceful acting of the star role.

Notable off - Broadway developments included the opening of the new east - side Phoenix Theatre, which will present Broadway stars for limited runs in plays of their own choice. First production starred Canadian - born Hume Cronyn and his British wife, Jessica Tandy, in "Madam, will You Walk," the late Sidney Howard's comedy of ideas.

Both the play and the performances of the stars drew praise and the scheduled four-week run has been extended to six.

The New York City Centre presented a series of plays produced and directed by Jose Ferrer, who also starred. Two of his Broadway successes, "Cyrano de Bergerac" and "The Shrike," were followed by Shakespeare's "Richard III" regarded by critics as less successful than the first two. Ferrer's interpretation of Richard had been seen in Toronto, but not previously in New York.

Good Drainage Essential Study Lot Before Buying

Before signing on the dotted line for the site of your future home, get to know something about its main characteristics. If the soil has a rocky subsurface or is subject to constant underground water, there is certain to be extra expense. Larger numerous tree roots are also trouble makers in clearing a site. If the required cut and fill can reasonably be balanced, the grading task is simplified. If the excavated material must be hauled some distance from the site, or additional fill purchased, you have another expense to meet. Know in advance how much are these various expenses. You will then be able to reduce the cost of altering the design, as necessary, to fit the particular site.

Street grades that have been "established" by the community, and the location of any catchbasins and underground storm sewers, either in place or proposed, are the starting point in planning the drainage for any urban or suburban site. Gently rolling land usually involves cost to drain successfully.

The drainage of a flat or level lot generally requires the raising of the natural grade at the house to allow surface water to run off. A basement evacuation will provide a good supply of earth for this purpose.

A site having steep slopes over 8 to 10 percent generally involves a sharp rise in cost to develop and drain. Fast run-off water can be a problem as it runs from one property to the next. Also there is likely to be an erosion of disturbed ground which must be prevented.

It is desirable to have a site that slopes gently up from the street. Surface drainage to the street is good, and drainage from a basement plumbing fixture or floor drain is possible.

For a site that slopes down from a street, the drainage may have to be toward the rear yard, or be underground by pipe to a storm sewer. A basement for the house may be inadvisable. Such a site can be very successful but requires careful study.

Get the facts about any subsurface water that may drain toward the house site. City records of natural grades or evidence of filled ground will often show this. The most accurate way is to bore one or more test holes.

Study the topography of all land in the vicinity for surface drainage. If a lot has a doubtful drainage situation, check the existence of storm sewers, their location and capacity.

STEADY TEDDY—Duane Compton, of Wichita, Kan., has a dog named Teddy that has a keen sense of balance, and if there's a ride he hasn't been on, it's because he hasn't heard of it. At present Teddy is riding around on a motor scooter which has a "doggy" rumble seat. Teddy is also a veteran of motorcycle driving at speeds of 70 to 75 miles per hour.

Lee Shubert Dies In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Lee Shubert, president of the vast Shubert theatrical enterprises, died Friday at the age of 78.

He died just four days after entering Mount Sinai Hospital for treatment of a circulatory disturbance. The hospital said death was caused by "the complete failure of the circulatory system."

Lee Shubert was one of three brothers whose far-flung theatrical business at one time was estimated conservatively to be worth $400,000,000.

The eldest brother, Sam S. Shubert, died in 1905.

The youngest brother, the only survivor now of the famous trio of showmen, is Jacob J. Shubert.

The careers of the brothers were closely interwoven — so much so that the life story of Lee Shubert was also largely the life story of Sam and J.J.

INVADE BROADWAY

The three left Syracuse, N.Y., as young men and invaded Broadway.

They built many theatres in New York. These houses included the Forty-Fourth Street, the Lyric, the Shubert, Broadhurst, Booth, Plymouth, Morosco, Bijou, Ritz, the Forty-Ninth Street, Nora Bayes Forrest, Maxine Elliott and the Al Jolson.

Lee remained a bachelor until only a few years ago when he married the former Marcella Swanson who had appeared in many of his musical productions. She survives.

Paroled Killer Murders Two Shoots Himself

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)—A paroled murderer killed his wife, her father, and his brother-in-law and then shot himself to death Thursday night in an apartment at nearby Navarre.

Deputy sheriff Howard Imboden identified the slayer as Orvis Burdett, 39, who was paroled three years ago after serving 13 years of a life term for stamping a man to death in a Huntington, W. Va. hotel in 1936.

Imboden listed the other dead as Burdett's wife, Gwendelene, 26; her father, Columbus Cochran, 49; and Delbert Gwinn, 33.

Gwinn, husband of Cochran's daughter, Christina, 20, died at city hospital here about two hours after the shooting. The others all were dead when police first got to the apartment.

Three infants who were in the bedroom into which Burdett herded his relatives for the shooting were unhurt.

Imboden said Christina Gwinn told him the family had not seen Burdett for four months before Thursday night, but feared him so much that her father had bought a pistol for protection a few weeks ago.

Noted Anthropologist

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Ralph Linton, 60, a noted anthropologist and professor at Yale University, died Thursday of heart disease. His "Study of Man" is included in a list of the 200 most important books on social studies written during the first half of the 20th century.

New Police Boss

NEW YORK (AP)—Francis W.H. Adams, one-time federal attorney, Friday was named boss of New York City's 20,000-man police force. The 50-year-old Adams was appointed police commissioner by mayor-elect Robert F. Wagner, whose new administration takes office Jan. 1.

Xmas Greetings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgi Zaroubin, Russia's ambassador to the United States, Friday asked a radio news commentator to "convey to the American people his Christmas greeting and his best wishes for the new year." The message was passed on by David Wills, commentator on a NBC news program.

Five Die In Fire

FLAT ROCK, Mich. (AP)—Mrs. Mary Hurst, 25, and her four children were burned to death Friday when fire trapped them in their home while they slept. The father, Ross Hurst, was taken to hospital suffering critical burns. Firemen were unable to determine immediately the cause of the fire.

Religious Freedom In Italy Pentecostals Win Court Case

By JOHN CAIRNCROSS

ROME (OFNS. — Italy's Supreme Court of Appeal has recently given judgment on a much-contested issue of religious liberty. It is estimated that there are 35,000 Italian Pentecostal Brethren, a small Protestant sect which, with some support from the United States, has been fairly successful among the poorer peasants of the South. The sect was refused liberty of worship by Mussolini, and in spite of the article in Italy's post-war Constitution which abolishes religious discrimination, continued to be exposed to pin-pricks from bigoted local authorities.

In one Sicilian village the whole of the local police invaded a meeting house with machine-guns at the ready. In another town the mayor refused to supply a house-owner with drinking water because one of his tenants belonged to the sect.

DECISION UPHELD

The case giving rise to the present decision occurred in November, 1952, when a group of the Brethren was denounced by the local police for worshipping without first having sought permission. The accused were acquitted. The Public Prosecutor appealed against the decision, but the Supreme Court has now ruled that, under the terms of the Constitution, no offence has been committed. The verdict marks one more step in the direction of giving precedence to that liberal document over the Fascist legislation still on the Statute Book, and has given great satisfaction to enlightened opinion in Italy.

Another pointer towards an improvement in the situation has been the approval by Parliament of a law which does away with the requirement that an indication of illegitimate birth must figure on a citizen's documents (and these play an important part in Italy).

BIRTH CONTROL

A motion has also been tabled (replacing a similar draft submitted last year but subsequently withdrawn) for the abrogation of the pre-war measure forbidding birth control propaganda. It is signed by members of all Parties except the Right-wing Fascists and Monarchists, and the Christian Democrats. The statement accompanying the proposal points out that the ban was not based on moral but on racial grounds, and that the Catholic Church, by its endorsement of "safe period" contraception, has in fact countenanced population restriction. It also stresses the absurdity of striving to find outlets abroad for surplus population while at the same time allowing a high birth-rate to nullify the policy.

The birthrate in the North is now one of the lowest in Europe. It is only in the backward South and in the islands that the figure reaches 25 or even 30 per thousand. The overall rate is lower than that of France; a fact which the opponents of the new proposal have not been slow to point out.

New Paint, Related Products Designed To Speed Work

BY MR. FIX (NEA)

For those who will be spending some spare-time hours decorating and redecorating their homes during the New Year, there are plenty of new paint and related products designed to speed the work and spare the headaches.

First comes a heat-resistant paint for coating cooking stoves and radiators—in decorator colors. Remarkably tough, says the maker, it resists heat discoloration, peeling and cracking and will withstand temperatures up to 400 degrees F.

Another paint, by the same manufacturer, is a sprayed or brushed coating that frosts glass quickly and easily. When brushed on, a small pad of cheese cloth is used to mottle the freshly painted surface.

Special-duty paint coaters are gaining wide acceptance because they help amateur painters achieve professional-looking results with a minimum of fuss and bother. Three new ones are a tight-spot painter, a sash painter and a screen painter.

The tight-spot paintere is flat, 3x5-inch tool with a removable woven wool pad. With it paint is merely wiped onto surfaces. An extension handle enables the painter to reach cramped areas behind radiators and pipes and refrigerators and stoves. A special, removable guard blade permits painting right up against another suraface without smearing.

Th sash painter has a similar guard to prevent smearing of paint on window glass. A simple tool, it consists of a coating pad and handle. It also eliminates the mess of painting window frames, baseboards and moldings.

NEW PAINTS, APPLICATORS and paint remover are designed to help amateurs match the work of professionals for speed and quality

The screen painter consists only of soft carpeting attached to a plastic finger-grip. Back-and-forth movement works paint into screens without clogging the mesh.

Another tool for a special purpose is a seven-inch paint roller of thick foam rubber. It is designed expressly for use with water - soluble, rubber-base paints and is guaranteed not to drip or spray paint.

Almost anywhere that redecorating is done, some paint removal is called for. A new and versatile tool does this job with electrical heat. It can be used either indoors or outdoors and removes paint from flat, curved or contoured surfaces.

The tool is placed on a painted surface for a few seconds while the paint softens, then is moved slowly across the surface. A blade peels the softened paint off in strips at the rate of one to two square feet a minute, it is said. The remover softens up to 40 coats of paint at once, according to its manufacturer.

Now all you need is a robot to do the painting for you.

Truck Drivers Get 15-Cent Wage Increase

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A strike of Minneapolis Star and Tribune fleet truck drivers that started six days ago ended Friday.

The AFL Teamsters local and directors of the company accepted proposals advanced by federal conciliators. The contract will run until Dec. 1, 1955.

The union had asked hourly increases of 12 cents for day work, 17 cents for night work. The company had offered increases of eight cents hourly for day work, 11 cents hourly for night work. The drivers had been paid $2.13 hourly for day work, $2.18 for night work.

15 CENT INCREASE

The compromise worked out at several meetings with federal conciliators calls for a 15-cent increase in the wage scale, spread over 26 months, 10 cents retroactive to Nov. 1, with an additional five cents effective Nov. 1, 1954.

An additional five cents an hour will be paid in the night differential, making the premium pay for night work 10 cents an hour, effective from last Nov. 1.

Yuletide Births Follow Sequence

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Two families here have good cause to celebrate on Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Tate Friday recounted the following:

Mrs. Tate gave birth to a boy in St. James hospital Friday.

Her eldest child, Gloria Jean, was born in the same hospital on Christmas 11 years ago.

She was born on Christmas Eve, "darn close to midnight."

Her father, Stephen Oskroba of Newark, was born Christmas Day.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gargan, the other family, revealed their branches on the Christmas tree:

Mrs. Dargan gave birth to a boy in the St. James Hospital Friday.

Her second child missed Christmas, but was born on her birthday, July 27.

And where did the hospital place these two Yuletide mothers?—of course, right in the same room.

CNR Highway Operations May Improve Competitive Position Gordon Believes

MONTREAL (CP)—Donald Gordon, president of Canadian National Railways, said today in a year-end statement that highway operations by the company may result in some improvement to the railway's competitive position.

The open-road operations of the CNR were touched upon incidentally in a report delivered by the head of Canada's largest transportation outfit. He said:

"The extension of railway-owned and-operated highway services, which is a necessary step in the direction of reducing operating costs and affording an improved service to the public, may result in some improvement in the railways competitive position.

"A few additional routes were established by the CNR during the past year, but such services are, and will continue to be, regarded as complementary to rail operations."

EARNINGS UP A BIT

Mr. Gordon said total earnings for the CNR this year are expected to exceed "somewhat" the record 1952 figure "despite a general and serious falling off in freight traffic which was experienced in the last quarter of the year."

He said "the downward trend in freight traffic volume was due principally to decreases in pulpwood, anthracite and bituminous coal but a substantial faling off was also registered in the movement of crude oil, agricul.ural implements, fuelwood, grain flour and less-than-carload shipments."

Mr. Gordon mentioned a "growing discontent" among shippers with rising railway freight costs and said "the diversion from railways of high-rated traffic is seriously undermining their ability to carry bulk traffc at marginal rates."

More than once in the statement increased wages were noted and in this connection the president said: "Both sleeping and dining car patronage is down, compared with the previous year, and although parlor car revenues are slightly improved, the gain has been more than offset by additional wage expenses."

3 Die In Accidents On Christmas Eve

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Three persons were killed and two injured in a Christmas Eve traffic accident eight miles east of here.

Instantly killed in a head-on collision involving three vehicles were Arthur Young, 28, and Mrs. Alma Perrin, Brockville, both of Brockvile.

Police said the automobile driven by Arthur Young, travelling east, collided head-on with the U.S motorist, then sideswiped a car driven by Lawrence Magor, 37, of Prescott.

Suffering from undetermined injuries are William Young, 68, and Lloyd Young, 16, both of Brockville.

Mrs. Alma Perrin was a passenger in the car driven by Seeley.

American Cost Of Living Shows Slight Decline

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP)—St. Nick appeared on the business scene this week with a bagful of cheerful news for United States housewives, merchants and steel producers.

The good news for the housewife was official confirmation that living costs as measured by the government's consumer price index have finally started going down. The index for November showed a dip of 0.3 per cent, ending a steady eight-month rise.

Santa's gift to the merchants was an 11th-hour shopping binge that pushed Christmas retail sales to a record high.

Coming at the end of a slow season, the buying splurge was more than welcome. Dun and Bradstreet said Christmas shoppers spent more money in December 'than in any previous Yuletide season."

PRODUCTION RACE

The week's good news for steel producers was a request from General Motors' Fisher body division for a speed-up in delivery of previously ordered auto body steel. Fisher makes bodies for all GM products. Steel sources said the request for earlier-than-scheduled delivery could mean only one thing: GM was moving up the timetable for its coming production race with Ford.

From the steel industry's point of view, it couldn't happen a moment too soon. This week, U.S. Steel Corp., citing lack of demand, banked another blast furnace, while the industry's scheduled operating rate slumped to 67 per cent of capacity—lowest since the 1952 strike.

But the holiday letdown won't stop 1953 from being the biggest production year the steel industry ever had. Output for the year is estimated by the trade weekly "Iron Age" at just under 112,000,000 tons. The previous record was 105,000,000 million in 1951.

ELECTION MATERIAL

The general state of the U.S. business came in for renewed attention this week. There were increasing signs that the prosperity-versus-depression theme was being dusted off for use next year in the Congressional elections.

The U.S. commerce department noted a decline in factory output and employment in the first two months of the current quarter but stressed that industrial production and consumer income were still ahead of the same period of 1952.

'Army purchasing of manufactured goods, said undersecretary Earl D. Johnson, has slowed to a walk and will ease off even more next year. "Industry's backlog of army orders is shrinking," he said. "During last July, August and September we bought about 80 per cent less goods than during the same months last year."

Indian Reds Try Woo Nehru To United Front

By SELIG S. HARRISON

MADURA, India (AP) — Indian Communists today opened their first national convention in five years with high hopes of wooing Prime Minister Nehru into a virtual "united front."

Delegates arriving for eight-day sessions of the Indian Communist Party's third congress speculated that United States-Pakistan military aid plans might force Nehru to delay his anti-Red internal policies and even adopt a conciliatory attitude.

In a plain bid to exploit India's violent nationalist reaction against the U.S. talks with Moslem Pakistan, the Indian Communist politburo declared on the eve of the congress that compulsory military training should be India's answer to increased Pakistan armaments.

DISPUTES LIKELY

Communist leaders predict Nehru will have to accept the Red embrace on the home front offered in the name of national unity.

Disputes appear likely here over how far the Communists should go in seeking to capture Nehru through supporting his policies.

The conflict over Communist police toward Nheur is the latest phase in a deep intra-party feud dating back to 1947. Moderate elements favoring "non-violence" and a policy line friendly to Nehru lost out to a potent minority advocating all-out terrorist opposition at the party's hectic second congress at Calcutta in February, 1948.

SHAKY COMPROMISE

Since early 1951, a shaky compromise between the two wings knitted the party together behind a program temporarily ruling out violence to make possible Red participation in the central parliament and state legislatures.

The Communists entered the 1951 general elections at the last minute and surprised political observers with strong showings in the southern areas of Andhra and Travancore-Cochin, and West Bengal state in northeastern India. The Communists also gained 27 of the 499 central parliament seats.

U.S. Accidents Kill 234 During Holiday

CHICAGO (AP) — The United States traffic death toll appeared today to be headed for a Christmas holiday record.

With less than half of the long week-end holiday over, 237 persons had been killed in traffic accidents up to an early hour this morning.

That figure exceeded the comparative toll last year, when there were a record 556 traffic deaths during the four-day Christmas holiday. Last year's total for the first 33 hours was 225.

Violent accidents of all kinds in the U.S. since 6 p.m. Thursday had taken the lives of 285 persons by early this morning. In addition to the traffic fatalities, 25 persons had died in fires and 23 others were killed in miscellaneous accidents.

REVISE ESTIMATE

The National Safety Council had estimated that 510 persons would be killed in traffic accidents alone during the 78-hour period ending at midnight Sunday. But Ned H. Dearborn, council president, noting the rising toll during the first 24 hours of the holiday, said:

"Unless motorists put on the brakes, it's going to be the most tragic Christmas in history for traffic accidents."

Fairly pleasant winter weather prevailed over most of the country Christmas Day, and millions of motorists headed for the highways. But icy streets in some sections made driving conditions hazardous, resulting in hundreds of accidents.

Text Of Queen's Addresss To Commonwealth On Christmas Day Of 1953

AUCKLAND (Reuters) — The Queen said in her Christmas Day broadcast:

Last Christmas I spoke to you from England. This year I am doing so from New Zealand. Auckland, which I reached only two days ago is, I suppose, as far as any city in the world from London, and I have travelled some thousands of miles through many changing scenes and climates on my voyage here.

Despite all that, however, I find myself today completely and most happily at home. Of course, we all want our children at Christmas time, for that is the season above all others when each family gathers at its own hearth. I hope that perhaps mine are listening to me now, and I am sure that when the time comes they too will be great travellers.

My husband and I left London a month ago, but we have already paid short visits to Bermuda, Jamaica, Fiji and Tonga, and have passed through Panama. I should like to thank all our hosts very warmly for the kindness of their welcome and the great pleasure of our stay.

In a short time we shall be visiting Australia and, later, Ceylon, and before we end this great journey we shall catch a glimpse of other places in Asia, Africa and in the Mediterranean.

FIRST ROYAL TRIP

So this will be a voyage right around the world—the first that a queen of England has been privileged to make as queen.

But what is really important to me is that I set out on this journey in order to see as much as possible of the people and countries of the Commonwealth and Empire, to learn at first hand something of their triumphs and difficulties and something of their hopes and fears.

At the same time, I want to show that the Crown is not merely an abstract symbol of our unity but a personal and living bond between you and me.

Some people have expressed the hope that my reign may mark a new Elizabethan age. Frankly, I do not myself feel at all like my great Tudor forbear, who was blessed with neither husband nor children, who ruled as a despot and was never able to leave her native shores.

But there is at least one very significant resemblance between her age and mine. For her kingdom, small though it may have been and poor by comparison with her European neighbors, was yet great in spirit and well endowed with men who were ready to encompass the earth.

Now, this great Commonwealth, of which I am so proud to be the head, and of which that ancient kingdom forms a part, though rich in material resources is richer still in the enterprise and courage of its peoples.

LITTLE REALIZATION

Little did those adventurous heroes of Tudor and Stuart times realize what would grow from the settlements which they and later pioneers founded.

From the empire of which they built the frame there has arisen a world wide fellowship of nations, of a type never seen before.

In that fellowship, the United Kingdom is an equal partner with many other proud and independent nations, and she is leading yet another still backward nations forward to the same goal.

All these nations have helped to create our Commonwealth, and all are equaly concerned to maintain, develop and defend it against any challenge that may come.

As I travel across the world today, I am ever more deeply impressed with the achievement and the opportunity which the modern Commonwealth presents.

Like New Zealand, from whose north island I am speaking, every one of its nations can be justly proud of what it was built for itself on its own soil. But their greatest achievement, I suggest, is the Commonwealth itself, and that owes much to all of them.

NO RESEMBLANCE

Thus formed, the Commonwealth bears no resemblance to the empires of the past. It is an entirely new conception—built on the highest qualities of the spirit of man: friendship, loyalty and the desire for freedom and peace.

To that new conception of an equal partnership of nations and races, I shall give myself heart and soul every day of my life.

I wished to speak of it from New Zealand this Christmas Day because we are celebrating the birth of the Prince of Peace, who preached the brotherhood of man. May that brotherhood be furthered by all our thoughts and deeds from year to year.

In pursuit of that supreme ideal the Commonwealth is moving steadily towards greater harmony between its many creeds, colors and races, despite the imperfections by which, like every human institution, it is beset.

Already, indeed, in the last half-century it has provied itself the most effective and progressive association of peoples which history has yet seen; and its ideal of brotherhood embraces the whole world.

To all my peoples throughout the Commonwealth I commend that Christmas hope and prayer.

And now I want to say something to my people in New Zealand. Last night a most grievous railway accident took place in Tangiwai which will have brought tragedy into many homes and sorrow into all upon this Christmas Day. I know there is no one in New Zealand and indeed, throughout the Commonwealth, who will not join with my husband and me in sending those who journ a message of sympathy in their loss. I pray that they and all who have been injured may be comforted and strengthened.

Queen Hears First-Hand Story Of Escape

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (CP)—The Queen today heard a first-hand account of how a 16-year-old girl saved her mother from death in New Zealand's Christmas Eve rail disaster.

The Queen heard the story when she visited Mr. and Mrs. F. Fallon and their daughter, Glenis, who survived the wreck in which 166 persons died when the Wellington-Auckland express plunged into a swollen river.

Mrs. Fallon later said she told the Queen: "I do not think I would have been here except for Glenis, who was hanging onto the luggage rack. I held on to her until we were all pulled out on a rope."

The Queen listened closely to the account of the disaster, then said: "I wish you all a happy holiday from now on."

STORY OF ESCAPE

Telling the Queen the story of his escape, Fallon said their carriage must have rolled over a dozen times before it ended up in the river.

"The carriage was washed about 200 yards down the river, then stuck on a sandbank and turned on its side. I smashed a window and another chap smashed one further down. We pulled ourselves out of the window and held our heads up in the air. That's what saved us."

950,000 New Canadians Arrived Since World War

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Newcomers to Canada this year are expected to exceed the number who arrived in 1952.

Final figures will not be available for some time but estimates indicate that the total will easily pass the 164,498 mark of last year. This year's arrivals will boost to more than 950,000 the number of immigrants admitted to Canada since the end of the Second World War.

The total for the first 10 months of the year — the latest figures available—show that 143,722 were admitted. A total of 194,391 entered in 1951; 73,912 in 1950; 95,217 in 1949; 125,414 in 1948; 64,127 in 1947 and 71,719 in 1946.

This pattern was the result of the first full year in operation of a new policy. The aim is to bring immigrants to Canada in the late spring, summer and early fall months when it is easier to establish a new home and find a job.

MORE FROM U.K.

In the first 10 months a total of 40,390 came from the United Kingdom compared with 36,637 in a similar period last year and 25,058 in 1951. The increase of 10 per cent in 1953 compared with an increase of 46 per cent last year.

In this category, arrivals from England and Ireland were higher than a year ago and those from Scotland and Wales down.

Entries from northern European countries were seven per cent higher in this period at 61,568 compared with 57,472. The largest increase was among German immigrants—30,798 compared with 25,307. Dutch immigrants dropped slightly to 19,193 from 20,160.

Entries from the United States dropped one per cent at 7,796 from 7,904 while entries from other countries showed a 23-per-cent decline to 33,968 from 44,223. Among the decreass in the latter category were Italians, down 17,426 from 18,260, and Poles, down to 2,746 from 5,115.

POLICE BREAK UP WATERFRONT RIOT—Policemen subdue one of the rioting dock workers after an outbreak of violence at the New York polling place of the National Labor Relations Board. Longshoremen were voting on whether to join the AFL or the ILA when the rioting started. Three men were stabbed before club-swinging police broke up the fracas.

India And China Discuss Tibet

By O. M. GREEN

LONDON — (OFNS) — A conference about Tibet between India and China is to begin in Peking shortly after Christmas. Mr. N. Raghavan, the Indian Arbassador, has recently returned to Peking after being briefed in New Delhi.

Besides trade, there are a number of political questions affecting Tibet that the two coutries will want to discuss. The Indian Prime Minister, Mr. Nehru, said recently that both Governments would act on the basis of "mutual resepct for each other's sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity." But the position is not straightforward. There are many respects in which Indian and Tibetan interests intertwine along the two thousand mile frontier between the countries, Interests which Mr. Nehru must wish to respect. At the same time, while respecting Chinese sovereignty over Tibet, he cannot be anxious in any way to help its consolidation. Apart from local interests, he is well aware of the unpopularity he has gained in the United States by his desire to stand well with China. And he has had to face some pointed questions in the Indian parliament on his Tibetan policy.

ADVANTAGE IN TRADE

In matters of trade, India seems to have the advantage. Its imports from Tibet are wool, carpets, borax and animal hair. If it were really necessary, India could dispense with these—although some of its merchants might suffer. But Indian exports to Tibet— piece goods, sugar, iron, steel, tea, tobacco, and salt—are extremely necessary to the Chinese— whose dependence on Calcutta since they conquered Tibet has been most marked. They have no other outlet for Tibet's most valuable export, wool, since the U. S. stopped buying when Tibet became "Red" territory. And they depend on Bhutan— which is under Indian protection by treaty—for the grain which Tibet cannot now grow in sufficient quantities, swollen as its population is by Chinese troops and functionaries.

Indian merchants themselves have been complaining loudly about numerous petty restrictions, and irritation of having to produce passports every time they wish to visit Lhasa. In western Tibet, too, the thousands of Indian pilgrims who for centuries have annually visited the sacred Mansarowar Lake now find they are harassed and roughly used by Chinese soldiers.

It is beyond doubt that the Chinese are particularly anxious that the world should not know what they are doing in Tibet; and India is at present in a position to know more than it should.

REDS BUILDING ROADS

In western Tibet the Communists have been very active in making roads and airstrips; the country there is believed to be rich in minerals, and there have been reports of Russian experts helping in the search for them. There is an Indian trade station in Gartok, in west Tibet, which the Communists no doubt dislike. There are two more stations in eastern Tibet, at Gyangtze and Yatung on the main route to Lhasa. They are supported by platoons of Indian soldiers, and control the telegraph service at both posts. It is not a situation which Chinese "sovereignty" would endure.

And so the Peking negotiations will not be easy. China can scarcely shut down the iron curtain as it did some months ago in Sinkiang, declaring it "closed territory" and virtually compelling India to shut up its long-standing consulate at Kashgar. Apart from the loss of necessary imports from India, to do so would be a diplomatic afront to India—with whom China has exchanged cultural missions and many pretty speeches— from which even Communists might flinch.

For his part, Mr. Nehru has not only Indian dignity and definable interests to consider: he cannot forget how easily Communist agents could infiltrate from Tibet to make trouble in India.

HE CAN LICK THE WORLD — The brave new world of 1954 has no terrors for Peter, a five-months-old pup, and he proceeds to show his disdain by sitting down and licking it. Judging by his expression, it doesn't seem to have a bad taste after all. —(Federal Newsphotos).

Unification Of Europe Urged By Pope In Christmas Message

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope Thursday urged European unity as a means of preserving peace on earth. In his 15th annual Christmas message, he said:

"Why continue to hesitate? The end is clear; the needs of the nations are obvious to all."

The 77-year-old spiritual leader of more than 400,000,000 Roman Catholics said European nations, through unity, could overcome the division caused by a discrepancy in standards of living and productivity.

He conceded that risk is involved, but said it is "a necessary risk . . . to demand absolute certainty is to fail in good-will toward Europe."

Vatican circles, recalling the Pope's previous support of unification, expressed belief that his words today went beyond approval of a mere military alliance such as the projected six-nation European Defence Community.

He criticized the "worship of technological progress, which, he said, has blinded some men to God's work and to religion.

The Pope repeated, as he has in all his Christmas messages, an urgent appeal for peace. Materialistic means, he said, will never bring this.

He warned the world not to put its trust for peace in "costly distribution of technical and economical forces more or less equally divided between two parties."

This appeared to be as much a criticism of the Western World as of the Communist - dominated East.

The Pontiff devoted most of his 45-minute address to what he described as the blinding effects of technological progress. This, he said, has brought man's domination of the material world to a pitch of perfection never known before.

The Pope said his criticism was not a condemnation of technological progress in itself— "the church loves and favors human progress."

"It can hardly be denied that this technology . . . is, through certain circumstances, changed into a great spiritual danger," he said. "For it seems to give modern man, prostrate at its altar, a sense of self-sufficiency and satisfaction of his boundless thirst for knowledge and power."

The Pope said that the present hour is particularly grave for Europe, where materialism aggravates the continent's fundamental problem.

"These problems are intimately connected with peace and order in the whole world.

"In truth, materialism does not threaten this continent more seriously than other regions of the world. On the contrary we think that countries which have been overtaken late and unexpectedly by the rapid progress of technology are more exposed to the dangers alluded to, and are vitally disturbed in their moral and psychological equilibrium."

Weekend Church Review:

Meaning Of First Petition Of The Family Prayer

We may well ask the meaning of the first petition of the Lord's Prayer: "Thy Kingdom Come!"

What is the Kingdom of God? And just what did Jesus intend by that petition in the Prayer?

He said, "The Kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matthew 4:17) and "The Kingdom of God is within you" (Luke 17:21). Why, then, should we pray for the coming of a Kingdom already here?

The meaning, I think, is plain, and it is made clear by the immediately following and interpretative petition: "Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven."

"Kingdom" has two meanings, or implications. In the one meaning it refers to the outward organization of power and authority over a certain area—earthly kingdoms.

In the other meaning, "kingdom" refers to the rule of the kingly authority over the hearts and lives of its subjects. The kingdom, which is outward power, is also inward rule.

So, when Jesus said, "The Kingdom of God is within you," the Greek words of the New Testament have been interpreted with two possible meanings: either, "The Kingdom of God is in your midst," or "The Kingdom of God is in your hearts and inner lives." Possibly both meanings are warranted.

In eathly kingdoms not all subjects have been loyal. Some have been rebellious. And when one thinks of the Kingdom of God in relation to a world so largely godless, to pray for the coming of God's Kingdom is the most natural prayer that a Christian could make. "The kingdoms of the world become the Kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ."

Moreover that prayer links the one who makes the petition with that sublime hope and with that sublime event. For the individual the prayer has its richest meaning in what some petitioner, unknown to me, has suggested it should be: "Lord let Thy Kingdom come, and let it begin in me!"

What will the fullness of the coming of that Kingdom mean? The poet Tennyson in the concluding stanza of his long poem, In Memoriam, wrote of "one far-off divine event, to which the whole creation moves."

What is that divine event, and how has it variously been conceived? Some see in it a second coming of Jesus Christ. Formerly the second coming has been much associated with the conception of a millenium, the rule of Christ on earth for a thousand years.

The reference is to Revelations 20:7. But many Christians who hold this pre-millenial view find support for it in other passages in the New Testament, and in the evident hope of the second coming among early Christians.

One cannot enter here into such much-disputed matters. Increasingly I am inclined to think there is questioning concerning the future destiny of this world. There is a tendency to see the consummation of that "far - off divine event" in some heavenly consummation. But these things are in the hands of God, and human speculation can have little effect upon them. The practical conclusion is for today exactly what the Apostle Peter declared it to be ages ago (See II Peter 3:11).

Two Schools Share Concerts

FENELLA (ENS)—Fenella and Bowmanton schools combined programs for their Christmas concert which was held in Fenella Hall Tuesday. The hall was filled with many standing at the back. Mrs. Garnet Isaac was pianist for the evening. The Rev. J. R. Wheeler, chairman, introduced the following: Greeting poem by Joan Ferguson; day-dream drill by a group from Fenella school; solo, "Me and My Teddy Bear," by Patricia Cotter with encore, "I Saw Mummy Kissing Santa Claus."

Dialogue by pupils from Bowmanton, "The Spelling Class"; recitation, "Husbands," by Shirley Ferguson; chorus, "Snowy White Snow," by the two schools; tap-dancing by Shirley Ferguson; dialogue, "Belling the Cat," by Bowmanton pupils; recitation by Joan Ferguson; motion song, "I've Got the Mumps," by Bowmanton pupils; dialgoue, "The Sewing Society," by Bowmanton school; piano solo by Anne Fanning; dialogue, Bowmanton pupils.

Three Christmas carols, sung by both schools; dialogue, "The Fortune Teller," by Fenella pupils; tap-dancing, Jean Elder; dialogue, "Lock Your Car," by Fenella pupils.

Mr. Wheeler called on a chorus, "Santa's On His Way," by the two schools and when all the pupils were in place on the platform, Joyce Pollard, Anne Fanning and Jean Elder came down, and Joyce asked Mrs. W. I. Montgomery, teacher of Fenella school, and Mrs. Floyd Murphy, teacher of Bowmanton school, to come to the front. Jean Elder made a presentation of a lamp to Mrs. Murphy, Joyce Pollard and Anne Fanning presenting Mrs. Montgomery with a silver lazy-susan, a compact and china ash tray. Both teachers thanked their pupils for the gifts.

Santa came in and with some helpers distributed the gifts from the Christmas tree. Proceeds of the evening were $62.56.

Quintuplet Who Became Nun Has Christmas Of Austerity

By BERTRAND THIBAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — Sister Marie Dionne, 19, one of the famous Dionne quintuplets, spent her first Christmas in a convent in an atmosphere of austerity and quiet rejoicing.

In the cloistered silence of the convent of the Soeurs Servantes du Tres Saint-Sacrement the nun spent her first Yuletide season apart from her four sisters, Yvonne, Annette, Cecile and Emilie.

The other girls spent Christmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, and other members of the family at Callander, Ont., birthplace of the quints. It was the first time that Marie did not participate in the traditional family midnight meal.

ATTENDED MASSES

Instead, Sister Marie, garbed in the black habit and white veil of the postulant and accompanied by 14 other novices, attended three masses and then partook of a lunch of only coffee, cakes, doughnuts and raisins, served in silence.

Sister Marie, who entered the convent last Nov. 3, will pronounce her first vows next May.

Despite the strictness of cloistered discipline, there were light moments Christmas Eve. After the snack, at about 2 a.m., the novices and postulants gathered in another hall of the convent of yellow stone where Christmas stockings were placed by crib and fir trees.

Sister Marie, like the other nuns, received her presents, which include sweets, fruits, a note book, pencils and other small articles.

The silence which the sisters maintain must have been strained at times by the gentle humor of presents exchanged among the nuns. For instance, the sister in charge of the garden—known as Mother Gardener—found at the bottom of her sock a small mechanical toad.

Those nuns receiving gifts from their families must ask permission of Mother Superior to keep them, since their poverty vows specify that all possessions belong to the community.

It was 2:30 a.m. when Sister Marie and her companions returned to their simple rooms.

SLEPT LONGER

The convent slept 1½ hours longer than usual Christmas Morning. The nuns, who habitually rise at 5:45 a.m., left their "cells" at 7:15 a.m. to attend to their duties.

The silence which reigned in the convent from 5 p.m. Christmas Eve was broken at 2 p.m. during recreation time.

The convention allows but one hour's visit per month for each nun. Her sisters visited Marie early in December so she will have to wait until the new year to see members of her family.

Children Present Christmas Pageant

BETHANY (ENS)— The public school Christmas concert, under the supervision of the teachers, Mrs. Mary Wright and Mrs. Velma Morton, was held in the town hall on Wednesday night, and the large audience was well pleased with the efforts of the pupils. Allan Smith gave the Welcome recitation. A lovely pageant, 'The First Christmas," portrayed the story of the infant Jesus born in a manger at Bethlehem, with Malcolm Smelt as Joseph and Leone Smith as Mary. Wallace Cooper was the narrator, with Mary Rose Gault, Eleanor Porteous, and Dianne Smith as the angels, Melvin Smelt, Allan Smith and Donald Scott as the watching shepherds, and Donald Smelt, Neil Finney and Murray Henderson the three wise men. The pupils all joined in singing carols as the story progressed.

Tommy Rayson recited "Seeing Santa Claus." A dialogue "One More Please" was given, with Jane Fallis, Dianne Bigelow, Carolyn Smith, Sharon Bigelow, John Jackson, Randy Longfield, Larry Lamb taking part. A quartette, Phylliss Bristow, Brenda Rowan, Murray Henderson and Teddy Norman sang. "Jimmy's Lucky Morning" was a dialogue given by Sally Coburn, Dianne Bigelow, Paul Pomeroy, and George Scott. The pupils of Grade 1, Roy Scott, Mary Rose Gault, Patsy Bigelow, Dianne Smith, Barry Norman, Eleanor Porteous, Billy Smelt and Bobby Smelt recited "Christmas Wishes." A dialogue "Child Psychology" was given by Donna Durham, Colleen Durham, Brenda Rowan, Neil Finney, Bruce Wright, Leone Smith and Leone Jordan.

Grade 2, Bobby Edmunds, Ronald Jackson, Howard Morton, Ross Jordan, Melvin Smelt and Allan Smith gave a recitation in six parts, "A Visit from St. Nicholas." The junior room pupils sang a chorus "Toyland." Leroy Smith recited "Just Before Christmas." A drill "Days of Old-time Fashions" was well given by Phyllis Bristow, Brenda Rowan, Leone Jordan, Sharon Bigelow, Leone Smith, Colleen Durham, Dianne Bigelow and Donna Durham, all in old-fashioned hoop skirt costumes. Murray Henderson sang "White Christmas." Leone Jordan gave a piano solo.

The final dialogue "Father's Quiet Evening" turned out not so quiet as Teddy Norman, Patsy Bigelow, Donald Smith, and Tommy Rayson combined to make it a very busy one for father, who was Murray Smith and mother, who was Phyllis Bristow. The closing choruses were by all the pupils, singing "Silver Bells" and "It Won't Be Long Till Christmas."

James Gay, supervisor of music for the schools in Manvers township, accompanied all the songs at the piano.

Mrs. Velma Morton, who is retiring from teaching in the junior room, was presented with a gift from the pupils, Jane Fallis reading the address and Barry Norman making the presentation.

Hope Rayson of the trustee board, was chairman for the evening and congratulated both teachers and pupils on the high quality of the program, also expressing regret that Mrs. Morton was leaving the staff.

Christmas Snow Lacking In Most Parts Of Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Christmas 1953 can hardly be called a typical Canadian Christmas. The deep frost and snow were lacking in most centres.

Prince Rupert, B.C., enjoyed a high of 47 degrees, the warmest spot in Canada. On the east coast, Halifax had a maximum temperature of 44 and the 4,000-odd miles of country in between had much the same weather. Toronto had its 13th green Yuletide since 1908. Only Port Churchill reported really frigid weather. The mercury at the far-northern Manitoba port dropped to 22 degrees below zero.

Business life came to a halt as the country celebrated the birth of the Prince of Peace. Many of the 15,000,000 Canadians gathered around their radios during the morning to hear the Queen make her annual Christmas Day broadcast from Auckland, N.Z.

CARRILLON SELECTIONS

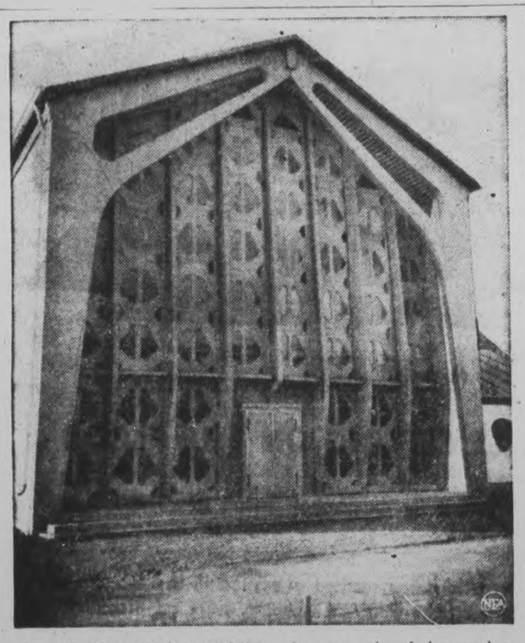
Robert Donnell, Canada's official carilloneur, played selections on the carrillon in the Peace Tower of the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa for two hours during the morning.

Prime Minister St. Laurent was with his family at Quebec. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, celebrated Christmas at his Ottawa home and most other members of Parliament were at their homes for the holidays.

As usual tragedy, particularly on heavily-crowded highways, marred the festivities. Violent deaths totalled 38 Friday night, of which 32 were traffic fatalities. Last Christmas there were 96 holiday deaths, Canada's blackest holiday.

HOLIDAY MIXUP

There was also misadvanture of a less serious nature. Mrs. W. A. Crump of Leamington, Ont., decided to surprise her husband by flying home from England. He wanted to surprise his wife by flying overseas to her. Their planes passed each other in mid-Atlantic.



In Ottawa, George Lafleur saw himself for the first time. The 40-year-old blind job printer unexplainably is able to see television and nothing else. Christmas Day a CBC television program originating in Toronto broadcast a still shot of Mr. Lafleur.

And many other Canadians agreed with Rev. W. A. Cameron, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, who said "Christmas time is pre-eminently a time of joy."

James Cardinal McGuigan, Roman Catholic archbishop of Toronto, in his Christmas message, said Canadians "should resolve to pray, to work, and to sacrifice ourselves that peace and justice may be attained for all the world."

PICKETS FOR HIS RIGHTS—For the second time since his divorce in 1952, Philip Chain picketed the Los Angeles home of his former wife, Mrs. Esther Critchfield Chain, because she was not at home when he came to visit their four-year-old daughter, Darlene. Chain says according to a court order he has permission to visit his daughter on Sundays and holidays but when he arrived at the house he found a sign on the door reading, "Not at home," so he put up placards and began picketing the house.

FAR CRY FROM GOTHIC—An example of the modern trend in church architecture is this new concrete church built in Cologne, Germany. Dseigned by Georg Maria Luneborg, the semi-surrealistic structure was completed in 11 months. Only the six main pillars were made on the spot, all other parts were formed at a concrete plant and assembled at the building site. The front wall forms a huge stained-glass "window."

DOWN TO THE SEA—Ray Tissue, of Surfside, Calif., will be looking for a new home now that the sea has claimed his old one. Just before falling into the churning sea, the rear of Tissue's home leans precariously against the front of the house (top). The roof of the house crumbles under the force of the sea as the whole house lies in the water (bottom). Shortly after these pictures were taken, there was nothing left but a few pieces of wood. This was the third home destroyed in three days by high seas.

$75,000 Fire

GREVELLE, Que. (CP)—Police report that the amount of money taken from a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia here Thursday totalled about $75,000. The money was taken from 23 safety deposit boxes and police quoted a bank official as saying estimates may go higher when a full check has been made.

Bag 40 Coyotes

OKOTOKS, Alta. (CP)—The first coyote hunt of the season in this southern Alberta district resulted in a bag of 40 coyotes. About 250 hunters from several districts split into 30 teams which covered eight square miles in an intensive hunt.

Frozen Body Of Baby Found In House

DETROIT (AP) — The frozen body of a seven-month-old baby was found in an unheated apartment Friday afternoon and police are holding the mother for questioning.

A coroner's report said the baby girl had apparently been dead between 10 and 18 hours when her body was found beneath a pile of rags in her crib.

Held was Mrs. Ruby Jones, who police quoted as saying she "went out drinking" at 2 a. m. Christmas Eve and returned at 7 a. m., gave the baby a bottle of milk and went to bed. Police added that there seemed to be discrepancies in her testimony.

Search Team Finds Wreckage U.S. Plane

GUAM (AP)—A search team today found the wreckage of a United States Navy plane that disappeared Sunday while looking for another lost navy weather plane, and said there were no survivors of the 10 crew members aboard.

The wreckage was found in the crater of an extinct volcano on tiny Agrihan island 380 miles north of here. Searchers said it apparently had crashed into the cloud-capped, 3,166-foot cone without warning.

The search for the missing weather plane was called off by the navy at noon today.

DIG THOSE CRAZY HEPCATS—Perfect harmony is demonstrated by these two jazz-loving animals. Billy, the musical chimp, top, seems to know what he's doing as he raps out some boogie on the drums. No longer practising, but working at the Medano Circus in Paris, France, is this music-loving seal, below, shown with his trainer, Armand Guerre. Harry Abramsky, Sons Buy Control Of Chain Of Stores

Ownership of the largest independently operated chain of stores in eastern Ontario has been acquired by Harry Abramsky and his sons, Mortimer and Joseph, it was announced today.

The transaction involved the purchase of the shares owned by the estate of Samuel Abramsky in the Joseph Abramsky & Sons Limited stores at Kingston, Gananoque, Napanee and Picton, and in the Percival Stores at Smiths Falls, Brockville, Belleville and Peterborough.

Plans for the complete re-organization and modernization of the chain are now being made by Mr. Abramsky and his sons.

The Joseph Abramsky & Sons Limited store at Kingston, the foundation on which the business has been built, was opened in the year 1891 by Joseph Abramsky, father of Harry Abramsky, Moses Abramsky and the late Sam Abramsky. At one time, all three sons were associated with their father in the business. In 1928, shortly before his death, Joseph Abramsky retired from active participation, and in 1930, Moses Abramsky disposed of his interests and retired from the business.

EXPANSION

From that date until the death of Samuel Abramsky in 1951, the business was carried on by Harry Abramsky and Samuel Abramsky and saw its greatest period of expansion. In 1932, the firm established its first branch when it acquired the Percival Stores in Smiths Falls, Brockville and Belleville. In 1947, it established a Percival Store in Peterborough and Joseph Abramsky & Sons Limited now have branches in Gananoque, Napanee and Picton.

The sudden death of Samuel Abramsky, who was president and sales manager at the time, left Harry Abramsky, the other chief owner of the chain, undecided whether to sell his interests and retire from business, or to purchase his brother's shares and carry on the family enterprise.

Harry Abramsky joined his father in the business in 1919, just after his discharge from the United States Navy, where he had served during World War I, and he has been continuously associated with it since that date. His decision to purchase control, in association with his sons, was dictated, he says, partly by regard for the communities where the firm has stores, partly by loyalty to the large staff of employees, and partly by a hard-headed appraisal of the future prospects of the stores.

Mother, Five Children Die When Home Burns

FRENCHBURG, Ky. (AP) — Flames swept through a small, frame home near here early today, killing a mother and five of her six children.

Coroner Joe Slusher said he suspected foul play and has asked the Kentucky State Police to investigate the blaze.

The father of the children escaped from the burning home and managed to save one of them.

Burned to death were Mrs. Arnold Crouch and five young children.

First Sidewalk In City Laid In 1892 By Customs

Probably the first concrete sidewalk laid in Peterborough was on the two street sides of the Customs House, George and Charlotte Streets, in 1892.

The federal government let a contract to Thomas Rutherford for a "granolithic concrete" walk, 16 feet 6 inches wide and also for the stone fence surmounted with an iron railing. That was about 52 years ago.

The pavement contract called for a stone base, with a layer of crushed stone, and finally a mixture of cement and broken stone, usually granite. Hence the import of the word "granolithic."

Thomas Rutherford, a building contractor, was for years Chief of the volunteer fire brigade. He let the contract to the Ottawa Granolithic Co.

Another sample of this type of sidewalk is on either side of the Bank of Toronto, George and Hunter streets. The fine pieces of granite now stand out prominently in the surface in which the cement seems to be the less durable material.

Sixty years ago Peterborough appears to have had little experience in concrete work, as suggested by the sub-contract to the Ottawa firm. The late Frank Lawless came to Peterborough some time later as the finisher of sidewalks for which contracts were then let locally. He may have been engaged by Richard Sheehy.

When he was still quite a young man, Mr. Lawless had evidently caught the attention of Vincent Eastwood, then manager of the Peterborough Hardware Co., the red brick building on the east side of George St., a few doors north of Simcoe.

"One Saturday night Mr. Eastwood asked me why I wasn't in concrete work for myself," Mr. Lawless once recalled. "I need considerable equipment," Mr. Lawless answered. "Just look around you, there it is," Mr. Eastwood said. And later in the conversation: "You don't need to worry about paying for it. I have seen all I need to see. You know more about it than anyone else around here. Your credit is good with me."

Mr. Lawless learned concrete work in Toronto and Ottawa in his teens. In his later days he remarked: "If I had listened to Vince Eastwood I might have become a contractor." Instead, he became an expert in building armatures at CGE.

Celebrating New Year's Day In Canada With Family

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Rise up, gude wife, and shake your feathers,
Dinna think that we are beggars,
We are bairns come to play
And to seek our hogmanay".

Scottish children sing this on the last day in the Old Year, when they call on a home and receive their "hogmanay" which consists of an oat cake or piece of bonnock or shortbreak. In France and Holland, New Year's Day is marked by feasting and visiting, and this is the custom in many other European countries.

In the Orient there is a three day celebration. The women stay at home, but the men folk visit other families. In China the New Year's calling card is a piece of scarlet paper with the visitor's name painted in black characters. This is a special day for hospitality all over the world. Almost inevitably as people get to know each other better their appreciation and affection grows. In the Brazilian calendar, New Year's day is designated as the Day of Universal Brotherhood.

January the First comes as a climax of the Christmas holidays. In Canada many families have relatives who come home for New Year's dinner and everyone has a jolly time. But distances are vast in our country. In recent years there has been such a great shift of population to centres of industry. Thus many people find that it is not feasible to make January first a re-union day for the clan. Mother and Dad must often plan to extend hospitality, not to relatives, but to their friends and their children's friends on this holiday at the end of the school vacation.

The Christmas holidays, with the boys and girls home from school is an especially busy time for mother. But she and Dad and the children will want to talk over special plans to divide the work and share the good times.

If the children are small, Mother and Dad can invite some other congenial couple or couples with youngsters around the same age for buffet supper. How boys and girls love the noise of pulling crackers, as well as the contests! Encourage them to play one of their new Christmas games with their pals. For the meal, let them be "on their own" to draw up an interesting and varied program of voluntary numbers of solos, duets, choruses, recitations, piano and mouth organ solos—or numbers on any other musical instrument.

Parents crave the society of their friends too, and at New Year's time they may want to pay some calls or hold "open house". If the children are tiny this may necessitate Baby Sitting help. If they are older, discuss it in the Family Council. Mother and Dad can point out that Home Hospitality is most satisfactory for everyone when each member of the family co-operates. It is reasonable to expect son or daughter to fit in with their parents' entertainment suggestions when adults are considerate of their children's wishes. Mutual helpfulness is what makes home hospitality a real pleasure in the Christmas holidays or any other time.

Jockeying Begins For Malan Job

PRETORIA (Reuters) — Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan may quit after his 80th birthday next May 22 and already possible successors within his Nationalist party are jockeying for position.

The strongest contenders at present are 71-year-old Finance Minister Nicholaas Havenga, a moderate, and the Nationalists' "strong man," Johannes Strydom, 60, minister of lands, a party extremist who strongly favors making South Africa a republic.

The first step towards Malan's retirement from active politics was seen in his recent withdrawal from leadership of the Cape province branch of the Nationalist party, a position which he held for 38 years.

In a secret ballot at the party's Cape province congress Donges, as a Malan man, beat Eric Louw, minister for economic affairs and a Strydom man, in the election for a new chairman.

Ambassador Dies

TEL AVIV (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Monnett B. Davis, 60, died at his home here today of a heart ailment.

YOU CAN TAKE A BIG STEP

WHILE SITTING ON THE FLOOR

That sounds like an assignment for an acrobat doesn't it? The fact is though, that it is not hard to do.

We are referring to the old Canadian method of spreading the Classified Ad pages of the newspaper on the floor and reading every ad in search of a wanted item to fill an urgent need.

Uncounted millions of families have found the home of their desires in this manner. And buying a home is the biggest step most families ever take.

Other numberless millions have found the automobile of their choice in this manner. Buying an automobile is a big step too.
Still others have found building lots, jobs, appliances, furniture and hundreds of other needs by reading the Classified Ads.

What do you need? Have you read the Examiner Classified Pages to find it?

What have you to sell? Have you used the Examiner Classified pages to sell it?

You can place an Examiner Classified Ad by dialing 4641.

DOROTHY DIX

This Juliet Wonders If Lad Wants To Make Up Dispute

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going with a boy for over a year. Then we had an argument and [illegible] I know I still like him, and I think he feels the same about me. He looks up at my window quite often as he passes. I think he wants to make up.

Barbara E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: For goodness sake, if you still like the boy and the argument was trivial, give him a chance to speak. I'm sure he's not looking at the window to see if your mother bought new curtains. If you happen to be at the window, wave to him; if you're at the door, say "hello." The boy is practically asking for a chance to make up; give it to him.

✧ ✧ ✧

UNFRIENDLY FOLK

DEAR MISS DIX: I read an article of yours not long ago in which you said one should have no objections to a daughter marrying a foreigner. I agreed with you, but what about situations in our own country? I came to this town several months ago for my daughter's health. We have been treated by the natives as intruders, just when I long for a welcoming hand. Where is the Golden Rule in a case like this? Or doesn't it apply to people who move from one part of the country to another?

Rose A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: That the condition you describe does exist is true—and regrettable. The barriers, though, are beginning to weaken a bit, due largely to shifting populations and rapid transportation. Perhaps we'll see the day when old-timers [illegible]wn, especially in a small town, will actually welcome strangers, and help them settle in new surroundings, but we are, at least, seeing them diminish the obstacles placed in the newcomers path. It's best, when moving, to, or living in, a town of this kind, to wait patiently for overtures rather than trying to barge into society on your own. Be pleasant when you are greeted, don't try to push a friendship, and co-operate if you're asked to help on a project.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Don't you agree that it's wrong and unfair for a person to stop speaking to another without giving an explanation for her actions? A woman who [illegible] formerly a good friend no longer speaks to me and I can't fathom the reason. I remembered her anniversary with a gift and card, yet never received an acknowledgment.

Ann D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I think such behavior is foolish, stupid and childish. It's the course of one who fancies herself injured, yet hasn't the gumption to ask a showdown on facts. Children make a habit of "not speaking" to their playmates—and the silence usually lasts about a day. This infantile practice carried into adulthood (or supposed adulthood) loses its cuteness and becomes silly. You might write your "friend" and tell her exactly what you think of her actions, and that the least she could do would be to explain matters.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have fallen in love with a very fine man, and it is reciprocated. The flaw in the romance? He is a widower, and the father of four children. He's afraid that at my age (24) the youngster will be too much of a burden. Do you agree.

F.R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you feel you have the qualities of forbearance, patience, tolerance and consideration to take care of the youngsters, go ahead and marry the man. The children certainly need a mother. For help, I suggest a splendid pamphlet put out by the Public Affairs Pamphlets, of 22 East 38th Street, New York, N.Y. It's called "Stepmothers Can Be Nice," and costs 25 cents. Send for it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Why can't the younger generation of today assume the responsibilities of marriage? Can it be that they aren't ready for them? I have two sisters, one 17, the other 26. Both are married, and both pile all their expenses, children and problems on our parents. They never save money for emergencies. When there's a medical bill to be paid, it's handed to us. My younger sister and her husband live with us, yet she won't even offer to do dishes, or wash her own clothes. The older sister brings her children to us for weeks at a time. Mother isn't well enough to handle all the extra work. I'm employed in an office, and must come home to do housework that my sister could very well have done during the day. Is this fair, or am I just being cranky?

Evelyn W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Some youngsters do a marvelous job of shouldering responsibilities, while others, like your sisters, have been so spoiled that they dodge them. Of course, there may be mitigating circumstances in their cases, but since you mentioned none, I'm taking the situation from your angle.

SHOULD SHOULDER CARES

Your parents aren't doing their daughters a favor by shielding them from responsibility. Girls who are old enough to marry, must be made to shoulder at least some of the cares of married life, though your mother can't be wholly blamed for wanting to cushion the worries of her youngest child, at least. A girl of 17 is too young to be married but when it is a fait accompli, all that can be done is to teach her to stand on her own feet and face the world as a wife and mother, not as a carefree schoolgirl. Apparently, the husbands concerned are as reckless as the wives, or they would do something to establish themselves as married men. Any protest you make will be put down to "sour grapes," so it's clearly up to your parents to give their children a shove and make them stand on their own. This will tak[illegible] a little time, so be patient, and I'm sure the married girls will assume their obligations.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a slight paralysis on one side of my face, and have consequently found myself on the outside looking in where dates are concerned. I'm 23, friendly, fairly attractive, yet am always rebuffed by the people I meet. I feel like a social outcast.

Irene

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I doubt very much if you are rebuffed solely because of your paralysis. I have known many women in a similar plight, yet they are met with the same friendliness they display. They have married happily, and leading fine, useful lives in their communities. The fault, I think, lies more in your disposition and attitude than your appearance. You seem to have a good social program with clubs, etc., so there's no use joining others. Just be friendly and pleasant and your slight defect will go unnoticed.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Using Up The Leftover Christmas Turkey

Today there is no problem of what to have for dinner for the best fun of all is turkey pickin's.

The patient readers who asked questions that did not relate to Christmas have been sorely neglected and now I can pick up the pieces and answer.

Dorothy H. asked for ways of using turkey that would glamorize it so she could serve it to guests and I have exactly what she is looking for.

TURKEY TURNOVERS

(for Dorothy H.)

Make a very thick rich cream sauce by melting 2 tablespoons turkey drippings and stirring in 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt and shake of pepper, then stir in 1 undiluted can of condensed cream of chicken soup and 1 cup water. (1 cup of this mixture of soup and water must be hold out from the thick sauce, and served over the turnovers later.) Stir this sauce until very thick, then cool it. Then to it add 1½ to 1½ cups chopped lean turkey meat, ¼ cup chopped ripe olives (optional), 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1 tablespoon each chopped pimiento and parsley, ⅛ teaspoon marjoram. (Even if you have to go out and buy marjoram just for this dish, do it. It is worth it.)

Make your best pastry using 2 cups pastry flour, 2-3 cup best quality shortening, ¾ teaspoon salt and about 4 tablespoons ice water. Roll out to 1 inch thickness and cut into 6 6-inch squares (to serve 6). You are going to fold these over to make triangles, so on the triangle that will be the underside place 1-6 of the creamed mixture, being very careful that it does not come closer than 1 inch to edges. Fold over other side and moisten edges and press firmly to seal with tips of fork. Bake on baking sheet at 425 deg. Fahr. (hot oven) for about 25 minutes. Heat reserved water and soup mixture and pass to be spooned over hot turnovers at table.

QUESTION: I had a recipe for maple walnut cake which I accidentally destroyed... I believe it used ½ cup maple syrup. If you have a similiar recipe I would appreciate a copy...

MRS. WRAY B.

ANSWER: The following cake makes a beauty that I am sure other readers will think is a full-scale "discovery". I am glad you asked for it.

MAPLE WALNUT CAKE

(using maple syrup)

Cream together until light and very fluffy ⅝ cup soft shortening or shortening and butter and ⅞ cup white sugar. Beat in 2 large eggs. Sift together 3 cups sifted cake flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Mix together ⅝ cup milk and one cup maple syrup and stir these in alternately with the sifted flour mixture. Stir in ½ to ¾ cup cut-up butternuts or walnuts or pecans. Pour into prepared buttered and floured layer tins or square or oblong pans. Bake layers 30 to 35 minutes; square or oblong 35 to 40 minutes. Frost with Maple Syrup icing made by boiling 1¼ cups maple syrup to 242 deg. Fahr. (fairly firm ball when tried in cold water), then gradually beat this into 2 stiffly beaten egg whites until of spreading consistency.

QUESTION: . . . would you please send me recipe for oatmeal cookies—that is 2 put together with dates between...

MRS. S. T. K.

ANSWER:

OATMEAL COOKIES

(put together with date filling)

Mix together 2 cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 cups rolled oats and when well blended cut in 1 cup soft shortening (partly butter for flavor), until mixture is fine, then stir in 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in 1-3 cup sweet or sour milk and 1½ cups brown sugar well-packed. Mix well then chill dough. Roll to ⅛-inch thickness and cut out in 2 or 2½-inch cookies. Bake on ungreased sheet at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 10 to 12 minutes or until delicately browned .When cool and before serving put together in pairs with date filling between: Mix together in saucepan 1½ cups finely cut stoned dates, ½ cup each water and sugar and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thick—about 6 minutes. Cool.

Bread, Rolls Join Frozen Foods

In Canada's north country, many a prospector's wife knows that a loaf of bread stored in a winter snowbank will stay fresh till spring. But it is only very recently, says an article in the January Reader's Digest, that this knowledge has been put to use to add two new items to the housewife's shopping list—frozen bread and rolls.

Credit for developing and popularizing quick-frozen bread, says Reader's Digest, belongs to a professional baker named Dean Arnold. Searching for a way to eliminate the tremendous waste caused by staleness, Arnold was encouraged by reading of an experience of Admiral Byrd, the famous Antarctic explorer. Byrd told of finding a loaf of bread frozen for four years, thawing it out and finding it perfectly good to eat.

Speeding up his research, Arnold developed a successful method for quick-freezing the bread shortly after it comes out of the oven, thus locking in the "newly-baked" flavor as well as preventing the loaf from growing stale as long as it is kept frozen.

Today, reports Digest, frozen bread and rolls are being sold in grocery stores throughout the U.S. and bread is being shipped to places as far away as Italy, Germany and England. It may not be long before Canadian housewives find themselves putting a week's supply of bread into the deep-freeze, in place of the daily supply that now goes into the bread-box.

DID YOU KNOW? To avoid greasing pans when baking Christmas puddings and cakes, line the containers with "cellophane" cellulose film. It will also save time in messy washing-up.

Rely On Umbrella To Give Final Touch To Costume

PARIS (Reuters)—Umbrellas are in season again and the Paris designers are featuring them in everything from chic but practical models to such outlandish creations as one which features a live goldfish swimming around in the plastic handle.

Many designers this season rely on the umbrella to give the final touch of color to a costume. Christian Dior, Jacques Fath and other pace-setters favor a brillian shade of cognac, cornflower blue or plum, which picks up the tone of gloves or hat, highlighting sombre basic shades of grey, brown or black.

Sometimes color is restricted to linings, beneath a dark puritanical exterior. A sedate black model suddenly reveals an exotic tangerine lining. Handles continue the slender, long - line effects, with crooked tops as well as the graceful straight ones.

Sports umbrellas are featured in skin, such as lizard and crocodile, and fur, and matched by their separate case. A forerunner for spring 1954 is seen in light pastel lizards. Fur is new with leopard or unborn calf repeating another fur touch on the hat or scarf.

For the "laziest woman in the world," there is a power model which opens and shuts by itself. Other attractors are umbrellas with a miniature thermometer set in the handle, or the thin straight-handled one topped with a gilt cigaret box.

Fight Grass Fires

PORTLAND, Me. (AP) — Portland firemen had cause to bemoan not having a white Christmas. Between 7:30 a.m. and noon Friday they were called to put out eight grass fires.

DELIGHTED—Traded by the Yankees to the Athletics, Vic Power packs his ball and glove at his home in San Juan, Puerto Rico. The 24-year-old outfielder led the American Association in batting with .349, made the greatest number of hits, had the most total bases.

Cleveland Barons Rout Bears Edge Closer To Bisons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons edged closer to the high-flying Buffalo Bisons Christmas Day, routing the third-place Hershey Bears 6-2 in one of two rough and tough American Hockey League encounters.

Providence Reds advanced into a fourth-place tie with Pittsburgh, taking a 2-1 decision from the Hornets in the other game.

At Cleveland, defenceman Fred Shoer scored two goals and drew an assist in the Barons triumph which advanced the second-place hometowners to within two months of the pace-setting Bisons, who were idle. It was the Barons' 10th straight home victory.

MAJOR MELEE

In the final frame, a fight between George (Red) Sullivan, Hershey centre, and Fred Glover, Barons winger, continued until the entire two squads joined in the melee. Referee Frank Udvari gave Sullivan major and minor penalties and majors to Glover, Andy Branigan and Steve Kraftcheck.

Other Cleveland marksmen were Cal Stearns, Jack Gordon, Ray Ross and Jack Stoddard. Norm Corcoran and Arnie Kullman tallied for the losers.

Providence fans saw their club strike for both goals in the first period, pumped home by Zellio Toppazzini and Chuck Scherza. Frank Mathers drilled in a 40-footer for Pittsburgh's second-period tally.

In the second period as player-coach Pat Egan of th Reds tangled with Phil Maloney, and Ed Kryzanowski with Chuck Lumsden of the Hornets. All four received majors.

SOUTH WINS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Zeke Bratkowski, setting up all three touchdowns with his great passing arm and kicking toe, quarterbacked a smashing team of southern all-stars to a 20-0 victory over the North Friday night in the Shrine's annual college all-star football classic.

The Georgia brat rifled passes of 30 and 33 yards to teammate John Carson to set the stage for two South scores and he engineered the other with a 49-yard kick that rolled out of bounds just inches from the North goal.

Duke's Ed Meadows converted this spectacular kick into a touchdown on the next play when he picked up a fumble at the three-yard line and stepped across the North goal.

MIZE MAY COACH

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Harry Seibold, Richmond industrialist who hopes to bring International League baseball to Richmond, says he is trying to sign Johnny Mize as a spring training batting coach.

Seibold and Mize talked by telephone Thursday and will get together in a conference next Tuesday. Originally, Seibold wanted to sign Mize as a full-time player-coach. However, Mize has an option for a radio show that will prevent full-season duty with the Richmond club.

Actually, Richmond hasn't landed a berth in the triple A circuit. The International League has given Seibold until Jan. 5 to show that he will have an adequate ball park.

Christmas Week Brings Drop In Market Prices

By BOB JOHNSTONE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock market prices slipped this week in Toronto, New York and Montreal. Lower volumes indicated traders were dividing their interest between the market and Christmas.

The feature of trading in both Toronto and Montreal was the fall of Brazilian Traction following an announcement by President Vargas of Brazil that foreign power firms may face nationalization if necessary for Brazil's expansion. Common stock tumbled from $7.75 to $6.75 in one session. Since then it has touched $6.62½ and gained again to $7.12½.

Golds were mostly quiet. Kerr-Addison, which showed strength last week after Ottawa announced relaxation of gold export restrictions was down to $16, a new low for the year. Consolidated Howey jumped over the $1.50 mark following receipt of favorable copper reports from its Geco mines holdings.

FEW CHANGES

Base metals continued their downward trend. The commodity prices of lead, zinc and copper are still soft and, although several authorities have predicted a firmer trend in the new year, investors are still cautious.

Western oils showed some strength as Canadian Collieries and Merrill, with interests in the new Pemline oil field in Alberta, reached new highs in active trading. The general oil tone was lower, however, and the two opposing trends produced an unchanged week.

The Friday-to-Friday comparison of the Toronto exchange's indexes showed industrials down 1.12 at 312.58, golds down .20 at 66.47, base metals down 1.55 at 138.59, and western oils up .02 at 84.38.

On the Montreal market, mines traded quietly lower and western oils were trendless. At the week's end banks were up .21 at 35.74, utilities down .6 at 92.8, industrials down 1.2 at 183.5, combined down .9 at 153.3, papers down 1.35 at 766.89 and golds down .07 at 49.51.

WALL ST. DOWN

New York, like its Canadian counterparts, began the week on a higher note, but soon slipped. The opening tone was high as railroads, regarded as a key group on the New York exchange, led several others ahead in quiet trading. Then at mid-week, news of Russian willingness to accept U.S. proposals for a peace conference, brought the sharpest decline in three months. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down .90 cents at $108.60.

On the Canadian bond market, most dealers reported a pre-holiday lull. Municipal issues were popular.

400 Arrested

TORONTO (CP)—Nearly 400 persons have been arrested in Toronto for various liquor offences since Christmas drinking last Monday. Police said that between early Thursday morning and Friday midnight there were four arrests for drunken driving, 13 for driving while impaired, two for careless driving, one for dangerous driving and 87 persons arrested as common drunks. Almost 300 were arrested in the first three days of the drive.

Hit-and-Run Accident

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Police Friday hunted for the driver of a light panel truck who did not stop after striking Nicholas Torus and his 1½-year-old son Christmas Eve. The father was carrying his young son in his arms. Both were hurled 25 feet. The boy has a fractured skull and the father a broken shoulder blade.

Search Continues

WINNIPEG (CP)—Search for a plane missing in northeastern Manitoba with four persons—including a mother and her two children—continued today. The plane, piloted by Paul Rickey, 37, of Winnipeg, disappeared Monday. The passengers were Mrs. Annanias Harper and her children Elizabeth, 4, and Joseph, 6.

Well-Known Politician Dies In Chicago

A Democrat, he bore the same name as his father, also mayor for five terms.

The younger Harrison was first elected to the chief city post in 1897 and retired after serving four consecutive two-year terms. He returned to the office of the mayor for a four-year term in 1911. He was a one-time editor of the old Chicago Times.

Sleeps In Field 51 Nights In Vain Wager

DRUMHELLER, Alta. (CP) — Clint Smith slept in an open field for 51 nights on a $400 wager, but he hasn't collected the money and doesn't hold out much hope of ever collecting it.

The 32-year-old former RCAF officer said in a telephone interview Friday night he made the wager with Robin Brown, 38, a farmer in the Drumheller district.

Smith said he talked with Brown Thursday and was given to understand he wouldn't get the money. He quoted Brown as saying he (Brown) had been "suckered" into making the bet.

Smith said he and Brown had "had a few" drinks the night the bet was made.

LIGHT SLEEPING BAG

The wager called for Smith to sleep outdoors in a light sleeping bag each night from Nov. 2 to Dec. 23, inclusive. He was to remain there from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.

Smith said the weather was fine and he "didn't suffer too much." There was about an inch of snow on the ground the last few nights.

Refuse Extension

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP)—Commercial fishermen said here Friday that the department of lands and forests has refused to extend Lake Erie fishing privileges beyond Dec. 31. Fishermen had requested permission to fish any time during the year when weather was suitable. The season now is from March 1 to Dec. 31.

"GENERAL" GAIETY—Joe DiMaggio, Marilyn Monroe and Gen. William F. Dean share in a hearty laugh at the party held in Hollywood, Calif., in honor of the hero of Taejon. The affair, sponsored by comedian Bob Hope and his wife, and attended by many Hollywood and sports celebrities, was a far cry from the grim life of prison compounds for the general.

Find Volcano Caused Rail Wreck

Severe Eruption Caused River To Rise 25 Feet

AUCKLAND (CP)—An eruption of the 9,000-foot volcano Ruapehu in the centre of New Zealand's North Island has been established as the cause of a Christmas Eve railway disaster which took 166 lives.

Mountaineers who examined the summit of the mountain Sunday found evidence of a volcanic upheaval which sent a vast volume of water from Crater lake rushing down the mountainside.

The lake, which normally covers 14 acres, is in the crater of the volcano. Several times in living memory it has been dispersed by eruptions. Usually the water runs down the many streams which have their source on slopes of the mountain.

RIVER ROSE 25 FEET

This time the upheaval appears to have forced a tremendous volume of water over the southeast edge of the crater carrying an avalanche of ice, snow and volcanic ash down the mountainside into the narrow Wangaehu river, swelling it to 25 feet above normal level and sweeping away the railroad bridge on the plain below.

Thousands of tons of ice were carved out of the glacier and swept down with the debris.

Prime Minister Sydney Holland, who has been on the scene directing relief operations since early Christmas Day, returned to Auckland Sunday night. Immediately upon his return he had an audience with the Queen who showed deep concern over details of the disaster and keen interest in relief operations. Holland told the Queen her messages of sympathy and concern, and her practical gesture in calling on survivors, had been a source of comfort to all.

THREE MAILBOXES by the side of the highway were snapped off and a section of fencing was torn at 1 a.m. today when Don Matthew's late- model car skidded off Highway 28, a mile south of Young's Point. Matthews, the driver, was heading north to his Young's Point home when the car skidded right and plunged into the ditch, first snapping off the mailboxes (seen on the roadside behind the car). Damage to the car was estimated at $200, and there was a further $40 to the fence. OPP Constable Wallace Mohns investigated. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Apartment Fire Endangers 75

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP)—A predawn fire raged through a block of apartments and stores today, endangering the lives of 75 persons including many women and children before it was brought under control.

Four hours after the flames destroyed the four-storey structures —four connecting buildings forming a city block on high street—only two persons were unaccounted for.

Fire Chief John Rohan said "some may be trapped in the fire, but we can't be sure yet. My men can't get in yet through those flames."

The fire was still out of control some three hours after the first alarm was sounded.

Six ambulances carried some 30 persons to Providence hospital. Doctors said most of them were suffering from varying stages of smoke inhalation. Few appeared to be burned.

Ex-Alderman Fined $500

TORONTO (CP)—B. M. Sparling, Toronto osteopath and a former Toronto alderman, today was fined $500 or three months on 12 charges of breaches of the Ontario Securities Commission Act.

Sparling pleaded guilty Dec. 18 to selling $18,000 worth of his own personal stock in the Sparling Drug Corporation Limited. He was remanded to today for sentence.

Wolf Pays Visit To East York House

TORONTO (CP) — This wolf didn't come knocking at the door of Percy Benson of suburban East York—it came crashing through the cellar window.

The members of the Benson family were alarmed Sunday by a loud crash and the sound of flying glass. They investigated and found 60 pounds of brush wolf.

Police and humane society were called. The wolf was taken to the Toronto zoo.

Inspector Ray Greer of the humane society said he believed the animal was attracted to the Benson home by the smell of the remains of Christmas turkey on the back porch. Frightened by a dog, the wolf smashed through the window in an effort to escape.

Michael Dwyer Ex-Mines Minister Dies

NEW GLASGOW (CP)—Michael Dwyer, 76, a bull-shouldered Irishman who came to Nova Scotia as a boy of seven and became probably the province's best known mines minister, died early today after a short illness.

Mr. Dwyer was known as "Mike" in Nova Scotia colliery towns where he intervened in many disputes between miners and operators. His fame spread beyond the province when he directed Moose River mine rescue operations in 1936.

Mr. Dwyer was mines minister from 1933 until 1939 when he resigned to become president and general manager of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company at Trenton, N. S.

MAYOR IN TWO CENTRES

He became mayor of Sydney Mines in 1926 and was elected to the provincial legislature when the Liberal administration of Premier Angus L. Macdonald, took office in 1933.

He was mayor of New Glasgow in 1949-50.

Mr. Dwyer was a self-styled history student who challenged the accuracy of history-text book claims the Royal William was the first steamship to cross the Atlantic. He said weeks of research convinced him the first was the 124-ton Cape Breton.

French Planes Strike At Red Invaders

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP) — French fighters and bombers plastered the Communist-led invaders of Laos today and French ground defenders of the little Indo-Chinese kingdom hastily strengthened key bases.

The French were reported concentrating south of Vietminh-held Thakhek, on the Thailand border. French reconnaissance units moving north from their base of Seno reported they had been unable to make contact with the rebel forces who lunged across Laos last week, cutting Indo-China in two for the first time in the seven-year-old war.

The French announced they had lost about a company of their own and North African troops in the Vietminh attack. The scouting units reported, however, they were rounding up soldiers of former garrisons in the area who had fled into the jungle at the Vietminh advance.

Poland Pushes A-Research

LONDON (Reuters)—Atomic research in Poland will be centralized in a new physics institute attached to the National Academy of Sciences, the Polish news agency PAP announced today. Three other institutes were also established to co-ordinate research on a nationwide basis in history, basic technical problems and geography. In addition to its work on atomic physics, the new institute of physics will conduct research into solid body and theoretical physics. Best-known of its members will be Dr. Leopold Infeld, 55, Polish-born mathematician who resigned from the University of Toronto in 1950 to return to Poland.

At the time, he said he found in Poland "excellent conditions in research and scientific work."

When he left, Canadian atomic energy officials said he had been entrusted with no atomic secrets.

BECAME CITIZEN

Dr. Infeld, born in Cracow of Jewish parents, became a Canadian citizen during the 11 years he spent in Canada after joining the University of Toronto staff in 1939.

He studied at the universities of Cracow, Berlin, Leipzig and Cambridge and at the Institute of Advanced Studies in Princeton, N. J.

He married Helen Schlauch of New York, also a mathematician, shortly before moving to Toronto. She and their son and daughter accompanied him to Poland.

71st Windshield Broken By Phantom Marksman

LONDON (Reuters)—The phantom marksman of the London-Portsmouth highway struck again this weekend, shattering his 71st car windshield in a flash of orange light. The latest victim, Andrew Wilson, a 30-year-old official of the BBC, was hit in the same way as the rest. A sharp crack, then splinters of glass falling into his lap.

"There was a bright orange flash," said Wilson, who was driving from London to the naval town of Portsmouth. "Nobody was near me and there was no place where anyone could hide."

Three years of investigation since the first case was reported have left detectives bewildered. There has never been a bullet, pellet, stone or other missile found to give them a clue.

71 SMASHINGS REPORTED

The majority of the 71 windshields smashings have been in daylight. All have occurred on a beautiful two-mile stretch of the highway 14 miles from London.

Strangely enough, nobody has been seriously hurt. All drivers have managed to stop before running into anything.

The first theory was that a sniper, hidden in the woods surrounding the stretch of highway, was at work with an air rifle—and a grudge against the mechanized age. For months police hid in the woods constantly patrolled the road and even called in tracker dogs.

The result: one police car windshield cracked.

NO EVIDENCE OF MALICE

The investigation was finally given up. Police reported no evidence that a rifle is involved or that there is malicious intent behind the incidents.

That left theory No. 2—loose stones thrown up by the wheels of cars. But the road was resurfaced in 1950 and there are few loose stones. And, in any case, why should stones fly only in daylight? To make sure, the road was swept daily.

Only the more romantic—and untested—theories remain. One is that mysterious supersonic waves unheard by ear shattered the windshields in much the same way that a vibrating tuning fork can smash a wine glass.

Newborn Baby Dies Of Burns

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A newborn baby boy, his tiny body covered with burns, died at Milwaukee County Emergency Hospital Sunday, 15 hours after he was found wedged between hot steampipes on a Milwaukee Road passenger train.

The infant's 17-year-old unmarried mother, who told police the baby was born in a washroom on the train as she travelled from her farm home in western Wisconsin, was in fair condition at the hospital.

Police said the girl, a high school student from Monroe county, was bound for Detroit where she hoped an aunt would take her in until the baby was born. When the birth occurred prematurely on the train she became frantic and placed the baby in a valve shutoff cabinet in the women's washroom.

A woman passenger heard a baby's cries and notified the conductor, who called police when the train arrived here. The child was found between the pipes. The young mother, seated in another coach, told officers a soldier now on active duty was the father.

Priest Robbed By Hitch-Hiker

WELLAND (CP) The Rev. Angelus Osborne, ap riest at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, Niagara Falls, Ont., was in an improved condition in hospital today after having been beaten robbed and thrown from his car early Sunday.

Weldon Carr, 26, of Welland was charged with robbery with violence. Police said they found him pinned in the wreckage of the priest's car not far from the scene of the assault. They said the car apparently went off the road at a curve.

Father Oborne, bleeding from the mouth, was taken to hospital after he awakened a farmer at 2 a.m. He was in a severe state of shock and required several transfusions.

Father Oborne said he picked up a hitch-hiker after visiting a parishioner.

Cold Weather Heading East

EDMONTON (CP) — Swirling snow and icy winds blasted Alberta today as a sudden cold snap swung east over the prairies. The weather office said the temperature would drop from 35 to 40 degrees during the day. A low of 10 degrees below zero was predicted for Edmonton tonight and zero at Calgary and Lethbridge.

A heavy snowfall occurred over central and southern Alberta during the week-end. Edmonton received 5½ inches.

The mercury is expected to drop to 20 below at Winnipeg and Brandon tonight and to 15 below at Regina and the Thunder Bay region.

Airports Strike Ends

PARIS (AP) — International passenger planes resumed calling at Paris today as some 2,000 airport control tower, radio and radar operators ended an eight-day strike. Officials at Orly and Le Bourget airports said air traffic has returned to normal. Provisional wage increases were agreed to Sunday night.

4 Rescued After 6 Days In Northland

New Baby Dies In Cold Before Help Comes

WINNIPEG (CP)—Four persons rescued Sunday from their snow-bound plane after spending Christmas in frozen northeastern Manitoba, can give thanks today to the sharp eye of an RCAF navigator.

The rescue came one day too late for a baby born to an Indian passenger during the six-day ordeal.

The light Central Northern Airways plane, missing since last Monday in the bush country 340 miles north of Winnipeg, was piloted by Paul Rickey, 37, of Winnipeg and was carrying Mrs. Annanias Harper and her two children, Elizabeth, 4, and Joseph, 6, home for the holiday.

SIGHTED BY NAVIGATOR

It was first sighted by FO. R. B. Jefferd of Winnipeg, a navigator who was one of six spotters aboard a Dakota search plane.

"There she is," he shouted to his pilot, Flt. Lt. O. Korol of Winnipeg, who immediately made radio contact with the missing craft's headquarters as Island lake, 40 miles south. Korol kept his Dakota circling above the area until the CNA sent out another ski-equipped plane to pick up the survivors. They were flown to Island lake hospital.

Then word was passed on that a child born Tuesday to Mrs. Harper had died Saturday.

CAUGHT BY STORM

Rickey apparently became lost late Monday after by-passing his destination, Island lake, on a 35-mile flight from Bigstone lake. Thinking it would be best to wait until dawn to try to find his way, he landed his light plane on a lake and taxied under some trees at the shoreline. He had plenty of gasoline, and the plane was equipped with emergency rations, heaters and sleeping bags.

The next day, Mrs. Harper gave birth to a child. Snow and ice prevented a take-off. The group huddled in and around the downed plane for six days as the snow grew heavier and the mercury dropped to 18 below.

Meanwhile, the RCAF at Winnipeg had been notified of the missing craft, and immediately started a search.

Wedding Links Royal Families

BOURG-EN - BRESSE, France (AP)—The royal families of Austria-Hungary and Italy were linked today by the marriage of Archduke Robert of Hapsburg to statesque Princess Marguerite of Savoy-Aosta in this little market town's city hall.

Hundreds of Austrians and Italians still loyal to the now defunct crowns of their nations swelled the crowds of curious who stood in a cold mist outside the 18th century hall.

Archduke Robert, 38 and six-foot-two, is second in line for the Hapsburg throne, which toppled at the end of the First World War. Princess Marguerite, 23, and a stately six feet tall herself, is farther down the line of inheritance for the crown of Italy, which was abolished after the Second World War.

Delivers Baby, Uses Clothes To Keep Trio Warm

NORWAY HOUSE, Man. (CP)—The story of a heroic bush pilot who delivered an Indian mother's baby in a marooned bush plane then almost gave his life attempting to shield them and two small children from the sub-zero cold was told today by the pilot of a rescue plane. Paul Rickey, 37-year-old pilot for Central Northern Airways, had only a first aid kit, emergency rations, a few kitchen utensils and one sleeping bag in his light plane when he became lost in the wilderness of northeastern Manitoba last Monday.

His passengers were Mrs. Annanias Harper and her two children, Elizabeth, 4, and Joseph 6. Mrs. Harper was being taken to hospital at Island Lake, 300 miles northeast of Winnipeg to have another child.

The first night Mrs. Harper went into labor and Rickey delivered the child.

WRAPPED BABY IN SHIRT

Bert Clark of Central Northern Airways, who finally rescued the group Sunday, told today how Rickey stripped off his shirt and underclothing to cover the baby, placed the mother and the three children in his only sleeping bag and went without sleep for six days in an effort to keep his passengers alive. The newborn child died Saturday.

"Rickey did a terrific job," said Clark, who found him still able to walk but suffering from exposure and shock when he landed his ski-equipped plane on God's lake, 340 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

"He was in the worst shape," said Clark. "But the passengers were in excellent condition."

All were taken to Island Lake where Rickey was reported in "wuite good" condition today.

"I think they were found just in time," said Clark. "One more night and Rickey would have died of exposure. The others were completely dependent on him and they too might have died."

BROKE AX HANDLE

"There was plenty of material around for a fire," Clark said. "But Rickey had plenty of trouble. The first night he broke the handle of his ax. He managed to make a makeshift handle to cut more wood, but it was tough going.

"The plane had a standard ration kit which included dried milk. Rickey melted snow and made up a formula for the baby from the dried milk.

"It was pretty rugged. Acting as nurse for the mother and baby, and feeding rations to the other children he had his hands full. He had no chance to try to build a shelter."

43 In Lifeboats Rescued After Ship Splits

NEW YORK (AP)—Rescue vessels plucked the last of 43 persons from open lifeboats on icy, windlashed North Atlantic seas Sunday, hours after the survivors' freighter had split in two.

Rescue operations, hampered by a heavy sea, were completed by the U.S. military sea transport ship Bluejacket and the Finnish freighter Orion.

Both ships then continued toward their European destinations. But the Bluejacket went only about 15 miles before huge waves made it pull up to ride out the storm.

The Bluejacket was first or the scene after the Swedish freighter Oklahoma sent out distress signals. The U.S. vessel took 36 of the survivors aboard and reported all in good condition.

The seven on the Orion could also be assumed to be unhurt, a coast guard spokesman said.

ALL CREW SAVED

The 43 survivors, including one stewardess, were the entire crew of the Oklahoma and the only persons aboard. The coast guard said all are believed to be Europeans.

A message from the Bluejacket quoted the Oklahoma's skipper, Robert Kutschbach, as saying the vessel broke in two about midships. The crew gathered on the aft section but had to abandon it when the engine started taking water.

Efforts to find the ship later were unsuccessful. Kutschbach messaged the ship's general freight agents, Furness-Withy and Company of New York, that it had probably sunk. However, a coast guard spokesman said the search would continue today.

Kutschbach gave the position of the Oklahoma when she split as about 400 miles off Newfoundland. The 5,900-ton vessel was headed from Sweden to Baltimore with a miscellaneous cargo.

Top British Communist Mailed Burgess' Letter

LONDON (Reuters) — The Sunday Chronicle said Sunday security authorities have traced the man who mailed a letter in southeast London last Monday on behalf of Guy Burgess, the missing British diplomat.

The letter was a Christmas greeting from Burgess to his mother, Mrs. J. R. Bassett. It was the first news of him since he disappeared in May, 1951, with his foreign office colleague Donald Maclean.

The Sunday Chronicle said M.I.5, Britain's security organization, knows a top British Communist just back from Czechoslovakia brought the letter into England and mailed it in southeast London. He has committed no offence and cannot be prosecuted.

Fire Sets Back Cancer Research

TORONTO (CP)—A cancer research project was set back three years Sunday when a fire of unknown origin destroyed 3,000 mice in the basement of an old church building.

Dr. W. R. Franks of the Banting-Best institute said the mice, in the institute's animal hospital in the basement of the church, were being used in a series of long-term experiments in cancer and "their loss ruins the whole experiment."

"It sets some phases of research back three years."

Firemen estimated $5,000 damage to the building.

One hundred chickens in the laboratory survived the smoke and flames.

Able To Save Money

'53 Good Year For Workers Gregg Tells Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg said in a year-end message that measured by any standard 1953 was a good year for the working people and industries of Canada.

Industrial output is expected to be $24,000,000,000 compared with $23,000,00,000 in 1952 and the labor force in industries other than agriculture totalled 4,451,000 in August—latest month available—compared with 4,326,000 a year ago.

Personal incomes rose although wage increases averaging 10 cents an hour were smaller than in some years since the Second World War. However, the cost of living levelled off allowing the working man a greater return for his work in terms of goods and services.

"Not only was the average worker able to obtain more goods and services with the money he spent but by and large he was able to save more money," Mr. Gregg said.

The steady trend towards shorter working hours, longer vacations and more paid statutory holidays in manufacturing industries continued. The proportion of factory workers on a 40-hour week almost doubled since 1949 and the percentage on a 48-hour week was reduced by half. The five-day week in industry has become more common in plants and offices.

1 Arrested, 2 Escape In Attempted Break-in TORONTO (CP) — One man was arrested and two escaped a hail of police bullets Sunday when officers found three men trying to break into a meat store in suburban Leaside to get at $2,000 in a safe inside.

Police fired five shots at the two fugitives. Walter Osmerchuk, 35, was arrested and charged with attempted breaking and entering.

25 Spy Rings Operating

Hundreds Of Red Agents In U.S.: Gouzenko

WASHINGTON (AP)—Igor Gouzenko, whose testimony cracked a Soviet spy ring in Canada, says he thinks there may be hundreds of Red agents operating in the United States.

And he recommended, in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U. S. News and World Report made public today, that the government "make it worth while for some of them to quit and come out with their documents."

That is what Gouzenko himself did in 1945. He was a code clerk in the Russian embassy at Ottawa. He smuggled out documents which led to the cracking of an atomic espionage ring.

Since then he and his wife and two children have been living quietly in Canada, under assumed names, and with government protection.

The Senate internal security subcommittee is now arranging to interview Gouzenko in secret, in a search for leads in subversion in the U. S. government.

SAYS 25 RINGS WORKING

Senator William Jenner (Rep. Ind.) the committee chairman, said in a statement Saturday night that on the basis of testimony from Ismael Ege, a former Red intelligence officer, "there probably are 25 Soviet spy rings operating in the United Sates."

Gouzenko, asked to estimate how many Soviet agents might be working in the United States now, replied:

"I think it might run into hundreds. As some indication, they spend several million dollars in telegrams alone."

Many of these agents, he said, work through rings, perhaps with embassy contacts, and others are "agents resident (who) would work independently and have direct contact with Moscow by radio."

Among both types, Gouzenko said, "there are some who learn to like the way people are treated in the United States and Canada." He said there are Russians who, if assured fair treatment, would break with communism as he did.

WOULD GIVE GUARANTEES

He advocated a five-point program to encourage defections among Red agents. It would include prompt U. S. or Canadian citizenship, lifelong protection, material security, help in finding employment and formal acknowledgment "that his service . . . entitled him to all assistance and help."

Gouzenko was asked to give his appraisal of the work of Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee.

"I think he is doing a good job," Gouzenko said, "but he would do a much better job, obviously, if he had documentary evidence. But in his job he is doing the right thing because he is bringing into the open many things . . . people are trying to use as excuses and pretexts. . . ."

Ask Guards Punished For Fatal Shooting

BERLIN (AP)—The three Western Allies, in a sharp protest to the Russians, today demanded punishment of Soviet border guards for the fatal shooting of a 16-year old West Berlin youth and the wounding of his mother Saturday night.

The American, British and French commandants also demanded damages be paid the family of the slain youth.

Identical notes from the three Allied chiefs were handed the Soviet protocol office. The notes asked a thorough investigation by the Russians and punishment of guilty parties.

The youth, Joachim Wozniak, was hit in the chest when Russian border guards opened fire at a car in which he approached the West Berlin border on a Soviet zone highway. His mother, Isa, 40, was injured, and his father, driving the car, escaped unhurt.

Western Powers May Accept Delay On Big 4 Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and France are considering their reply to a Soviet proposal for postponement of a Big Four foreign ministers' conference, amid signs they will agree to the delay and keep pressing for the meeting. The state department indicated this is the U.S. attitude, even though it implied the Russians may be manoeuvring to lessen the chances of France joining the European Defence Community.

A British foreign office spokesman expressed confidence the three Western powers, which had proposed Jan. 4 for a meeting in Berlin, will accept the Russian counter-suggestion that it be held Jan. 25 or later.

French official sources said only that the note Russia sent the three Saturday will have to be studied carefully.

EXPECTS ACCEPTANCE

In Bonn Sunday Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, whose future would be high among the subjects discussed at any Big Four meeting, predicted the proposal will be accepted.

And the Soviets, in a broadcast Sunday that could be a propaganda prelude to the conference, blasted away again at the Western plan for free all-German elections.

Moscow radio, heard in London, aired an article from the official publication Izvestia saying "false talk about 'free elections' is needed by the Adenauer clique and its patrons to screen their endeavor to get full control of Germany for their aggressive aims."

WANT VOTE FIRST

The Western powers want Germans both in Adenauer's federal republic and in the Soviet-dominated East German state given opportunity to express themselves on unification of Germany before any other steps in that direction are taken.

The Izvestia article repeated the Russian idea of East and West German parliaments joining in a temporary all-German government to supervise elections—a plan which the West says offers no guarantee of freedom in the East zone and gives the Communists undue influence.

One-Man Display Dazzles Soccer Crowd

LONDON (AP) — Stanley Matthews, Blackpool "wizard of Dribble" dazzled a crowd of 60,000 with a one-man display of soccer artistry today that earned Blackpool a 1-1 tie with Arsenal.

The 39-year-old winger bewildered Arsenal left back Wally Barnes and it was from one of his perfect centres that outside left Don Perry gave Blackpool the lead. Right winger Don Roper scored Arsenal's goal.

It was Arsenal's fourth straight tie game in English League division I play.

Fashionable Chelsea fought a goalless tie at Cardiff and has now gone eight games without a defeat.

Everton, held to a 0-0 tie by Bristol Rovers, moved to within one point of second division leader Leicester City.

Russians Free 1,463 Germans Held In Soviet

BERLIN (AP) — The Russians have released another 1,463 Germans held in the Soviet Union since the war, the German Red Cross in Berlin disclosed today.

The latest transport arrived last week at the Polish-East German border and some of the repatriates are in Berlin and West Germany already.

The group brings to 7,500 the number of German prisoners of war and former civilian employees of the Third Reich turned loose by the Russians as part of last summer's announced amnesty of minor war criminals. The Red Cross said about 400 of the newest arrivals want to remain in Berlin, 750 in the Soviet zone and the remainder want to go to West Germany. Among the latest returnees were almost 400 women and children.

MANY STILL HELD

Earlier this month, West German representatives told the UN General Assembly in New York that 102,958 German ex-soldiers and 133,000 German civilians were in Soviet custody up to Sept. 1.

The Russians said all PoWs had been returned by 1950 except those who were sick or were sentenced for war crimes. They said many of the latter since had been sent home.

U.S. Will Limit Imports Of Oats

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower, acting to protect American producers, has decided to limit imports of oats into the United States from non-Canadian sources to 2,500,000 bushels from Dec. 23, 1953, to Sept. 30, 1954.

The move, announced Sunday, supplements an earlier agreement which restricts shipments of oats from Canada to 23,000,000 bushels during the period Dec. 10, 1953, to next Sept. 30.

A department of agriculture spokesman in Washington said oat imports from Argentina in the last six months amounted to 1,500,000 bushels but purchases there in the last few weeks indicated the import figure would have been increased "quite a little." About 200,000 bushels of oats were imported from Mexico annually from 1948 through 1950 but none last year.

Found With Pheasants Man To Be Prosecuted

WINDSOR (CP) — Ontario game authorities said today that William Dunn, 21, of nearby Maidstone, was found in possession of two hen pheasants during the week-end and his car, gun and the birds were confiscated. He will be prosecuted.

"We are determined to stamp out the practice of taking pheasants out of season," deputy game warden Harold Baker explained. The deputy said that for some reason many found New Year's Day a favorite time for hunting the birds out of season.

The pheasant population is carefully guarded. At no time are hen birds permitted to be taken. Cock pheasants may be taken in a short season each year.

Plan To Reduce Korean Forces Very Unpopular

SEOUL (AP)—President Eisenhower's announced plan to reduce United States military forces in Korea, with two divisions to be withdrawn "soon," was received with undisguised displeasure today by South Korean officials.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commander of the U. S. Army forces in Korea, said "It may be safely assumed that the departure of these divisions will not affect men with considerable time to serve in Korea. Such men will be transferred from the designated division to other outfits in favor of men whose tours are about over."

Officials in the government of South Korean President Syngman Rhee, who frowns on the current truce and favors resumption of the war against the Reds, criticized Eisenhower's plan.

Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai said it would weaken the republic's position and indicated he felt South Korean troops were not ready to step into the gap.

UNWELCOME ANNOUNCEMENT

"We do not welcome any UN divisions being withdrawn, especially when their replacements have not been built with Korean personnel," he told newspaper men.

Both Pyun and the South Korean prime minister, Paik Too Chin, said they had not been notified of the plan. President Eisenhower said in his announcement Saturday that the South Korean government had been informed.

The U. S. has eight ground divisions in Korea. There was speculation that the 25th division would be one of those pulled out.

An army officer predicted that if the troops are withdrawn by divisions, the same procedure as used after the Second World War would be followed. That is, men with the most service in Korea would be transferred to the division to be withdrawn and comparatively new men would be switched to the units remaining.

Ask Revision Of U.K. Treaty

LONDON (Reuters) — Afghanistan has asked Britain for a revision of the 1921 Anglo-Afghanistan treaty, it was announced today. The British foreign office is considering the request.

The treaty concerns Afghanistan's frontiers with what was then British India. These frontiers now are shared with Pakistan, which became an independent member of the Commonwealth in August, 1947.

The 14-article treaty between the British and Afghan governments was signed at Kabul on Nov. 22, 1921.

Since the creation of Pakistan, there have been some Afghan demands that the areas between the frontier and the Indus river, comprising the Northwest Frontier province of Pakistan and the tribal territory, should be recognized as an independent "Pathanistan" and given the "right of self-determination."

Miners Vote To Accept New Agreement

TIMMINS (CP)—The first real break in the long strike by gold miners in this northern Ontario district has come.

Some 1,500 employees of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Limited voted almost unanimously Sunday night to accept an agreement based on proposals worked out at conferences held under provincial government sponsorship between officials of the mining company and of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

The agreement ending the work stoppage at Hollinger which began 14 weeks ago includes an 18-month contract—the company asked for a two-year term and the union for one year—and for an hourly wage increase of five cents an hour but no checkoff of union dues. The union had sought a "substantial" wage boost.

A new contract is expected to be signed between company and union today or Tuesday.

HOPES RAISED

The Christmas weekend accord raised hopes of labor peace at seven other strike-bound mines employing a total of about 3,500 men. They are Preston East Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Broulan Reef, Aunor, Hallnor, Coniaurum and Delnite, some of which have been idle since mid-July.

Union officials in Toronto last week wired the managements of these seven mines a request for meetings aimed at ending the strikes.

Meanwhile, a settlement offer also is being considered in Northwestern Quebec where 1,600 union members at the big Noranda mine have been on strike for four months. The company has offered a wage increase of 7½ per cent.

Just A Mistake Took Parcels From Wrong Car

"It was just one of those things," explained 24-year-old Norman Randall in the magistrate's court this morning as he pleaded not guilty to stealing over $25 worth of groceries and presents from a car belonging to Thomas Nimmo.

After Randall had conducted a lengthy defence, Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, dismissed the charge, but told him that he was "one of the more fortunate people" who just escaped conviction and "I suggest that you be more careful in future."

Inspector of detectives William Clarke and detective Doug Farthing recounted apprehending Randall as he came out of the McGillis parking lot about 8 p.m. on December 22. He had been carrying armful of parcels, but on being questioned as to their contents, answered "What's the use. You've got me."

Randall had shown the detectives a car from which he had taken the parcels. It was alleged that he had offered to put the parcels back and had "begged for a break." However he begged in vain and ended up in the cells, charged with theft.

MISUNDERSTANDING

Cross-examining detective Farthing, Randall asked if it not correct that last summer he and the detective had had "a little misunderstanding."

Detective Farthing: "We have no personal grudge and I can tell you all about last summer if you like."

Randall: "I'd like to hear it."

Detective Farthing: "I received a call . . . . ."

Magistrate Philp: "I don't think we want to hear about last summer. Mr. Randall will continue with his cross-examination."

Mr. Randall had no further questions.

Calling Donald Collins as his only witness for defence Randall instructed him to "tell what happened on that so called day until I left you on that so called evening."

Collins told the court of having met Randall about midday on December 22. Randall had asked him to drive to the A & P store where he had purchased groceries and placed them in the back of the car. (Randall produced an account of the purchases as an exhibit.)

The rest of the Randall had been in an hotel until about 5:30 p.m. Randall had arranged to meet witness at the hotel again at about 6:30 p.m., after which the two men had gone to the hospital where Randall had seen his invalided wife. A further arrangement to meet at the hotel later in the evening proved fruitless, so Collins had taken his car from the lot and driven back to Randall's house with the groceries.

"When I last left him (Randall) he was in a pretty intoxicated condition," concluded Collins.

PRETTY GOOD HAT

On oath Randall told of having imbibed "a pretty good lot of beer" on the afternoon and evening of December 22. Unable to find Collins in the hotel at the appointed time he had gone out to the parking lot, opened the door of the "so called car and took what I thought were my parcels." He had just started to walk home when he was apprehended by the detectives.

"I told Mr. Farthing I had an armful of groceries and Christmas presents," continued Randall. "I didn't figure I could talk to him so I said 'Oh, you've got me or something to that effect.'"

Magistrate Philp: "Yes, but anyone would quite probably take that as a possible expression of guilt."

Randall: "Well I guess that's just kind of an expression with me, at least that's how I meant it."

Then turning to Magistrate Philp, Randall said: "I've been up here before, you know that. But I'm married now and I've been going straight—well pretty straight, all summer. I've gone off drinking and I've set out to show I can make a man of myself. I'm not against the police picking me up. I was pretty full that night and they probably kept me out of more trouble than what I got into."

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw: "Of course you aren't suggesting that you were that drunk that you did not know what you were doing?"

Randall: "No it was dark and I just mistook Mr. Nimmo's car for the one belonging to Mr. Collins."

"It was just one of those things," he added.

Mother Saves Two Children

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — A mother threw her two children from a second-storey window to neighbors standing below early Sunday when fire broke out in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wright here.

Mrs. Wright, roused by her sister, Marion Wilson, 15, when the fire broke out ran to the room where her children, Larry, 2, and Patti, 3, were sleeping. She picked them up and dropped them out of the window to neighbors and then jumped herself.

Miss Wilson suffered leg burns in the blaze, believed caused when a clothes line on the first floor near a stove caught fire. The others were unhurt.

Mr. Wright had left shortly before the fire to return to the RCAF base at Calgary where he is stationed.

Damage, confined to the first floor, was described as extensive.

Say Publisher Freed In Bolivia

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Miguel Lanz Duret, publisher of Mexico City's El Universal and president of the Inter-American Press Association, has received official notification from Bolivia of the release Saturday of Demetrio Cancelas, newspaper publisher arrested in last month's abortive revolt in Bolivia.

Duret made several protests to Bolivian President Victor Paz Estenssoro regarding Canelas' arrest. Canelas, a former cabinet minister, was taken into custody after mobs burned his newspaper, Los Tiempos of Cochabamba, as an aftermath of the revolt. The government said he had given refuge to some of the rebels in his plant.

Canelas' newspaper is expected to resume publication after the building and equipment have been repaired.

Slippery Roads Blamed For Accidents

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Wet snow which fell in this district on Boxing Day made driving hazardous and was responsible for a number of auto accidents.

A Bobcaygeon woman was injured about noon on Saturday when the truck in which she was a passenger skidded and crashed into a post at the south end of the bridge at Trent River on Highway 30.

The driver of the truck, a light pick-up, was Fred W. Jones, 44, of Bobcaygeon. He told police he was not aware of a rather sharp curve approaching the bridge from the south, and did not see it until it was too late. He applied the brakes and the truck skidded into a pole in the east ditch.

His wife, Violet, also 44, received a dislocated left arm and cuts to her right knee. She was attended by Dr. Judd of Havelock and later released. Another passenger in the truck was William Frlee of 182 Garry St., Campbellford. He received a cut on the back of his head.

The pole and guardrail posts which the truck crashed into saved it from tumbling down a steep bank and into the Trent River.

Damage to the truck amounted to about $1,000.

HIT NEAR NORWOOD

Earlier the same day, two cars came to grief on Highway 45 about three miles south of Norwood. Joseph L. Shaughnessy, 63, of 174 Stewart St., Peterborough, was travelling slowly as he prepared to descend a slippery hill. A car driven by 30-year-old Robert Baskin of Keene approached from behind and due to the slippery condition of the roadway, skidded into the rear of the Shaughnessy car, doing little damage to that vehicle, but damaging the front of the Baskin vehicle to the extent of about $100.

OPP Constable George Rose of Campbellford investigated. No charges were laid in either accident.

No accidents were reported inside the town of Campbellford itself. Drivers apparently heeded police warnings regarding driving and drinking and the department had a quiet day.

Chief Constable Charles Lockwood expressed his appreciation to local motorists for their co-operation over the holiday season, and said he hoped there would be no accidents to mar the New Year holiday next weekend, when police will be keeping a close watch for impaired drivers.

Indonesia, Rich In Natural Resources Yet Country Is Virtually Broke

By OLEN CLEMENTS

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — To rid Indonesia is like an iceberg politically and economicaly. Nine-tenths of it is hidden benath the surface.

There are intrigues within intrigues. The cabinet is divided. The army is divided. Political parties are split. There is a rumor — and rumors are hard to separate from facts — that President Achmed Soekarno and vice-President Mohammed Hatta are on the outs.

The 80,000,000 people in the islands, an area and population about the size of Japan but far richer, have never voted in a general election. They were ruled for 350 years by the Dutch who granted the Indonesians independence in 1949 only after much fighting There are many Dutch still in the government. They are retained because they have governmental savvy many Indonesians lack.

Nobody knows how many Communists there are in the country. There is no evidence of any Communist in the cabinet.

RICH, BUT BROKE

Indonesia could hold the economic balance of power in Asia. It is rich in oil, coal, manganese, nickel, copper, silver, gold, diamonds, hardwoods, tea, coffee spices and rice.

Yet the country is virtually broke because most of these treasures lie undeveloped. Indonesia is still struggling with a Dutch-imposed economy geared to rubber copra and tin. The idea was to keep most Indonesian products off the world market to safeguard Dutch artels elsewhere.

On the surface the Indonesian people as a whole are happy. The government wants to clean up all problems but is young and inexperienced.

Indonesians themselves take life easy. Feasting, cock fighting and dancing take up a big part of the time. As a result, industrialists have to employ 100 men and hope that the 60 needed to do the job will appear for work.

Overshadowing Indonesia's economic problems is the political situation. By and large, the biggest struggle in the country is for power. Whoever rules the army, rules Indonesia.

There are seven army divisions in Indonesia, controlled lock, stock and barrel by the colonels who command them. A coalition of any four of these divisions could change things overnight.

MOSLEM PARTY STRONGEST

The strongest political party is the Masjumi—the Moslems, who lead in strength and representatives in Parliament. The PNU — Nationalist party — is second. The Communist bloc—composed of Reds in the Partai Kommunis Indonesia (PKIA), and the Sobsi, which is made up of the unions, farmers and independents — is third.

All look to the army of 250,000 men, ill-armed and ill-trained, to keep order and protect them.

But besides the legal army, there are other armies. The Darul Islams, who want a theocratic state, claim to have 80,000 men under arms in central and West Java alone. They have declared war on the Soekarno republic.

In western Sumatra the Darul Islams have fought with government troops around Atjeh and Acheen. The legal army, which controls most of the roads in Indonesia, knocks off work like most of Indonesia arund 2 p.m. every day. When they move away from their roadblocks the Darul Islams in some areas move into their places and charge traffic tolls. The Darul Islams sometimes have collected this "watch money" for as much as a month in advance.

RACE PROBLEM ACUTE

Added to the armed and political differences of Indonesia are the problems of race and nationality. The Sumatrans do not like the Javanese. Th Ambonese from the Eastern Moluccas, the Mendonese from the Celebes do not get along well with either the Javanese or the Sumatrans. Borneo is an entity to itself.

To these 75,000,000 natives of the islands, add 2,000,000 Eurasians, 2,000,000 Chinese and 1,0000,000 assorted nationalities in which the Dutch predominate.

Political control of these varied peoples is a problem. Promised elections have not been held. President Soikarno has promised to hold one sometime next year. However, no election machinery has been set up and since most of the people are unable to read and write it's doubtful an election is as close as a year away.

Hughes Ignores Film Censors, Star Rebels

By BOBBY THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Howard Hughes' latest defiance of the film industry's censors today brought open rebellion from his most famous star, Jane Russell.

Tuesday, in St. Louis, RKO will premiere "French Line," which has been refused a seal of approval by filmdom's self-censoring Breen office. The movie was reportedly turned down because of "some glaring breast shots" of Miss Russell and a dance by her "that will certainly bring the cops to any theatre where it is shown."

Hughes' publicity campaign was hampered by Miss Russell's statement that she thinks the Breen office is right.

HOPES CUTS MADE

"I thoroughly agree with the Breen office," she told me. "It is the public's safeguard and the actor's, too. I hope and pray the studio will make the cuts requested.

Miss Russell and the rest of Hollywood saw the latest Hughes action as a repeat of his manoeuvre with "The Outlaw," her first motion picture. Then an independent producer, Hughes defied the Breen office by releasing the picture without a seal in certain cities. He soon shelved the picture, and later released it again after making certain cuts.

"I had nothing to say about such things before," said Jane. "But now I won't be drawn into the affair. My contract is up in February, and this experience will color the possibility of my re-signing."

The voluptuous brunette's first big squabble with the studio came during the shooting of "French Line." She was supposed to wear a Bikini-like costume.

"I fought and beefed and argued," she admitted.

EXPANDED SUIT USED

RKO's release of "French Line" is believed to be the first time a major studio has put forth a film without Breen office approval. Earlier this year the producers of "The Moon is Blue" released the picture through United Artists although the industry's censors would not approve it. The picture has enjoyed fabulous success.

Insiders believe Hughes will also release "Son of Sinbad" without a deal. The picture contains some sizzling dances by Lili St. Cyr and a nearly nude dance by Sally Forrest.

Rescue 11 Men From Crippled Plane

TOKYO (Reuters) — The United States Navy today announced a task force had rescued 11 crew members of a British Sunderland flying boat which crash-landed near an island in the Straits of Korea Sunday.

Some of the British airmen were lifted from the crippled plane by helicopters. Others paddled ashore in a rubber lift raft and two remained aboard the plane to direct salvage operations, the navy said.

Will Hear Case For Divorce From Farouk

CAIRO, Egypt (Reuters) — Egypt's highest religious court ruled today that ex-queen Narriman has a case for divorce against ex-king Farouk and decided to hear it Jan. 19.

The Sharia Moselm court also decided to judge her claim for $14,500 a month alimony on the same date.

The 20-year-old former queen rejected, through her lawyer, a reconciliation move made by her husband's lawyer and pressed for the court to accept her case for divorce.

Narriman seeks the divorce on grounds of separation.

Under Moslem law only a husband has the right to divorce. All he has to do is to pronounce thrice: "I divorce thee." The wife has no right to divorce except by decision of the Sharia court.

HOT DEBATE

There was a heated argument after the sole judge of the court, Sheikh Ahmed Mohammed Moura, wearing a turban and flowing robes, had granted Narriman's case for divorce.

Farouk's lawyer asked for a one-month postponement of the hearing of the divorce case so that he could study it further and consult his client.

Narriman's lawyer contested this, saying that one week was sufficient as the defendant's counsel could consult Farouk by radio-telephone daily.

The ex-king, who was forced to abdicate in July 1952, has spent most of his time in Italy since then.

Before the court opened today Narriman's lawyer said the alimony—if granted—would be claimed from the Egyptian government out of ex-king Farouk's confiscated property.

MARRIED IN 19551

She married Farouk, now 33, on May 6, 1951. His first queen was the lovely Farida, who gave him three daughters before they were divorced in 1948.

On Jan. 16, 1952, Narriman gave birth to a boy—Farouk's first son, Amhed Fuad II.

Farouk abdicated in the boy's favor on July 26, 1952, three days after the coup d'etat by Gen. Mohammed Naguib.

Affer 11 months the boy king was deposed on June 18 this year. The youngster remained with Farouk in Italy after Narriman returned to Cairo.

Kitchen Utensils Make Cavan Rhythm Band

CAVAN (ENS) — Whitfields School, S.S. No. 8, was bright with lights and gaily decorated with traditional Yuletide decorations for the annual Christmas concert presented by the teacher, Mrs. Alex. Miller, and her pupils on Tuesday night.

The opening number, "Joy to the World," by the school was followed by-recitations by Lynda Hogg, George Little, Rollie Yonkers and Brian Hogg. Songs, dialogues, drills and pantomimes made up an entertaining program. Further recitations were given by Barbara Young, Leslie Cheshire, Wayne Hogg, Sharon Armstrong and Willie Bristow, and a piano trio played by Barbara and Russell Young and Wayne Hogg. A rhythm band made up of kitchen utensils brought a hearty round of applause. At the close of the program, Santa arrived and distributed gifts from the Christmas tree.

Additional RR Signs

COBOURG (ENS) — Two warning signs have been placed on D'Arcy street on either side of the CPR and CNR tracks which cross this street near the ordnance depot. These signs are in addition to the customary railways cross-arms. However the town council has sought to persuade the CPR to level off a ridge extending along the south tracks of the CPR because the ridge prevents a clear view up and down the line by a motorist approaching the level crossing from the south. So far, the installation of the two painted signs represents the response of the railway to the request of the town council for more adequate protection.

Four Oil Tankers Unload At Cobourg

COBOURG (ENS) — Four oil tankers have unloaded cargoes here within the past three weeks, unusual for this time of the year but consistent with good navigation weather, yesterday the tanker "Oil Transporter" docked with a load of gasoline for the local company depot.

About three weeks ago a scow with a mobile derrick aboard sank in Cobourg harbour as a result of a gale which pounded the scow against the centre pier until a hole was punched into the hull. With one end above water, the scow is still on the bottom of the harbour as efforts to raise it have been delayed repeatedly by rough weather.

1,600 Ignore Vote At Noranda

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—The 1,600 men who have been on strike for four months at Noranda Mines Limited practically ignored a vote conducted Sunday by a Rouyn-Noranda citizens' committee.

The vote was on whether to accept a company offer of a wage increase of 7½ per cent.

Only 50 ballots were cast when the polls closed for the day. Voting continues today.

Officials of the striking United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL said those who voted were not union members.

DISTRIBUTED HANDBILLS

Union members stood in 10-below-zero weather outside the pooling places and distributed handbills which advised rejection of the offer and announced that the union will hold its own vote today on the wage offer.

At church services Sunday, Roman Catholic clergy told the strikers it would be a good thing if they voted. The messages from the pulpits said it would be bad if a poor turnout led the citizens' committee to withdraw its efforts to settle he strike.

The union called the strike to enforce demands for wage increases and for the checkoff of union dues.

Motor Traffic Heavy No Serious Accidents

COBOURG (ENS) — Several minor accidents occurred during the long Christmas weekend but nothing serious. Traffic was unusually heavy for this time of the year. In Cobourg the line of cars extended in an unbroken string between both traffic light intersections on King street, a sight which is frequently seen during the summer on holidays but never before in December. The day before Christmas police were out on King street, which is No. 2 Highway, directing traffic. Good travelling weather prompted many to head home for Christmas by car instead of train and bus and the return traffic yesterday afternoon and evening approached the volume seen in the summer.

Sterling Area Prospects To Be Analyzed

LONDON (Reuters) — Full-scale analysis of the prospects of the sterling area will be made by Commonwealth finance ministers at their one-week conference beginning in Sydney, Australia Jan. 8.

Financial observers here said today the finance ministers would first examine the current position of the area's gold-and-dollar reserves, and then review its balance of payments prospects for 1954.

The Sydney conference, unlike most of the previous post-war Commonwealth finance and economic discussions, will not be a crisis one. The area's gold-and-dollar reserves last Nov. 30 were at the safe figure of £915,000,000 ($2,562,000,-

Richard Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, who is expected to preside at the talks, will be able to give a confident report on the fortunes of the area of his colleagues from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and the new Central African Federation. They last met in London in November and December, 1952.

Principal aim of the Sydney deliberations is to maintain and increase the prosperity of the Commonwealth and sterling area, which has an annual export-import turnover of £12,000,000,000.

The main theme of the talks will be expansion of Empire trade, industrial and agricultural development of the Commonwealth, ways and means of stabilizing prices of vital sterling-area raw materials like rubber, tin and jute, and methods of strengthening sterling.

Parking Lot Appearance

The old market square, now the city's central parking lot, looks bleak, dowdy and rather squalid. This time of year is the worst for viewing such a spot, but it must be admitted that at any time of year the place has a messy, unlovely appearance. We refer not to the actual pavement and the cars parked on it, but to the look of the place above ground level. It is empty of anything to relieve the bleak openness and cluttered periphery. The old city buildings used to hide some of the clutter, but now it is open to all eyes on three sides. The fourth side is the backside of George Street shops—doorways, ash cans, a medley of signs, placards, lights, fire-escapes, drably-painted or unpainted walls and uneven gables and rooftops. It is unfortunate that the largest open area down town should be the most graceless. Nearly everybody in Peterborough sees it every week. Every visitor to town passes it or uses the lot, and all traffic from Charlotte Street and Highway 28, north-bound, goes by the spot. It must make a bad impression on people who have not grown used to the sight.

* * *

What can be done? The clutter could be reduced. Perhaps the owners of the buildings and the city could co-operate on some paint pattern for the walls, and the merchants themselves might find it profitable to dress up the backs of their stores as well as the fronts—for a lot of potential business is at those back doors. A quick way to relieve the barrenness would be to plant half a dozen trees on the parking lot, at spots which would not interfere with cars. There are no overhead wires to get in the way. We suggest that some fairly large trees be transplanted, so that an immediate improvement would result. Half a dozen biggish trees might cost as much as a thousand dollars to erect, but the cost would be worth it for the general tone of the place. How can a city call itself pretty and be attractive to tourists whose main square is so unsightly?

* * *

It may be objected that the parking lot is merely temporary. Why spend money improving the appearance if the whole is to be occupied by some grandiose hotel, department store or office block? We suggest that the parking lot is daily becoming a fixture and that the time is far off when buildings will rise on it. Are Peterborough people going to put up with the place as it is for years on end? It is now the most prominent blotch in the entire city.

Farewell To Peter Piper

It is with regret that we print today what must be the last of Peter Piper's Monday columns on music. For more than four years they have been a regular Examiner feature, and we have ample evidence that musical people looked forward to them and followed them with enjoyment and profit.

Sometimes we are asked why we devote so much space in this newspaper to the arts. 'Do you think that most of your readers are interested?' we are asked. No, we do not. But we know that there are very few things in The Examiner in which most of our readers are interested; we employ an agency which finds out such things, and they tell us that what most of our readers are interested in—what they read with regularity—are the pages of local news, the pages of world and national news and—hold your hats—the editorials and the advertisements. Not the sport pages nor the comics, popular though these are.

We do not expect that all readers, or even a majority of readers, will follow the articles we print about the theatre, about painting, about music. But some of our readers are interested, and we think that they deserve the best service we can give them. We try to print something that will be of interest to everybody. There is only one field which we leave alone, and that is science; we simply have not the facilities to present scientific articles which would be of real interest and value to people of scientific bent; good newspaper writers about science are very hard to find.

We have been glad to publish Peter Piper's articles, therefore, because they were good in themselves, and because they were an assurance to the musical people among our readers that we were not unmindful of them. And we had hopes that, as a great many young people read our paper, Peter Piper's experience and taste would give them some guidance in forming musical opinions of their own. It is with real regret that we bid good-bye to a valued contributor.

Wise Men From The West

History has a habit of getting its wise men from the East, wise men possessed of a cult, secret knowledge, mystical endowments. In classical Greece the Syrian Adonis and the Egyptian Isis were being worshipped by groups of initiates. The Persian Mithras almost took the soul of Rome in the first two centuries after Christ. Byzantine sects flourished on the Adriatic for many centuries at the beginning of this era. In the last hundred years westerners have been going to India to sit at the feet of Hindu mystics. Mrs. Annie Besant and theosophists tried to make a faith out of the best in Hinduism and Christianity.

The discipline of Yoga has attracted both fanatics and highly intelligent men. Two moderns of undoubted intellectual capacity who have turned to Yoga are Christopher Isherwood and Aldous Huxley. The oddity is that they are practising it in California, not in the East. Swamis—practitioners and teachers of Yoga—have set up headquarters in Hollywood. This departure from the usual—wise men in the West rather than in the East—may not be as inapposite as it appears. It has been suggested by a reviewer of Isherwood's handbook on Yoga that if the work of wise men lies among sinners rather than among just men, the Swamis in Hollywood can find there the concentrated essence of Western abberation from the path of true wisdom.

In the Isherwood commentary is this explanation: "Basically yoga means 'union'. It is the Sanskrit ancestor of the English word 'yoke'. Hence it comes to mean a method of spiritual union. A yoga is a method—any one of many—by which an individual may become united with the Godhead, the reality which underlies this apparent ephemeral universe. To achieve such a union is to reach the stage of perfect yoga. Christianity has a corresponding term, 'the mystic union', which expresses a similar idea."

Wise men in the West? Perhaps not; perhaps the light of the star which guided men to the child at Bethlehem has been diffused by the neon stars of Hollywood.

Starlings And Sparrows

Among the British imports which have not been welcome in this country or the United States is the starling. Almost everywhere in the temperate zone of North America starlings are making a nuisance of themselves—chiefly in cities. Here in Peterborough they were beginning to oust even the common sparrow, together with other birds more prized.

In the eighteen-nineties a sentimental American businessman decided that his country should have all the birds mentioned by Shakespeare, so to begin his project he imported a hundred starlings from England and let them loose in New York's Central Park. Now they are to be found in every street and park from Washington to Vancouver, taking all the food that can be found in cities so that other species have had to leave—or have starved.

A couple of years ago starlings were so numerous in Peterborough that few sparrows could be seen. (The disappearance of the horse has also had its effect on the sparrow population; their declining numbers cannot be blamed entirely on the intrusion of starlings.) Yet the starling has not completely taken over, and we have been interested to observe this last summer and autumn that starlings seem to be dwindling in number, and sparrows to be holding their own again. Is the balance of nature asserting itself? Perhaps not—for the sparrow itself was an upsetter of the balance, being, like the starling, an English import.

Canary Breeders Knew It

We read the other day of a disease which is comparatively new, and to which medical science has given a new name—carrotinemia. This is an ailment that looks like jaundice, which you get if you eat carrots to excess. It is a yellowing of the skin, which usually begins on the palms of the hands and near the mouth, and which spreads over large areas. Apparently it does not cause the whites of the eyes to turn yellow, which is one of the marks of true jaundice.

How heavily do you have to feed on carrots to get carrotinemia? We read of one woman who eats a pound of carrots a day, and drinks a pint of carrot juice. She has it. She pursues this odd course because it is part of a food-fad in which she places great faith. Apparently there are enough of these inordinate carrot-eaters to cause the medical profession a more than passing interest.

What interests us is that canary-breeders have known about carrotinemia for years, though they do not call it by that name. They know that if they feed their birds plenty of carrots—and a canary eats something very close to its own weight every day—they will have a fine, deep golden colour. They feed them marigold blossoms for the same reason.

There is no reason to assume that because carrots turn canaries yellow, that they will turn people yellow, as well, but apparently it is true. Of course, you have to eat a forbidding quantity of carrots to reach this state. Personally, we are in no danger from carrotinemia.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

IT IS CUSTOMARY at this season to attempt a summing-up of the events of the preceding year. Situated as I am somewhat on the periphery of the musical world any such attempt on my part is bound to be based largely on what the lawyers call hearsay evidence; let us, however, glance through the annals of 1953 and recall some of the more significant musical happenings.

✧ ✧ ✧

1953 was Coronation Year, and this great ceremony with all its attendant celebrations has been responsible for a great deal of music, old and new, good, bad and indifferent. In Westminster Abbey itself, a new venturesome note was struck by Walton's Te Deum. In its customary place near the end of the service this setting seemed to look forword to a new and glorious age of endeavour and discovery. Musically it was not entirely successful; Walton had to some extent diluted his own style with Rimsky-Korsakov. The Vaughan Williams Te Deum heard at the crowning of the late George VI was less spectacular but in all other respects far superior to the Walton work because it had the prime virtue of integrity, from which everything else flowed.

✧ ✧ ✧

I CANNOT leave the subject of the Coronation without mentioning the signal honour conveyed to Dr. Healey Willan in being commissioned to write one of the Homage anthems. This is the first time that a composition by a Canadian composer has been performed at a Coronation. Dr. Willan has most of the qualifications for a composer of music for ceremonial and state occasions. His touch is sure and experienced; he is obviously deeply moved by pageantry and ritual; he is a quick and fluent writer who can produce music at short notice. He is a master of choral effect, as was shown in his contribution "O Lord our Governour." In its place and setting it made a better showing than a short anthem by Herbert Howells, though the later was much more moving piece of music.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE YEAR has been saddened by the death of a number of distinguished musicians. Bax, Prokofiev and Quilter amongst composers, and amongst executants the incomparable Kathleen Ferrier in the prime of her career. Everybody must sooner or later come to the final irrevocable double bar, but when it comes in the midst of a brilliant development section the world is frustrated and saddened. Air travel has accounted for many untimely deaths in the musical world during the last few years. William Kapell, the brilliant young American pianist, was lost in this way recently. While we may say that many careers that were cut short by disease in former years could have been prolonged if modern technique in medicine had been available it is equally true that if Ginette Neveu, William Kapell and others had lived before the invention of aeroplanes they might (as the Irish say) be alive to this very day. Perhaps we are better off on the balance, for where as plagues are apt to carry off hundreds of thousand,s flying accidents are responsible for far fewer deaths. How greatly enriched we would have been if Mozart, Schubert, Purcell, Mendelssohn and Pergolesi had lived to a ripe old age. In this connection it is odd to read that Cesar Franck died in 1890 as the result of a street accident which happened to him six months before his death. One scarcely thinks of traffic accidents in those spacious days, but evidently they happened. Poor Franck; perhaps his mind was on some new chromatic progression and he failed to notice the vehicle until it was too late.

✧ ✧ ✧

AT THE SAME TIME new stars are appearing above the horizon. At this stage we who live outside the large centres of music must be satisfied with hearsay and the occasional broadcast, but it is apparent that at last Canadians are coming to the fore with violinists of the stamp of Betty Jean Hagen, pianists such as Glenn Gould and Rae Dudley and singers such as Lois Marshall and (if he can be accounted a Canadian) George London. Much is expected of these young people, but the Canadian public has a responsibility to them. If that responsibility were more widely recognized there would be less loose talk about losing the cream of artists to the United States. Fortunately there are signs of a change in the attitude of the public, who are beginning to demand native artists.

✧ ✧ ✧

ONE of the most significant trends to be continued during the present year is the enormous increase in the volume and range of long-playing records. Naturally it is the well-known classics that have received the greatest amount of attention from the recording companies, and presumably also from the public; Beethoven's Eroica Symphony is listed in no less than seventeen different LP recordings in an American catalogue; but in the pleasant byways of less familar music an enormous amount of recording has been done to satisfy even the most esoteric taste. Schoenberg, Vivaldi, Purcell, Weber and Hindemith are all well represented, and Bartok has nearly a whole double-column page to himself.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS as though the present age, living as it does on the top of a volcano that is liable to erupt at any moment, is obeying a deep urge to perpetuate itself. Our present civilization has been likened with justice to that of Alexandria. Founded in 332 B. C. by Alexander the Great after he had conquered Egypt it became the chief respository of Greek culture. In spite of troubled times it became rich and prosperous and famous for its library and its scholars. Alexandria produced nothing original, but it kept alive the flame of Hellenistic and Judaeo-Christian learning until its capture in 1640 by Arabians. At the time of its fall it contained 4,000 palaces, 4,000 public baths, 400 theatres, 40,000 Jews who paid tribute and 12,000 persons who sold herbs. At the height of its prosperity it was second only to Rome. When it fell the Caliph Omar was consulted concerning the fate of the famous library (which had already suffered by fire 600 years earlier during the Egyptian campaign of Julius Caesar). Omar replied that if the Greek writings agreed with the Koran they were superfluous if they disagreed they were pernicious, but in any case they should be destroyed. For six months the baths were heated by the flames of the burning books.

✧ ✧ ✧

WE CAN only hope and pray that this rather ominous parallel with the ancient world will not be pursued to its conclusion. History never repeats itself exactly, but even if the threatened catastrophe were to occur there must be countless spots on the outskirts of the settled world where collections of books and recordings have been assembled. Thanks to printing we have no need to put all our eggs into one basket as the Alexandrians were forced to do.

✧ ✧ ✧

ON THIS RATHER solemn note I end this week's notes and the whole series that I started on October 31, 1949; and I take this last opportunity of wishing all my readers a very Hapyy New Year with plenty of musical enjoyment in store for you. One last reminder— the closing date for entries to the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival: they have to be in by January 15.

An American Opinion: SLEEPERS AWAKE!

The Weather

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

"I DO NOT see why among us any one should be sneered at for opening a conversation with a reference to the weather. The wonder is that this fascinating and absorbing topic is ever—as sometimes it is—subsequently dropped. Of course, if meteorology were to become an exact science, we should know where we were, and the weather, as a topic, would not so tyrannously dominate us. But, as meteorology seems to be not yet a science at all, but simply a name given to certain kinds of practical jokes lightly played on us at our own expense, we must needs continue to dabble in weather-wisdom on our own account. Perhaps, in time, science will atone for some of the many burdens it has piled upon the frail shoulders of humanity by discovering some means of not merely detecting, but also directing, the intentions of the elements. Utopian, I look forward to a time when there shall be erected, at Greenwich or some other convenient place, an elaborate contrivance whereby the clouds shall be 'compelled,' as erst by Zeus, and the winds be held in thrall, as erst by Aeolus, and Phoebus himself be forced to smile pleasantly on us throughout all his daily tour. Rain shall fall in the country, as much of it as the farmers need; but in the cities never, save for a light shower, between three and four a.m., to lay the dust for the traffic of the coming day. Breezes shall come from the west to flatter us, and from the south to caress us. None shall be admitted from the other two points of the compass. We shall have entered on a Golden Age, wherein, among many other things, Pastoral Plays shall have become really delightful."

The writer of that passage has not been venting his discontent at the fitfulness of our recent weather or at the uncertainties of our Rockcliffe weatherman. The passage was written by Max Beerbohm in one of his regular theatre criticisms in the Saturday Review, in which post he succeeded Bernard Shaw in 1898.

This piece about the weather, written July 11, 1893, was a typical Beerbohm preamble to a pastoral play which was not entirely to his liking. We reproduce it from a recent collection of his criticisms not so much to refer to Beerbohm's theatres as to that it is not the truth to say that our present weather problems are caused wholly by the atom bomb, the Liberal Government or Charlotte Whitton.

The weather, it seems, was always with us—but never as expected.

Mr. St. Laurent's Faith

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

PRIME Minister St. Laurent has restated his faith in atomic future. Despite the ghastly possiblity of atomic war, with the almost inevitable destruction of civilization as it is now understood, the Prime Minister is convinced that sane counsels will prevail, that atomic war will be averted and that, instead, the great power obtainable through nuclear fission will be turned to the service of mankind.

Mr. St. Laurent expressed his belief simply. "I firmly believe," he told a labor delegation in Ottawa on Thursday, "that Providence would not allow us to obtain these secrets and to find these ways of directing and controlling the forces of nature if the ultimate result was not going to be beneficial.

As the Prime Minister observed, many inventions brought out primarily for warlike purposes have either been turned to peaceful ends or have led to other discoveries that have benefited the human race.

On that ground alone there is logical support for the hopeful outlook of Mr. St. Laurent, although it will be agreed that if atomic weapons are used in the future to any considerable extent, the chances of people deriving great blessings from other applications of the same force will not be great.

The effort of all leaders, including those of the Soviet Union, should be to insure that atomic power is used only for pacific purposes. This is as much a question of intelligent selfishness as of Utopian idealism. It is certain that in modern war even the technical victor is a loser. The aftermath of the Second World War shows that. It is also certain that in the event of a war in which atomic weapons are predominant, destruction would be so widespread that the combatants would all be in a sorry state, thrown back, perhaps to barbarism or worse.

At the moment the Eisenhower proposal is receiving strong support from many sources, and while the prospect of Moscow's giving official approval is not bright, the idea of an atomic pool for peace as opposed to an atomic race toward war remains as a basis for eventual agreement.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches . . .

And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years . . .

And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and on the same day was the sabbath . . .

Afterward Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.

The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him whole.

And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day.

But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work . . .

I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgement is just; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me. (John 5:2, 5, 8, 9, 14-17, 30.)

✧ ✧ ✧

I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrife, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.

And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God. (Rom. 12:1, 2.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.

For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. (Phil. 2:12, 13.)

Give-Aways

(Wall Street Journal)

It is certainly true that the cereal sellers are super-salesmen. We are ready to surrender the point without argument.

The lower shelf of our pantry is stacked with half-full cardboard cartons. They contain bits of corn flakes, wheat flakes, rice flakes, snapping nixies, crackling cornies, and popping puffies—most in the large economy size.

As a reward for having bought and stored all this we have a houseful of atomic rings, secret codes, triple bubble gum, 3-D comics, voodoo paper, cut-out spacemen, a real treasure map that contains the secret of buried pirate gold, a tiny-tots' cardboard TV console, X-ray binoculars, not to mention a whole litter of the likenesses of the lone star space ranger and Hopping-Along Video.

Tucked away in the phone book, stuck behind the coffee canister or tacked on the shopping list board we also have a wealth of valuable coupons that enable us to buy more of all this, and so become eligible for more delightful loot, at a discount price. Breakfast cereal is about the only thing we know of that we can get for ourselves wholesale.

And we have only one plaint about the whole matter.

Red Bureaucracy Annoying Russia Having Revolution

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

The post-Stalin era has brought the Soviet Communist party face to face with a bloodless revolution it would like to ignore.

Neon signs in Moscow and other Soviet capitals are more than mere advertisements. They are portents of the future:

"Insure your personal belongins."

"Invest in bonds for your future."

"Save your money in a savings bank."

I travelled more than 6,000 miles inside the Soviet Union and saw a large slice of the vast, powerful, puzzling country, a shuffling and sloppy giant among nations which realizes its own strength and is frightened at its own weaknesses.

HOPEFUL SIGN SEEN

There was evidence of something which may prove one of the most significant developments since the Bolshevik revolution, and also one of the brightest hopes for a lasting world peace.

The Soviet Union seems to be undergoing a middle class revolution, no less powerful because it non-violent and gradual.

In spite of Communist doctrine—in fact, in spite of itself — the U.S.S.R. is building a powerful middle class with an instinct for ownership. Some day it may engulf and overwhelm the Communist party.

I did not find revolutionary restlessness, but I did find evidence of annoyance and irritation with the bureaucracy. There was boundless confidence being expressed, high and low, that now was the time for change, that better things were in store.

"We have a new boss now," a young engineer told me.

"We have a new government now," said a teacher in central Asia. Over and over again I heard words indicating relief that Stalin was gone, hope that something new was on the horizon.

LONG ROAD AHEAD

Some frankly admitted that Premier Georgi Malenkov's promise of a better life in "two to three years" was highly optimistic. There are at least 10 years of road building, home building, machine production and transport development ahead before the Soviet consumer front can be compared with that of any advanced western nation. The greatest obstacle is the deep-freeze bureaucracy built up under Stalin's dictatorship. If he is to succeed, Malenkov must wield a powerful knife against Red tape.

The growing Soviet middle class is becoming impatient. Russians in Moscow eagerly snatch up American magazines to dream over the advertisements of consumer goods. There are Soviet women who reject shoddy clothing in the stores and try to make their own on western lines.

On every hand is evidence that the private property instinct, far from being exterminated, is flourishing. It is particularly present among that section which can be considered a middle class. It is manifest in the determination of such people to pass on accumulated things to the next generation.

POST-REVOLUTION GROUP

These people are to be found among second and third generation Communists and their families who have no memory of revolutionary bolshevism—and also among the growing class of directors, managers, specialists, scientists, writers, engineers, professional people, army officers, "advanced" workers who earn high pay, and a whole layer of educated people necessary to the Soviet economy.

Out of a population of more than 200,000,000, these people may now number in the neighborhood of 40,000,000. These are the people who by their own efforts and talents or party favor have been getting a share of the good things of life.

Spend $1,600,000,000 On New Equipment

By STEVEN V. DAVID

NEW YORK (AP) — The U. S. chemical industry channelled a record $1,600,000,000 into new plant and equipment in 1953 and saw production rise to a [illegible]-year high.

The [illegible]vestment [illegible] was 25 per cent higher than in 1952 and made 1953 the fourth year in a row in which the industry broke previous records. Only the petroleum and primary metals industries have invested more in plant.

The Manufacturing Chemists' Association, representing more than 90 per cent of the industry, estimates that between 10 and 20 per cent of the 1953 investment went into plants for manufacturing new products. These were developed through research on which the industry spends an estimated $300,000,000 a year.

There was no single outstanding characteristic of new product development in 1953. Important progress was made in coal hydrogenation, a process of deriving chemical products from coal without going through the coke stage.

PLASTICS IMPROVED

By combining styrene with other materials, improved plastics were developed. New and better synthetic fibres and resins also figured prominently. Agricultural chemicals made new marks.

Has the chemical industry overexpanded? William C. Foster, president of the Manufacturing Chemists' Association, says the industry is not worried because "the executives, scientists and production people reject the pale thesis that there is a limit to the useful things that free men can utilize."

Men in the industry are confident that the long-term future is bright, but there are reservations about the more immediate outlook. In 1953, net profits ran from 10 to 15 per cent above those of 1952, but the consensus appears to be that 1954 will see a decline.

Tiny Passenger Boat Turns Up Safely

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The tiny passenger boat Golden Dawn turned up safely Sunday after being unreported on a Christmas trip along Newfoundland's east coast.

The Golden Dawn left Wesleyville Christmas Eve and completed the first leg of its trip to Hare bay.

Starting back, however, the vessel developed trouble and put back into Hare bay. It was her non-appearance at Wesleyville that started the search.

The Golden Dawn returned to Wesleyville Sunday.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Concerning that goal Petes vainly argued they scored in their recent tied tilt in Kingston, Mike Rodden writes: "From the press box it appeared that the puck was propelled across the goal line after Holway had blown his whistle. Why he blew the said whistle it was difficult to determine. No penalty was inflicted and the puck was faced off in the Kingston defensive zone circle whereas it would have been taken to the mid-ice area if the Petes had broken a rule. It might be assumed that Holway lost sight of the disc and sounded the alarm too quickly, but it cannot be argued that the Petes scored while using an invisible puck. Whoever allegedly propelled it past Ken Johnson must have seen it. The Petes protested with considerable gusto but may have neglected to inquire under what rule the puck was faced off in the circle near the Kingston net." In either case Holway was wrong, eh?

. The hungry Belleville Memos meander up this way tonight for an OHA senior "B" fixture with the Petes. An 8:30 touch in Civic Arena. Petes beat the Memos on Quinte ice last meeting and 'twas a rough affair indeed. Red Doran, Vern Goyer and the rest had better wear their elbows high in this return engagement where a smaller surface makes for a better bumping target before a sympathetic audience. While the Memos are in the cellar at present they may well prove giant-killers against any of the leading clubs as the race swings into the back stretch. The Petes have been rolling along fine lately and certainly should try to snatch this one tonight to improve their position.

Stop, Look and Listen

A sport college research guide, according to Baz O'Meara of Montreal, claims few hockeyists take a good look when shooting. 'Tis claimed that movies show that but one player in a hundred actually looks at the target when letting the puck go. The study was in the NHL from 1947 to 1951, and it was also learned that the average player needed 18 opportunities to score a goal. Various reasons were advanced as to why players didn't take a good look at the net before blasting. Some players and coaches said it was impossible to look at the target and control the puck at the same time. One coach said it would tip off a goalie if a forward looked before shooting. Most felt all that is necessary is to glance quickly at the target and then look back at the stick while shooting.

The merry matadors return to the ring here this week with a three-bout pro mat card at the Brock on Wednesday eve. Sometimes they take two or three weeks off around Christmas as they travel to distant homes, but enough were available in Ontario this week to arrange a card, and a right promising one. Top bout is a tag team go with Fred Atkins and Lord Athol Layton opposing DiPaulo and Towering Hi Lee. In the semi-final, Timothy Geohagen (the Irish strong man) mixes it with balding Firpo Szybsko —pronounced Szybsko. Prelim pits Johnny Harmon against flying Pat Flanagan. A New Year's card, huh?

That Layoff No Good

Getting back to hockey, the lengthy layoff the Young Petes had didn't pay off for them Saturday eve in Port Perry when they dropped a 7-1 OHA junior "B" verdict to the transplanted Oshawa team. But they played shorthanded much of the way as Ref Ron Doolittle (of Aurora) did a lot in the way of whistle-tooting. Blew 30 guys into the sin bin, 18 of 'em being from the Creighton crew. He drew the ire of both teams and the fans. Gardner from Morrow was the only visitors' goal, as Young Petes dropped their first one in the last seven starts. The Ports now lead the group with 16 points, Peterborough and Lindsay each having 14, while Collingwood and Midland trail the field. Collingwood comes here Wednesday.

Oshawa Truckmen returned to form last week to dump Kingston twice, 6-3 on Kingston ice and 6-1 Saturday in Bowmanville. Orillia had to go overtime to eke out a 4-3 verdict on northern ice over Belleville. Standing is in elsewhere, showing Oshawa now atop the pile, with Kingston next, then Orillia by half a game o'er Petes, and Memos last. But the top four teams are pretty well bunched and practically every game sees a switch in the standing. Besides the tilt here tonight, the week's senior "B" menu in the loop has Orillia at Oshawa tomorrow, and two games next night: Oshawa at Bella Villa and Petes in Kingston. The Saturday fray has K's at Orillia.

Braves Trade Six Players

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee Braves sent six players and an undisclosed amount of cash to Pittsburgh Saturday for Danny O'Connell, aggressive Pirate infielder who will play second base for the Braves next year.

General manager John Quinn said the swap sends veteran left fielder Sid Gordon, pitcher Max Surkont, outfielder Sam Jethroe and three farm club pitchers to the Pirates.

The young pitchers are Larry Lassale, a southpaw who had a 19-5 record last season with Jacksonville; Curt Raydon, a right-hander who had an 11-7 mark with the same club, and southpaw Fred Waters, who had a 10-10 record with Lincoln of the Western league.

O'Connell, not yet 25 years old and one of the most highly regarded youngsters in the majors, has played short stop, third and second base.

He batted .294 in 149 games this year, batting in 55 runs and hitting seven homers.

Shutouts Mark Contests In Church Loop

Shutouts were a feature in the Church Hockey League games staged Saturday at Civic Arena. Mark St. midgets blanked George St. 4-0, as St. John's midgets took a 4-1 wi nover St. George's. In peewee play, Knox took a 1-0 decision against St. James, George St. applied the brush 2-0 to St. George's, and St. John's captured a 5'-1 verdict over Park St.

The midget shutout saw Jerry Harding score two and English one in the first frame, as the latter and Grills each earned an assist. Jerry Harding continued to star with English as they fashioned a goal in the second heat, the former doing the tallying. In the other midget melee, Falkner and Parker scored in the first for St. John's, with Lustic and Graystock getting an assist each, while E. Warner got the lone one for St. George's. Simpson added one in the second frame and Lustic another in the third.

A CLOSE TILT

Owen counted the only goal in the 1-0 Knox peewee win, this tilt like the others being kept pretty free of penalties throughout. For George St. peewees, Gatfield got one in the second period and Milburn one in the windup stanza. Lewis notched one early for St. John's peewees, with Chambos equalizing for Park St. Hendren put St. John's up with a marker in the middle chukker. They broke out for three in the last heat, Dalliday tice denting the hemp, and Welsh potting the other goal.

Bisons Sweep Weekend Tilts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons fought their way to two American Hockey League weekend victories and emerged a slim two points ahead of second-place Cleveland Barons.

Saturday the Bisons downed Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1 and Sunday edged Hershey Bears 4-3. In other Sunday action Cleveland blanked Pittsburgh Hornets 5-0 and Syracuse Warriors played to a 3-3 draw with Providence Reds.

Sunday at Buffalo, it was touch-and-go until the seven-minute mark of the third period when Gord Pennell whipped in the winning Buffalo goal. Don Marshall, Russ Kowalchuk and Steve Wochy got the other Bison tallies. Norm Corcoran, Arnie Kullman and Skip Teal counted for the losers.

BARONS GOOD AT HOME

Playing at home, Cleveland crammed five unanswered goals into the last two stanzas for the win over Pittsburg. Cal Stearns picked up a pair of goals. Gus Karrys, Ray Ceresino and Eddie Olson registered singletons.

At Providence, goals by Tod Campeau, Zellio Topazzini and Paul Gladu of the Reds were matched by Elliot Chorley, Bill Gooden and Del Franche of Syracuse. An overtime period couldn't break the deadlock.

Saturday's scores: Buffalo 3, Pittsburgh 1; Cleveland 4, Hershey 3; Syracuse 6, Providence 2.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Elite Athletes

STOKHOLM (CP)—Fifteen of Sweden's elite gymnasts will tour the United States on special invitation. The group will give displays and take part in competitions at about 30 universities and colleges, starting at the West Point Military Academy early in January.

FIRST-RATE IN HIS FIRST YEAR is Jim (Junior) Gilliam, sparkling second baseman of the National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers. Junior was named the NHL's Rookie of the Year and is shown here proudly holding the plaque he was awarded. Junior came up from the Montreal Royals last season and carved a place for himself in the greatest infield in baseball today. He moved Jackie Robinson out of his second base job and went on to help spark the Brooks to their second straight NL flag.

H. Baptie's Rink Captures Examiner Bonspiel Trophy

By HERB MARTIN

With 28 scheduled calibre rinks competing, the Peterborough Examiner Trophy was won by H. Baptie's rink in the annual Examiner bonspiel, held on Boxing Day, at the Charlotte St. curling rink. He was closely followed by G. Forsberg, V. Brown and A. Ingram. The competition was so keen that the first three rinks had the same aggegate score, and it was only the "plus" points that determined the standing.

It was one of the best-played bonspiels seen for some time. The ices were fast and in good condition.

GOT AWAY EARLY

The games got away at 9.05 on Saturday morning and the committee appreciates the co-operation of the curlers. There were no delays, nobody coming late and it all added up to a good bonspiel. The spectators were treated to some high class curling and they enjoyed every minute of it.

Bev Stenson and his bonspiel committee attended to all the details.

In presenting the prizes, chairman Stenson thanked Mr. Garner, of the Peterborough Examiner, for his interest shown in the club and also for his generosity in awarding the first set of prizes.

The 'spiel was all over well before midnight.

Police Break Up Row As TeePees Trip Tigers 6-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines TeePees fans were treated to their first afternoon game in 11 years of junior hockey Saturday and they got a near riot thrown in for good measure.

The TeePees trounced Hamilton Tigers 6-1 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game that ended with police being called in to break up a row. Rough play in the third period reached a boiling point with 45 seconds to play.

Nelson Bulloch of the TeePees and Lionel Botley of the Tigers were handed major penalties for fighting. On the way to the players' bench, the Tigers' Barry Hatton swung at a spectator in a rail seat and Larry Hillman poked at other fans with his stick.

Police broke up that battle and as the game ended Joe Zorica led a Hamilton charge across the ice to resume the engagement. No damage resulted as officials and police steered the combatants to their dressing rooms.

The TeePees' win moved them into a first-place tie with Toronto St. Michaels' College Majors. Toronto Marlboros, who beat the Majors 6-4 in Toronto Sunday, took over second place, a point behind the TeePees and the Collegians.

A St. Catharines win at Kitchener Tuesday night would give the TeePees sole possession of first place.

Henry Ciesla spearheaded the TeePees' scoring attack Saturday with two goals. Pete Koval, Hugh Barlow, Don McLean and Barry Cullen were their other scorers. The Hamilton goal was fired by Real Larouche.

The Marlboros, down in the first two periods, scored two fast goals in the third stanza to go ahead 3-2. But coach Charlie Cerre pulled Irish netminder Gerry McNamara with more than two minutes of the period remaining and Marc Reaume scored for the Collegians to send the game into overtime.

Nykoluk's first goal in the extra period was matched by Paul Knos' counter for St. Michael's. But his second won it and Dave Jackson added an insurance tally.

Other marksmen for St. Michael's were Jack Caffery and Noel Price. Wally Maxwell, Mike Elik and Billy Harris netted the other Marlboro goals.

Windsor Upsets Stratford With 5-3 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs snapped out of their current losing streak in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A loop by downing Stratford Indians 5-3 Sunday.

The win pulled them up to a second-place tie with Owen Sound Mercurys after a 7-5 loss to Hamilton Saturday had left the Bulldogs and Tigers in a third-place deadlock.

The Bulldogs had lost five of their last six starts but were freshened by the return to action of centre Frank Bathgate who had been sitting out a four-game suspension. Windsor, who restricted Indians to one goal until the late stages, led 1-0 in the first period and 3-1 at the end of the second.

SCORES TWO GOALS

Bathgate led Windsor with two goals. Singles went to Gord Haidy, Gary Gordon and Walt Pawlyshyn. Stratford's goals were scored by Lou Finkbeiner, Fred Pletsch and Johnny Muretich.

Hamilton, paced by three goals by Lloyd Ferguson, dealt Windsor their defeat before 3,000 fans, a record gate at Hamilton for a league game.

Garry Gordon with two goals led the Windsor attack, with Gordon Haidy, Clarence Jaster and Dick Kotanen getting singles. The other Bulldog scorers were George McLagan, Murray Comfort, Sam Kennedy and Al Buchanan.

INCREASES LEAD

Stratford Indians trounced Niagara Falls 8-0 to increase their sixth-place margin over the Cataracts to eight points. Johnny Muretich paced Stratford with two goals while teammates Mike Delich, Mickey Roth, Lloyd Finkbeiner, Lou Bendo, Ron Ingram and Billy Cupolo each counted one.

In Northern Ontario Hockey Association action, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds chalked up their 20th win of the season Saturday night by edging the North Bay Trappers 1-0 on a second-period goal by Ronnie Lay, and tightening their hold on first place.

Sudbury Wolves defeated Pembroke Lumber Kings 5-3 with two overtime goals. Yacker Flynn, Tatter McLellan, Gordie Heale, Tomiuk and King were Sudbury scorers. Pembroke goal-getters were Jim Maxwell, Jack Carthy and Jack Schmidt.

Fourth place in the NOHA was taken over by Sault Ste. Marie Indians Sunday when they trounced the Trappers 6-1. Bill McCracken, Henry Backor, Ron Rubic, Dean McBridge, Con Bonhomme and Laurie Peterson scored for the Indians. Defenceman Eddie Marineau tallied for Trappers.

Sault Ste. Marie Hounds tangle with Pembroke in tonight's only senior A game.

Soviet Plans To Send More Athletes

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP)—There are indications that more Soviet athletes will pierce the Iron Curtain in 1954 to compete against Westerners. And more Westerners probably will undertake sports invasions of Russia.

It may be a new twist in the Soviet campaign to win friends and influence people abroad. A lifting of the sports curtain, however slight, would impress sports-loving Europeans as much as a good deal of political manoeuvring.

These are some indications of the trend:

Soviet sports leader Sergei Savin who headed a Soviet delegation to Britain to help celebrate the 90th anniversary of the English Football Association, commented on his return to Moscow:

"We hope the contacts between British and Soviet football teams will steadily grow stronger and help promote peace between the nations."

Soviet soccer bosses want a British top-class team to visit Russia in 1954.

SEEKS HENLEY ENTRY

Russia asks—and gets—application forms for the 1954 Henley regatta.

Moscow and London make tentative plans for a Russian athletic team to compete at London's White City Stadium next September.

Stockholm's A.I.K. hockey team gets an invitation to play in Moscow.

PLAN RETURN MATCH

Communist Hungary defeated England 6-3 at soccer before 100,000 fans at Wembley Stadium. England agrees to play a return in Budapest in May.

Hungary's soccer victories over England and at the Helsinki Olympics may have something to do with Russia's apparent about-turn. The Hungarians cashed in on their sports victories with propaganda outpourings. They published a special stamp to commemorate the 6-3 victory over England.

Maybe Russia is not content to allow satellites, such as Hungary, steal all the limelight. Russia's invitations to British and Danish soccer teams may mean she is preparing to try to wrest the Olympic title from Hungary at the Melbourne Olympic Games in 1956.

Add 4 Games To OHA Schedule

TORONTO (CP)—Tory Gregg, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, said Sunday night that four home games will be added to the schedule of the junior A group to meet requests of Ontario clubs.

The Ontario teams, led by Jack Moffat, president of Galt Black Hawks, and Hap Emms of Barrie, previously said they would ignore the interlocking schedule with Quebec unless they were given more home games.

When the inter-locking schedule was first proposed it was expected Ontario teams would get more home games. When the schedule was completed they discovered they had lost four home dates.

Gregg said he will meet soon with Frank Buckland, first vice-president of the OHA, to draw up a new schedule.

Port Perry Takes A Win Over The Young Petes In A Penalty-Studded Game

Port Perry Flyers handed Peterborough their first junior hockey defeat in seven games Saturday night at the Flyers' Memorial Arena before a large crowd of rabid fans. The final score was 7-1 in a hectic, penalty-riddled contest that saw Referee Ron Doolittle of Aurora mete out 30 penalties, a record for the junior season, to date, 18 to Peterborough. A vexed crowd viewed proceedings with mixed feelings. Loud boos accompanied several calls in the second period when 10 penalties were given to the visitors, including two misconducts and a bench penalty completely disorganized Petes' team-play, and reduced their offensive attack to a point of impotence.

GAIN TOP SPOT

The victory enabled Port Perry to take over first place in the Central Ontario junior "B" loop standing, with a scant half-game lead over Peterborough. The latter have a game in hand, and can regain a position of leadership with a victory Wednesday night, when Eddie Bush's Collingwood Greenshirts make their first appearance of the season at Civic Arena.

"We'll be back tied for first place Wednesday," exploded the team's fiery coach, and Detroit scout, Red Creighton. "We'll be at full strength with Blake Uren and Bud McDougall back; and we are hoping a record crowd will be on deck to give us the support we need to carry on in the new year."

FAST IN FIRST

Play opened at a fair pace and Flyers made a successful foray into Peterborough's defending zone at the two-minute mark; Tom O'Connor combined with Neil Attersley to score. Ports made it two six minutes later with Gary Copeland the marksman on a three-way passing attack, featuring Ed Romanuk and Dunc Brodie.

Fighting back, the men of Creighton hit pay dirt when hard working Jimmy Morrow and the fleet Jimmy Gardner sped down, then the latter forked in a fast passout from behind the cage to the open side for a brilliant tally. Fortune frowned on the visitors' cause at this point, however, when the ire of Doolittle fell upon them for various alleged offences, and Gardner, Paul Doris, goalie Delahey, Morrow and Byrne all served time within seven minutes of play.

Yeoman defensive work, however, saved the day for Peterborough until Morrow drew a kneeing penalty. Then O'Connor, Brodie and Romanuk rushed and the former sank the disc from 12 feet out. Flyers drew four minors in the first frame.

THE ONLY SCORE

Port Perry tallied the only marker of the mid-frame seconds before play finished, after a weird session of play that saw both teams short-handed most of the route and 13 penalties allotted, eight to Peterborough, Ball and Morrow serving misconducts. The latter's ban aroused the visitors' bench and Dolittle waved a penalty, Gardner serving. Loud protestations from all sides followed, as the game's control wobbled in the balance. Order restored, both teams played great defensive hockey.

The final frame saw even play in the first half, then Flyers added to their margin with a three-goal splurge in the final minutes with Bill Gibson, Copeland and Chazewski the marksmen. It was a terrific period marred by seven sins with Myles and Morrow drawing majors—a frame that saw goalie Ross Howe starring.

Red Wings Edge Bruins 2-1, Take First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Conn Smythe traded five hockey players for Harry Lumley because Lumley could win games and sell tickets. Lumley, a 27-year-old veteran of nine National Hockey League campaigns, has been doing that ever since he shifted from Chicago Black Hawks to Toronto Maple Leafs last year. This season he may go all the way to the Vezina trophy, hockey's top goaltending award. The chubby native of Owen Sound has never won the trophy but he was nearly at his best Saturday night as the third-place Leafs defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-2 before 13,475 fans—another sell-out chowd at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

The victory maintained Lumley's edge over Detroit's Terry Sawchuk in the netminder's race. In 33 games this season Lumley has allowed only 54 goals for an average of 1.64 goals a game. Sawchuk, who has won the Vezina for the last two years, is second with 64 goals in 35 games.

Montreal Canadiens scored a 2-0 shutout over fifth-place New York Rangers in the other Saturday game. Sunday, Red Wings moved into sole possession of first place with a 2-1 win over fourth-place Boston Bruins. Last-place Chicago Black Hawks beat Rangers 4-1.

At Toronto, Lumley stopped 16 Detroit shots for the win. Sawchuk handled 32 Leaf drives.

The Leafs were also led by centre Ted Kennedy's two goals. The others were scored by defencman Jim Morrison and leftwinger Harry Watson.

Leftwinger Ted Lindsay and Metro Prystai tallied for Red Wings.

The Canadiens were minus the services of Bernie Geoffrion.

Goaltender Gerry McNeil received a well-deserved ovation from the 14,527 Montreals fans as he registered his fifth shutout of the season.

Calum MacKay and Ken Mosdell scored the Montreal goals. MacKay's first-period tally proved to be the winner.

Geoffrion was unable to play because of a suspension pending a decision by league president Clarence Campbell now studying an inquiry into events which led to match penalties and $100 fines each against the Montreal forward and Ron Murphy in a New York game Dec. 20.

Hawks scored twice in each of the last two periods to trounce Rangers Sunday. It was only their seventh win in 37 games.

Prystai scored the winning goal against the Bruins at 13:49 of the third period. It was his sixth of the season and second in two nights.

Minutes earlier, at 11:24, Boston had tied the score 1-1 when Johnny Peirson took a pass from Fleming Mackell for his 12th goal of the season.

Detroit's Glen Skov scored in the second period.

No games are scheduled for tonight. Tuesday night Bruins travel to New York.

Worsham Leads Pro Golf's Money Makers

CHICAGO (AP)—Lew Worsham, thanks to his remarkable shot at Tam O'Shanter, led pro golf's 1953 money winners with $34,002 and the year's Vardon Trophy champion was Lloyd Mangrum with a 70.22-stroke average.

The sharing of the two top honors in play-for-pay competition was certified in final 1953 statistics released by the Professional Golfers Association of America.

Worsham's sensational wedge shot in the "world" tournament at Chicago rolled into the 18th cup from 140 yards out to win top prize of $25,000.

BEST SHOT-MAKER

Mangrum was the year's best shot-maker for the second time in three years with his 70.22 average for 64 rounds; but finished third in earnings with $20,636, behind Worsham and Doug Ford with $26,815.

Last year's money-winning champion was Julius Boros ($37,032), who plunged to 30th this year with $5,595. The 1952 Vardon Trophy winner was Jack Burke, Jr., (70.54); who failed to quality for this year's competition when he picked up in PGA play.

Will Take 2-Headed Son Into Home With Family

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hartley decided Sunday to take their two-headed son into their home near Petersburg with their three other children as soon as Riley hospital releases him.

Sunday was the first time the 27-year-old mother, Margaret Hartley, had seen her 15-day old son.

Hospital officials indicated the baby could be release before long.

The Hartleys were left alone in the room with their child. They remained a short time and showed no emotion when they came out.

A doctor assured them the child's condition remains satisfactory. However, the baby has been given oxygen treatments periodically since he was brought here immediately after his birth in a Washington, Ind., hospital Dec. 13.

OXYGEN ADMINISTERED

The mother was unconscious when the baby was delivered by caesarean section. Until Sunday, she had seen only a photograph of the baby.

Dr. J. W. Elbert, the Harleys' family doctor at Petersburg, Ind., said Mrs. Hartley has recovered from the birth.

Dr. Elbert said he will come to the Indiana University medical centre here "some time this week" to discuss the baby's case with Riley hospital doctors. The hospital said its examination of the baby has been completed.

Do you shrink from making friends?

When you feel like starting a friendly conversation with a stranger, does shyness hold you back?

Don't let it, advises noted author A. J. Cronin in January Reader's Digest.

Read how easy it is — by overcoming that moment's shyness — to turn strange faces into familiar ones, win interesting new friendships, and enrich your whole life.

Don't miss "A Thousand and One Lives" in January Reader's Digest. It's just one of 36 articles of lasting interest, condensed from leading magazines, current books.

Auto Production Up

WINDSOR (CP) — Ward's Automotive Reports said Saturday total automotive production for 1953 to date is a record. The statistical service said the figure for last week was down due to the Christmas holiday by 26 per cent but more than 470,000 cars and trucks have been built during the year. The figure compares to more than 427,000 last year at this time.

Steel Output Expected To Increase

CLEVELAND (AP) — Steel production, which hit its low point in 1953 last week, should increase steadily through the first quarter of 1954, Steel Magazine says today.

The weekly metal - working journal said January steel business, already on the order books, will be "somewhat better" than December's, which dropped off because of holidays and inventory reductions.

The lowering of inventories, Steel notes, "could bring about a scramble for steel if a failure to get a Korean peace conference under way by late January flares into war again or if some other incident arouses buyers."

PUBLIC ACCEPTANCE

Another factor influencing first-quarter business, the magazine says will be the public's acceptance of the new models put on the market by the automobile industry, the steel industry's biggest customer.

Steel's preliminary estimate of production for the week ended Friday was 70 per cent of capacity—a 13.5-point decline from the preceding week. That compared with a 105.5-per-cent operation of mills a year ago when 100-per-cent capacity was based on tonnage from facilities built before the end of 1951.

FAMILY DIES IN WRECK—Seven members of the Galle family died after this car was hit by a train at Palatine, Ill. Killed in the accident were: Fred Galle, 37; his wife, Violet, 33; and their children: Audrey, 12; Elaine, 6; John, 8; Evelyn, 10; and Carol Ann, 1. Audrey died after being taken to Resurrection Hospital in Des Plaines, Ill., near the accident scene.

Born In Stable Baby Doing Well

CLINTON (CP) — A baby born Christmas Day in a stable is doing well in Clinton Public Hospital.

The child, second son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Rehorst, was born shortly after 5 a.m. when Mrs. Rehorst went out to tell her husband that it was time for her to go to the hospital.

Mr. Rehorst left his chores in the barn but before they could leave, the baby arrived.

Children Saved

HENSALL (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. William Coward led their four children, ages four to seven, to safety early Saturday when part of their home, about five miles east of Exeter, was gutted by fire.

Bird Census Taken Across Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — The annual year-end bird census was taken in the Toronto district during the week-end.

More than 100 observers took part. They included members of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, the Brodie Club, several conservation groups and other citizens who make bird-watching a hobby.

They estimated the number of birds in the district at 19,000.

Reports have yet to be tabulated. The bird-counters worked in groups in designated areas and sent their figures on species and numbers of birds sighted to James Baillie of the Royal Ontario Museum.

The Toronto and district count will be added to that from other sections of Ontario which, in turn, will go into the continent-wide count taken under auspices of the National Audubon Society.

Last year 116 observers reported 82 different types of birds in Toronto and the suburban area.

PORT STANLEY (CP)—Observers from St. Thomas and west Elgin nature clubs Saturday counted 57 species of birds in Elgin county, including robin, bluebird and blackbird.

The census, part of a continent-wide bird count sponsored by the National Audubon Society, was taken in cold, windy weather.

Pheasants, ruffed rouse and quail were rare.

France's Financial Weakness Halts Removal Of Barriers

OTTAWA (CP)—France's financial weakness is seen by Canadian trade experts as a hindrance to the removal of trade barriers.

They feel that this weakness may delay a return to convertibility, free exchange of currencies, between dollar and sterling-area countries.

Continental Europe is growing in economic strength, the trade department said recently in its weekly publication Foreign Trade. But some individual countries are still weak. France is among them.

"Currency convertibility is gaining proponents in Europe, bringing nearer the day when discriminating exchange regulations, as a barrier to trade, may disappear," the department said.

MAIN HINDRANCE

However, "the inability of France to overcome domestic financial instability and increase her rate of exports is the main hindrance to more unhampered trade with Europe.

"A dash to exchange freedom without the franc is not practicable."

Thus dreams of free currency exchange may remain dreams for some time to come.

"But in the meantime trade liberalization is gaining ground and various European countries have relaxed restrictions on dollar imports."

Meanwhile, a report from Washington said there are strong signs the United States administration is urging some major European countries to accept free convertibility of their currencies. The report said U.S. government's financial leaders feel this could be done without any big financial assistance from the U.S.

NO INJURY BUT CLOSE — Little Lake just about had a visitor when a car driven by James Lawson, 19 Ware St., skidded out of control on Crescent St., striking a tree and ripping up 300 feet of snow fence. Mere inches separated the lake and rear of the car which is seen above being inspected by children. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Main Street Topics

SWIMMERS ON TV

The Peterborough Ornamental Swimmers will be featured on the CBC television program, "Matinee Party," Tuesday, at 2.30 p.m. The show will originate from the Carleton Club in Toronto.

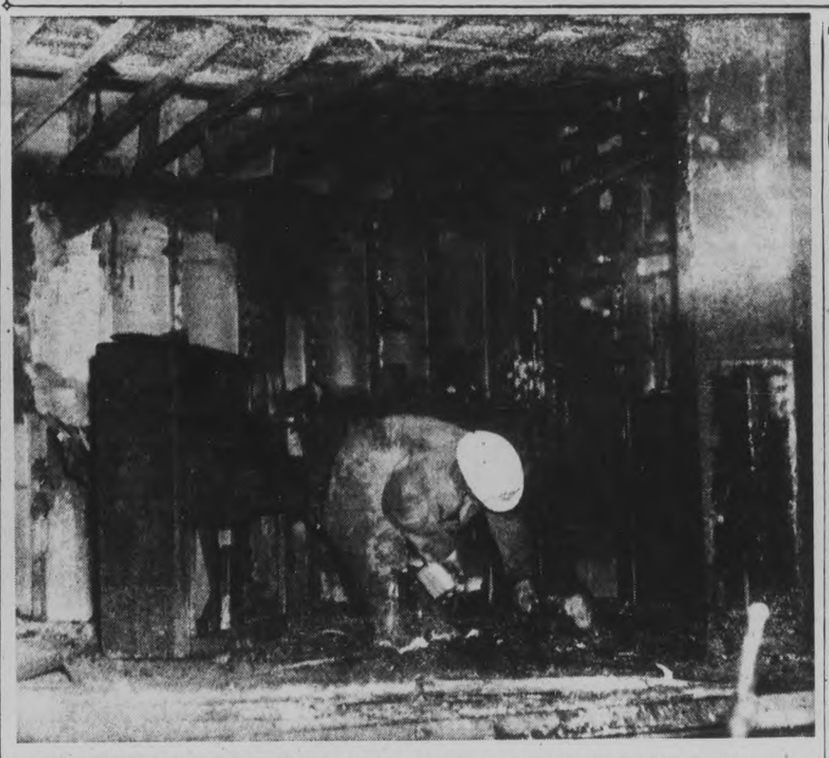
SLIP ON SIDEWALKS

Two elderly men were treated for cuts in Civic Hospital Saturday after they slipped on treacherous sidewalks. William Rowes, 68, 991 Ford Ave., had a lacerated eye, and James Leek, 79, had a lacerated nose. Both were released after bandaging.

ACCIDENTS LIGHT

Only two minor accidents were reported by provincial police over the weekend, both the result of icy road surfaces on Sunday. One occurred at the canal bridge on the Warsaw road and the other two miles north of Young's Point on Highway 28. Total damage was less than $150.

FIRE UNDER BRIDGE



Boys playing with matches started a fire among some papers collected by Boy Scouts about 6 p.m. Sunday. The paper had been collected by the Scouts and stored in a room under the Hunter St. bridge. An earlier call brought firemen to Jerry Coughlin's home, 107 Rubidge St., where a thermospace oil heater had flooded. No damage was caused at either fire.

REVOLVER SHOOT WINNERS

Winners of the Peterborough Revolver and Pistol Club annual shoot for poultry were Donald Byers, 459 McKellar St., competitive handicap shooting, a turkey; George Fanjoy, 566 Sherbrooke St., for high score, a turkey; and Don Board, 778 Water St., second handicap shoot, a chicken. Twenty-one marksmen competed.

TWO CHILDREN INJURED

Accident patients treated at the Civic Hospital over the weekend included Nancy Crapp, three, of Stoney Creek, and Deborah Bradley, two, R.R. 5, Peterborough. The Stoney Creek child fell from a moving car and sustained a minor head injury. Her condition is satisfactory. While playing with a razor, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Bradley cut her hand and received stitches to close the cut.

PRELIMINARY INVESTIGATIONS indicate the fire that burned the stage of Immaculate Conception Church Saturday started in this corner near the piano. But a full scale investigation is being delayed until a representative of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office arrives to assist Chief William Sorrie. The charred piano and walls can be seen in this picture taken a few minutes after firemen had put out the blaze. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

To Nominate Candidates In District

Five Municipalities Prepare To Select Councils For 1954

Five municipalities—the last of 15 in Peterborough county—are holding their annual nomination and ratepayers' meetings today.

Smith township, the heaviest assessed municipality in the county, began their ratepayers' meeting at 2 p.m. in the county council chambers. Up for nomination are the offices of reeve, deputy-reeve, three council posts and trustee vacancies on the school board.

Gordon Fitzgerald is the present reeve and Robert McAdam is the deputy-reeve.

Douro township are also holding their annual meeting today in the Douro township hall. Offices of reeve, deputy-reeve, three council posts and two vacancies on each of the two school area boards are open for nominations.

Roland Tedford is the present reeve and Loyola Moloney is the deputy-reeve.

MAY RETIRE

In Asphodel township there are rumors that James Humphries, veteran reeve, will step down this year. If he is nominated he will have till 9 p.m. Tuesday to make up his mind whether or not he will stand. The same applies to all other nominees in the five municipalities.

Four council vacancies and the vacancies on the Asphodel school board will also have to be filled.

James Gifford will be up for a possible 21 consecutive years as reeve of Ennismore township. Last year was the first time that anybody has even contested the office with him.

There are four council vacancies to be filled; also five vacancies on the newly-formed public school area board which is replacing the old separate school board. Three of the trustees will serve two years and two for one year.

Tonight the nomination meeting will extend from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Norwood. And, as is the procedure elsewhere, nominations will be followed by the ratepayers' meeting.

Vacancies are for reeve, four councillors, four school trustees, and two public utilities commissioners.

Elections, if necessary, will be next Monday.

Oshawa Builds $1,137,122 In Civic Works

Oshawa has accepted $102.15 as the price for debentures amounting to $1,137,122.69. This loan is to pay for civic works carried on during the last two years; construction of part of a sewage disposal plant, $500,000; sewers, $295,645; sidewalks, pavements, $160,577.

Information supplied to the tendering firms, 23 altogether, was that the debenture debt of the city was then $6,075,996, equivalent to $137.77 a head of population, which is 44,401. Building permits for 11 months this year amounted to $17,008,794 as compared with $3,346,001 for the year 1951.

Oshawa has to consider a further expenditure of $1,900,000 for these items: completion of the sewage disposal plant, $250,000; addition to hospital, $850,000; schools, $400,000; sewers, etc. $400,000.

The city's assessment for 1954 is $56,237,000. Oshawa's planning board is turning its thoughts to a population of 90,000, although the city has no intention of beginning immediately to incur expenditure for that long view development.

Car Turned Over To Friend To Drive Both End Up In Jail, Friend Gets Longer Term

Two Christmas Eve revellers who set out to see the city of Peterborough through an alcoholic haze made one serious mistake. They attempted to drive a car instead of taking the slower, if more safe, measure of walking. Somebody, and it wasn't Santa Claus, happened to see their car meandering down the street.

Two police constables took a dim view of the car's rather erratic progress, so they stopped the vehicle and found 24-year-old James Wood, R.R. 10, Warsaw, behind the wheel and Edward Newell, 42, of RR 1, Norwood, riding as passenger of the car.

Newell admitted to being owner of the car. So, instead of eating turkey the two men spent the night in the cells.

In the magistrate's court today, Magistrate W. R. Philp, Q.C., also took a particularly dim view of the affair and he was not thinking of Santa when he sentenced Wood to seven days imprisonment.

Newell, was only charged with being intoxicated, but Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, Q.C., asked for something more than the usual $10 fine in view of the fact that Newell was the owner of the car in which was found intoxicated. The magistrate agreed and levelled a $25 fine with costs $2.50.

Seeking Motorist For Assault

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto police said today they are searching for a motorist whom an 11-year-old girl reported kidnapped her in a suburban area Sunday, assaulted her and then set her free.

Police were called when the unidentified girl came home crying and told her parents, he said the car driver dragged her into the vehicle. She fought with him, managed to escape, but he chased her and caught her again.

The girl reported she was taken to a lonely spot, assaulted by the man and then driven back to a spot near her home and set free.

PC's To Select By-Election Candidate

ORILLIA (CP) — East Simcoe Progressive Conservatives meet in Coldwater Tuesday night to select their candidate for the Feb. 8 provincial by-election for the seat left vacant by the death of Dr. J. D. McPhee, Progressive Conservative sitting member.

Candidates seeking nomination are: Mayor W. M. Cramp of Orillia, and former mayor J. Austin Cook; A. M. Carter and Reeve Wilbur Reed of Orillia township and Lloyd Letherby, Coldwater.

Dr. P. B. Rynard, defeated Progressive Conservative candidate in last summer's federal election, has been mentioned but has not stated whether he would seek nomination.

The Liberal and CCF parties have not yet named a candidate.

12,132 Students In Graduating Classes

OTTAWA (CP) — The labor department reported today 12,132 students are in the graduating classes of Canadian universities.

The enrolment is about the same as in the 1953 graduating classes, the department said. In addition, there are 2,929 students in the final year of post-graduate studies.

Those in the final year include 1,270 engineers, 2,228 in arts, 1,078 in education, 790 in commerce, 892 in medicine, 172 in dentistry, 235 in agriculture, 387 in law, 340 in pharmacy, 683 in nursing and 85 in forestry.

Hope To Build 3 More Subways

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto transportation system hopes to build three more subways during the next 10 years to give the city a total of 19¾ miles of underground railway.

W. E. P. Duncan, TTC general manager, said today the proposed additions to the Yonge St. line, which goes into operation next March 30, would cost about $113,500,000 at today's prices.

The Yonge St. north - south line, a 4½-mile subway from Union station to Eglinton Ave., will be the city's first.

Additions planned are an eight-mile route running east and west on Bloor St. and Danforth Ave. in midtown Toronto, a 5¾-mile section running east and west through the heart of downtown Toronto along Queen. St. and a 1½-mile north-south route in downtown Toronto along University Ave. a half-mile west of Yonge.

Ukrainian Students Form Central Body

WINNIPEG (CP) — Formation of a central body for Ukrainian-Canadian university student groups in Canada was approved at a congress of students during the weekend. The meeting, presided over by Paul Palijenko, of the Ukrainian-Canadian students' group of the University of Toronto, was attended by 100 delegates.

The new organization is to be known as the Union of Ukrainian-Canadian University Students.

CGE Work Force Climbs To 4,882

On December 14, there were 4,882 people on the payroll, about 360 more than last year.

The employment figure dropped from 4,807 in January, 1952, to 4,522 in December, 1952. The downward trend continued till May, 1953, then reversed into an upward swing. Each month, for the rest of 1953, the work force increased until it reached its present strength.

And here is statistic of interest: 17 per cent of the work force are women; this means about 850 women altogether.

Best In Show Ring Tops In Production Too

Norman McConkey's Holstein cow that won the grand championship at the Central Ontario championship show in October presents not only show ring class but also high production performance.

Mary Pietje Colantha has just been reported from the Canadian Holstein Breeders Association office, Brantford, with a year's record of 24,480 pounds of milk containing 894 lbs. fat, average test 3.65%. This yield was as a seven-year-old on three-times-a-day milking.

This is a second large record for "Mary" of Lifloc Farms. She completed a production of 26,181 lbs. of milk and 1,060 lbs. fat on three-times-a-day milking a year ago.

Recruiting Workers

CAPETOWN (CP)—Appointment of a railway mission to recruit 2,300 railway laborers in Holland, Belgium, Western Germany and Britain was announced by the South African railways. The mission expects it will take 12 months to fill the requirements.

Chief Pleased By Record Of Holiday Drivers In City

In spite of icy roads and heavy traffic during the Christmas weekend holiday, Peterborough police investigated only 19 accidents. In just one case were minor injuries reported. One drunk driver was arrested and charged. Today police chief John Thompson said he was very pleased with the behaviour of motorists over the holiday. Considering that the 1952 Christmas had produced a fatality and several serious accidents on the road, he said drivers were to be complimented on the extra care they had taken.

However, he considered that one of the main contributing factors to the successful weekend had been the parade which toured the city prior to Christmas. (The parade, which featured car wrecks, was a combined effort by the newly-formed safety council, police department, garage operators, automobile club, Nesbitt's ambulance and casualty underwriters.

NO RELAXATION

The chief added that precautions should not be relaxed. The New Year holidays would also bring increased traffic, dangerous roads and the usual harvest of road accidents. He hoped that Peterborough would continue to keep its good record.

Twelve minor accidents which occurred in the city on Saturday and Sunday caused total damage of $1,195.

At Charlotte St. and Margaret Ave. cars driven by Ben Smith, 1292 Clonsilla Ave., and James B. Clarke, 783 Devon Ave., collided, as did cars driven by C. H. Stuart, 583 George St., and John F. Higgins, 567 George St., at Charlotte and George Streets.

Marcel Menard, 480 Reid St., was driver of a car which collided with a pole in Monaghan Rd. A similar accident occurred to Solimano Giovanni, Lindsay, when driving along Communication St.

HUNTER AND MARK

Hunter and Mark streets was the scene of a collision between vehicles driven by C. H. English, 170 Montgomery St., and Gerald A. Garvey, 530 Armour Rd., Cecil D. Watson, 76 Ware St., and Mrs. Pat Barry, Hastings, were driving cars which collided at Cambridge and McDonnel Sts. Cars driven by John Donaldson, 593 Bolivar St., and Ross Staples, Oakville, collided at Aylmer and Hunter Sts.

James H. Lawson, 19 Ware St., escaped without injury when the car he was driving skidded out of control on Crescent St., ending up about two feet from the edge of Little lake. Thirty feet of snow fence at the edge of the lake was ripped down by the vehicle.

Present Purse To Organist

Purses of money were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Gledhill on Sunday night by the congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. It was Mr. Gledhill's last Sunday as organist and choirmaster. Early in the year he will commence his new duties in the church of St. James' the Apostle in Montreal.

The presentation followed an organ recital by Mr. Gledhill and the singing of excerpts from The Messiah by the choir. The Rev. Charles G. Boyd, the minister, expressed his thanks to Mr. Gledhill for his co-operation during the past five years and also for the sacred atmosphere which he provided in his organ numbers and in his accompanying of the congregational singing at all the church services.

The work of Mr. Gledhill said Mr. Boyd has played a very important part in creating the proper atmosphere for worship. Mr. Boyd also mentioned the contribution Mr. Gledhill had made to art in the city and his articles which appeared weekly in The Examiner under the pen name of Peter Piper.

Mr. Howard Macdonald for the congregation made a short address and the presentation of purses to Mr. and Mrs. Gledhill was made by Stewart Lockington the church treasurer. Both Mr. and Mrs. Gledhill replied.

During his organ recital Mr. Gledhill played the "Toccata and Fuge in D. Minor" by Bach; a composition of his own, "Once in Royal David's City" a tocatta by Dubois, the Overture and the Pastoral Symphony in The Messiah.

CGE Worker Receives $561 For Suggestion

A cash award of $426 has been received from the CGE by Leslie Fowles, 109 Hunter St. E., a fitter and welder in the structural steel department.

The money—one of the highest suggestion awards paid out in recent weeks—came in time for Christmas. The presentation was made in his office at the beginning of the night shift, Christmas Eve, by Works Manager Roy T. Bogle.

It was one of Mr. Bogle's last official duties before leaving for Toronto to become manager of manufacturing under Vice-President Ian F. McRae, himself a former works manager of the Peterborough plant.

Last spring Mr. Fowles received an interim payment of $135 for his suggestion. After computing its value since it was put into operation, the suggestion committee decided on an additional $426, making $561 altogether.

Mr. Fowles suggested flanging and bolting a sheet steel plate used on Limit-Amp cubicles. Previously the sheet steel plate was spliced, welded and ground. Use of the flange eliminated the cost of using metal stiffeners.

Bird Observers Record 21 Species

Twenty-five observers of the Peterborough Nature Club held their annual Christmas bird census on Saturday. It was cloudy weather with some snow flurries, but they recorded 21 species for a total of 1,025 birds. It was more successful than the same event a year ago when only some 688 birds were noted.

The two most unusual specimens were a killdeer and a song sparrow, both summer birds that ordinarily migrate south in early fall. Black-capped chickadees, house sparrows and starlings accounted for the largest groups, about 300 of each, with goldfinches, common redpoll and ruffed grouse far up on the list. There were also mallard ducks, one sparrow hawk, herring and ring-billed gulls, hairy and downy woodpeckers, blue jays, crows and white-breasted nuthatches.

One brown creeper, golden-crowned kinglets, two northern shrikes and tree sparrows.

The areas covered were Jackson Park-Lily Lake; Chemong Park; Little Lake, Otonabee River, Nassau; Burnham's Woods; Stewart Hall, Otonabee River and the Warsaw road heronry. These areas are composed of open farmland, marsh, water, mixed woods, deciduous and coniferous woods.

Observers left a common starting point in the city by cars and slogged through their allotted areas on foot. "It was heavy going," said Frank Pammett, "but the results of the outing were very gratifying."

Special Carol

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP)—Downtown shoppers hearing the Christmas carols coming from a public address system at the city hall paid special attention when the announcer dedicated a carol to "the police officer shivering on the corner." The officer looked pleased.

In Small Doses

It looks as though Peterborough and Canada will get their winter in small doses this year. A heavy snow about a week before Christmas quickly disappeared just as skiers and children were beginning to think they would get a break this year and have enough snow for plenty of sport. Then Saturday it began to snow again. But even as the snow fell, the weather became milder and main streets were soon sloppy with slush. Today was again mild and the forecast for tomorrow? Mild.

County's Grain, Forage Crop Valued At $4,049,300

Value of Peterborough county's grain and forage crops this year is computed at $4,049,300 to Nov. 19 in the report of the statistics branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The field crops of the province are estimated in value at $298,513,000, as against $337,351,000 last year.

Hay, oats, fall wheat and mixed grains are the order of these field crops in dollar returns. The hay crop this year at $93,419,000 is estimated at slightly more than the yield last year at $92,355,000.

Peterborough county's fall wheat crop was $931,400 and oats $867,700 in the recent valuations of the statistics branch.

The value of the barley crop in this county was $17,400, a figure that will hardly surprise anybody, and mixed grains amounted to $212,600.

Buckwheat was down to $15,900, and shelling or grain corn $7,800.

NO SOY BEANS

Value of the fall rye was placed at $7,900, but in the soy beans column Peterborough is represented by blank space, with Muskoka, Parry Sound, Haliburton and Prince Edward.

However, the record improves substantially in the forage crop figures. Hay and clover this year were estimated at $1,836,000 and fodder corn $152,600.

The Peterborough acreages were: fall wheat 17,900 acres, oats 27,000 acres, barley 500, mixed grains 5,300 acres, buckwheat 800, cob corn only 100 acres; fall rye 300; soy beans none; hay and clover 55,000 acres; ensilage corn 3,800 acres.

YORK LEADS

Of eleven counties in central Ontario, York had the heaviest production of fall wheat at $2,122,500; Hastings county oats led the district at $1,739,400. York county far outstripped the others in barley at $238,400, Durham had only $49,900.

Ontario ocunty was high with mixed grains, at $1,344,800; Northumberland showed the most buckwheat $64,400; York was also in front with shelling corn at $174,500.

Durham had the broadest acreage of fall rye and also the largest value at $101,100, and York country's soy beans were estimated at $29,300 out of the district total of $84,900, that is from Hastings to York, inclusive.

The soy bean country is in the western peninsula of Ontario: Essex $3,443,000; Kent $3,668,000; Elgin $956,500.

Most of the eastern Ontario counties are apparently experimenting with this bean in small acreages, Carleton 300, Dundas 100, Grenville 200, Lennox-Addington 300, and so on.

Britain Re-equipped Forces Limit Reached On Manpower

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Backed by a defence budget of £1,636,000,000, Britain in 1953 went shopping for the best weapons available to equip her fighting forces, swollen to a peacetime peak.

By Oct. 1 there were 863,900 men and women under arms, some 531,000 regulars, 309,000 serving under the national service scheme and 23,800 filling out the women's services. More than 500,000 more stood ready in reserve and auxiliary ranks.

About 20 per cent of the total fighting units were stationed in Britain. The rest were scattered through Europe, the Middle East and Asia.

"We've about reached the limit on manpower," said one defence ministry official. "We're now spending money on re-equipping our forces."

CAUTIOUS SPENDING

Although there was plenty of money in the purse—almost £25,000,000 more than in 1952—it still had to be handled wisely. Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons in March that the government was pursuing the "twin but divergent objectives of financial solvency and military security." He said that by adjustments and spreading-out of funds the government was attempting to bring military expenditures within the limits of what the country could afford.

One of the bigger items on the bill was £100,000,000 earmarked for defence research, up 40 per cent from 1952.

To the army, with a strength of 445,900, went £581,000,000. Particular success in the re-equipping campaign was registered in armored divisions. Biggest news in this connection was the announcement in September that a new tank, the Caernarvon, faster, heavier and better armored than the famed Centurion, had been developed. New complex shells and rocket weapons began piling up.

Almost as much money—£548,000,000—was tabbed for development of air power. In August the wraps came off the world's first delta-winged jet bomber, the Avro Vulcan.

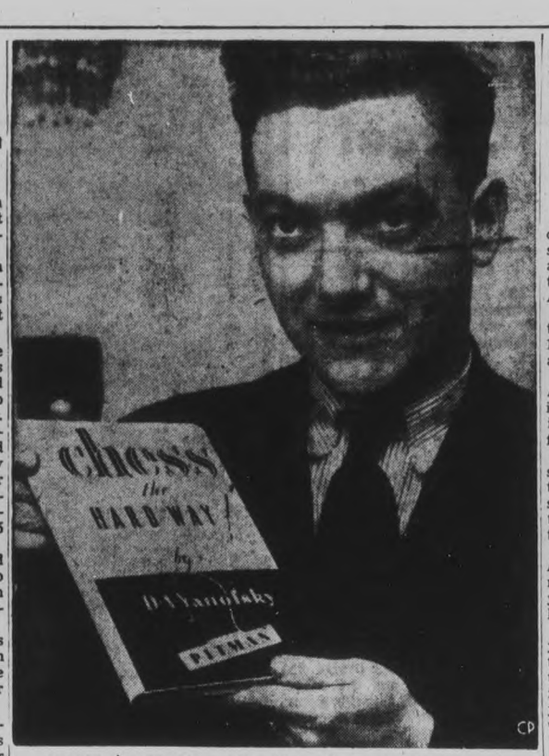
FINE SUPERSONIC JETS

Foreign experts envied supersonic jets such as the Supermarine Swift, the Gloster Javelin and the Hawker Hunter at the Farnborough air show in September. In the same month, Sqdn. Ldr. Neville Duke chose the Hunter to crack the world's speed record before the United States stole it back a short time later.

Officials reported the RAF well stocked with Canberra jet bombers and before the end of the year operation "Becher's Brook"—the ferrying of 400 Canadian - built Sabre Jet fighters to Britain—was completed. Britain's own fighter production received a setback when a prototype of the supermarine Swift crashed during trials in November and not a single squadron of jet fighters had been formed by the end of December.

The Royal Navy's share in the defence budget amounted to £364,000,000. Naval officials, with a weather eye on the huge fleet of some 400 Russian submarines, concentrated on production of fast frigates and anti-submarine vessels.

At the same time there was an easing in the construction of aircraft carriers. Existing flat tops rapidly built up their complement of jet planes.



In October, marine experts were invited to inspect the newest gas turbine engine, the RM60, designed by the Rolls-Royce Company to the specifications of the admiralty. One of the revolutionary new engines had already been installed and tested in the gunboat Grey Goose and the second is slated for sea trials next spring. Navy officials estimate the turbine is capable of driving a frigate at 35 knots.

October also brought the second explosion of a British atomic bomb on the Woomera range in south Australia. A third bomb was detonated over the range Oct. 26.

Supply Minister Duncan Sandys announced in August that Britain possessed guided missiles capable of travelling 2,000 miles an hour at heights of 50,000 feet.

The year-end saw the major proportion of Britain's fighting forces serving in far-flung posts. Four divisions, three of them armored, were in Germany with NATO Brigades were also stationed in Berlin, Trieste and Austria.

Other British troops were in Malaya and some 80,000 guarded the Suez canal zone. Negotiations for the withdrawal of the latter continued throughout 1953 but no settlement was reached at year-end.

CHESS AUTHOR—Abe Yanofsky, of Winnipeg, first Canadian to write a book on chess, holds a copy of his book, "Chess the Hard Way," published in Winnipeg. The 28-year-old chess master, now a lawyer in Winnipeg, expects copies soon will be sold in Canada and the United States.

Discovery Of Oil Excites People Across Australia

By GORDON TAIT

PERTH, Australia (AP) — The discovery of oil in western Australia has stirred up people in the area more than anything else since the area was wrested from the Aborigines in 1829.

The flurry apparently is greater than after the discovery in the 1890s of the great gold fields that are still producing.

The excitement in other cities of Australia is almost as great as it is here in Perth, capital of what is called "the West." It all arises from three things:

1. If the oil find pays off, Australia and its people are going to be richer—just at a time when some are thinking the wool industry may not always stand up to the competition of synthetics.

2. The find, mid-way up the West Australian coast, looks good. Oil men have indicated this by saying you just don't expect to find oil like this—in the first hole put down.

3. Australians have dreamed for years of their own oil. It has been the biggest missing link in the nation's self-sufficiency. Petroleum imports at the moment are costing just about all Australia earns from wheat and flour exports.

NEAR EXMOUTH GULF

The site is on the southwest corner of Exmouth gulf station, a 200,000-acre sheep property owned by 72-year-old Frank Lefroy and his two sons. None of them will benefit directly from the strike because the state has the right to all oil in western Australia.

The successful oil search was made by West Australian Petroleum Limited, a company in which the California Texas Corporation holds an 80-per-cent interest. Ampol Exploration, an Australian company, holds the remaining interest. California Texas Corp. is controlled by Standard Oil Co. of California and he Texas Co.

Ampol has oil exploration rights over 325,000 square miles of western Australia, taking up almost the whole of the coastal area.

But there is nothing to stop anyone else lodging applications outside the boundaries of present holdings.

TWO-YEAR PERMITS

Under the West Australian Petroleum Act, permits to explore have been granted for two years with a right of annual extension. During this period holders of these permits have sole rights to search.

If they discover oil they may apply for oil leases which are granted for 21 years with certain rights of renewal.

A royalty is paid to the West Australian government by the company producing the oil. The agreement between the government and West Australian Petroleum provides for a royalty of five per cent on the gross value of the oil for the first 15 years, then 10 per cent of the gross.

The company does not plan to start to produce oil immediately from the strike made at a depth of 3,605 to 3,620 feet. Present plan is for the drillers, the Brown Drilling Company of Long Beach Calif., to continue drilling to about 12,000 feet to test all possible oil-producing formations.

PLENTY OF WORK

Plenty of work will have to be done before any commercial quantities of oil found can be marketed. There is no port nearby and Exmouth gulf lies in the cyclonic belt. Between November and April violent winds called "Willy Willies" are liable to sweep the coast.

Twenty-four hours after the find was announced, the paper value of the 20,000,000 shares in Ampol exploration was £100,000,000 Australian (about $222,00,00). In other words, original investors in Ampol Exploration could have sold out for 5 times their investment 24 hours after the oil discovery was officially disclosed.

But very few sold. They waited for bigger things.

Have Differences With U.S.

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Canadian foreign policy decisions this year provided headline material for Canadian and United States newspapers. Both involved differences with the United States.

The first was the Gouzenko affair. Though it received wide publicity, officials here regard it as merely a flash in the pan. External Affairs Minister Pearson admitted it was a "warm" incident but added that it had not damaged long-time relations. This was echoed by State Secretary John Foster Dulles of the United States.

The other conflict involved India's proposed participation in the Korean political conference. Canada sided with Britain in supporting Indian membership, thus directly opposing the United States. Mr. Pearson said after this open conflict in the United Nations that he regretted the incident had come into the open. The argument might have been resolved or at least kept confidential with some behind-the-scenes diplomacy.

The tug-of-war over Igor Gouzenko arose from a Chicago newspaper report quoting the former Russian code clerk here as saying he might be able to supply the U.S. Senate internal security subcommitte with some worthwhile advice on spy-catching. Gouzenko, now a Canadian citizen living under an assumed name and under RCMP protection, supplied the information which led to the roundup of a Soviet spy ring in Canada in 1946.

TURNED DOWN

The sub-committee said it would like to question Gouzenko and sent a request to Canada through Mr. Dulles. This was turned down. The RCMP quoted Gouzenko as saying he had no new information. The government reiterated that all Gouzenko information obtained in 1946 and in subsequent interviews had been passed on to the "competent" U.S. authorities, meaning the FBI.

But Canada agreed to the questioning after the second U.S. request. However, it added two stipulations: The meeting must be held in secret in Canada and Canada must approve any testimony made public. These had been the arrangements for a 1949 meeting between Gouzenko and another U.S. Senate sub-committee, which had turned up no new information.

The government made it clear it thinks any sub-committee meeting with Gouzenko would be fruitless and that it still believes such information should continue to be exchanged between Canada and the United States through the "proper" channels.

BALKED AT STIPULATION

The sub-committee balked at the stipulation that any Gouzenko testimony would have to be kept secret unless Canada agreed otherwise. It asked Mr. Dulles to continue negotiations with Canada. But Mr. Dulles declined. The subcommittee then agreed to obtain the testimony under Canadian conditions.

The external affairs department had to grapple with many more serious matters, most of them arising out of the East-West cold war.

One of these was the proposed Korean political conference and the prisoner-of-war issue, both stemming from the July 27 armistice in Korea. The three-year Korean war cost Canada more than 1,500 casualties and $200,000,000 spent outside Canada.

This country fulfilled all its commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on or before target dates. The 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade replaced the 27th Brigade in Germany, the RCAF division was completed in Europe and the navy participated in "Operation Mariner."

Asian problems loomed large in the work of the external affairs department. Canada promised continued aid for the Colombo Plan and UN technical assistance, both designed to aid capital development in south and southeast Asia. Canada has already put $75,000,000 into the Colombo Plan.

Increased emphasis on this subject was pointed up by Prime Minister St. Laurent's announcement of his world tour starting in February, during which he will visit Asian countries.

There were several distinguished visitors to Ottawa during the year. President Eisenhower stressed in a speech to Parliament the solidarity between the two countries. He also emphasized that Canada and the United States will continue to work together on continental defence.

Just before the presidential visit, Canada and the United States announced formation of a joint economic and trade commission. This came after several Canadian protests to Washington about U.S. restrictions on imports of Canadian goods.

OTHER VISITORS

Other visitors to Canada included Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of Germany, Madame Pandit of India, the then premier Rene Mayer of France and his foreign minister, Georges Bidault, Prime Minister Menzies of Australia, Prime Minister Holland of New Zealand, and Crown Prince Akihito of Japan.

There was a mass visit by Canadians to Britain in May and June for the Coronation. Mr. St. Laurent attended and remained later for the talks held by Commonwealth prime ministers.

Mr. Pearson was president of the United Nations General Assembly. He was succeeded for the eighth assembly by Madame Pandit.

Canadian Chess Master Learned Game "Hard Way"

WINNIPEG (CP)—Abe Yanofsky says he learned chess "the hard way." So what could be better title for a book?

Just out, "Chess the Hard Way" reflects, says the 28-year-old Winnipeg master "how I learned and how I progressed." In its 150 pages Yanofsky tries to show "a little of what goes on behind the scenes, because the success of many a master has been dependent on the small things that are rarely printed but always to be reckoned with."

Yanofsky, who in 1937 played in the Canadian chess championships in knee pants, became a chess master in 1946 when he played in the Staunton tournament at Groningen, The Netherlands. He placed 14th but defeated Russia's grand master Mikhail Botvinnik, present world champion, in a brilliant game.

DESCRIBES BIG GAMES

"Chess the Hard Way" (Pitman) is as much an autobiography as a guide to better chess. In it Yanofsky, 1953 British champion and co-holder of the Canadian title with Frank Anderson of Toronto, describes his outstanding games. They are annotated and an analysis of alternatives is given.

Few books on chess were on the market when Yanofsky persuaded his father to buy him a $1 chess set in 1933. He says he didn't study much; he advanced the "hard way"—by experience. Nowadays there are many books and "young players can study and know background and theory early." That's why "Chess the Hard Way" deals largely with the "small things."

Yanofsky's father taught him chess at the age of eight. That year, 1933, his progress was such that he played a draw with a visiting United States master.

But Yanofsky senior would permit the eager youngster to play only Saturday evenings and Sundays and it was not until 1935 that he played in his first formal tournament. In 1937, a boy in knickers, he played in the Canadian championships. He placed fourth.

CHAMPION AT 17

Yanofsky won the title in 1941. The following year, at the age of 17, he became North American open champion and in 1943, won the Canadian title again. In 1945, he shared the Canadian title with Frank Yerhoff of Saskatoon, was sole champion in 1947 and in 1953, is co-holder with Anderson.

In his book, Yanofsky tells of his early games; trips that took him to South America, Europe and Britain. The biographical content mentions his marriage to Hilda Gutnik of Winnipeg in 1951. The Yanofskys have a daughter, Rochelle, now eight months.

Of Russian parentage, Yanofsky was born in Poland. The family moved to Canada when he was eight months old, first to Portage la Prairie, 50 miles west of here, then to Winnipeg. He now is a partner in a law firm.

Christian Science Lesson-Sermon Topic

"Christian Science" was the subject of the lesson-sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world including First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough on Sunday.

The Golden Text was "Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the Lord hath comforted His people, He hath redeemed Jerusalem. The Lord hath made bare His holy arm in the eyes of all the nations." (Isaiah 52:9,10). Selections from the Bible included the following from Micah 5:2, "But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting."

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following: "The prophets of old looked for something higher than the systems of their times; hence their foresight of the new dispensation of Truth. But they knew not what would be the precise nature of the teaching and demonstration of God, divine Mind, in His more infinite meanings—the demonstration which was to destroy sin, sickness, and death, establish the definition of omnipotence, and maintain the Science of Spirit."

Big Ranch For Rockefeller In Arkansas

By JOHN ALEXANDER

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—On a mountain 50 miles northwest of this city, a big project is a-building. It's Winrock ranch, the Arkansas estate recently acquired by Winthrop Rockefeller.

Bulldozers are whacking off hilltops, mowing down scrub pines. Men are laying water pipes and building roads, stringing electric lines, levelling fields, hauling out boulders. Carpenters and stone masons are building houses and barns.

Besides the power machinery there are 100 to 150 men at work on the 1,000-acre site where the multi-millionaire New Yorker is going to raise Texas cattle—the cherry-red santa gertrudis breed.

"Hey Winthrop," said a house guest, "where are your cows? I hear you bought a bull yesterday for $50,000."

"Not a bull—two bulls," replied Rockefeller, "and they're the best. One was $31,500 and the other $21,000—we got 'em at the King ranch."

BOUGHT 20 HEIFERS

Rockefeller, biggest of the five sons of John D. Jr., and the only one who has come west, said "there's a chance we'll bring the cattle here by March."

Rockefeller said that besides the bulls he has bought 20 heifers and hopes to get 10 more.

"The santa gertrudis is a wonderful strain, a great beef-producer, heat resistant," he said.

A visitor at Winrock asked Rockefeller why he had selected the top of a flat mountain in Arkansas for establishing a cattle ranch. Weren't there attractive mountains closer to the New York headquarters of Rockefeller B others, Inc.?

"I had good reason to come to Arkansas," he said. "Frank Newell, my old army friend from Little Rock, is more responsible than anybody else. He talked a lot of Arkansas to me in the South Pacific."

He told how Newell, an insurance man, had described repeatedly the plain and unspoiled beauties of Petit Jean, which happens to be the name of the 1,000-foot mesa.

LIKES THE MOUNTAIN

Rockefeller conceded it would be easier on the cattle and easier on himself and probably a good deal more economical if he had put his ranch in the valley below.

"But I liked the mountain and wanted to live here, and I wanted to have my ranch where I had my home," he said.

One of the reasons why Winrock farm is running into expense is an irrigation system of tremendous size, which will make it possible to water the pastures and ensure luxuriant growth of choicest grasses for the santa gertrudis cattle. From the Petit Jean river, which joins the Arkansas river near the base of the mountain, water will be boosted to the upland level (1,000 feet almost straight up) by pumps with a capacity of 1,320 gallons a minute.

In such a project as building up a 1,000-acre farm, Rockefeller obviously has to have a top-flight farm manager. If he had looked all over the country, they say down here, he couldn't have found a better man for the job than Jim Hudson, a Negro who has been with him for 18 years.

Hudson, a college-trained man, knows agriculture, plumbing, carpentry and he can cook.

Rockefeller introduces Hudson as "my associate."

Welsh Sons Returning To Home Amazed At Country's Prosperity

By JOHN MORGAN

CARDIFF (OFNS)—No one is more capable of judging how much Wales has changed than the Welshman who returns on holiday to his old country after long "exile" in the United States. Because it was Coronation year, 1953 saw many of these "exiles" revisiting the places of their youth; and all those I spoke to were amazed at the prosperity of a country which unemployment and destitution forced them to leave twenty and thirty years ago.

"Then," as a middle-aged man from Pennsylvania told me, "Wales was the place the films and movies said it was: the coalmines closed, steelworks silent, nearly half the working population unemployed. A country of for any man."

This man made a point of touring industrial South Wales. He saw the largest steel works in Europe, on the coast at Port Talbot. He saw, in his native Gwendraeth Valley, work begin on the deepest anthracite mine in Britain. He saw mountains above the mining valleys transformed by the planting of trees: forbidding bleakness into green and pleasant land. He saw that familiar coaltips had been removed and replaced by playing fields for the children of the industrial towns.

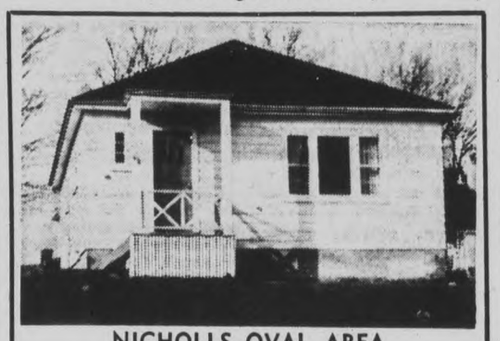
He saw light industries, making nylon, toys and watches, scattered throughout the country, diversifying the economy and guarding Wales against the danger of the past: the whole people ruined by a slump in one of the main industries.

"If Wales had been like this twenty years ago," he said, "I would never have left."

SOME OF EXILES IN TEARS

I met him at the Welsh national congress of music and poetry, the Eisteddfod. There were hundreds of "exiles" there. One afternoon they stood together on the platform of the great Pavilion at Rhyl, in North Wales, and the audience of ten thousand cheered them, and everyone sang hymns, so that some of the "exiles" were in tears.

My Pennsylvanian friend—he still had a smattering of his native tongue—was pleased that the Welsh language had survived so strongly. I was sorry to disappoint him, to have to caution him that the Eisteddfod was the hothouse of language and culture, where a rare plant flourished, and tell him that outside, in the wide world, the English climate was inimical to the growth of the plant.



I told him that less than a third of the people in Wales spoke their own language. Many people were concerned at this decline in the language, and were afraid it would continue. The great industries in South Wales were taking people away from the small communities and the countryside to towns where the way of life was different, where popular entertainment was in the English language. The people who were trying to save the language knew that they had a fight on thei rhands: they recognized that Welsh was the language of the countryside; that people were leaving the countryside; and that once they settled in the town they acquired the values of modern industrial society.

Ability to speak Welsh will not bring anyone material prizes, the new car, the fat salary, the big house. So Welshmen believe that the best way to fight the decline of their language is through the children; and twenty-four schools have been opened in which all teaching is done in Welsh.

Industry is thriving, language is struggling; and in a country that was never very great it is possible to be very happy. The man from Pennsylvania found a new Wales this year.

PERINI HONORED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Perini, who switched the Braves from Boston to Milwaukee last season, was cited Saturday night as the major league executive of the year by The Sporting News.

Perini, president of the Braves, was named in the annual selections by the baseball newspaper.

The minor league executive award went to R. W. (Dick) Burnett, president of the Dallas club of the Texas League.

Casey Stengel, manager of the world champion New York Yankees, was named manager of the year in the majors and Al Rosen, Cleveland third baseman and the American League's most valuable player, was picked as the major league's outstanding player.

In the minor leagues, Bobby Bragan of the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League was cited as the top manager. Gene Conley, pitcher for Toledo of the American Association, was selected as the outstanding player, and Carl W. Roth, general manager of the Peoria club of the Three-I League, was cited as the leading executive for the lower classification minors.

OFFERED MANY PLAYERS

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond will have a big list of players to choose from if the city succeeds in its efforts to nail down a spot in the class AAA International Baseball League for 1954.

Harry C. Seibold, who will operate the team if a park can be found to accommodate it, revealed Sunday that major and minor league clubs have offered him 55 players. If Richmond erases the "tentative" label on its IL franchise, Seibold said he and his newly appointed manager, Luke Appling, will select about 35 to make the trip to Florida for spring training.

Seibold already had purchased nine players from Baltimore Orioles, who held down a franchise in the International League during the last season, then stepped up to the majors. Chicago Cubs now have made 24 players available for sale, chiefly members of their Los Angeles and Springfield, Mass., organizations.

Wood Cutter Charged With Son's Death

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Norman Russell Young, a 59-year-old pulpwood cutter, was charged Saturday with murder in the slaying of his son, Daniel, 31, shot during a drinking party.

Young, a tall heavy-set man, appeared in magistrate's court and was remanded to Dec. 31 along with four men held as material witnesses.

The four—Thomas Kabalay, Fred Primeau, Robert Kishegweb and Joseph Kishegweb—were with Daniel Young on his visit to the father's three-room house near Fort William.

Provincial police said the shooting followed an argument between the two men. They said they believe the weapon was a .22-calibre rifle they seized in the father's home.

PHONED POLICE

Kabalay, owner of the car in which the body was found, told police he had been sleeping and was awakened by Mrs. Norman Young crying that her husband had shot her son. He phoned police shortly after 10 p.m. Friday.

When police arrived, Norman Young unlocked his door and came out of his shack in response to their call.

Mrs. Daniel Young, who has a seven-month-old baby and is expecting another child in the spring, told police her husband and his father and some other men had been drinking throughout Christmas Day.

Mrs. Norman Young said her son had a premonition of death. "It was very strange. He told me just a few hours before that he felt he was going to die soon."

Pro Football Considers Barring Piling On

By JOE KING
NEA Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — An alarming total of injuries to headline players is turning professional football toward the college rule on ball-carriers.

Bert Bell says he will campaign for the rule which downs the ball whenever the carrier falls on contact with an opponent.

At present, a runner must be securely held by a tackler, or in danger of being piled on, before the whistle blows.

"Most of our injuries are caused by tough, hard football," says Bell. "But we must give our players whatever protection we can. I want that ball downed wherever it lands, whenever a man goes down, unless he is in the open."

President George Preston Marshall of Washington, the Chicago Bears' owner-coach George Halas and New York president John V. Mara are among those who strongly support Bell.

Others, including Detroit general manager Nick Kerbawy and coach Joe Bach of Pittsburgh will not vote for a change.

✧ ✧ ✧

Paul Brown takes a middle course.

"I am in favor of any rule that would protect the player against injury," comments the Cleveland general manager and coach, "but strict interpretations and calling of the rules would alleviate the injury situation to great extent."

"I am 100 per cent for Bell's motion," observes Marshall. "We have a rough game to start with, a game which has reached the point where it is important financially for a player to hustle all-out for his job. We have to protect these men as best we can."

The Redskins' chief cites two interesting points about television.

"You may not be aware that players are very conscious of TV," he says, "but they do not want to look bad before their home folks on the networks.

"Also, TV closeups of wrestling for the ball when a man is on the ground are certainly not helping us sell football."

Halas says he has been in favor of Bell's rule for two years, stresses ball-wrestling as "so unnecessary."

✧ ✧ ✧

Mara claims the Bell proposal is a wise one, unless the league can find some means of getting officials to use a quicker and more uniform whistle.

Kerbawy flatly opposes Bell.

"We firmly believe that impetus of team A should be halted by team B and not by the rule book," he sums up.

Bach is not convinced that the Bell switch would solve the problem.

"The new rule probably would draw too fine a line for officials, as to when a man is in the clear," he says. "We should have one or the other, the college rule or the pro rule, but not a mixture. I believe the present rule is OK, if correctly enforced."

The battle lines seem drawn for the January meeting and a hot fight on the college rule the pros used to call sissified.

And the game for NFL title between Detroit and Cleveland may be the last under the old rule.

Ask UN-Red Commands Settle PoW Dispute

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

PANMUNJOM (AP)—A three-member majority of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission today turned back to the United Nations and Communist commands the question of what to do with more than 22,000 war prisoners who have refused to go home.

An Indian command spokesman said that if the two commands reach no agreement by Jan. 22 "we do not appear to have any legal right to hold them (the prisoners)."

The majority report was signed by the Indian chairman and by Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Switzerland and Sweden filed a minority report saying it was "appropriate" to refer the prisoner problem back to the two commands. But the Swiss and Swedes said they could see no reason for a formal report at this time. They refused to sign the 44-page majority document which also charged South Korean interference in anti-Communist compounds and criticized the UN command.

DON'T EXPECT SETTLEMENT

Official sources said there was little prospect that the majority report would lead to settlement of the bitter prisoner dispute.

The Allies hold that the armistice provides specifically that unrepatriated prisoners be freed as civilians 30 days after the close of a 90-day period for explanations. That would mean the prisoners must be freed Jan. 22.

The Communists contend that they are entitled to 90 days of actual explanations rather than a 90-day period which ended Dec. 23. They have used 10 days. The Reds also insist that the prisoners remain in custody pending action by the peace conference, regardless of when a conference is convened.

POWERFUL INFLUENCE

In addition to turning the prisoner question back to the two commands, the majority report said:

1. A secret South Korean headquarters in Seoul reached into all 55 compounds of the south camp holding anti-Communist Koreans and Chinese and exercised a powerful influence over the prisoners.

2. South camp compound leaders used "coercive methods" and "acts of violence were committed against prisoners wanting to go home."

3. The commission could "find no evidence" of such a similar organization in the north camp housing Americans, South Koreans and one Briton—although prisoners there seemed "under strong discipline."

Franco Government Predicts 1st Surplus Since Civil War

MADRID (AP) — Spanish taxpayers will have to dig deeper next year to meet the highest budget in Spain's history.

But there is good news for the national economy: Generalissimo Franco's government predicts a surplus in its funds for the first time since the civil war.

The Cortes (parliament) unanimously approved last week a budget for 1954 of 26,020,777,835 pesetas—13 per cent higher than 1953—aimed to leave a surplus of 53,422,164 pesetas.

At a valuation of 2½ cents for the peseta, that is a budget of about $650,519,000 and a surplus of $1,335,000. Defence costs will account for a little less than 30 per cent of the money. That is a drop of about 10 per cent from this year.

MONEY FROM U.S.

The United States is supplying Spain $226,000,000 by next June 30 under the 21-year aid-for-bases agreement signed here Sept. 26. Of this, $141,000,000 will go for military equipment and the rest for defence support, meaning use in some way in the development of military strength.

Spanish budgets are duplicated each second year, so that for 1955 will be the same as next year's.

Cabinet Ministers To Make Foreign Policy Statements

OTTAWA (CP) — Statements on defence and foreign policy are expected to be made in the Commons by four cabinet ministers after Parliament resumes its sittings in January.

External Affairs Minister Pearson and Defence Minister Claxton will report on the recent North Atlantic Treaty Organization meetings in Paris. Agriculture Minister Gardiner will make a statement on the Rome meeting of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization and Fisheries Minister Sinclair on the Colombo Plan conference in New Delhi in October.

Mr. Pearson is expected to repeat Canada's view stated at the Paris NATO meeting that this country wants Germany in the European army with France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The minister also is expected to comment on President Eisenhower's statement last Wednesday urging France to clear the way for EDC as a vital step toward peace. The president warned that failure to set up EDC soon will "confront the United States with the necessity for re-appraising its basic policies as regards Europe."

State Secretary Dulles also hinted that U.S. troops may be withdrawn from Europe's front line of defence in West Germany unless EDC is set up.

Mr. Pearson will outline Canada's position with respect to president Eisenhower's proposal that world atomic powers pool their resources for peaceful purposes. Both Mr. Pearson and Trade Minister Howe, who reports to Parliament for Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., welcome the proposal and say Canada will be represented at any atomic talks.

Mr. Claxton will report on Canada's contribution next year to European defence.

Canada's prospects of selling agricultural products in foreign markets will be reviewed by Mr. Gardiner in his statement on the FAO conference in Rome. At the conference, Mr. Gardiner said that one of Canada's major problems was the high cost of producing food. He noted that Canada has large reserves of food for export.

Fisheries Minister Sinclair in a review of the Colombo Plan conference is expected to comment on his tour through a number of Asian countries. On his return to Ottawa, Mr. Sinclair indicated that Canada's Colombo plan aid will not be increased next year. To date, Canada has put $75,000,000 into the plan.

Miners Withdraw From Smelters Union

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—The Butte Miners Union No. 1 Sunday withdrew from the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

In a resolution, the group directed officers to apply to the United Steelworkers of America (CIO) for a local union charter.

Anaconda mine-mill local 117 leaders indicated they may take similar action.

The action follows charges hurled by Butte and Anaconda unions that the mine-mill leadership was Communist-dominated. The charges were made shortly before the international's election Nov. 2.

The mine-mill union as expelled from the CIO in 1940 for alleged adherence to the Communist party line.

Navy Gets U.S.-Designed Planes For Anti-Submarine Squadrons

OTTAWA (CP)—The navy's anti-submarine air squadrons will be rearmed with Grumman S2F aircraft, twin-engined, high-wing monoplane designed specifically for carrier-borne operations against submarines, defence Minister Claxton announced today.

It was learned from other sources that about 250 of the planes will be purchased within several years. Some will be assigned to the new carrier Bonaventure being built in Belfast and scheduled for delivery in late 1955.

Acquisition of the all-weather aircraft will complete the changeover of navy squadrons to new-type planes. The navy announced in November arrangements are being made with the U.S. Navy to purchase F-2H3 Banshee all-weather jet fighters for carrier-borne fighter squadrons.

The navy's carrier air group is made up of No. 871 fighter squadron and No. 881 anti-submarine squadron which operate from the aircraft carrier Magnificent, the support air group, based at Summerside, P.E.I., is made up of No. 870 fighter squadron and No. 880 anti-submarine squadron.

The planes will be built at the Toronto plant of de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., under licence from the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation of Beth Page N.Y., and will be the first naval aircraft manufactured in Canada for the RCN.

The Grumman S2F will replace the Grumman Avenger, a Second World War torpedo-bomber modified for service as an anti-submarine aircraft.

"The principal feature of the S2F is that it is the first comparatively small aircraft capable of meeting the modern requirements of aerial anti-submarine warfare," Mr. Claxton said. "It is highly manoeuverable, has a short take-off run and low landing speed, and at the same time is able to carry all of the devices and weapons considered necessary for the efficient performance of the anti-submarine search and attack role."

Detroit Dumps Cleveland Browns In 17-16 Win

DETROIT (AP)—End Jim Doran of Detroit Lions waited until the precise moment to catch his first touchdown pass of the season—and it was worth $33,912.45.

That's how much extra the Lions earned Sunday by clipping Cleveland Browns 17-16 for their second straight National Football League championship.

The game was a real thriller, matched by only a few pro playoffs, and the ironic part about it was that Doran was supposed to play defence, and not offence. He was forced into offensive duties when Leon Hart, Detroit's towering end, suffered a wrenched knee early in the game.

With barely two minutes to play Doran sped behind Cleveland's Ken Konz and gathered in Bobby Layne's winning touchdown pass.

CRUSHING JOLT

It was a crushing jolt for the Browns, who were hoping to regain their accustomed position as rulers of the professional football world. They led 16-10 with less than five minutes to go, thanks to three field goals by Lou (The Toe) Groza and a nine-yard touchdown run by fullback Chick Jagade.

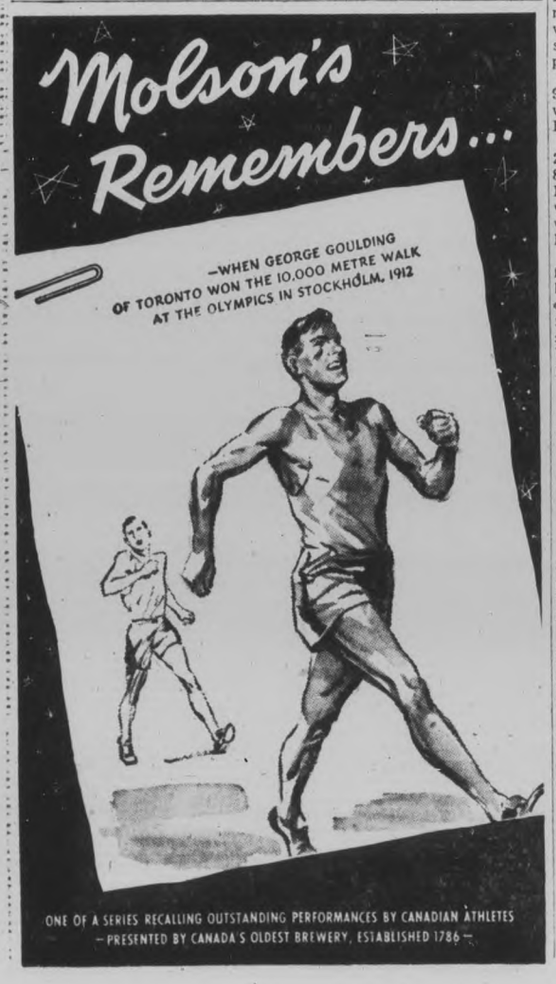
But the Lions marched 80 yards in eight pulsating plays. Layne and Doran were the key players in the drive. They combined on three pass plays good for 68 yards.

Boiled down, the game was decided in the Lions' favor because they had a passing attack and Cleveland didn't. Otto Graham had one of the worst games in his eight-year pro career, completing only two passes in 15 tries for a mere 20 yards.

The fired-up Lions also whipped the Browns 17-7 in last year's title game in Cleveland. It was the third straight year the Browns lost in the championship game. They were beaten 24-17 by Los Angeles in 1951.

TOOK LEAD

With a crowd of 54,577 and millions of televiewers looking on, Detroit took a 10-3 lead at halftime. Doak Walker drove across from the one early in the first period and he kicked a 23-yard field goal in the second period.



Groza, who missed three field goals in last year's title game, kicked the first of his three field goals in the second quarter—a 15-yarder.

Cleveland, impotent in the first half, was red-hot after intermission and tied the score 10-10 when Jagade capped a 51-yard drive by bulling through right guard to score.

Then Groza sent Cleveland ahead in the fourth quarter with two field goals, but it wasn't enough.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

New Year's Buffet, Country-Club Style

The phone rang at 8 A.M. "Mary, this is Merle... I called early before your line got busy. I'm having that crowd again this New Year's eve and want to serve something that is not turkey."

I had just been at a buffet supper at a country club a few evenings previous to this so it was easy for me to recall and string off such delicious items at this collation as cold whole glazed salmon with sardine garnish, ham mousse, cold tongue platter, hot beef and kidney pie, cold lobster, hot fried shrimp, devilled eggs, tomato jelly ring filled with cottage cheese, tossed salad, cabbage salad, sliced tomatoes, potato salad, dark rye bread "panned", mustard pickles, apricot chutney, gherkins, sweet pickles, hot green peas, etc.

When I stopped for breath she said "Now say it again slowly" so I repeated the performance just like a puppet.

At the other end of the wire she muttered and cogitated for a while then decided she liked the glazed salmon, the ham mousse, the hot beef and kidney pie, the devilled eggs, the tomato jelly ring with cottage cheese, the dark rye bread, the hot green peas and the apricot chutney.

For her choice of devilled eggs I would have substituted a tossed green salad, but it was her party, so hard as it was, I kept quiet.

Are you folks puzzled by the same dilemma as Merle's? Do you want to serve a buffet meal without turkey?

Shall I tell you how to prepare a glazed salmon, like the chef at the Ritz does? You have to be confident and know that your crowd will be open-minded and sophisticated enough to enjoy these non-traditional dishes.

To stay right in charcter, girls, I wryly add that this won't cost you like turkey would.

GLAZED WHOLE SALMON

The retail price of B.C. salmon in my neck of the woods is 70 cents per pound, and they weigh from 6 to 12 lbs. each. This means that an 8-lb. salmon would cost you over $5.00 and would serve (according to restaurant figures) 16 people adequately. (I think more.)

Ask the fishman to scale, clean, bone, behead, defin the fish. When you have it in your own kitchen wipe it clean with damp cloth and dry it. Wrap it in double or triple thickness of parchment paper, so that the steaming water is kept out. Steam or boil it. I do half and half by using the roasting pan with rack in, and 1 inch boiling water. If desired, inside fish you may place a little minced onion, celery, parsley and 1 bay leaf, to impart some elusive inner flavor to the flesh.

Steam-simmer the wrapped fish 8 minutes to the pound after boiling point has been reached. Lower heat so that water simmers. An 8-lb. fish requires just a little over 1 hour. Do not overcook—to make sure it is done at centre carefully open fish at thickest part, where it should be opaque pink—not dark pink. Lift out carefully to large platter and allow to chill. Peel off parchment. If you are lucky, skin will cling to it leaving diagonal mackerel-markings on the fleshy surface. Carefully transfer to large serving platter.

Prepare Glaze: Tip contents of 1 can consomme into a bowl. Soak 1¼ tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup cold water for 5 minutes, then dissolve by stirring over hot water until clear. Stir this into the consomme. Chill until it begins to congeal then stir in ½ cup genuine mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon lemon juice, then spread this over the entire exposed surface of salmon. Garnish attractively with tiny choice sardines or shrimps and sliced stuffed olives. Garnish border with lemon wedges and parsley. Chill until serving time.

HAM MOUSSE

Soak 1½ tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes. Stir into it ½ cup boiling water until dissolved and clear. Add 2 cups cold boiled ham which has been put through fine knife of food chopper 3 times until it is a paste. Add 1 teaspoon French mustard, shake of cayenne, then fold in ½ cup heavy cream which has been whipped until stiff. Pour into individual moulds and chill. Serve with Epicurean Sauce: To 3 tablespoons genuine mayonnaise add 2 tablespoons well-drained horseradish, 1 teaspoon mustard, ½ cup heavy cream whipped until stiff, ½ teaspoon salt and shake of cayenne. Gently fold and chill.

Polynesian Princess Lives In Distant Alberta Town

The talkative, personable 22-year-old woman, whose maiden name was Veia Love, is a popular speaker at town functions and, on occasion, has donned her grass skirt to do the hula, national dance of the Polynesians.

PRINCESS — Mrs. Gilbert Lowry, 22, is a Polynesian princess who last spring left her home island, 1,600 miles from New Zealand, to live in Cardston, Alta., with her husband, a former Mormon missionary. Mrs. Lowry is a popular speaker at town functions and, on occasion, has even donned her grass skirt to do the hula, national dance of the Polynesians.

Mrs. Lowry says the southern Alberta climate is quite a change from the 100-degree heat she left. It's summer all the time on Raratonga island.

"But I never get homesick, except when I think of food," she says.

MET WHEN MISSIONARY

She met her husband, Gilbert Lowry of Taylorville, Alta., when he was a Mormon missionary at Raratonga. When his mission tenure was over she returned to Alberta with him and they were married in the church temple here. Now he is a bakery delivery man and they live in an apartment. At her South Pacific home, she lived in a modern dwelling with a cement base and a thatched roof of coconut leaves.

Mrs. Lowry says the Polynesians consider themselves to be of the same race as the Maoris, although the latter are darker. She was born in New Zealand and when six months old was taken to Raratonga by her father, a lieutenant-colonel in the New Zealand army.

She says it is only on festive occasions taht the Polynesians wear what the rest of the world looks upon as a grass skirt. It is, she says, just like the Canadian Indians getting dolled up in buckskin and feathers.

The skirts are not made of grass but of the bark of the pnau tree. The bark is placed in sea water for a week and then is so pliable it can be woven.

100 In Costume Present Pageant At George St.

The most ambitious undertaking yet by the George Street Church organizations was the Christmas pageant in four scenes presented Sunday evening for an audience which filled the church to capacity.

More than 100 costumed figures took part in the pantomine. Readers were Mr. Quirt McKinney and Mrs. F. A. Hucks and songs were rendered by the choir, from the balcony. One of the most outstanding scenes was when Mrs. James Goldie sang The Magnificat.

The first scene portrayed Mary as a little girl. The part was taken by Marion Armstrong and the 40 children with whom she played were of the beginners' class of the Sunday school which is taught by Miss Gladys Walker and Mrs. Len Slaughter.

Mary as a maiden was played by Miss Margaret Bowman. The angel Gabriel was played by Miss Marion Brown and there were five angels in the scene with small Susan Goldie as the littlest angel. Mr. Cecil Wasson played the part of the high priest.

Shepherds in the third scene were Mr. Ivan Drain's class of boys and a group of older boys and ushers, all come to worship the baby, led by Mr. Drain. The part of Joseph was taken by Dr. Donald Richardson. The three kings were Archie Townsend, Garnet Howden and John Boswell of the Mr. and Mrs. Club with sons of members as the pages, followed by heralds, gift bearers and guards.

Climax of the pageant showed the modern children bringing gifts, representative of all the junior groups of the church, closing with four little ones from the cradle roll who knelt at the manger for evening prayers, said by the Rev. Arnold Mathews.

The pageant was directed by Mrs. W. Young and Mrs. Cecil Wasson, assisted throughout by Mrs. Arnold Mathews who adapted the play to suit the church. Lighting effects which enhanced the scenes were done by Messrs. Donald Gray, Ross Payne and Charlton McBride.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

DOROTHY DIX

Wed At 17 To Man 32, Now Complains About Job

DEAR MISS DIX: Twelve years ago, when I was 17, I was married to a man fifteen years my senior. At that time, I didn't know how to cook or do much in the house, but I tried very hard to be a good housekeeper. My husband continually compared me to other wives, and I tried to do as well as each one he mentioned. In the last few years nothing seems to please him. He finds fault with everything. Hard as I try, I don't seem to be able to make a success of housekeeping. We have two children, and nothing I do for them seems to be right, either.

E. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Any man who expects a 17-year-old girl to be an expert housekeeper is certainly asking the impossible or, at least, the improbable. There are some girls who are born homemakers, but they are the exception. Your husband took his pattern of housekeeping from women who had had many years of experience, and expected you to live up to their standards. He was being much too exacting, instead of helpful. Your mistake, due to youth and inexperience, was in trying to imitate all of these paragons at once. Now, it's time for a fresh start. Forget how all the other ladies keep house; just make up your mind that henceforth your home will be run as Mrs. D. wishes. After all, the other systems have proven futile in your case, so a new approach can't hurt. Being older now, you have some ideas of your own, and you are still young enough to be able to put them into practice. For help, I can recommend nothing finer than the women's magazines which seem to have answers to most problems. At first, don't burden yourself with too much variety in subject matter; go through two or three magazines, and you're bound to find a few of your own difficulties among those present. Tackle the job and see it through. As for cooking, there are some splendid, simple cookbooks that will teach you from scratch, if that's necessary. The same goes for child care. The important thing is to plan your work according to your own needs. Don't imitate other people, especially those held up to you by your husband.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Two months ago, the boy with whom I had been going steady told me he had changed his mind, and didn't think he really loved me. He wanted to continue dating me, however, but felt that marriage between us was impossible. The reasons he gives seem flimsy to me. We are both college sophomores, and I know I love him deeply. Can I make him change his mind?

CARLOTTA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When a young man states definitely that he doesn't love you and has no intention of marrying you, there isn't much you can do. Perhaps you've been seeing each other too much, and he's become a bit bored. In that case, a separation would help. In your own interests, you should make a clean break which will accomplish the dual purpose of giving him a chance for clearer perspective, and give you the opportunity to meet other boys.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The man I love is divorced. My people and I have always been very much against divorce, and I don't know whether this would be an obstacle to our happiness. What do you think?

C. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When you delibrately cross your own conscience and principles, you are not headed on the right path of happiness.

Though you love the man, your feeling for him apparently isn't so overwhelming that you can't give him up. With all the uncertainty surrounding the affair, you would definitely be happier without him.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I were legally separated last year, but he refuses to give me a divorce. I want one, as I've met another man, and we're in love. When I get my divorce, can I have a big wedding? I didn't have one the first time.

L. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Wouldn't it be wiser to plan one step at a time? Get the divorce, then worry about whether you'll have a big or small wedding—if any at all. These Romeos, who are such ardent lovers, when their attention entails no responsiblity, can run like mad when they see the glimmer of a wedding ring.

11 Passengers Discovered Safe

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (Reuters) Eleven passengers previously unaccounted for in the Christmas Eve rail disaster now are known to be safe.

They reduced the toll of dead and missing to 155 from the earlier estimated figure of 166.

Latest casualty figures announced by the disaster emergency committee tonight were:

Of the 114 bodies recovered, 83 have been identified.

The unidentified bodies will be buried at Wellington, Thursday, the emergency committee decided.

Three more bodies were recovered today from the Wangaehu river, into which the Wellington-to-Auckland express plunged from a broken bridge on Christmas Eve. The search is continuing.

Seek End Pollution

KITCHENER (CP)—A resolution asking the Ontario health department to start a crackdown on municipalities responsible for polluting the Grand river will be put before a general meeting of the Grand river conservation authority here Wednesday. If approved, it may mean the spending of $6,000,000 to clean up the river during the next three years.

Give Aussies Definite Edge In Next Match

MELBOURNE (CP)—The cannonball service of Australia's 19-year-old Lewis Hoad was too much for Vic Seixas to handle today and gave the defending champions a 1-1 split and a clear edge in the Davis Cup challenge round against the United States.

Although Hoad's 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Seixas was matched by a 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 win by U.S. Navy veteran Tony Trabert over Ken Rosewall, the Australians are conceded a definite edge in Tuesday's doubles match. If they come through as expected, another split in the final two singles would give them their fourth straight cup.

Hoad, who had never beaten the more experienced Seixas in six previous meetings, outclassed the Philadelphian today from the opening game, in which he broke the American's service. His own booming serves forced Seixas to stand as much as three feet behind the baseline in his efforts to return the ball.

Trabert evened the count by banging away at the forehand of the smaller Rosewall. For two sets the Australian tried unsuccessfully to match his opponent's power game. In the third set he tried placements and volleys to greater effect, breaking Trabert's service in the seventh game, but eventually lost out.

Tuesday's doubles are expected to pit Hoad and Rosewall against Trabert and Seixas, although there may be changes in the Australian team. Captain Harry Hopman may withdraw the 140-pound Rosewall in favor of Rex Hartwig or switch to a team of Hartwig and the southpaw veteran Mervyn Rose. Final choices will be made an hour before the match.

Observers saw the possibility that Hopman may prefer to rest Rosewall for his crucial singles match Wednesday against Seixas, whom he has beaten in their last six matches.

Trabert is favored over Hoad although he lost to the strapping Australian last month in their only previous meeting of the year.

Bar Foreigners Conference-Bound

By ANTHONY PEARCE

LONDON (AP)—The government today barred all foreigners from entering Britain to attend a "teachers for peace" conference opening here Tuesday.

A home office spokesman said: "Foreigners wishing to enter the country to attend the conference are being, and will be, refused leave to land."

The spokesman gave no reason for the ban but indicated the conference was considered Communist-inspired.

A spokesman for the conference said: "It is not Communist-sponsored. It contains people of many different religions and views and they wish this to be made clear." A statement issued later by the "teachers for peace" said the conference was open to any organization or individual to attend and invitations were sent "all over the world."

The statement added the conference would discuss "international tension and education."

Springville Fairmount Young Adults Meet

SPRINGVILLE (ENS) — The Young Adult groups of Springville and Fairmount held their Christmas meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnston.

Christmas stories interspersed with lite singing of carols featured the meeting with Raymond Kelk, Mrs. Larke and Charles Knight telling the stories and legends.

Christmas, a contest and music were arranged by the hostess. An exchange of gifts and refreshments brough the meeting to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cathcart invited the group to their home for the January meeting.

Boys Parliament Asked Budget Of $25,000

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The 33rd session of the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament opened here Saturday night to map out a program for youth groups sponsored by Protestant churches in Ontario.

The "speech from the throne" said the parliament will be asked to approve a budget of $25,000 for 1954—an increase of $8,000 over 1953—to expand the program.

Premier William Dowdell, 21, of Windsor said he will seek approval to double the present boys' work program.

100 BOYS ATTEND

Some 100 boys, representing a membership of 6,000, attended the opening and will take part in leadership training courses. Bible study periods and discussion groups during the six-day session. Leader of the opposition is Eric Snider, 19, of Harcourt.

The government reported that the Ontario boys' work board sponsored 30 camps in 1953 and was in direct contact with 394 boys' groups. Christian youth councils were held in seven areas and a province-wide public speaking contest was held.

T. M. Palmer of North Bay, chairman of the board, welcomed the parliament.

Six Minor Accidents In Lindsay District

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Christmas weekend produced a surprisingly light accident list in the Lindsay area, according to provincial police officers who reported only six accidents since Christmas eve, with a total property damage of $2,000. There were no injuries.

Included in the summary was a four-car collision on Christmas eve in Manilla, west of Lindsay, in which only slight damage was done to three of the four ve-car owned by David Theobald, of Peterborough, and driven by John Johnston, also of Peterborough, left the highway on a curve just west of Omemee, as it rode down a long hill toward the village. The car snapped off 11 guard rails as it skidded along the slippery shoulder, and was damaged to the extent of some $900.

One other mishap, caused damage of $300 to a car owned by Mossom Pogue, of Bobcaygeon. His car was struck by a gasoline truck, driven by Walter James of Bewdley, on Highway 36, south of Bobcaygeon.

Boycotting Group Gets Pope's Blessing

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Communists of Rome's Tor di Quinta who boycotted a special audience given for their community Sunday by the Pope got his blessing anyway.

Tor di Quinta is a populous section of Rome. Many of its poor residents are Communists.

Speaking of those who "could come but did not," the Pope said that "they do not know what they do." He blamed Red leaders for taking them astray and filling them with hate.

"How could the Pope and the church be against the poor and peace?" he asked.

He concluded by giving all people of Tor di Quinta, including "those not here" his blessing and good wishes for the holiday season and the New Year.

Montrealers Set New Phone Record

MONTREAL (CP) — The Bell Telephone Company reported today that Montrealers set a new record for outgoing long-distance calls during the six-day Christmas period which ended Sunday.

The company said 223,682 calls were placed to out-of-town centres, 8,942 more than last year. On Christmas Eve, 43,633 calls were placed and 43,197 were put through on Christmas Day, both new records.

A record of 314,831 long-distance calls also was set in Toronto.

Lindsay Ends Cobourg's Streak With 6-4 Win

LINDSAY—(ENS)—The Lindsay Muskies ended Cobourg Comets' unbeaten streak at four games, and won their second game in a row, with a 6-4 victory over the visitors here Saturday night.

The Muskies built up their two-goal lead mid-way through the second period and staved off a Cobourg rally in the third to gain the nod.

Stu Hicks opened the scoring in the first period, combining with Lewis and Corley for the counter. In the second, Davis and Lewis added two more for the home club before Cobourg managed a goal, with Stevens on drawing credit when his countering pass from a corner glanced off a Lindsay player's skate into the net. Davis and Corley added goals before the period ended with a Cobourg reply from Reeves.

In the final period, Cobourg outscored the Muskies, on goals by Casey and Legrow, with Burns adding the Muskies' final goal. The period was marked by a last-minute fight that resulted in four players being ejected with major penalties.

Goalie Clark Somerville was the star of the night, as he held the losers in contentions until the final bell with some great stops. Hicks, Corley, Lewis, Burns and Hennessey led the winners.

CNR Net Revenue Down For November

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways reported today that net revenue for November was $1,349,000, down $3,743,000 from the corresponding month last year.

The November figure brought net revenue for the first 11 months of the year to $31,416,000, a decrease of $11,254,000 from the corresponding period in 1952.

The drop was blamed on a dimishing volume of traffic and increased operating expenses, due mainly to a higher wage bill.

Boy 5, Remains On Seriously Ill List

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A five-year-old Centralia boy remained on the seriously ill list at War Memorial Children's Hospital today after emergency surgery Christmas to relieve injuries suffered in a head-on crash near Exeter.

Also on the seriously ill list in Victoria Hospital is Thomas Butt, 63, of Hensall, whose neck was broken Wednesday in another accident near Exeter.

Soviet Papers Find New Target For Ire

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet newspapers have found three new targets for their ire—advertising writers, waiters and Hollywood's Tarzan.

The admen are dull. The waiters reserve their best service for the best tippers. And Tarzan's jungle cry is scaring the chickens and pigs.

Trud, the organ of the Soviet trade unions, set its sights on the ad writers. It accused them, in writing about food, for example, of "a heavy style and complicated language that doesn't make sense."

Let's have ads in verse—"clear, brief and bright"—the paper suggested.

A GRIM EXPERIENCE

Soviet waiters had their inning in Krokodil, the popular satirical weekly that also aims many of its punches on the United States and its allies.

Krokodil told the story of a Moscow worker and his family—man, wife, mother-in-law and two small sons—who visited a restaurant for dinner one Sunday night.

The doorman was surprised to see the children. The waiter wanted to seat a late-arriving party of army officers in their stead but the officers refused. It took a struggle to get a waiter to take the order. The steak was so tough the mother-in-law couldn't chew it. And the waiter tried to overcharge the family.

TARZAN "TRASHY"

As for Tarzan, as played by Johnny Weissmuller, he's one of the biggest drawing cards in the Soviet Union. Lately the jungle films, along with cowboy and pirate films, have been shown widely in villages from an open truck. Pravda tells what happens:

"From the continuous screaming and shooting, chickens are awakened from their sleep and panic caused among the livestock in the barns and villages at night."

Blaming Kino Prokat, the Soviet film distributing organization, the Communist party organ demanded that serious films about Russian scientists, doctors and teachers be shown instead of such "trashy" stuff.

Ex-Premier's Wife Fined

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—A magistrate's court today fined Mrs. Janet Jagan, wife of the deposed prime minister of British Guiana, $250 and costs of $24 or three months imprisonment on a charge of holding an illegal meeting.

Nine other defendants were reprimanded and discharged. They were arrested under emergency regulations put in force when the colonial office suspended the constitution on the grounds that a Communist plot was in progress there.

The defence claimed the emergency regulations were ambiguous. Mrs. Jagan contended that the meeting in question had a religious character.

In passing sentence the magistrate said the meeting was not religious at all but was an "unholy force."

The defence promptly gave notice of appeal.

Doctor Says Woman Patients Would Like 'Soothing Touch' Of Handsome Male Nurses

LONDON (Reuters)—A doctor complained today that male nurses are being deprived of necessary experience because most hospitals will not allow them to work among women patients.

"Why should it be assumed," he asked, "that if men who are ill like the soothing touch of a beautiful young nurse, women who are ill would not prefer the soothing touch of our most handsome male nurse?"

Writing anonymously in a London medical magazine, the doctor urged male nurses to fight for their rights.

Women nurses can work in male wards, he said, but men cannot work unchaperoned in women's wards—"a first class example of the inequality of the sexes."

Men might even prefer to work in a female ward, he added. "It has been known that female nurses prefer to work in male wards."

Most-Decorated Pilot Will Command

MONTREAL (CP)—Wing Cmdr. John R. D. Braham, DSO, DFC, AFC, the RAF's most-decorated fighter pilot, will take command of No. 3 all-weather operational training unit at North Bay early in January, the RAF announced today.

Wing Cmdr. Braham is being moved from a staff position at air defence command headquarters at St. Hubert, Que. In his new post he will be responsible for the operational training of CF-100 crews.

The 34-year-old fighter ace served with the RAF during the Second World War and destroyed 29 enemy aircraft before being shot down over Denmark in 1944 and imprisoned. He was awarded the DSO and two bars and the DFC and two bars in recognition of his service during the Battle of Britain.

WON U.S. AWARD

After being released from a German prison camp in 1945 he was named to a staff position with the British air ministry until 1948 when he took charge of the all-weather development wing of the central fighter establishment in England. He was awarded the AFC in 1951 for his achievements in the development of all-weather aircraft.

He transferred to the RCAF in 1952.

He will succeed Wing Cmdr. E. D. Crew, DSO, DFC, 36, who has been in command of the unit since its beginning in October, 1951. Wing Cmdr. Crew is returning to England after completing his tour with the RAF.

Jesuits Withdrawing French Worker Priests

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Jesuits have ordered their members to withdraw at least temporarily from the ranks of France's controversial "worker priests," organized to combat communism.

Confirming this, the general curia of the Society of Jesus said today only about a dozen Jesuits have participated in the 10-year-old organization.

Under its program, specially selected priests were assigned to work in factories, adopting the dress of workers and accepting pay for their labor. Criticism recently sharpened against the program, however, when it was charged that some of the priests were being converted to communism.

Man Brutally Kicked By Three Youths

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A Windsor man was brutally kicked and beaten by three youths whom he had told to stop throwing stones at his new car early Sunday morning.

Hotel Dieu authorities said Oswald Kliwer, 30, was recovering from the beating and would probably be released from hospital today.

Report Fewer People Died Over US Holiday

CHICAGO (AP)—The sobering statistics of Christmas holiday accident deaths had only this small consolation to offer: They weren't as bad as they ever have been.

The 78-hour Christmas weekend —from 6 p. m. Thursday, local time, to midnight Sunday—brought violent death to 678 Americans. Traffic accidents killed 493, fires caused 77 deaths and a variety of accidents took another 108 lives.

Belated reports might swell these figures, but there appeared little likelihood they would reach the record 1950 figures for a three-day Christmas weekend toll—545 traffic fatalities, 724 total accident deaths from all causes.

UNDER 1951, 1952

They were well short of the records set in the four-day Christmas weekends of 1952—556 traffic fatalities, and 1951—789 deaths from all accidental causes.

The National Safety Council had estimated 510 persons would die in traffic accidents during the 1953 Christmas weekend, and latest figures were only 17 short of that.

A pre-holiday survey by The Associated Press for a 78-hour period including a week-end listed 310 deaths on the streets and highways, 33 by fire and 89 miscellaneous.

Men Teachers Meet

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation opened its annual meeting today with approximately 150 delegates attending. Discussions will include salary scales and department of education policies on the teacher shortage. The sessions will continue through Tuesday.

3 Men Retire Total 106 Years At CGE

Three men retired from CGE recently.

Walter Killingbeck, an employee at CGE for the past 49 years, was the 500th employee to receive a pension from the company's Pension Trust Fund.

Upon retirement, Mr. Killingbeck held the longest continuous service record of anyone presently employed at CGE. During all these years he worked only in the Wire and Cable department.

Now that he is retired he intends to devote most of his time to the outdoors—"just walking." The rest of his time will be devoted to gardening and following hockey and lacrosse.

He lives quietly in his home on Douglas Ave., surrounded by many of his friends from the plant who live in the neighborhood.

37 YEARS

Jack Keating started with CGE in March of 1916, and, including a few interruptions, he has served in various departments of the company for 37 years. Mr. Keating worked in the Armature department most of this period, although he spent brief intervals in the primer, meter, wire and maintenance, after his initial job in the old primer department.

Charles Waldron joined CGE here, in 1905. He worked on and off for 20 years in machine shop, erecting, crane and shipping departments before beginning his continuous service in the plant. He was most familiar in switchgear, where he worked as canteen operator for some years. His last five years have been spent in the cleaning department.

Baby In Crib Causes Bad Fire

SMOOTH ROCK FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A baby playing in its crib with a cigaret lighter caused a week-end fire which left eight persons homeless here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gagnon, their four children, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Guivremont lost everything they owned in the fire.

Mrs. Armand Tauvette was burned on the arms and hands when she rescued the 1½-year-old child from its crib. Mrs. Tauvette was watching the children in the absence of the mother, in hospital with a new baby.

Comforts for the families were provided by Hon. Philip Kelly, Ontario minister of mines who is visiting Smooth Rock, and by the Red Cross.

Smooth Rock Falls is 50 miles north of Timmins.

B. F. Wright

Funeral service for the late Benjamin Franklin Wright, 65, of 503 Hopkins Ave., who died on Thursday in hospital, was held today at the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan of Murray Street Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. L. McFarlane of Kinmount, officiated.

Pall-bearers were Arnold and Clifford Wright, Everett Godfrey, Les Dewer, Thomas Madill and Gordon Fry. Burial was at Gooderham Cemetery.

Name Caretaker Government Replace Guiana Administration

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Governor Sir Alfred Savage named a caretaker government Sunday night to replace the administration led by former prime minister Cheddie Jagan, ousted last October.

Jagan and five others of the cabinet—all members of the People's Progressive party (PPP)—were dismissed on charges they served Moscow instead of the Queen.

The PPP had won 18 of the 24 contested seats in the legislative assembly in elections last April. No PPP members were named in the new interim government. The governor gave this explanation:

"None of them has had the courage openly to declare himself or herself opposed to Communist influence which presently dominates the party which has threatened a policy of non-co-operation."

TO BE WATCHED CLOSELY

The governor was acting on a British government order of Nov. 5 authorizing a caretaker administration under close British supervision.

The new interim constitution provides for a seven-member executive council and a legislative council.

Savage appointed Sir Frank McDavid, former financial secretary and treasurer, to the post of minister of agriculture, forest, lands, and mines, the post once held by Jagan.

The governor appointed a 27-member legislative council including two women and 15 members of former legislatures.

Is Smoking Dangerous to Health? Medical Research Indicates it is!

TORONTO (2)—It is estimated that over 100000 men and women in Canada are actively engaged in some profession or occupation having to do with health. The above group includes physicians, surgeons, dental surgeons, pharmacists, pharmacologists, nurses, chemists and laboratory technicians. These are the people that make research possible.

Medical reports and papers published in regard to smoking and the tobacco habit date back to 1918 when Dr. Gerald B. Webb wrote "The Effect of Inhalation of Smoke on the Lungs," published in the "American Review of Tuberculosis" (Vol. 2, No. 1, Mar. 1918).

Since 1918 there has been more and more research done on the effect on health of smoking. There are now over a hundred published papers on the subject by qualified medical reporters.

Heavy smoking can cause tabagism, a condition produced by excessive use of tobacco which in turn can cause rapid pulse, heart palpitation, loss of appetite, heartburn, shortness of breath, loss of weight, nausea, hunger pain and accentuate a condition of high blood pressure. This much about the effect of heavy smoking (said by some to be over 6 cigarettes a day) has been definitely established.

The medical profession is not in accord with some of the effects on health attributed to smoking. Some eminent doctors of world-renowned reputation come out flatly and say that heavy smoking is a contributing factor in heart trouble, cancer, tuberculosis, arteriosclerosis and peptic and duodenal ulcers. To top it all, there is some evidence that the length of time you live varies by the extent you smoke.

Based on Dr. Raymond Pearl's Survey, Dr. Andrew Salter, in his book "Conditional Reflex Therapy", uses the following illustration:

"The heavy smoker pays—with 34.6 minutes of life for each cigarette he smokes. The pack-a-day smoker pays with 11.5 hours for each pack he smokes."

The National Cancer Institute checked 1,990 cases of cancer of the mouth, throat, and lungs and the conclusion was that regular cigarette smokers are four times as likely to get lung cancer as non-smokers.

The "British Medical Journal" in December, 1952, published a paper by Dr. Richard Doll and Prof. A. Bradford Hill reporting on a survey of lung cancer. 1,465 patients were screened. These gentlemen sum up their report as follows:

Last month the American Medical Association announced that their Journals would no longer carry tobacco advertisements; almost simultaneously "Time" magazine (Nov. 30) brought the general public the first news of experiments conducted by Dr. Evart A. Graham and his co-worker, Dr. Ernest L. Wynder. The work of these men proved an amplification of Dr. Doll's and Prof. Hill's published report in the "British Medical Journal" last year.

Drs. Graham and Wynder claim to have been successful in reproducing cancer experimentally on mice by using merely the tars from tobacco smoke. Dr. Graham has been quoted as saying, "This shows conclusively that there is something in cigarette smoke which can produce cancer. Our experiments have proved it beyond any doubt."

Dr. Alton Ochsner, eminent American surgeon, writing in the publication "Cancer Research", says: "This study of Drs. Graham and Wynder has proved beyond any doubt that in tobacco tar there is an agent which produces cancer." Advice for the smoker? Dr. Ochsner's counsel: Smoke no more than 6 cigarettes a day and have a chest X-ray every six months, preferably three months, after age 40 "so that the physician can find the cancer, if one develops, while surgery can still cure it."

While some of the large American tobacco companies have publicly refuted this latest bombshell of research, one thing remains crystal clear: They have no research of their own, apparently, to use as a rebuttal and certainly authentic medical literature does not contain articles advocating smoking as a health benefactor.

Tobacco smoke tar causes cancer in mice, say Doctor Evart A. Graham and Doctor Ernest L. Wynder.

Smokers are concerned, and rightly so! What to do? Quit smoking? Cut down? Use filter tips? Filter holders? Neither of the latter, it is reported, are able to screen out all the tar or anywhere near it.

The trend seems definitely toward thousands of people giving up the habit or cutting down drastically. Economy enters into it too. The pack-a-day smoker spends better than $10.00 a month for his vice.

Dr. Lennox Johnston, writing in the September 6, 1952, issue of "Lancet," a British medical journal, says the smoker who wants to reform should be frightened by threats of lung cancer. He must understand that "tobacco smoke contains various poisons, notably nicotine, pyridine bases, carbon monoxide and arsenic."

Dr. Johnston offers this consolation as a reward for giving up smoking: "An accession of high spirits, energy, appetite and sexual potency with recession of coughing."

Many smokers giving up the habit will be greatly helped during the early stages with a new development of Adrem Ltd., Canadian pharmaceutical manufacturers. Called Ozotron Method and Tablets; this aid to overcoming the tobacco habit consists of a 10-day plan in booklet form and tablets sufficient for the course.

The Method provides a reason for reducing the smoking habit and psychological approaches to making the task easier. The Tablets contain Lobeline Sulphate which has many of the characteristics of tobacco and is capable of reducing desire and aiding in withdrawal of symptoms; Dorsey*

Lobeline Sulphate has proved to be the only known substitute for tobacco and to genuinely decrease craving. Ozotron tablets are swallowed, thus there is no unpleasant taste nor do they effect th taste of smoking. People who have tried unsuccessfully in the past to give up smoking have reported that the Ozotron Method and Tablets gave them their first success.

While the sale of Ozotron is limited to drug stores, demand at this time exceeds supply but almost all druggists should have initial token stocks by Monday.

Newspaper Dean Wm. Noakes Dies In West

BRANDON (CP)—The sprightly humor of William Noakes which brightened the editorial page of the Brandon Daily Sun for more than 30 years will no longer appear in print.

The 82-year-old dean of western newspaper men and editor of the Sun, whose column, "Sun Gleams," brought chuckles to readers throughout Canada, died Sunday in his sleep.

Mr. Noakes had appeared in good health while spending Christmas with his family. Wednesday, he had prepared editorials for today's paper.

Born in Burwash, Sussex, England, in 1871, Mr. Noakes started in the publishing business as an artist and engraver. He later worked in Ireland, the United States and Canada as a reporter, feature writer, desk man, press bureau editor and newspaper editor.

The newspapers and news services where Mr. Noakes worked included: Hastings Observer, England; Lancashire Daily Post, Preston; Hull Daily Mail; Belfast Evening Telegraph; Toronto News; Ottawa Journal; Rochester Post-Express; Ottawa Citizen; western Associated Press, Winnipeg; Regina Leader; The Canadian Press; and the Brandon Sun.

SAW TURBULENT TIMES

Arriving in Canada in 1904, Mr. Noakes reported Canada's development through some turbulent years while working for the Ottawa Citizen.

While in Montreal, he was among the first to handle the news of the Titanic, which he called the greatest newspaper story in history.

In the west he served as night editor of The Canadian Press and also as night editor of its forerunner, the western Associated Press in Winnipeg. He was night editor of the Regina Leader before going to the Brandon Sun in 1921.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at St. Matthews Anglican cathedral, with burial in Brandon cemetery.

Maoris Reaffirm Loyalty To Crown

WAITANGI, N. Z. (CP)—New Zealand's Maoris reaffirmed their loyalty to the crown in an impressive ceremony today on the site of the 1840 treaty that first bound the aborigine tribe to Britain.

Five thousand Maoris welcomed the Queen as "our chief, our lord, our sovereign," as she arrived with the Duke of Edinburgh at the historic treaty grounds of Waitangi—Maori for "weeping waters"—where the tribe first submitted to British rule.

Before leaving Auckland on the first stop of a 2,250-mile tour of New Zealand, the Queen presented colors to the Royal New Zealand Air Force.

At Waitangi, the grass-skirted tribesmen whirled in a ceremonial dance of welcome, spears in hand, as the Queen and duke arrived.

Smooth, Tireless Service Of Chinese Boy Made Christmas In China

By O. M. GREEN

LONDON (OFNS)—My title, as I look back over Christmases in China in times long before "Communism" became a household word, does not refer to any European boy: though the number and lavishness of parties for foreign children in Shanghai, not only at Christmas but all through the winter months, were probably unequalled anywhere in the world.

In the main, Christmas in China was celebrated much as in England. One unusual, pretty feature was the decorating of front doors with an arch of evergreens by a star. And one recalls the days when the heads of British firms always wore top hats and tail coats to church on Christmas Day.

We ate enormously of course. The ancient superstition that food in the Far East is less nourishing than in England (the colossal meals eaten by delicate ladies of the old East India Company, in very hot weather, are terrifying to read of) still held good, at least in practice, and never more than at Christmas.

I have never forgotten my first Christmas dinner in China. Hors d'oeuvres, soup, fish, snipes on toast, sirloin of beef—all excellent yet not very Christmassy, one thought. But this was merely a prelude to a huge turkey, ham and sausages, plum pudding, mince-pies, ice puddings, a savoury, and dessert. After which "the people rose up to play," until refreshments were brought round at two and three a.m.

Yet it is of that incomparable creature, the Chinese "boy," of whom one thinks with wonder and gratitude in connection with Christmas in China. For it was on his smooth and tireless service that all the success of the festivities depended.

No celebrations could be too lavish or long, no party too big, for the boy. Naturally, he made his commission on the money spent by "master." But I think that this weighed less with him than that, in the admirable Chinese way, he liked to see people enjoying themselves. There is, of course, no Christmas in the Chinse calendar, but undoubtedly the boy entered into the spirit of the day. After serving and clearing away a lunch hardly less epicurean than the dinner to come, he would spend the whole afternoon decorating the table with flowers and fruit for the evening.

INVALUABLE SERVANT

Sometimes his notions of decoration might be criticized. There was, for eexample, the boy employed by a certain elderly bachelor whose approach in decorating the dinner table was to get as many flowers of different colors as possible and ram them tightly into five straight vases like multi-coloured cauliflowers. But—and this was rather the attitude of all of us—the boy was too invaluable to be offended. Nowhere could be found such service as he gave. Whatever was tedious he undertook as a matter of course. Life rested on his shoulders. And we leaned back restfully and asked no questions.

He engaged and was responsible for the behaviour of all the other servants. (A quite moderate household held at least six: two boys, two coolies for the rough work, a cook and a cook's assistant, known as the "larn pidgin" because he was learning to be a cook of his own). The boy counted and despatched the weekly washing, called in a sweep when chimneys needed sweeping, collected parcels that had to go through the Customs or sent them off, saw to the mothballing and packing away of carpets in the hot weather, and, if "mississi" wished it (some did, and never went near their kitchens) planned all the meals.

There was nothing that the boy couldn't, and very little that he wouldn't do. For all of which his wage was about £3 or 4£ a month, on which he had to keep his family.

Of course, there was the universal "squeeze," the boy's commission on household expenditure. He knew exactly what "master's" income was, and taxed him accordingly.

EYE TO DIGNITY

He had a just eye to the dignity of the house he served. When a former manager of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank gave a small dance and suggested one for supper, pointing out that one ham had been ample for a dance of the same size given the week before by the sub-manager, the boy replied firmly: "Master S—— belong No. 2 house, this belong No. 1, must wantchee two piece ham." And so it was.

But the squeezing was really much exaggerated. Unless one was, as the Chinese would say "devoid of understanding" (actually that meant ill-mannered and tyrannical), it was easy to arrive at a tacit understanding of what one should and could pay without inconvenience. In return, all care was taken from one.

It was rare to hear of a boy who was not honest. One could go away for weeks in confidence that one's possessions would be perfectly looked after. The only things the boy seemed unable to resist were the little gilt-safety-pins which ladies use, or did once. They always walked away.

Communism seems to have made little difference to the boy. His wages, of course, have been enormously increased but the cost of living in Communist China is high. For politics he seems to care nothing. Still immaculate in long blue gown, white socks and black cloth slippers, he gives the same competent, unwearied service.—OFNS, Copyright.

Requests Prompt Action On U.S. Atomic Pool Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—David E. Lilienthal Saturday night urged prompt implementation of President Eisenhower's plan for a world atom pool, asserting any long delay may well be fatal to the plan and world peace.

Lilienthal, first chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, told a national radio audience that the pool can be operating in a modest way "within six to eight months from today."

In his prepared speech, Lilienthal suggested Belgium as a site for an experimental atomic power plant and Geneva as the home of the international research organization outlined by Eisenhower.

GIFT OF PEACE

The former U.S. atom chief hailed the Eisenhower proposal as an "electrifying . . . gift . . . of peace on earth" and "a courageous effort to establish a basis for some degree of confidence and mutual faith."

"After years of exposure to undisguised atomic jingo-ism by lesser men, this country has at last put its case before the world on the highest level of moral leadership," he declared.

The president proposed to the United Nations Dec. 8—with Britain's advance approval—that the atomic powers jointly contribute material and brains to an international agency which would seek to develop peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Thirteen days later the Soviet agreed to take part in the private talks suggested by Eisenhower as a preliminary to setting up the atom bank.

Pilgrims Jam Vatican

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Pope Sunday gave audience to nearly 10,000 Christmas pilgrims. The 77-year-old Pontiff was carried on his portable throne through the cheering crowds of pilgrims massed in the halls of the Vatican palace. From a golden throne in the hall of benedictions he later spoke to the pilgrims in six different languages, giving them his blessing.

Big Pile-Up

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Twelve autos were involved in a series of accidents on one stretch of No. 2 highway near here Sunday night and one person was injured. Mrs. John A. Buchanan of Sarnia suffered cuts to her right knee but was not detained at Hospital. Damage was light to each car and provincial police were unable to determine what started the chain of minor crashes. Traffic was heavy.

Note Received 5 Days Ago Signed "K"

Police Have Youth Who Scratched Initials On Arm

TORONTO — (CP)—York county crown attorney Harold Sanders said today a $50,000 "ransom note" has been received in the Marion McDowell disappearance case but he said that it probably was sent by some "screwball".

The note said the pretty 17-year-old typist, reported kidnapped by a hooded gunman from a parked car in suburban Scarborough township Dec. 6, is "alive and well." It instructed the family to raise $50,000.

Sanders said: "There are about 99 chances in 100 that it is the work of a screwball but we have to take that single chance."

He said instructions in the note have been followed to the letter but no communication had been established with the writer. An advertisement was placed in a Toronto newspaper addressed simply to "K" and saying: "I can get the $50,000."

The note was received five days ago.

There was a second development in the case with disclosure of the discovery of an old suit coat and hat on Hogg's Hollow bridge in suburban Toronto early today.

In the coat was Marion McDowell's name and the address 937 St. Catharine street, Montreal. Scarborough police are checking this clue but Montreal police reported there was no such number and they were checking further.

FIND INITIAL-SCRATCHER

Meanwhile Scarborough police reported they had picked up a youth who had scratched initials on Marion McDowell's arm. But they said the initials "KM" were those of another youth who they were convinced had nothing to do with the case.

Acquaintances of Marion had told authorities earlier that the typist had exhibited the initials "KM" scratched on her arm and had said she scratched her name or initials on the arm of the youth who had imprinted his initials on her.

Marion McDowell was parked with 19-year-old James Wilson in the latter's car on a lonely lover's lane in Scarborough the night of Dec. 6.

All Comforts Of Home

DIJON, France (Reuters)—Guests at the hotel in this ancient capital of Burgundy can turn on taps in their bedrooms and get hot and cold water—or wine. "In America," explained the hotel manager, "hotel rooms have three taps—hot, cold and ice water. In Burgundy, we consider ice water should be replaced by wine." Under the wine tap is a notice in English which says: "All countries in the world have their riches. Burgundy has its vineyards. You will be happy all day if you drink a glass of wine on waking."

Queen Holds Investiture In Town Hall

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth stood amid the brilliant hues of an indoor garden here tonight and bestowed the insignia of honors on 60 men and women.

The investiture, held in the flower-bedecked town hall, contrasted with similar ceremonies in the formal beauty of the white and gold state ballroom at Buckingham Palace in London.

The Queen wore an ice blue, full-skirted evening gown of slipper satin. Her jewelry consisted of a diamond circlet, diamond and pearl drop earrings, and diamond necklace and bracelets. The Duke of Edinburgh wore evening dress, with the star and riband of the Order of the Garter and decorations.

DANCE HALL DISGUISED

Multicolored banners hung round the walls of the hall, which usually is used for wrestling contests, dances and flower shows.

Eighteen hundred persons—relatives and friends of the recipients of honors and invited guests—attended the ceremonies.

First to pass before the Queen was William Goodfellow, who received the acolade as a knight bachelor. The Queen laid the sword blade lightly on each shoulder. Sir William was knighted for his services to the dairy industry and for public benefactions.

As each recipient came forward across the stage, Lord Althorp, acting master of the Queen's household, handed Queen Elizabeth the insignia or decoration on a scarlet velvet cushion. She had a handshake and a few words for each.

The investiture lasted half an hour.

WAITING CROWDS CHEER

Crowds who had waited in the streets for more than three hours cheered the Queen and duke as they left the hall and drove to Government House.

Say U.S. Retaliation In Red China If Intervention

WASHINGTON—(AP)—State Secretary Dulles hinted today that U.S. sea and air forces will retaliate directly if Communist China openly intervenes in Indo-China or renews the fighting in Korea. In a press conference discussion of President Eisenhower's decision to pull two divisions out of Korea, Dulles said the U.S. might meet renewed aggression in Korea or open intervention in Indo-China by striking at the aggressor forces in places outside of Korea and Indo-China.

He said that while American strength in terms of foot soldiers in Korea is being reduced, its power in terms of other elements—obviously new weapons—is being increased.

Eisenhower himself had made much the same points when disclosing the decision to withdraw two divisions from Korea.

TIME TABLE NOT UPSET

Dulles expressed confidence that available French and native forces in Indo-China will deal effectively with the new Communist drive across Laos.

He said that nothing the Reds have done in this operation has altered appreciably the time table of operations by which the American and French governments hope to break Communist power in Indo-China in a year.

Furthermore, Dulles said, he does not think that the Red drive represents any present threat to Thailand, bordering Laos on the west.

OTHER STATEMENTS

On other points Dulles:

1. Made clear that the United States, Britain and France will accept Russia's proposal that the Big Four foreign ministers' meeting in Berlin be held Jan. 25 or later.

Rebels Prepare To Ambush French Attack

SAIGON (CP)—The Communist-led Vietminh rebels, who late last week cut Indo-China in two in a Christmas-time offensive, appear today to be drawing back into the jungles to ambush any French counter-attack.

Reports from the Thailand capital of Bangkok said the Vietminh troops withdrew Sunday from the Laotian town of Thakhek, near the Thai border, leaving only a small guard in the smouldering ruins of the town. The French earlier evacuated Thakhek before the Red troops reached it in their drive across the peninsula.

French planes pounded the invaders Monday in what appeared to be the prelude to a ground counter-attack. Ground forces were reported massing south of Thakhek.

MAY SWITCH DIRECTION

However, reports today said French reconnaissance units have lost contact with the Vietminh forces. Some military observers say the next Red offensive may come on an entirely different front.

The French Union command said all French and Indo-Chinese garrisons which had been scattered last week have been assembled again at Seno.

Thailand also has been reported massing troops along its border with Indo-China in the face of the Communist threat. Bangkok reports said the Thai cabinet met in extraordinary session and decided the government is capable of handling any emergency resulting from the Indo-China crisis.

But the river and road supply lines into northern Laos which were cut by the Vietminh have never been adequate; northern Laos has long been supplied by air with most of its essentials.

Gasoline Left Top Of Stove, Home Destroyed

LINDSAY (ENS)—A family of five are homeless and the father and one of the children are recovering from severe burns sustained on Monday when their frame home near Haliburton was levelled by a flash fire.

The home was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Switzer, who lived there with their three children, aged four, three and eight months old. The fire began when Mr. Switzer, after using gasoline to start a fire in cook stove of the frame cottage left the bottle of gas on top of the stove. After he had left the building, the bottle exploded, showering the interior of the home with flames and giving the fire such a start that the Dysart fire department, when called were unable to save a thing.

Mr. Switzer rushed back to the home and managed to find the baby 8-months old. While rescuing her, he received first and second degree burns to his face and arms and the baby was also burned. Both were taken to the Haliburton Outpost hospital by a passing motorist and were treated by Dr. Lou Carroll. The other children, a girl, and a boy three were unhurt. Neighbors are understood to have offered accommodation to the family until some way of assisting them can be devised.

Russians Free Two Americans

BERLIN (AP) — Two Americans held by the Russians for years were released to U.S. authorities in Berlin today.

The army announced the return of Pfc. Homer H. Cox, 33, of Tulsa, Okla., and Leland H. Towards, 28, a merchant seaman, of San Francisco.

Cox has been missing from his military police unit in Berlin since Sept. 22, 1949. He apparently was arrested by the Russians in the Soviet sector of the city but they never had acknowledged holding him.

Towers disappeared in Finland in 1952 while on shore leave from his ship.

The two men apparently have been in Russian prison camps all this time.

Formalities Delay Mexico City Service

MONTREAL (CP) — A Trans-Canada Airlines spokesman said Monday inauguration of a new weekly service between Montreal, Toronto and Mexico City has been delayed to Saturday, Jan. 16 to permit completion of formalities.

The service, originally planned for October, was postponed when the United States refused to allow TCA to use the same plane on flights from Canada to Tampa, Fla., and Mexico.

The differences with the United States were settled Dec. 16 and TCA said at that time the new service would start Jan. 2. However, completion of formalities took longer than anticipated.

Will Rescue N. Korea—Rhee

SEOUL—(AP)—President Syngman Rhee today called on the Allies to halt "futile discussions with the Communists" and join South Korea in "the last great battle to annihilate the Red forces that seek destruction of the Free world". The fiery Korean patriot, in a New Year's message to his people that echoed his previous threats to unify Korea by force, asserted that a decisive war with Communism is "eventual and inevitable."

A few hours earlier the aged leader pledged to North Koreans in a New Year's greeting: "We will come to your rescue just as soon as we can."

WON'T FORGET

He told the people of the Communist-ruled north "never do we forget, even in the nightmare dreams that haunt us in sleep, the terrible plight in which you are caught."

The strong statement appeared to give new life to his repeated threats in the last stages of the war last spring that South Korea would drive, alone if necessary, to the Yalu river boundary.

Rhee reminded Koreans that he had agreed to a temporary halt in his aim to unify Korea and had promised the Allies to refrain from action for 90 days after the start of a Korean peace conference.

But the recent break-off of negotiations to set up the conference, he said, "can be regarded as final."

"If the United States continues to maintain its present strong stand, we shall never have to wait another three or four months in an attempt to prepare for a political

Report Says Britain's Youth Both Lazy, Unambitious

LONDON—(Reuters)—The average 18-year-old young man in Britain was told today in an official report that he is lazy, unambitious, apathetic and inclined to drift. Dr. Robert Logan, sociologist of Manchester University, and Matilda Goldberg, psychiatric social worker, reached this conclusion after three years studying the background, work and leisure of young men in Britain from all classes.

They asked each youth interviewed to answer 120 questions. The answers revealed that all youths, from the intelligent and mature to the "poorly endowed," had a "striking lack of creative leisure pursuits."

"The majority, in their leisure interests, seem to be 'passing time' and this is well illustrated in their week-end program.

"On Saturdays they might do shopping, watch soccer or cricket, or play billiards. In the evening the majority went to the cinema or the local dance hall. On Sundays they would laze around, often lying in bed till mid-day."

The authors, both 35, said of the youths' working lives that to the machine minders and laborers "the job seemed to be a place to clock on and clock off each day and to collect a wage packet at the end of the week."

Reading is rarely extended beyond the daily newspapers. A great number of youths read only Westerns and thrillers, while a few had not advanced beyond the comics.

BULLETIN

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Weather officials said Tuesday that cold arctic air will sweep into eastern Canada Tuesday night and Wednesday to give most centres from the Lakehead to Saint John, N.B., one of the coldest snaps so far this winter. Temperatures were to drop 25 degrees in many centres. Heavy snow was expected in parts of Ontario Wednesday and light snow was forecast for Quebec and the Maritimes.

Will Lock Up Drinking Drivers

TORONTO (CP)—Police, after the worst traffic fatality week of any Christmas in Toronto's history, today were ordered to lock up drinking drivers.

"We have obviously been going too easy because of the holiday season," said Inspector Robert Kerr. "From now on there's no fooling around."

Hockey Council Being Set Up

STRATFORD (CP)—A council to deal specifically with the problems of the Senior A group was formed Monday night by club representatives of the Ontario Hockey Association.

OHA President M. L. (Tory) Gregg was chosen chairman of the council and Bill Hanley, OHA office manager, secretary.

Members will meet with the OHA executive in Toronto Sunday when a final allocation will be made of the recently-disbanded Sarnia Sailors.

The OHA representatives also approved a new constitution for adoption by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. It includes a provision that a $2,000 franchise fee must be filed with the OHA by June 15. This fee will be returned to each club when the schedule is completed providing the club has complied with all sections of the constitution and the regulations.

Raise Chimpanzee As Child Find It's Great Imitator

BOSTON (AP)—A scientist and his wife say a chimpanzee they are raising as a "child" in their home is always imitating them.

Dr. Keith J. Hayes and his wife Monday night told the American Association for the Advancement of Science of their experiences rearing six-year-old Viki.

Recently, Hayes said, the chimp broke her pencil while scribbling.

"She came right over, borrowed my pocket knife and tried to sharpen it," said Hayes, who with his wife, Dr. Catherine Hayes, works at the Yerkes Laboratory of Primate Biology, Orange Park, Fla.

Viki also likes to hammer nails, he reported.

"She doesn't actually build anything, but she likes to pound the nails into pieces of wood."

One time he found Viki before a mirror inspecting a loose baby tooth. After looking at it for a while she picked up a pair of pliers and began to pull it.

"She stopped before it came out," Hayes said. "Maybe it hurt."

That definitely was not imitative behavior, as she had never seen her "parents" attempting any such dentistry.

The couple brought Viki home when she was three days old and weighed four pounds. Now a husky 80 pounds, Viki generally wears pants and a knitted T-shirt. A corduroy jumper is added if it gets chilly.

Expect U.S. Senate Consider Seaway First

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times says today that the St. Lawrence seaway project likely will be the first order of Senate business in the next session of the United States Congress opening Jan. 6.

In a dispatch from Washington by Claytown Knowles, the paper quoted "a high Republican source" as saying that the bill to authorize the U. S. to join Canada in the project will be brought in early because of its long-controversial nature.

It was decided, says the Times dispatch, "to deal head-on and early with the two major legislative items that could provoke a filibuster. These are the seaway and the Hawaiian statehood bills."

"The priority position now held by the St. Lawrence measure, it is understood, stems as much from White House wishes as anything else. President Eisenhower is expected to push for early passage of the bill. . . ."

Oil Stove Explodes On Cabin Cruiser

OSHAWA (CP)—An oil stove exploded today aboard a 30-foot cabin cruiser in Oshawa harbor, setting fire to the boat and doing damage estimated at $5,000.

No one was aboard at the time. The boat, owned by Simpson Marine Construction Company of Brockville, put in at this Lake Ontario port Monday night because of bad weather.

U.S. Observatory Still Safe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mount Wilson's valuable observatory and television equipment were still safe today as more than 1,000 men battled two forest fires in the San Gabriel mountains.

High winds which fanned the flames Monday abated, but the fire creeping up the mountain was reported near the top and in places was estimated from 200 yards to one-quarter of a mile from observatory structures.

Some 8,000 acres have been swept in this area and another 3,000 in the second fire 20 miles eastward, below Mount Baldy, foresters said.

The U. S. forest service reported later that the Mt. Baldy fire had been controlled. However, crews continued mopping up hot spots.

Approximately 2,500 persons have been evacuated from both regions, but a recheck Monday night showed the number of unoccupied cabins burned to be about 33. Earlier 136 cabins were reported destroyed in big Santa Anita canyon.

Misread Key Number Shot By Mistake

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Don A. Lee, 36, former professional middleweight boxer, died of a bullet wound today, victim of a mistake in reading the number on a motel door key.

Detectives said Lee was wounded Friday night when he misread the number on his key and tried to enter unit No. 9 instead of No. 6.

The occupant of No. 9, Nep Barragan, 42, a machinist, said he heard someone trying to get into his room and warned him to go away. Barragan told detectives the attempt continued despite warnings that he would shoot. He then fired shots through the door.

Barragan then barricaded himself in his room and had to be taken into custody with tear gas. Detectives said that since Lee died Barragan has been booked on suspicion of murder.

Young Mechanic Held For Damage

DEVONPORT, England (CP) — Eric James Phillips, 21-year-old stoker mechanic, is being held aboard HMS Warrior on two charges under the Malicious Damage Act, the Admiralty announced today.

The charges were laid following discovery Christmas Day of "minor" damage to gauges in the aircraft carrier's engine room. The Warrior, a 13,300-ton vessel, was lent to the Canadian Navy for two years in 1946 and has been undergoing refit in Devonport prior to sailing for Malta. Only 100 of the ship's 1,000 personnel were aboard the Warrior during the Christmas holiday. They left on leave today.

Duke Will Attend Wreck Mass Funeral

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (CP)—New Zealand prepared today for a mass funeral for the victims of the Christmas Eve wreck as the death toll was revised lower.

The Duke of Edinburgh, who is visiting New Zealand with the Queen, will fly to Wellington with Prime Minister Sidney Holland for the services Thursday.

Offficials today said eight more persons who left the scene of the crash in the darkness have been reported safe and taken off the missing list. The original toll announced was 166.

So far 117 bodies have been recovered and 30 passengers are still unaccounted for. Parties are still searching the Wangaehu river, into which the Wellington-Auckland express plunged after a sudden flood took out a bridge.

7 Calgary Scouts Overdue In Mountains

CALGARY (CP)—Five Calgary Boy Scouts and two scoutmasters were reported overdue Monday night in wild, mountainous country near Lake Kananaskis, about 75 miles west of here.

The party included scoutmaster James Cooper, assistant scoutmaster David Knox and scouts Earl Rand, Bob Potter, John Williamson, Phil Draper and Mike Simpson.

Scout officials and the RCMP expressed no immediate concern as the group carried enough food for another three days and was outfitted with sleeping bags.

The hikers left the Big Horn ranger station Saturday to cross the Highwood summit to Mile 96 of the Kananaskis valley, a distance of about 16 miles.

Predict Ontario Children To Get Poorer Education

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas Aldcorn of Toronto, president of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, said today Ontario children will in future get poorer education as a result of the province lowering qualifications for first-class certificates for teachers.

In an address prepared for delivery to the federation's annual convention, Mr. Aldcorn said lower qualifications will mean a decline in the prestige of teaching as a career and reduce the morale of teachers who got first-class certificates before reqquirements were relaxed last Easter.

"If the present policy of lowering the standards for established certificates is continued, the results will be lowered morale among qualified teachers who see new teachers obtaining certificates equal to their own with less effort, less experience, less education, and less expense; a decline in the prestige of teaching as an occupation; and a decline in the quality of education of our children."

The 4,500-member federation recognized a need for extra inducement to help overcome the shortage of teachers. But it felt candidates who did not have "minimum requirements" for a first-class certificate should get an inferior one.

Mr. Aldcorn said minimum requirements should be Grade XIII graduation, one year at a teachers' college, two years' successful teaching, and completion of five summer courses with the Ontario department of education.

He suggested a faculty be set up at some Ontario university to give elementary teachers a three-year course leading to a superior teaching certificate.

The federation supports retention of a single-salary wage scale where it now is in effect, he said.

RCAF Plane Has Alaska Accident

MONTREAL (CP) — The RCAF said today details of an accident involving a four-engine North Star aircraft at Shemya, Alaska, Monday are scant and a full report is "anxiously" awaited here.

A spokesman for air transport command at nearby Dorval airport said preliminary information indicated only that there were no injuries. The plane belongs to RCAF 426 Squadron at Dorval.

At Ottawa, RCAF headquarters said that Wing Cmdr. C. H. Mussels, acting chief staff officer of air transport command, has gone to Shemya to carry out the investigation. The crew is due to arrive in Montreal Jan. 5.

The aircraft was taking part in the Korean airlift. An RCAF slokesman said it was the first accident since the lift started 3½ years ago.

Members of the crew included Sqdn. Ldr. C. E. L. Hare, Toronto and Dorval, captain; FO. D. H. Weir, Toronto, navigator; and LAC. D. F. Marentette, Windsor, Ont., movement controller.

West Germany Led In Economic Gains

PARIS (AP)—The 18-country Organization for European Economic Co-operation reported today that West Germany led Western Europe during 1953 in economic improvement and production.

The organization's year-end review of European economic trends said West Germany's output increase had been "clearly superior to that of other large countries."

Britain's economic situation also improved in a "striking manner," the report said, and Italian industrial production gained about seven per cent. French output dropped.

Her position in world trade was reported approaching a balance after having been dangerously in deficit in 1951.

British Teachers May Be Asked To Ease Shortage

TORONTO—(CP)—Ontario high school teachers will consider a suggestion that British teachers by recruited to help ease the teacher shortage in the province. S. G. B. Robinson, general secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, told the group's annual three-day assembly Monday that British teachers who have come here so far have been "almost without exception, good capable teachers".

He said that 12 years from now 10,000 secondary school teachers would be needed, without considering further demands which would be made because of increased immigration.

The Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, also in session here this week, unanimously agreed that it does not consider it unethical for any member to fill a legal vacancy for which he is qualified on any secondary school staff.

STRIKE THREAT

This decision was considered a step which could pave the way for some of them to teach in Toronto high schools if the staffs of these schools carried out a threat to resign next May. They have threatened this action if the Toronto board of education does not eliminate the single salary schedule for public and high school teachers.

However, an official of the public teachers' federation said its members have no intention of strike-breaking if the Toronto secondary school teachers leave their jobs.

Clair Coughlin of Windsor, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, told the OSSTF assembly it must resist attempts to lower teacher qualifications.

Miss Cloughlin said the province's high school population was increasing as never before "but each year we find an increasingly fewer number of our first-rank university graduates willing to spend the extra year necessary to teach in secondary schools. Industry, commerce and the learned professions offer more in salaries and prestige than does teaching," she added.

300 REPLACEMENTS

Mr. Robinson said the present number graduating from the Ontario College of Education as high school teachers barely meets the 300 required each year as normal replacements.

The OSSTF general secretary listed four other possible steps besides recruiting British teachers to meet the shortage: Lower requirements for secondary schoo. teachers, the transfer of grade nine from high school to public school, the setting up of senior public schools staffed by public school teachers covering grades seven to 10 inclusive, and the introduction of a three-year university course for teachers.

The Public School Teachers' Federation, which has a membership of 4,600 throughout the province, endorsed recommendations made at its meeting calling for higher standards in teacher training. The federation decided to support the department of education's effort to staff schools by admitting grade 12 students to special teacher training courses.

OBJECT TO CERTIFICATES

However, it objected to these students receiving a first-class teaching certificate identical to previous certificates issued for higher qualifications.

A decision was also taken to hold another summer course next year in administration and supervision for public school teachers and principals. The course, held for the first time last summer at Queen's University, Kingston, was found to be a success and $3,000 will be included in the budget to operate it in 1954.

MUST FIGHT

Miss Coughlin said: "Time has proved that when we fight wholeheartedly to obtain what we sincerely believe is in justice our due, we win and consequently grow in stature.

"When we refuse to compromise on principal we cannot lose, no matter how strong the opposition may appear to be, and no matter whether the principle is one of opposition to single salary schedules, one of insistence on the maintenance of standards in secondary school education, or one of obtaining control of destinies of our own profession."

But while the federation must still maintain "its protective and ameliorative role," it had come far enough to 'focus its attention more specifically on professional growth among its members," she said.

DIFFICULT TASK

The task of curriculum planning has become more difficult recently, and a truly professional task, the Windsor school teacher continued. The major responsibility of teachers was to devise a curriculum that would teach pupils to learn for themselves, rather than one that tried to impart more and more knowledge.

This job required increasingly better-qualified teachers, but each year fewer first rank teacher prospects were willing to enter the field. They were attracted, instead, to industry, commerce, and other learned professions.

"There may be some people who believe that this problem can be solved by lowering the required qualifications or by combining professional training with the university course," Miss Coughlin said.

"We must be adamant in our resistance to any such moves and insist as minimum requirements for secondary school teachers a broad general education at the university level and a year of professional training.

"This stand we take with no idea of maintaining an economic monopoly but because we are conscious of our obligation to society and to Canada."

If teachers are content to let government officials deal with a problem so vital to our professional welfare (teacher training standards), they forfeit their right to claim professional status, she claimed.

Plan To Build Mecca Railway

LONDON (Reuters) — Mecca-bound Mohammedan pilgrims, hundreds of whom die every year from heat, bandits and disease on the annual pilgrimage to the Holy City, may soon be able to speed through arid desert country to Mecca on modern trains.

A reliable source said Monday night that Saudi Arabia plans to link Mecca with Syria and Jordan by new rail lines, as part of the modernization program of the oil-rich Middle Eastern country.

Seven hundred miles of the new right of way—from Damascus to Syria, to Medina—will be built over the remains of an old line put out of action more than 45 years ago by Lawrence of Arabia, the colorful British officer who organzed the Arabs in the First World War.

From Medina south to Mecca, the government plans to build a new line, tracing the route the prophet took when he fled from Mecca in 622 A.D.

Meanwhile, work continues on the government's new line linking the Holy City with the capital at Riyadh.

Canadian Convicted Of Gold Smuggling

MANILA (AP)—William Ernest Jolliffe, China-born Canadian, 37, today was granted $1,000 appeal bond following conviction on a charge of attempting to smuggle gold bullion out of the Philippines. Jolliffe Monday was sentenced to a year in prison.

Judge Bienvenido A. Tan also fined Joliffe $1,000 and ordered confiscation of 22 gold bars valued at $17,500.

The defence said it would appeal.

Jolliffe, a former assistant to the Canadian Government trade commission in Shanghai, was arrested by Philippine customs agents Dec. 7 as he was about to board a plane for Hong Kong. They seized the gold found strapped around his waist.

Make Some Arrests In Czech Rail Wreck

VIENNA (Reuters)—Prague radio announced Monday night that "a number of arrests" have been made for "negligence" in connection with the Christmas Eve train wreck which killed 103 persons at Sakvice, Czechoslovakia.

The Czech ministry of the interior blames the wreck on "serious negligence" on the part of railroad workers, the radio said.

The government announcement said special pensions and allowances will be granted crash victims and their families.

Eighty-three persons are reported injured in the crash.

Smith Council Returned By Acclamation

Smith township won't have an election for council offices in 1954.

Ninety ratepayers—all men—jammed into the county council chamber Monday afternoon for the annual nomination and ratepayers' meeting. Nominations were accepted until 2 p.m. and speakers were heard for the next hour and a half.

There were no fireworks. "Not a single sour note," A. I. Edmison, township clerk, observed. Most of the speakers felt the township had enjoyed a good year and were ready to let the present council have another go at running affairs.

Everybody but Erie Pearson, township farmer, had a good word for the newly-paved Buckhorn road. Mr. Edmison, the clerk, predicted a surplus of about $5,500 and said the township were rapidly regaining the assessment they had lost last year in the annexation of 1,200 acres of land bordering the city.

MAY REDUCE TAXES

Topping this, Mr. Fitzgerald said: "It looks as though next year we'll be able to reduce taxes a little bit—I think we should give the ratepayers the benefit of our carry-over."

The genial atmosphere was exemplified by the fact a dozen jokes were told by the various speakers, Reeve Fitzgerald leading off. And it was carried on when Mr. Edmison introduced two friendly (and apparently slightly envious) visitors from the neighbouring township of Otonabee: David McIntyre, reeve, and James McCarthy, Otonabee clerk.

To wind up the jovial get-together, cigars and chocolate bars were passed around.

Here is the 1954 Smith council unless somebody changes his mind before 9 p.m. tonight:

Reeve, Gordon Fitzgerald, proposed by Mel Crapp and W. Preston.

Waited Six Years For Money For Arena

During the period of marking time until the next move or gesture is made towards building a community centre, it is sometimes suggested that "get it started and the rest of the money will come."

That was not the experience of St. Thomas where citizens began a similar venture and project back in 1948. Recently at the polls the property owners voted approval of a proposal to borrow by debentures $210,000 to finish the work begun six years ago.

Their committee has already spent $186,200 and they have $17,500 invested in ice-making machinery. The original estimate was $213,000. They have part of a building constructed, but a lot remains to be done before it is finished.

A review of their project that was published by the building committee to refresh the minds of St. Thomas people indicates that they were hampered by inadequate funds and mounting costs.

The latest financial shot in the arm, the committee is planning to resume construction as early as possible in 1954.

Donald Fisher, army private, who told Magistrate W. R. Philp Q.C. he had been AWOL since 0600 hours this morning, pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to the theft of gasoline from a farm in Asphodel township on October 22.

The magistrate placed Fisher on a two-year suspended sentence with a $250 property bond to keep the peace.

OPP constable Archie Eady said Fisher and three other youths had been charged for their part in the robbery of gasoline, valued at $17, from the farm of Gordon Stevenson.

Two of the youths had already been given suspended sentences and the fourth had been summonsed to appear in court.

DEFEND ASSESSMENT

After hearing a couple of speakers refer unfavorably to county assessment, Ross Harrison, former reeve of Smith township, got to his feet at the annual ratepayers' meeting Monday afternoon and defended it. He said that getting a county assessor to revalue properties was a good thing for the southern municipalities, particularly Otonabee and Smith townships. Some of the northern townships had deliberately kept their assessment down to get higher school grants from the department of education. Deputy-Reeve Robert McAdam backed up Mr. Harrison's arguments with statistics: Since reassessment of the whole county began, Smith's share of the total taxation has decreased about five per cent, he said.

Note Received

Wilson reported to police that a hooded gunman slugged him and then apparently slugged the girl. He said the gunman stuffed Marion unconscious into the trunk of a second car and drove off.

An intensive two-week search failed to turn up a clue as to the girl's whereabouts and police have expressed fear that she is dead.

"GOODBYE" NOTE

Police said the coat discovered in Hogg's Hollow also contained a note written on the inside flap of a cigarette package which said: "Goodbye, J.M.—love, K.M."

Mr. Sanders disclosed that the "ransom note" was signed with the letter "K."

He said the note, partly printed and partly written in longhand, was delivered in error to another McDowell family on Oak Park avenue, the street on which Marion's parents live. It was addressed simply to "Mr. McDowell, Oak Park avenue."

It was turned over to police.

Ross McDowell, father of Marion, was instructed to keep the matter secret while Mr. Sanders inserted an ad in the Toronto newspaper in an effort to make contact with the writer.

Today Mr. McDowell declined to discuss the note and Scarborough police chief Wilfred McLellan said he had no comment to offer as to whether the note might be genuine.

Before leaving Whangarei, the couple chatted with 100-year-old Mrs. Jessie McKenzie, one of the few surviving original settlers who migrated from Nova Scotia to New Zealand. Mrs. McKenzie, who was born aboard a ship bound from Nova Scotia, has spent all her life here.

The Queen wore a short-sleeved dress of pale green, with a design of dark green and white dots, and a close-fitting yellow hat. The duke was in a blue suit.

RECEIVE PUBLIC WELCOME

Their first stop was at Warkworth, where a public welcome in the main street awaited them. The Queen was presented with a basket of fruit.

From Warkworth the Queen and duke drove to Puhoi beach, 30 miles north of Auckland, they spent three hours at the beach in sunny weather and enjoyed a picnic lunch at a cottage on the shore.

The Queen rested under the shade of red-blossomed pohutukawa trees while her husband went for a swim and a canoe ride on the blue waters of the bay.

Say U.S. Retaliation

2. Disclosed he had planned to take up with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov at Berlin next week —in the meeting now delayed — arrangements for negotiation on President Eisenhower's atomic pool plan. He said that since the Berlin conference has been put off, some alternative way of taking up this question with the Russians must be found.

Dulles said the United States sees greater promise for international atomic agreement in a modest beginning than in some grandiose plan, as he called it, for solving all atomic problems at once. He said he hoped the Soviet government also will accept that view.

3. Expressed hope that Israel and Jordan will hold a face-to-face meeting under their armistice agreement to eliminate points of friction between them.

DANGER EXAGGERATED

Dulles began his conference with a discussion of the Communist drive in Indo-China. He said he thinks the importance of what has happened has been very greatly exaggerated in the press.

Some members of Congress — Senator William Knowland (Rep.-Calif.) for one — have expressed concern that Thailand might be invaded.

HIGHLY CRITICAL

"Any invasion of Thailand would be considered highly critical," Knowland told reporters. "We could not stand by. If the United Nations did not take action, it could not survive."

Knowland, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, visited Indo-China, Korea, Japan and other Far East areas in recent months.

At the state department a spokesman said it is "watching that (Indo-China) situation closely and awaiting further reports."

However, officials are understood to be working up a response to the Christmas Day complaint by the Loatian prime minister soon after Communist Vietminh forces struck out for the Thailand border.

Rebels Prepare

Thus the rebel occupation has posed little new in the way of supply problems. The Vietminh break-through to the Mekong also has not affected the French supply of forces in northern Indo-China.

These long have been supplied by airlifts and vast cargoes of American war equipment coming by sea from Saigon into the port of Haiphong, 64 miles east of Hanoi.

LITTLE REAL ADVANTAGE

Aside from gaining a propaganda value in being able to say that Indo-China is cut in two and throwing a scare into Thailand, which has rushed reinforcements to its northern provinces, the Vietminh seem to have gained nothing which might mean a step toward winning the war.

There is a widespread belief that the Vietminh's quick thrust to the Mekong was aimed principally at gaining a powerful political weapon as a prelude to possible new Red suggestions for a truce.

Mine Strike Ended, Sign Agreement

First Men Return To Work Wednesday; May Set Pattern

TIMMINS—(CP)—The Hollinger gold mine strike officially ended last midnight. Members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), who went on strike 14 weeks ago to back demands for a "substantial" wage increase and the dues checkoff, dismantled picket tents outside the mine gates and officials of the company and of the union met to sign a collective bargaining agreement.

The signing was the first break in the union's strike which has tied up eight mines in this northern Ontario district, some since mid-July. Still on strike are employees of Preston East Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Broulan Reef, Aunor, Hallnor, Coniaurum and Delnite Mines—about 3,500 in all seeking pay boosts and the checkoff.

The new Hollinger contract will run for 18 months.

VETO NORANDA OFFER

Meanwhile, at Noranda, Que., members of the same union voted down an offer of a 7½-per-cent wage increase (averaging about 10 cents an hour) by Noranda Mines Limited. In the union-sponsored voting, there were 730 votes against acceptance, 79 in favor, and 12 spoiled ballots.

The Hollinger workers who walked out Sept. 24 won an hourly wage increase of five cents, but not the checkoff.

WORKERS RETURN SOON

The first of the Hollinger strikers to go back to work will return to the mine, Wednesday. The company said the main underground work force will likely be back on the job Saturday.

E. A. Perry, mine manager, said in a statement released after the signing:

"I am pleased that we have signed a collective agreement between the company and the United Steelworkers of America.

"Our immediate objective is one of getting back to normal operations as soon as possible. The first men will be called back Wednesday morning and we expect that work will be available for all employees by the middle of next week.

"I hope that the signing of this agreement marks the beginning of a long period of industrial peace and development."

The Hollinger agreement may set a settlement pattern for the disputes at the other mines. The union has asked for settlement conferences and five other companies have agreed to them.

Father Dies, Show Goes On

LONDON (Reuters)—Show girl Pat Kirkwood made a place for herself in theatrical history Monday night by performing "Peter Pan" before a packed house a few hours after her father died in her arms.

Her performance in the title role of J. M. Barrie's classic went through without a hitch. Not by the faintest quaver in her voice did she show the audience that anything was wrong.

The management told her that she need not go on, but she refused to disappoint the hundreds of children on the other side of the curtain.

Campbellford Crashes Cause $375 In Damage

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Two accidents Sunday and Monday near here resulted in total damages of $375 to four different cars. No one was injured in the crashes, investigated by OPP Constable George Rose.

William Castle, 22, 4 Prince St., Peterborough was driving west on Highway 7, about three miles east of Havelock, and Arthur Crate, 18, of 319 LeBreton St., Ottawa, driving east. Due to slippery roads, the two vehicles sideswiped, causing damage of $50 to each.

In the second crash, early Sunday afternoon cars driven by Fred Burnum, 66, of RR 2, Campbellford, and Arthur Collette, 39, of 106 Front St., Campbellford, collided headon on a Seymour township road.

They were rounding a curve in opposite directions. Burnum saw Collette's car coming, braked, but slid into the path of the second car. Damage to the two vehicles totalled $275.

Traffic Survey Refused Town Council

COBOURG — (ENS) — Councilor Jeff Rolph, chairman of the police committee, who has been trying to get some action from the department of highways in regard to a traffic survey at the intersection of University and Division streets, was notified on Monday that the department no longer conducts surveys of such intersections involving provincial highways.

The Parent Teacher association of St. Michael's school, which is near the intersection in question, some time ago requested council to do something to remove the dangers to school children at this point. As it was a provincial highway on Division street, council notified the department in accordance with the established custom of the department, first making a traffic check before consenting to traffic light. Several weeks passed without word and the chairman of the police committee was going to go up this week to Toronto to see if the department would do something about it. However, a letter from the department Monday told the council that the department was no longer concerned in such matters and that it was a matter for the municipal council.

"Fine," said Councilor Rolph, "Now we know where we are at. A child was struck by a car a few weeks ago at that intersection and we can't take chances.

Councillor Rolph said he would immediately seek bids on a traffic light installation, to be turned on during the rush hours and that the P. T. A. would also be asked to provide a traffic supervisor to see that the children crossed the street with the green light.

Mark Abbey Dedication

LONDON (Reuters)—Special services were held Monday in Westminister Abbey to commemorate the first dedication of the abbey in 1065. The abbey dates back to the eighth century but its early history is shrouded in legend. It was dedicated to St. Peter of Rome in 1065.

Joint Army-RCAF Operation In Quebec

MONTREAL (P) — Canada's army and air force announced plans today to stage large-scale airborne operations this winter across the snow-packed reaches of northeastern Quebec.

In a joint announcement the army's Quebec command and the RCAF's tactical air command in Edmonton said nearly 5,000 men will take part in the training exercise scheduled for late February in the Sept Iles, Que., and Labrador areas.

Called exercise Loup-Garou, the manoeuvres will pit the 1st battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment and other auxiliary troops against an attacking force made up of A company of the 2nd battalion Royal Canadian Regiment.

Five regular and two auxiliary air force squadrons drawn from Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta will carry troops into action and provide air cover for striking and defending forces.

WINTER TRAINING

Army spokesmen said the exercise is not intended to test Canada's northern defences, but is part of the winter training of the armed forces. They said it will also give command staffs an opportunity to work together on joint planning of arctic air-ground strikes.

Troops will camp out in tents and will be on field rations, while aircraft will be serviced in the open.

The operation will be fought over some of the roughest and most desolate terrain in Canada. The heavily-wooded country, until recently deserted except for the occasional trapper or prospector, is also the scene of the huge mining development of the Iron Ore Company of Canada, 350 miles north of Knob lake.

Detachments of the Canadian Rangers, the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, the Royal anadian Engineers and the Royal Canadian Engineers and the Corps will join the Royal 22nd Regiment in the defence force.

THOSE TAKING PART

RCAF squadrons taking part are: Squadrons 435 and 436 equipped with flying boxcar C-119s, based at Edmonton and Dorval, Que.; transport squadrons 426 and 412 from Dorval and Rockcliffe, Ont.; No. 408 photo reconnaissance squadron and auxiliary squadrons 406 and 418 from Saskatoon and Edmonton.

Directing the exercise will be Maj.-Gen. J. P. Bernatchez, officer commanding Quebec army command. Air Commodore S. W. Coleman, air officer commanding the tactical air command, will be the assistant director.

Ordnance Depot Erected Signs

COBOURG — (ENS) — The two warning signs on each side of the railway tracks on D'Arcy street were installed there by No. 26 Central Ordnanace Depot, and not by the CNR or CPR, it was learned Monday. The impression received by the general public when they saw the signs at this dangerous crossing, was that the CPR had finally agreed with the town council that something should be done about this crossing.

"The ordnance depot put them up, not the railway," said Councillor Jeff Rolph, chairman of the police committee, last night.

D'Arcy street runs out to the new ordnanace depot and as a ridge of land along the south tracks of the CPR obscures the view of approaching trains on both side the CN and CP tracks, the town council sought to have this ridge removed but the only response from the CPR has been word that the company does not consider the crossing very dangerous but would look into it.

Apparently the CPR is still "looking into it" and in the meantime the ordnance depot authorities decided to do something on their own and installed two warning reflecting signs. These may be later replaced by larger ones, Lieut. Colonel W. R. Peace told The Examiner.

He touched a switch while taking a bath in water heated by an electric heating rod, an embassy statement said. R. Philp in magistrate's court Monday.

The other two youths, Donald Burfield and Donald Clarke, both of Peterborough, were sentenced last week to 12 months' definite and three months' indefinite imprisonment for their part in the holdup.

Making his third appearance in magistrate's court on an intoxication charge, 34-year-old Frank Johnston, 472 Edison Ave., was sentenced Monday by Magistrate W. R. Philp, Q.C., to three months' definite and one month indefinite imprisonment.

Long Distance Record For Gore's Landing

GORE'S LANDING— (ENS)—A long distance telephone record was established in this village Christmas night, when Kobe, Japan, came through with the voice of Miss Lindy MacIntosh, telephoning her parents Mr. and Mrs. Bob MacIntosh Christmas wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. MacIntosh were guests of their daughter Mrs. Victor Harris and all of the family gathering were able to say "Hello" to Lindy and hear her voice come across the Pacific, faintly, but clear.

Miss MacIntosh was a teacher in the Peterborough Public schools for several years.

On leaving Peterborough she taught in Ottawa for a year then went out to Japan last August. She has enjoyed the trip and life out there very much and at present is teaching in the Canadian Academy, Kobe, Japan. In her classroom are 11 different nationalities but Miss MacIntosh finds teaching these children most interesting work.

While in Peterborough she was a member of the Shakespearean drama group.

Free World Nickel Production Said Continuing To Increase

COPPER CLIFF, Ont. (CP)—Nickel, strategic metal of war and peace, is pouring out of the refineries of the Free World in increasing quantities.

A year-end review of the industry by Dr. John F. Thompson, chairman of the board of International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., estimates this year's Free World production at 340,000,000 pounds.

This is 20,000,000 pounds more than in 1952, and more than 25 per cent more than in 1949, the year immediately preceding the Korean war and the defence programs which followed. It is a peacetime record and approximates wartime peaks.

Dr. Thompson estimates production in the coming year at 385,000,000 pounds, and that capacity by 1960 will be 75 per cent above 1949.

BIGGEST PRODUCER

Canada this year produced an estimated 285,000,000 pounds, or 85 per cent of the total, and Canadian expansion programs will account for much of the expected increase.

International Nickel Company, the world's largest producer, with operations centred in the Sudbury district of northern Ontario, increased monthly production capacity by 2,000,000 pounds in December, and its annual production rate now is approximately 275,000,000 pounds.

Its scheduled production will permit it to deliver 1,380,000,000 pounds over the five years ending in 1958, or 325,000,000 pounds more than in the five years immediately preceding Korea, 1945-49.

Six Nominated For Emily Reeve, 16 For Council

OMEMEE (ENS)—Six men including the incumbent were nominated as Emily township's reeve, and 16 men, including the present council, nominated for four council posts, Monday at a meeting in Coronation hall.

Besides the veteran of 13 years on council including six as reeve, Vincent Fee, Councillors Elwood Faulkner and Elmer Mahood, former councillors Peter Perdue and George McGee, and past-reeve Paul McGuire were nominated for the reeveship.

For council the present members, Elwood Faulkner, Elmer Mahood, Lloyd Ashmore and Edward Lowes were nominated. New nominees were Charles Lytle, Claude Perdue, Rubin Reeds, Victor Callaghan, Elmer Hickey, Wesley Wilson, Sidney Mitchell, George McGee, Clinton Endicott, Harold Millen, Alvin Franks and Nelson McConnell.

NINE QUALIFIED

In the race for reeve, Mr. Faulkner, Mr. Mahood and Mr. Perdue have qualified. Mr. Ashmore, Mr. Lowes, Mr. Lytle, Mr. Perdue, Mr. Reeds and Mr. Callaghan have qualified for councillors.

The remainder have until nine o'clock tonight to qualify.

Keynote of the aspirants for all position was economy in 1954. Mr. McGuire pointed out, however, "until we are willing to sacrifice services, we can't complain about taxes."

Mr. Lowes came through with a different idea on economy. He felt it could be achieved through reducing the cost of upkeep on township equipment.

Mr. Fee reviewed work of Victoria county of which he acted as warden in 1953, and present councillors reviewed the past year's activities in the township.

Volcanoes Erupt

TOKYO (Reuters) — Two Japanese volcanoes erupted today, shooting smoke and flame hundreds of feet into the air, but they caused no serious damage. First to burst into action was Mount Mihara on Oshima island in Tokyo Bay. Then Mount Asama in central Japan erupted, but the eruptions were not related.

Discover Food, Bacteria Both Produce Tooth Decay

BOSTON (AP)—A new concept of tooth decay—that both food and bacteria are necessary for it to occur—was reported today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The report resulted from research at Notre Dame and Harvard dental school and the University of Chicago. Dr. Frank J. Orland said rats were raised in a "germ free" atmosphere in a unique laboratory for that purpose at Notre Dame. During their rearing the rats were fed diets which ordinarily result in tooth decay. But none of the rats developed bad teeth.

At Harvard, rats were reared under normal laboratory conditions and therefore had bacteria in their mouths, just as man does under ordinary conditions of living.

The rats were fed the same kind of diets as the animals at Notre Dame, but they were fed through a stomach tube so the food never touched their teeth.

NO DECAY

Again, no rats developed tooth decay.

Said Dr. Orland:

"These two rather unique experiments together provide muchneeded evidence which tends to establish the basic concept that a living tooth cannot decay in the complete absence of bacteria nor in the complete absence of food."

Dr. Reidar Sognnaes of Harvard said:

"Further work on laboratory animals of exact hereditary and nutritional background and raised on synthetic diets of known composition offers real promise for testing the effect of specific food elements, drugs and other agents with potential decay preventive properties."

No Bonus For The Gold Miners

Settlements of the strikes in the gold mining industry of Northern Ontario are being reached, but not before many of the miners have gone broke because of lack of pay envelopes for months on end. The strikers won little sympathy or support from other people in the Province, and we hear that the men themselves are not pleased with their union which led them into the mess. The settlements now being made in some cases give the miners smaller increases in hourly rates than the company offered in the first place, before the walkout. Further, the time lost will not be recovered for years, nor will the lost pay—if ever. Another item which does not please the miners is this: some of them will not be at work for a couple of months still, even though the strike is settled, because it will take time to put the mine back into operating order. This means that, all told, some miners will have been without jobs and pay for more than half a year.

* * *

A reason why people outside Northern Ontario and the gold mining industry have seen little sense in the strike is that the wages of the gold miners are already higher than average wages paid in Ontario. A good workman in a gold mine earns between five and six thousand dollars a year. In such circumstances can it be wondered that even the wives of the miners have been put out because the men have been put out of work by their union?

* * *

A union which authorizes and engineers a strike for higher wages and special benefits in an industry whose workers already are as well paid as gold miners, and entitled to as many special privileges (cheap rental for company houses, profit-sharing, saving plans and the like), such a union is not the kind to merit the support of the Canadian public at large. Judging from echoes of grumbling we hear from the north country workers, the men themselves are losing whatever confidence they had in the union.

Russia Turning Over A New Leaf?

So much propaganda and so many lies have come from Russia for so long that it is difficult not to be sceptical about the skilful Soviet response to President Eisenhower's proposal for an international pool of some atomic resources. Is Russia working for a detente for the sake of peace or for propaganda? Is it calling again for a ban on atomic weapons only in order to build up its own stock of bombs? How much sincerity was there in the Note?

Some western "experts" in gauging the Russian mind have found in the Note more adroitness than frankness, a clever play for international favour and domestic approval in order to gain Russia's own ends. This in itself is not bad in a diplomatic note; the very fact that it is skilful and leaves a lot of room for manoeuvre is an improvement on the past. It is flexible diplomacy instead of name-calling and absurd poses.

The real intentions of the Note, as regards international affairs, may perhaps be assessed from the deeds of the new government in domestic policy. In home affairs the successors of Stalin seem to be turning over a new leaf. True, Beria has been ousted, condemned and executed, but this is far different from the brutal way that Stalin in the mid-thirties savaged whole classes of the most active-minded elements in the nation. The attack on Beria was personal, on him as an individual. The ruling power in Russia today seems less demagogic than its precursor. The "Collective Government" formed since Beria's disappearance includes only a few old-line Bolsheviks, and new persons, less well-known, who belong to the managerial class, not to the Revolution: Saburov, Pervukhin, Tevosyan, Malyshev, Kosygin.

The Examiner's European correspondent on Russian affairs, Edward Crankshaw, reports this in a recent despatch: "The important fact about all these men, with the possible exception of Kosygin, is that each one of them has achieved eminence not by being a good Party politician but by showing outstanding capacity in industry. These men are, above all, Soviet patriots. They are the supreme technocrats of the Russian industrial revolution, interested not in Marxist ideology but in making the Sovie Union work. The fact that they now bulk so largely in the inner councils of the Government may prove to be more important for the future of the world than all the peaceful professions of the Soviet Foreign Office".

It may be remarked that the Soviet Foreign Office saw fit, in its Note on that Eisenhower proposal, to discuss the necessity of avoiding atomic war so that people may have plenty as well as peace, and the use of atomic energy for industrial purposes. It widened the horizon of the discussion to include references to Russia's economic life and her hopes for extended world trade. It looks as if the dream of world revolution has evaporated on the hot anvils of Russian technology and Soviet patriotism. The West can at least hope that the Kremlin leaders have turned over a new leaf in foreign as well as domestic policy.

Running Down Santa Claus

We foresee that within the next twenty years Santa Claus will be as dead as a doornail, and we shall celebrate Christmas without any sight or mention of him. He is falling into disrepute. He began his career auspiciously as St. Nicholas, a dignified and awesome old bishop who rewarded good children and punished bad ones; in England he had considerable prestige as Father Christmas, who was very rarely seen and who possessed the allure of the unknown. But it took the peculiar genius of the North American continent to translate him into Santa Claus, to put him on every street corner and in every shop, school and Sunday school hall, to fake his endorsement of anything and everything, and in general to run him to death. Only the tiniest children stand in any awe of him now; larger children have seen too much of him, and what they have seen has not been good; the clergy are after his hide, and only last week Monsignor Louis Mendelis of Baltimore called him 'a pagan elf' and not one voice was raised in his defence. Santa has had it.

We have only ourselves to blame. We democratized Santa. Instead of keeping him on the saintly level, we turned him into a noisy old boob whom all but the most impressionable children despised; we made him one of the boys, and thereby we destroyed him.

We have also made him crafty. We read of certain large stores which have, during the season just past, turned their Santa Claus into a research agent. When a child whispers its dreams into Santa's hairy ear, Santa cunningly makes notes on a pad, and when these notes are analysed, they provide information of value to the toy-wholesalers and the purchasing agents; a child's letter to Santa is likely to end up as a market-research statistic.

That is no fate for a saint or a noble legend of parental love. No wonder Santa is dwindling visibly.

Pretty Trees

The Christmas trees in and around town this year are the prettiest and most numerous they have ever been. It would be incomplete and unfair to single out some streets above others for special mention of their displays. Tour the city, north, east, south and west—not forgetting the City Hall—and see the happy sights yourself. More trees are being lit by coloured electric bulbs and the lighting seems to be more artistic, less garish, this year than in other years. What makes all this conspicuous is that more trees have been set in windows or porches where they can be seen outside, and more have been put out on lawns, to give a festive air not only to the house but to the whole neighbourhood.

Perhaps it is an economic reflection that there are more trees and lights; good times make the money available for them and give the householder more leisure to enjoy them at his own home. We suggest, however, that the basic reason for the bigger and brighter display — particularly for the outdoors display—is not more money but a freer spirit. People are not hugging to their family bosoms their rays of cheerful light but are expanding their delight outside their doors, letting the lights so shine before men that they may see their good cheer.

A theory to define "the leisured classes" is their "conspicuous waste". Thin-lipped, small-hearted people might scoff at these Peterborough outdoor Christmas trees, gaily festooned, as being extravagant waste. Bosh! The people who have these trees are not a "leisured class"—they are working people all, taking their leisure over a holiday with conspicuous cheerfulness. It is not waste which so gaily and prettily ornaments a home, a neighbourhood, a whole city. It is delight for the eye and spirit, and this is never wasteful; it is too rare and precious a commodity.

Fast Mourners

In Russia things are bigger, quicker and better than anywhere else, according to some Soviet pronunciamentoes. Moscow radio reporting on Stalin's funeral said that 5,000,000 Russians filed past his bier in 72 hours. An American arithmetician got busy on the figures and discovered that they meant, if the mourners were three abreast and three and a third feet apart, they filed past at a running speed the equal of the world's record for the 100-yard dash. Not bad going, even for the Russians. In view of what has happened to Beria and other Stalin admirers in the Malenkov era, perhaps such fleeting respect was circumspect, even at a funeral.

Italian Movies

By JOHN CAIRNCROSS
(In Rome)

FOREIGNERS visiting Italy for the first time are struck by the fact that most of the films shown are American. Although neo-realist masterpieces like "Open City" have built up a tremendous reputation for Italian films abroad, Italians themselves much prefer the lighter type of picture turned out by Hollywood.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOT THAT the quantity of Italian films has diminished: production has never been so high. In particular, films shot by American producers with frozen U. S. funds now account for a sizable share in the national total. Vittoria De Sica's "Stazione Termini" (Main Station) was the most successful of this type to come out in recent months.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT there has been a marked change of subject and treatment. There is of course the usual run of pot-boilers, with the stock ingredients of sex, adventure and, occasionally, a dash of sadism. And there is a steady flow of light-hearted romps, mostly with the popular comic actor, Toto. Neo-realist productions, concentrating on the seamier sides of life among the poor, continue to turn out out such remarkable performances as "Due Soldi di Speranza" (Twopennyworth of Hope) and "Bicycle Thieves."

But most serious films from Italian studios have moved sharply away from the squalid peasant or proletarian milieu, and partisan warfare is a memory of the past. Controversial subjects are carefully avoided. The nearest that producers come to current topics is in "The Young Bloods" (I Vitelloni) which dwells, in a light-hearted way, on the amorous exploits of the gilded youth of the provinces.

✧ ✧ ✧

MUCH THE SAME is true of the drama based on the successful writer Alberto Moravia's short story, "The Provincial Girl." The milieu is lower-middle class, and intrigue, blackmail and adultery replace the denunciation, implicit or open of social evils. (Although it has been maintained with justice that such films give as accurate a picture of life, albeit at a different level of society, as the earlier neo-realist works of the "Shoeshine" type).

✧ ✧ ✧

ONE STEP FURTHER away from contemporary reality and we come to the dramatisation of literary classics. Of these the filming of Gofol's "The Greatest" offers the most remarkable example. But even here, in the pathetic story of the little Government clerk who is robbed of his luxurious greatcoat and who, refused justice in life, returns after death to haunt his hard-hearted superior, the producer has indulged in a few sharp digs at corrupt bureaucracy.

✧ ✧

GOVERNMENT administration is, and has always been, a thick undergrowth, almost a jungle, in Italy; and it provides a perfect target for the satirist. In his latest film, Luigi Zampa has exploited this vein with a wealth of shrewd and diverting touches.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE MAIN CHARACTER is De Francesco, a teacher in a Sicilian girls' high school who, on moving to Rome, is induced by a local Fascist leader to try to obtain a permit for the sale of virilon, a product whose properties may be guessed from the name. The wretched and innocent De Francesco is quickly lost in the endless maze of Government offices, and misses his one chance by failing to offer a bribe. His Fascist employer decides to settle the matter himself, and by using high-level contacts and lavish bribes, gets his way. The teacher, dissillusioned and faced with huge bills for his daughter's wedding, accepts a small bribe to smuggle a dud pupil through an exam; is found out, arrested and sent to prison. But even then he refuses to denounce the Fascist's corruption.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FILM is called "Anni Facili" (The Easy Years). But its career has been anything but smooth. The censorship took strong exception to the satire of the Civil Service and to the scene in which the former Marshal Rodolgo Graziani (under a thin disguise) and his Fascist henchman are derided. An initial decision to ban the film was reversed only after a strong protest was made, especially from the Left, and after the producer had agreed to make certain cuts.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FILM MARKS a welcome revival, in a lighter mood, of a great tradition in Italian films. And while cinemagoers will continue to enjoy nostalgic and risque evocations of the past such as "Altri Tempi," (shown in Britain as "Infidelity") there is room for a loosening of the present ban on controversial topics, for the creation of a humorous brand of social criticism, and for the removal of the rigid antithesis between established ideas and subversion without which the revolution of a really democratic spirit is impossible.

✧ ✧ ✧

AS MORAVIA has pointed out, no cinema or theatre can survive unless it is linked, however loosely and lightly, to current thinking and reactions. The Italian cenema is in danger of sliding down the slippery slope into sterility. A few films like "Anni Facili" would do much to restore the balance.

EXPLOSIVE AIR

The Beria Case

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

ALL THE FEATURES that have marked Soviet purges of the past are evident again in the official charges now levied against the purged secret police chief, Laverenti P. Beria, and his co-defendants. The world is expected to believe that these once high and mighty guardians of the Soviet state, men on whose consciences rest the death and enslavement of millions, always were actually "bourgeois" spies and counter-revoluntionists, murderers of high Soviet leaders, and plotters seeking to restore capitalism. For any one who knows the history of these men and their infamous deeds in defence of the Soviet regime, the mere recital of the charges is sufficient to prove their absurdity.

Two questions arise. First, why is the present time picked for the airing of these accusations and the trial which would presumably follow shortly. Part of the answer would seem to be that by now Malenkov and Khrushchev, clearly the prime movers in Beria's defeat, feel they have purged enough to assure their present power. But in part too, judging by the charges, the Kremlin victors feel that now they need scapegoats for the debacle of Soviet agriculture.

Second, why was the Minister of State Control, General Merkulov, implicated so suddenly in the Beria case? While all the other prominent defendants were clearly indicated last July, there had been no public hint prior to last Wednesday night that Merkulov was in anything but high good favour. His inclusion inevitably raises the possibility that after the initial purge of Beria's adherents last July there was a more recent purge involving some of the highest Soviet figures. The recent news from areas as diverse as Armenia and Leningrad supports this view, suggesting indeed that there are still other prominent victims who remain to be "exposed."

No doubt, if the trial is held, Beria and his associates will all "confess" in the pattern made familiar a decade and a half ago. But for the outside world the entire trial and its settings will represent a more important confession, for the need to execute these fantasies is admission indeed of the basic degeneracy that is the Soviet system.

The Letter-Writing Contest

(NEW YORK TIMES)

WHEN Senator McCarthy says "I will not have any further comment at all," it's a good bet that he has been defeated. That is certainly the case in the present instance. What Mr. McCarthy now promises not to comment on is the popularity contest he attempted to conjure up last week between his own foreign policy and that of the Administration.

On this occasion, by coincidence, what is good for Mr. McCarthy happens also to be good for the country. It is just as well for the Senator that he wishes to drop further mention of the letter-writing campaign because from his point of view, it was a flop. Mr. McCarthy had asked "each and every American who feels as I do" about withholding all aid from our allies who continue to conduct a limited, nonstrategic trade with Communist China to write or wire the President.

In a nation of 160,000,000 people a mere 50,000 did so—and, according to the White House, a majority of those who wrote letters favored Mr. McCarthy, while a majority of those who sent telegrams favored the Administration. But even if practically all who communicated with the President had been on Mr. McCarthy's side, the total figure would still be so small as to be virtually without significance. It is worth recalling that 60,000 Americans wired President Truman within three days after he had dismissed General MacArthur; 100,000 persons wired the Republican National Committee within twenty-four hours of Richard M. Nixon's offer to resign as Vice Presidential candidate last year.

It is good for the nation, as well as for the Senator, that there will be no further communiques about this silly incident. All Americans, of course, have the right at any time to write their Congressman—or their President—about anything; and many of them do. But it is quite a different thing for a public official in emotionally charged phrases to beg his fellow-citizens to flood the White House with letters on the specific way to handle a matter of the greatest delicacy in our foreign relations. This is neither the intelligent nor the constitutional method of conducting the foreign policy of the United States.

In fact, if the referendum were generally adopted in this sphere, there could be no foreign policy. There could only be a succession of fits and starts dependent on whatever popular pressure at the moment happened to be in the ascendant. Under such circumstances we would not merely lose our influence in the world; we would in all likelihood soon lose our lives.

Transformers From Britain

("This Week in Britain")

The second of four giant transformers made by Ferranti, Ltd, for the Auminum Company of Canada was recently shipped to British Columbia. Two transformers, with a capacity of 301,400 volts, are largest ever made in Britain. They will be used in the Kitimat hydro-electric power station, now being built at an underground site several hundred miles from civilization.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: not according to the covenant I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: but this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, sayeth the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. (Jer. 31:31-33.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life. (John 5:39.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you: for every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. (Matt. 7:7, 8.)

McCarthy's English

(Montreal Star)

Sir Alan Herbert, that irrepressible wit who gets more serious things done through humour than most dull statesmen do in deadly seriousness, has entered the McCarthy controversy. Not, as one might imagine, in its political or social aspects. What Sir Alan is perturbed about is the effect of McCarthyism on the English language.

In a letter to the London Daily Telegram he complains that in his recent radio attack on the British, McCarthy began two consecutive sentences with the words, "As of today." Sir Alan thinks he meant merely "today."

"Our American friends," he goes on, "with all their resources, seem to be incapable of saying, simple things like 'Today' and 'Now.' 'Right now' and 'currently' were born in England, so we cannot complain about them, except that through overwork they have lost any particular merit they had. But we are not responsible for 'as of today' and 'as of now'."

Sir Alan has set himself up as president, chairman and secretary of the Commonwealth Committee for Combatting un-English Verbosities. "Guys," he finds, even in England—and it is Damon Runyon rather than the McCarthy influence that is responsible for this—are snapping dynamic "right nows" when there is no urgency or hurry. A play is said to be "currently running" at the X Theatre. "If we are not careful, the same poor parrots will be saying 'As of today,' 'As of now,' and perhaps 'As of currently'."

Not in Montreal

(Montreal Gazette)

Worried about the high cost of Christmas gifts? Wondering how the bank account has survived if at all? A young chap in Sunderland, England, has a formula which literally makes his money go twice as far. He splits pound notes in two, the hard way, then presents them with the good side showing.

The report from Sunderland even tells how it's done. The notes, which are printed on somewhat thicker paper than Canadian or American bills, are soaked in water, then split with a needle. This is the manner suggested; there are probably others.

The "splits" are only convincing on one side, of course. When the receiver turns them over the game is up. The young man in Sunderland, however, doesn't wait around for that. He keeps going, fast. When last seen, by one of his theatre cashier victims, he was running.

And there's the nub. The whole thing is probably impossible in Montreal. No one can move that fast here. Traffic doesn't allow it.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

When their fine arena burned down last summer in Oshawa, the junior "A" Generals dropped out of competition. But the senior "B" Truckmen moved over to Bowmanville. After some scurrying around, the Oshawa junior "B" puckists found a home at Port Perry and they're presently leading the group, though only by one game over Young Petes and Lindsay, tied in second spot. Midland and Collingwood are new-comers to the group and these scrappy northerners will win their share of games in this setup. Ed. Bush brings his rugged Collingwood Shipbuilders here tomorrow night for their first showing of the season in Peterborough. Red Creighton will have Young Petes back at full strength, so it should be a streamlined junior scrap.

* * * * * *

If we recall rightly, there was a Collingwood kid killed last season after a collision with an Aurora player in a junior "B" joust, and it resulted in a court case. That is just another indication that husky youngsters in this age group play is pretty rugged—too rugged, we hasten to add. No less than 30 penalties when Young Petes played in Port Perry last Saturday, which must be a "B" record at least for this season. Juniors are full of ginger and, despite their continuous speed, they manage to carry chips on their shoulders. Let's hope they stick to fast hockey here Wednesday and keep clear of the sin bin. The ring is the place for fights.

* * * * * *

Open Brand of Hockey

The eminent, if not imminent, Michael J. Rodden, bard of Kingston, expounds thusly: "With the average goals production per game 10.5, it must be apparent that the clutching, holding and interference tactics that have become so obnoxious in the National League have not been adopted on any great scale in this senior 'B' series. Under such conditions the rival coaches rate orchids. It must not, however, be imagined that complaints have not been aired." How true. Yet, most of the senior tussles in our group this lively semester have been pretty wide-open affairs. Lots of scoring, not much stalling and few serious fights. They all want to win and by as much as possible.

* * * * * *

Playing coach Red Doran of Belleville Memos may recall an incident several years ago when he was with Indianapolis in the AHL and he tangled in a high-sticking duel with Providence's Chuck Scherza. The latter got the worst of it, according to reports, to the tune of 16 stitches in a head cut. Most players then carried an insurance policy which provided them with so much a stitch. As Chuck was being embroidered in the dressing room, he remarked in philosophic vein: "Guess this one should be good for about 50 bucks with all these stitches." It might be added that insurance companies had so many claims against 'em in this respect that they since decided to issue no more policies.

Petes' Keep Rolling

A nip-and-tucker at Civic last eve ere Belleville Memos ran out of steam in the third period as the TPT Petes came on strongly to take an 8-4 senior "B" win. It hoisted them into third spot again where they're breathing hotly down the necks of Kingston Goodyears. A real rat race this. That could be quite a scrap between these clubs in the Limestone City City on the Morrow, Ed Redmond's men then resting up for a week. Quinte crew seem to be having trouble icing a full squad but they give all opposition a real battle ere bowing, and they're not too hopelessly mired in the cellar yet, by any means. The race is at about the halfway mark and it's anyone's guess how they'll finish.

* * * * * *

Goalie Jack Donlevy came up with another fine display last p.m., and the rest of the boys were rolling, too. The Prentice-Peterson-Belisle line clicked, as did the others, in this tilt, and Petes' checking was okay. Penalties disorganized the locals in the middle heat and they were down a goal at one time. But these Petes appear to dig deeper in the stretch to finish strong and their games are never over till the final gong. Fryia, Peterson, Belisle, Leonard, Hill and Crowley were all prominent on the home attack, and the defence turned in a solid blue-line chore. The Duncan twins proved best in the lamp-lighting department for Belleville.

Olson Named Fighter Of Year By Magazine

NEW YORK (AP)—Carl (Bobo) Olson, world middleweight champion, has been named "fighter of the year" for 1953 by Ring magazine in a copyrighted artiole in its February issue. The selection is at odds with the Boxing Writers Association's pick of Kid Gavilan.

Editor Nat Fleischer said his staff decided on Olson after considering welter champ Gavilan, heavyweight king Rocky Marciano and lightweight champ Jimmy Carter.

Pointing out that Gavilan had been floored by Carmen Basilio and beaten in a non-title bout by Danny Womber, Fleischer's board found Olson, and Olson alone, showed no minus factors.

REMATCH MARRED

Despite Marciano's two knockout victories in title defences, the Ring pointed out that the rematch with Jersey Joe Walcott was marred by Joe's failure to get up and Rocky was slow to get started against Roland LaStarza. Carter was faulted for three non-title defeats in eight fights despite three successful defences.

Olson won all four fights this year, whipping Paddy Young for the American title and defeating Randy Turpin for the world championship.

The annual year-end ratings of fighters in all classes include three Canadians.

THREE CANADIANS

Earl Walls of Edmonton is rated No. 5 among challengers for Marciano's heavyweight title. Nino Valdes of Cuba, who upset Ezzard Charles and knocked out Heinz Neuhaus of Germany, has replaced Walcott as No. 1 challenger. He's followed by Charles, LaStarza and Dan Bucceroni of Philadelphia.

Arthur King of Toronto is No. 8 and Armand Savoie of Montreal No. 10 among challengers for Carter's lightweight title. Wallace (Bud) Smith of Cincinnati is first in line.

WINGS RECALL HAY

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings Monday recalled defenceman Jim Hay from Sherbrooke of the Quebec Hockey League. The National Hockey League champions sent defenceman Al Arbour to Sherbrooke to replace Hay.

Petes Finish Up Strongly To Trounce Belleville In 8-4 Senior Puck Tussle

Finishing strong here last night before some 800 OHA senior "B" fans, the TPT Petes triumphed over Belleville Memos 8-4 in a lively fray. Ed Redmond's gang continued their recent winning streak with a lot of late hustle to hurdle Orillia and move into third spot in the group standing, just one point back of Kingston and two full games behind the leading Oshawa Truckers. Belleville remains in the cellar. Petes led 3-2 in the first frame and had to come from behind in the second period to end that frame with a 5-4 game bulge. They pitched in three unanswered goals in the third as Memos, minus Red Doran, McDonald and Semark, gradually faded, though the Quinte crew crowded the Petes for the first half of this final frame.

FANS GET PEEVED

Play was fairly clean, with the odd bit of high-sticking and elbowing cropping up, and the fans were after Referees Jim Crombie and Maurice Walsh (especially the latter) on several occasions. They showered the ice for a time in the second period after Walsh had sent off Bert Hill with a misconduct—for protesting an offside call—Bill Crowley for elbowing and Bill McMaster for holding, all in a row. Keith Montgomery followed shortly after for cross-checking, but Memos scored but one goal while Petes were short-handed two, the delayed penalty and misconduct not figuring in on it. Petes drew eight of the 14 penalties.

Though it might have been scrambly here and there, play kept fast and quite interesting and it was only in the late part of the third period that the victors really clinched it, their final goal coming with seconds to go. At that, goalie Jack Donlevy (who was brilliant throughout) had to be at his best early in the third frame when Memos drove hard in a final desperation attempt to sew it up. Barclay in the other net also made some good saves.

STAYS IN GAME

Donlevy suffered a cut on the chin late in the middle chukker in a collision, but continued in the game. Bill McMaster, who did some rousing bumping at the blue line, was clipped accidentally on the face with a stick in the last period but stayed in. Both sides bumped hard but it wasn't unduly rough most of the distance.

The Prentice-Belisle-Peterson line stood out for the winners, going both ways. Denny Peterson notched two markers, Rod Belisle was in on three, and Doc Prentice had an assist. Chum Fryia scored a pair and line-mate Gus Leonard aided on two. Bert Hill and Bill Crowley each had a goal and an assist, while Ted Collins and Bill McMaster got a marker apiece. Single assists went to Coach Ed Redmond, Freddy Garvey and hard-working Keith Montgomery.

Best for Belleville were Erwin and Edwin Duncan with a goal and two assists each. Canny Jake Wade tallied one, as did Ted DeGray, while Peter Jones and Chuck Doran assisted once each. Teams:

Belleville: Goal, Barclay; defence, Wade and Taylor; centre, Ed Duncan; wings, Erwin Duncan and DeGray. Alts.: P. Jones, C. Doran, Goyer, D. Jones, Hull and Bastedo.

Petes: Goal Donlevy; defence, Redmond and McMaster; centre, Leonard; wings, Fryia and Greenlaw; Alts., Munroe, Montgomery, Hill, Crowley, Collins, Garvey Prentice Belisle and Peterson.

Referees J. Crombie and M. Walsh.

FIRST PERIOD

Belleville—Degray (Erwin Duncan) 0:51
Petes—Peterson (Prentice Belisle) 4:05

Field Narrows Rapidly In Badminton

The local "B" badminton tournament opened here last evening, and will continue Wednesday and Saturday nights.

In the first round of ladies' doubles, S. Akers and M. Rogers won from M. Sullivan and V. Sullivan 15-3, 15-8; S. Shaughnessy and J. Bush beat R. Hudson and P. Hudson 15-9 and 15-9; M. Nickle and D. Reinstate Schertzl As Amateur Player

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen said Monday Joe Schertzl has been reinstated as an amateur and will play for the Dutchmen in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league.

Schertzl, 30, played with Hershey Bears the last three years and ranked as one of the highest scoring defencemen in the AHL. He was credited with 45 points in the 1950-51 season and 31 points last year.

The Dutchmen have been playing with three defencemen since Dec. 16 when Clare Martin suffered an injury to his right arm. Martin is expected to get back into action in a week or 10 days.

Shoulder Separation Sidelines Bolton

TORONTO (CP) — Defenceman Hugh Bolton, shuttled between the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs and Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Hockey League, is expected to be out of action from one to three weeks with a shoulder separation, a Leaf spokesman said Monday night.

Bolton was injured in the final play of the NHL game here Saturday between the Leafs and Detroit Red Wings. The injury occurred when he checked Detroit's Gordie Howe.

OHA Referees' School Held Here Wednesday

The OHA is running a referees' school during the junior "B" fixture here Wednesday night between Collingwood and Young Petes as part of a joint NHL-OHA plan to train referees. Some experienced and some inexperienced referees will handle the game, two arbiters each period. The other four will sit with Referee-in-Chief Pat Patterson and OHA secretary-manager Bill Hanley and receive pointers on how play should be handled.

Those working the game Wednesday in alternate shifts will be Bun Kingdon of this city, Sixty Coombs of Lindsay, Cain of Cobourg, Bill Holway of Belleville, Hodgetts of Port Hope and Doug Calhoun of Oshawa. Further schools will be held from time to time, OHA vice-president Frank Buckland has announced.

Wolves Are Bolder

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta. (CP)—Timber wolves are getting bolder this winter. Usually they remain at least five miles from town but a farmer within a mile of the main street saw two wolves in his farmyard, within 30 feet of his kitchen door.

LORD ATHOL LAYTON, pictured above, who teams with Fred Atkins against Hi Lee and Ilio DiPaulo in a tag team bout at the Brock Arena Wednesday night. This is the feature match and it should be a humdinger, bringing together four of the ring's top matmen. The Atkins-Layton combination is a tough one to crack and with their eye on the Canadian team title will use every trick at their command to gain a victory. Lee and DiPaulo are a rugged pair and will give Atkins and Layton loads of trouble before it is over. The semi-final has Timothy Geohagen pitted against Firpo Syzbsko. The opener brings together Flying Pat Flanagan and Johnny Harmon. Both men are fast and clever, Harmon making a strong impression on his two appearances here. A sparkling card for the holiday menu.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This may sound like one of those trick questions you hear on radio quiz programs. And, in fact, it is. Here's the question: "Would it be possible that the biggest upset in a Canadian sport during 1953 didn't happen in Canada at all?"

The answer isn't too difficult. Hockey is a Canadian sport, and Canadians were on both sides of the upset when the lowly Boston Bruins, who had just barely scrambled into the Stanley Cup play-offs, knocked the lordly Detroit Red Wings right out of the picture. It didn't happen in Canada, of course, because the six games which saw the National League champions and Cup holders unceremoniously shouldered out of the picture to the amazement of every hockey fan on the continent, were all played on U.S. ice. It was the sports upset of the year.

The depth of the upset can be seen in a quick review of the regular-season figures, in which Detroit won 10 games, tied two and lost two against Boston. The record-setting Wings, who won an unprecedented fifth-straight NHL title, also outscored the Bruins, 62 goals to 19, over that stretch. On Detroit ice, where Boston won a key game in the Cup series last spring, the Wings held a fantastic 27-2 margin over four seasons, including 12 straight wins. But in the Cup series, Bruins scored 21 goals in the six games, the same number, by coincidence, as did Red Wings.

The hero of the spectacular Boston triumph undoubtedly was Samuel (Sugar Jim) Henry, the Bruins' goaler. Two years before, Henry had been a spare goalie in the hockey camp of the Red Wings. When a call for help came from Bruins, the veteran goalminder, who had failed in previous tries with New York and Chicago, was sold to the Boston club for a few thousand dollars.

So amazing was Henry's comeback with Boston that during the first year, 1951-52, he was named to the second All-Star team and was third in the voting for the National Hockey League's Most Valuable Player award.

In the opening round of the post-season playoffs he came back to thwart the team that had sold him to Boston. In the first three games against Detroit, Sugar Jim made 122 saves as Boston upset the defending champions twice to take a 2-1 led in the best-of-seven series.

And when Bruins battled Canadiens right down to the wire in the Cup finals, it was the gallant Henry, hobbling on one foot, his ankle badly damaged, who held the Habitant team at bay, without a goal, until one whistled past him in overtime of the fifth and final game to give the Montreal team the title.

Suspend Geoffrion For 8 Games; Wings Lead NHL

MONTREAL—(CP)—Two main points highlight today's picture in the National Hockey League: (1) League president Clarence Campbell has dashed ice-cold water on the fiery tempers of players who use sticks as combat weapons: (2) The Detroit Red Wings are back in the league leadership, with a two-point edge over Montreal Canadiens. A statement by Campbell Monday night had hard words for a bloody stick-swinging duel between Bernie Geoffrion of Canadiens and Ron Murphy of New York Rangers in a New York game Dec. 20.

Campbell suspended Geoffrion for eight games and Murphy, still in hospital with a broken jaw, for five. Geoffrion also suffered a head wound in the battle.

SEAL DETROIT PROMISE

League statistics released today put the official seal on the success of Detroit's promise of "first place by Christmas." Wings lead third-place Toronto Maple Leafs by six points. The up-and-down Boston Bruins are fourth with 3 points, followed by New York with 26 and Chicago Black Hawks with 19.

Although Gordie Howe failed to garner a point during the week, he held his position at the top of the scoring list. The big Detroit winger has 16 goals and 25 assists for 41 points, a seven-point margin over teammate Ted Lindsay, who slid ahead of the suspended Geoffrion into second place. Geoffrion holds third place with 33 points, and Maurice Richard of Canadiens is next with 20 goals and 12 assists.

Rocket Richard is the circuit's leading goal-getter with 20 this season. Howe is tops in the assisting department.

HAS 12 GOALS

Red Kelly, the league's highest scoring defenceman, has 12 goals and 20 assists for 32 points. Ed Sandford, Boston and Earl Reibel, Detroit, each have 29 points. Tod Sloan of Toronto has 27 and Ken Mosdell of Canadiens 26.

Harry Lumley of Toronto is the leading goal-keeper with a goals-against average of 1.64. In 33 games he's allowed 54 goals. He also has five shutouts, tied in that department with Terry Sawchuk, Detroit, and Gerry McNeil, Montreal.

NHL statisticians report that 21 players are eligible for the Calder trophy, awarded annually to the best first-year player, at the season's half-way mark. It carries a $1,000 bonus.

The rookies are: Boston, Frank Martin, Doug Mohns and Ray Gariepy; Chicago, Murray Costello, Jack Price and Ken Wharram; Detroit, Earl Reibel, Bill Dineen and Al Arbour; Montreal, Eddie Mazur, Lorne Davis and Jean Beliveau; New York, Johnny Bower, Camille Henry, Ike Hildebrand, Iva Irwin, Bob Chrystal, Ron Murphy, Andy Bathgate and Billy Dea; Toronto, Bob Bailey.

Trabert-Seixas Crush Aussie Team

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP)—Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas, top American seige guns, crushed Lewis Hoad and Rex Hartwig 6-2, 6-4, 6-4 today to put the United States into a 2-1 lead over Australia in the Davis Cup challenge round.

This doubles event was of paramount importance to both countries, and now the U.S. has a decided advantage in that it must win only one of the two remaining singles scheduled for Wednesday. They will pit Trabert against Hoad and Seixas against Ken Rosewall.

Captain Harry Hopman and the Australian selection committee gambled and lost by sending Hartwig into the fray instead of Rosewall, the youngster who dropped the second singles match to Trabert Monday.

They must have known and regretted their decision almost at the start of the first set. From the beginning, it was apparent that Hoad and Hartwig were not teaming well.

Hartwig, new to Davis Cup competition, had a bad case of nerves. In addition, he never had teamed with Hoad in a major tournament before, and could not anticipate his partner's moves.

Hopman, however, was fearful of Rosewall's admittedly weak service, so he took the gamble—and will have to take the blame if the Aussies lose the cup for the first time in four years.

MOVE CRITICIZED

The decision by the Australian selectors to break up the Hoad-Rosewall team which won the Wimbledon, French and Australian championships drew criticism from observers here. However, Sir Norman Brookes, head of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association, defended the position in an unprecedented press conference.

Several Australian newspaper writers called the switch a "crazy gamble." One said: "That's handing the cup to America on a silver platter."

Trabert, as usual, was his masterful self. It was Seixas, though, who gladdened American captain Billy Talbert's heart and raised his hopes. Vic seemed like his old self after his disappointing showing in Australia before today.

He and Trabert seized the initiative at the outset and held a tiger-like grip throughout the match. The Aussies never could get going, and in exactly 58 minutes it was all over.

All told, Trabert and Seixas broke Hartwig's service three times and Hoad's once. Rex was having trouble with his first delivery and when he came through with the soft second attempt he found himself in trouble.

Dawes Resigns As Galt Coach

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Dawes, a former professional hockey player with Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, Monday night was replaced by Al Murray as coach of Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Jack Moffat, president of the Galt club, said Dawes "resigned." Dawes, a freshman coach, had the Hawks in second place early in the schedule. In recent weeks the team faded badly until now they are tied with Barrie Flyers for last place.

Murray is a former coach of Hawks and has been a director of the club for several years.

Kingston Rink Wins Curling Championship

KINGSTON (CP) — A Kingston rink skipped by Murray Hampton won the eastern Ontario high school boys' curling championship Monday night and will represent the district in the Ontario high school finals in Toronto Jan. 30.

Hampton's rink won the district title by defeating another Kingston rink skipped by Bill Laird 9-8 after sweeping to the finals over entries from Brockville, Gananoque, Ottawa, Smiths Falls and Kingston. The winners won the Clair Palmer Memorial Trophy.

Red Sullivan Maintains 8-Point Lead

NEW YORK (CP) — Although held to a single point on one assist last week, George (Red) Sullivan of Hershey suffered little in his quest for the American Hockey League scoring title. The Bear centre still holds an eight-point lead with 13 goals and 39 assists for 52 points, as his closest pursuers also had off weeks.

Jackie Gordon and Eddie Olson of Cleveland are second and third with 44 and 43 points respectively. Don Marshall of Buffalo has 40 and a newcomer to the top ranks, Bronco Horvath of Syracuse, is fifth with 39.

Sullivan retains the lead in assists with his 39. Harry Pidhirny of Syracuse remains the leading goal-getter with 24.

Larry Cahan of Pittsburgh is still the top player in penalty minutes with 90, and Jacques Plante of Buffalo holds a commanding lead in goaltending with an average of 2.57 on 90 goals and in 35 games. He is tied in shutouts with Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh with two each.

Alnwick Voters To Decide On New Hall

ROSENEATH (ENS) — Although Alnwick township's reeve, council and school area trustees were re-elected by acclamation Monday, voters will still visit the polls January 4. They will vote on three questions concerning a community hall; whether to build a new one, buy the older Orange hall and repair it, or leave things the way they are.

Acclamation reeve for his second term at the nomination meeting in Roseneath hall Monday was James Thompson. Councillors for 1954 will be the same: Harold Taylor, Earl Braithwaite, Edwin McCleary and Hector Winkworth.

On the five-man school area board of trustees will be Harold Davidson, Ross McCracken, James L. Timlin, Frank Adams and Lloyd Parker. Mr. Davidson acted as chairman in 1953 and Mrs. McCracken, secretary-treasurer.

Chairman of the nomination meeting was Alnwick Clerk Silas Sherwin.

CANADIAN STARS ON TV—Canada is well represented on a United States television network program originating in New York. Three internationally-known Canadian entertainers and annoucer Warren Hull, of Canadian descent, appeared together on the program, "Strike It Rich." Left to right: Dorothy Collins, of Windsor; Gisele MacKenzie, St. Boniface, Man.; Barbara Ann Scott, of Ottawa and Toronto; and Mr. Hull. Miss Collins and Miss MacKenzie are regular performers on the network program, "Your Hit Parade," and Miss Scott is the star of a touring ice show.

Douro Township Returns Council By Acclamation

All the 1953 Douro council have been returned by acclamation.

Roland Tedford of R.R. 2, Indian River, has been returned as reeve for his fifth consecutive term of office. So has Loyola Moloney, the township's deputy reeve.

An average crowd of 50 went to the Douro township hall Monday afternoon and saw a quiet meeting in which there were no changes in personnel. It was also announced that a surplus of $3,000 is anticipated this year.

Here is the 1954 slate:

Reeve—Roland Tedford.

Deputy - Reeve—Loyola Moloney.

Three Councillors—Bruce Dunford, John K. Ryan and Frank Condon—all members of the last year's council.

School Area No. 1—Robert Leahy and Richard Moher.

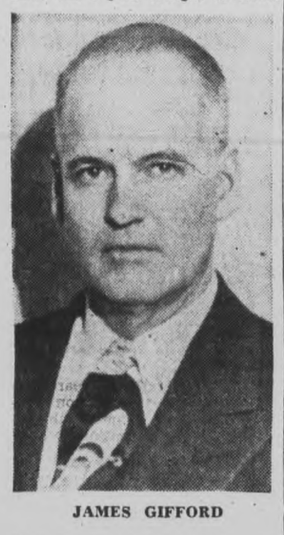
James Gifford Returned For 21st Term

James Gifford on Monday afternoon was acclaimed reeve of Ennismore township, marking the 21st year in a row that he has held the township's highest office. This is a record for Peterborough county and perhaps for this section of Ontario.



In that time Mr. Gifford has had only one election. That was last year when he defeated John Harrington 213 to 118.

Returned with Mr. Gifford were the three 1953 councillors and the five members of the newly-formed school area board.

Here is the 1954 slate.

Reeve, James Gifford.

Four Councillors, Herbert Moloney, William Cavanaugh, Fred Jolliffe and Harry Long. (Thomas Harrington and John Harrington were also nominated and will have till 9 p.m. tonight to make their choice, but indications are they won't force an election).

JAMES GIFFORD

School Area Board, Hubert Flood, Michael Harrington, Edward Ballantyne, Laverne Perdue and Frank Brick. (After the first meeting the chairman will designate three of them to serve two years; the remaining two for one year).

Mr. Gifford was in council two years before he was elected to the reeveship, for the first time, 21 years ago.

A turnout of about 70 was reported at the Ennismore parish hall.

Asphodel Reeve Charges Judge Ignored Evidence

James Humphries, veteran reeve of Asphodel township, charged Monday a Supreme Court justice "didn't pay any attention to the evidence" in a legal hearing earlier this year. The hearing was a motion to have minutes resulting in a bylaw amendment quashed and was brought about by Asphodel ratepayers protesting a township dump.

The matter was one of contention between ratepayers and their council and resulted in considerable expense to the municipality. The minutes were quashed and the township lost the action.

The matter once again came to a head Monday at Asphodel's nomination meeting held in the township hall at Westwood.

Nominated for four council seats were Bruce Graham, Carman Metcalfe, Walter Middlebrook, Max Scott, and Arnold Stevenson. Nominees for the reeveship were Mr. Humphries and Mr. Scott. Two newcomers have been nominated for three vacancies on the school board. They are William Heffernan and James Moore. Incumbent nominees are Wilfred Buck, Aubrey Wood and Gordon Warner.

In explaining the council's stand, Mr. Humphries, nominated his 11th time for reeve, pointed out members didn't do anything out of the way; the area in which the dump was located had been used for 40 years by Westwood as such.

TOWNSHIP DUMP

Council then decided to make it a township dump, provision having been made in an earlier bylaw for such action. "Even the people who objected about it had been using it as a dump," the reeve pointed out.

"No we didn't . . . don't say that," interjected Tom Cardel from the back of the hall.

The reeve continued to say council had never had any objections about it until they legalized the area as a dump. After consultation with the department of municipal affairs, the council decided to fight it in court instead of abandoning its resolution.

The ratepayers won in court, however. "To the Supreme Court judge, a dump's a dump . . . he didn't pay any attention to the evidence."

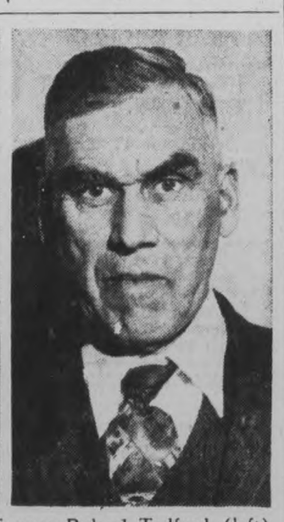
Max Scott, nominated for both council and the reeveship, also made a reference to the matter. "I wouldn't like to see the blame on any one member; the resolution was passed unanimously. To place the blame on one member would not be quite fair."

Even though he may be opposing the reeve, Mr. Scott said Mr. Humphries "is still doing a good job." He quoted the reeve as saying he would drop out if anyone else wanted to run for the post "but I wouldn't like to be the one to boost him out."

One of five proposed candidates for council made what might be construed as a comment on the dump question. Bruce Graham, a member from last election, said he would be ready to "stand behind anything we've done in the last six years."

Carman Metcalfe, who replaced James Beamish in the council, made no reference to the affair at all, but Walter Middlebrook commented: "We've taken criticism, dirt and slander this year . . . but serving you has been a pleasure."

Both Mr. Middlebrook and Mr. Scott are also veterans on the council.



Arnold Stevenson, a newcomer to the election scene, said "council did what they thought best in fighting for the dump."

Mr. Stevenson spoke very briefly. His actions before qualification period concludes at nine o'clock tonight will depend on whether Mr. Scott runs for council or as reeve, he implied.

Asked if he would again run for the top council post he has held for 10 straight years, Mr. Humphries wouldn't say yes or no; only, "I'm going to talk it over with Mr. Scott."

The polls open at nine and close at five o'clock January 4. Candidates can withdraw their names or fail to qualify before nine o'clock tonight.

RETURNED TO OFFICE were Roland Tedford (left) who will start his fifth consecutive term as reeve of Douro and Loyola Moloney who will serve again as deputy reeve in the township in 1954. The whole Douro council was returned by acclamation Monday at a nomination meeting.

MORE ABOUT—

Smith Council

Deputy-Reeve, Robert McAdam, proposed by R. J. Tully and M. Moncrieff; (Mr. McAdam was proposed for reeve by George Tindle and Howard Clark but he indicated that he wouldn't contest the reeveship).

Three councillors—Allan B. Mann, proposed by Ross Harrison and Ernest Scott; Charles Ireland, by David Traynor and Mel Crapp; and Howard Beavis, by W. J. Rollins and Ross Wiles.

Two trustees—Henry Sharpe, proposed by W. E. Mann and Bruce Heard; and Fred Anderson, by Bruce Heard and W. C. Mann.

Mr. Edmison was chairman during the ratepayers' meeting.

JOINT EFFORT

Reeve Fitzgerald highlighted some of county council's work, including the paving of the 12½-mile Buckhorn road. This project, long advocated by Smith residents was completed at the end of the summer with the city, county, suburban area roads commission and department of highways making it a joint effort.

"We lost quiute a bit of assessment," said Mr. Fitzgerald (referring to the annexation), "but the way building is going on in Smith it won't be long till we're back where we were . . . before we lost the $400,000 in assessment."

Mr. Fitzgerald gave some of the larger items of expenditures on roads and then made his welcome hint that the tax rate may be lowered next year because of this year's surplus.

Mr. McAdam said he thought this year that all the county council's committees would be in the black. "Rather good business," was his comment. He also told of the extensive repairs and renovations this year at the County Old People's Home near Lakefield.

Because of the cut in the departmental appropriation, $6,000 less was spent on township roads this year than last.

"There was very little construction. We tried to maintain them as good as we could . . . I think you can agree with me they're in good shape."

20 YEARS IN POLITICS

Mr. Fitzgerald is a vereran of more than 20 years in municipal politics. He has now been returned for his third consecutive year; previously he was deputy-reeve for two years. And he has held a number of appointive posts at one time or another in the township.

Mr. McAdam is beginning his third consecutive year as deputy-reeve. Previously he was a councillor.

Messrs. Ireland, Beavis and Mann are 1953 councillors, Mr. Ireland finishing up his first term of office.

Messrs. Sharpe, Heard and Anderson are also finishing up a term of office.

Mr. Beavis, returned on council, said a word of praise should be extended to Reeve Fitzgerald and Deputy-Reeve McAdam for getting the Buckhorn road completed.

"It was a job pretty badly needed and it was very well done," he said. "You're getting a good road up north."

Mr. Ireland said he was just completing his first term and still felt he had quite a bit to learn of council work.

Mr. Mann gave the ratepayers a breakdown of where the money of Smith tax roll goes.

The total tax roll in 1953 amounted to $148,280, he said. The county gets $45,000; education (public, separate and secondary schools) get $58,000; $15,000 goes for debentures and interest; $13,000 for township roads (matched by the provincial government)—leaving "very little" left for the township to spend on other items.

BOUGHT GRAVEL PITS

Mr. Mann said he thought it was good business for the township to buy three gravel pits this year. The supply of pits is being bought up rapidly.

Mr. Sharpe, a trustee, said that the trustees were trying to keep costs down to a minimum. But whether taxes were up or down the schools must be maintained. He added a personal opinion: that farm lands were over-assessed and small holdings under-assessed; the result was that the people with small holdings are not paying their share of taxes.

Mr. Heard, another trustee, said: "We're doing our best and we feel we are keeping expenses reasonably low."

He said that teachers' salaries are a big item in the educational bill but Smith township wanted the best of teachers for the schools and the schools should be kept up to date.

Elmer Milburn, of the Peterborough High School District board, pointed out that they buy their education from Peterborough and are mainly concerned with hiring buses and laying out bus routes for student transportation.

The cost of transportation in 1953 was $23,894, he said, and the department of education gives a 65 per cent subsidy on this.

At present education is $1.60 a day for each academic student, and $1.70 for each vocational student. Salaries and costs are up and he said that preliminary estimate points to vocational daily costs rising four cents and academic 50 cents.

BALANCE OF $7,698

Wellie Pearson, Smith representative on the Lakefield High School District board, said they hoped to wind up the year with a balance of $7,698.

To operate the new school for a year costs $84,773. The transportation bill alone: $26,982.

There are now 199 district pupils going to the Lakefield high school and another 32 to the one in Apsley.

"If you want to know what it's costing," he said, "just divide 231 (the number of pupils) into $84,773 (year's bill for running the school).

Total cost of the Lakefield high school is $330,000, he said. This includes $276,500 for the building, $47,500 for equipping and furnishing, and $6,000 for the site.

The only critic Monday was Erie Pearson who heard all the complimentary things that were said about council and the Buckhorn road. His comment: "It wasn't a perfect job . . . there is a washboard effect . . . and it's too bad to leave the road in that condition."

He attributed the "washboard effect" to the use of too heavy a roller on the mulch.

Union Voting On Proposal

PRINCE GEORGE, B. C. (CP)—Members of the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL) began voting Monday on acceptance or rejection of a royal commission's proposal for ending the strike that has tied up the northern interior British Columbia lumbering industry for three months.

Result of the referendum ballot among the 1,486 union members is expected to be known by New Year's Eve. The strike has left idle about 5,000 workers in the lumbering and allied trades.

Judge A. E. Lord, named by the B. C. government to seek a resolution to the dispute, recommended a 5½-cent hourly wage increase and reduction of the holiday qualifying time.

The union's policy committee has expressed "bitter disappointment" with the recommendations. The union wants an 18-cent-an-hour boost. The workers now get $1.29½ an hour.

WITH THE SLEIGH BELLS

Much of the music of Christmas, and the merriness, are already fading into echoes over the hills—the nine drummers drumming, the 10 pipers piping, the eleven ladies dancing and even the twelve lords aleaping, all of that phantasy, capped with the partridge in a pear tree. All the romantic ideas that crowd the Yule stage, even to the figures on the greeting cards, especially those stagecoach men and their horns, they have gone with the dream, dissolving into the realities of life and winter.

Past Tears

A two-year-old who was getting her first good look at Christmas this year was quite concerned when she saw her father start to clean the turkey. As the bird was losing its original stuffing, the youngster stepped up to it, patted and kissed it and said, "Don't cry turkey. Don't cry."

Owner Gone For Supper, Store Robbed

While the proprietor was out for supper Monday night a sneak thief broke into the Sanderson general store in Janetville and stole $80 in cash and five rings. Janetville is 12 miles southwest of Lindsay.

The thief waited until Mrs. William Sanderson left the general store, about 6 p.m., then broke a rear cellar window and got into the building. He opened the till, taking the money inside, and located a cash box below the counter that contained more money and the five rings.

Mrs. Sanderson said that none of the rings was of very much money value; they were keepsakes that she hated to lose. They included an opal, onyx ring with a pearl and bloodstone, signet and emblem rings.

Mrs. Sanderson returned to the store about 7 p.m. after eating supper at her home in the village, some distance away. She didn't notice the theft for 15 minutes or so.

Later the smashed rear cellar window was found by Mrs. Sanderson.

Bowmanville OPP are investigating.

City Police Department To Buy Third Cruiser

The Peterborough city police force is to have one more patrol cruiser next year, thereby increasing its fleet of cars to three. This was decided by the police commission at a meeting Monday.

Following a suggestion by Chief John Thompson the commission also decided to have the radio unit transferred from the patrol wagon to the third cruiser, so that all cars will have radio contact with the station.

Tenders to equip the force with three new cars, with the present two traded in, were received from three local car representatives. The commission accepted a tender by Williamson Bros. Motors Ltd. which promised delivery about the middle of Jarnuary at a total cost of $3,260.00.

Inspector, Chief Complete Investigation

Inspector D. H. Craig of the fire marshal's office, Toronto, and Fire Chief William Sorrie have completed their investigation of the fire early Saturday afternoon in Immaculate Conception church, Rogers St.

They believe they have found the cause of the fire, but as it is in the hands of the fire marshal's department they aren't releasing the information. There is some difference of opinion of the amount of damage and that too is not available.

Totalling up damage in a church —particularly the amount caused by smoke—is always difficult, Chief Sorrie said.

Inspector Craig would only confirm one thing: "The fire definitely didn't start in the furnace room. It started on the stage in the basement near the piano."

The veteran inspector also praised the local fire department for their work in checking the spread of the fire.

"They did an excellent job . . . They held it well."

Canadian Jet Plane Crashes, Pilot Safe

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—A Canadian F-86 Sabre jet fighter stationed in Germany crashed Monday night at Beauvechain, about 20 miles east of here.

The pilot parachuted to safety but broke his ankle on landing. His name was withheld.

May Reduce Assessments 50% On VLA Properties

A general problem arising at the initial Court of Revision hearings Monday night, was the question of assessment of land purchased under the Veterans' Land Act.

According to stipulations in the Act, from 1946 on, veterans purchasing land under the scheme were required to buy a minimum of between two and three acres, depending on the value of the land. (Previous to 1946 the minimum was half an acre).

The act requires the owners to retain all the land during the amortization period of 10 years or sell the entire parcel. They cannot rent or sell any portion of the lot, but they may sell any farm produce raised upon it, or, if they can afford to, they may build other dwellings on the land and rent them. (The second possibility has never occurred in this district).

When Peterborough annexed a portion of Smith township this year, upwards of 30 Veterans' Land Act small holdings were brought into the city with a resultant high increase in assessment value. In some instances the excess land not used for a building site or grounds was unsuitable for cultivation.

MADE APPEAL

Not being able to sell or rent these portions, nor financially capable of building on them, these property owners appealed these high assessments.

John Barnes, 729 Frank St., told the court that they (VLA owners) had no say in the annexation. "We were rushed into the city on a Russian basis . . . no ballots. Some of us are paying four and a half times as much with an increase of 154 per cent above last year's assessment."

William A. (Bud) Clarke, Hartley Ave., said that he worked for the city and realized that the city needed money to pay its employees "but I don't like the idea of paying most of mine myself."

In each case concerning VLA property, assessment commissioner J. E. Davis recommended that the assesment on all the property, including the building site, be reduced 50 per cent.

Each of the four appealing parties to appear Monday night were content with this revision.

Parked Car Damaged By Hit-Run Driver

A hit-and-run motorist caused $55 damage to a parked car on Monaghan Rd. Monday. Owner Roy W. Knight, RR 6, Peterborough, found his vehicle with the left front fender damaged and hub cap missing. Police are investigating.

A bicycle ridden by Allen Tyrell, 445 Rogers St., and a car driven by Dr. R. McGee, 597 Weller St., collided at Stewart and Hunter streets. The cyclist was not injured and no damage to either vehicles was reported.

On Brioux Ave., a car driven by Christopher Cummisky, 541 Brioux Ave., came into collision with a parked vehicle owned by Jack Ridyard, 564 Brioux Ave. Total damage to both cars was $50.

Slight damage was sustained by two cars which collided at Charlotte St. and Clonsilla Ave. Drivers were Alan T. Wright, King St. and Willis Rutherford, 342½ George St., Monday.

Former City Resident James Hill, 82, Dies

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — James Hill, 82, a former mayor of Mitchell and warden of Perth county, died in hospital here Monday night.

He worked in Peterborough but returned to Mitchell to found the Mitchell Bridge Works. He retired in 1930.

His first election to council was in 1908; he became reeve in 1911 and warden in 1912. In 1920 he was elected mayor. During the Second World War he superintended construction at the government-owned Polymer synthetic rubber plant at Sarnia.

At Stratford during Perth centennial celebrations he was honored as the county's oldest warden.

Telephone Calls At Christmas Hit Record 3,139

Long distance telephone calls from Peterborough on New Year's Day are usually reckoned at the Bell office as something more than average. Supplementary staff is required but is only a fraction of the number of operators called in at Christmas.

The Christmas business was "the heaviest we have ever had in long distance calls out of Peterborough," W. Lettau told the Examiner. The total number last year was 2,833, and this year 3,139 as compared with the estimate of 3,075.

Another estimate in anticipation of Christmas was 57 operators. Actually 60 were needed and many of them had to work overtime.

The most unusual enquiry here was a proposed connection with India, but "the overseas lines were plugged tight." Two radio channels across the Atlantic were booked for all the business they could carry. The radio messages are transferred in Scotland to cable, proceeding by wire to the continent, and continuing easterly by the same medium.

Lines in the United States are also working at their peak on Christmas, so that there is more or less blockage all over this continent.

NEW RED PATCH PREXY

Michael Gahagan on Monday night was elected president of the Red Patch Club for 1954. He succeeds Bruce Rollins. It was the annual meeting and election of officers Monday night.

ASPHODEL REEVE NOMINEES at Monday's nomination meeting in the township hall at Westwood were James Humphries, present reeve and veteran of 10 campaigns, and Max Scott, township councillor. The race for the seat is a little uncertain because Mr. Humphries has been contemplating retirement and Mr. Scott has also been nominated for the council again. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Residents Appeal Classification In Revision Court

The first session of the Court of Revision on the 1954 city assessment was deluged by complaints from McGill St., property owners. Almost 25 per cent of the appeals, 14 out of the 59 considered Monday night, were entered by McGill St., inhabitants. The general protest consisted in the fact that McGill St., was not a class 'A' residential section, although properties situated on that street had been assessed as such. The court reserved judgment on every case in respect to this general protest, although it did confirm individual re-assessments recommended by assessment commissioner, J. E. Davis. These particular re-assessments concerned evaluation and area errors, all having been re-checked by assessment officers.

William H. Andrews was the first McGill St. representative to make an appeal. He was accompanied by William Lanouette who declared himself spokesman for some 58 parties on that street.

"We feel that we (property owners on McGill St.,) have been heavily over-assessed", said Mr. Lanouette. "The main reason for this is the Exhibition grounds and all the things connected with it. Excessive noises due to public address systems and car races . . . dirt, dust and manure . . . smoke from burning refuse . . . parking . . . stable odors and swarms of flies . . . water in the Spring flowing from the grounds (Exhibition) . . ."

Chairman John A. Harstone asked Mr. Lanouette if any of the residents had sent a written complaint to city council concerning the matter.

"No," answered Mr. Lanouette, "but I personally phoned Ald. Doug Miller about it . . . but nothing ever came of it."

Court member Thomas Ephgrave suggested that the matter should be referred to the Board of Health or some such department. Chairman Harstone said that the evidence given by Mr. Lanouette was not sufficient and requested that more McGill St., representatives should testify.

During the evening, thirteen more did, and each with a similar list of complaints.

John Branson, 300 McGill St., who runs a machine shop there, complained that when any event of interest was going on within the grounds, groups of children would climb onto the flat roof of his shop to watch. Much damage was done, and occasionally he was forced to phone the police to remove the cause.

"Another thing which I think should lower our classification", said Mr. Branson, "is the fact that we have no paved sidewalks approaching our street".

(It was learned upon consulting an official map that there are no paved sidewalks from Lansdowne to McGill on Park St., and only one within the same limits on Lock St.)

Robert Cole, 233 McGill claimed that the sanitary conditions immediately opposite his house are "deplorable". "The odor from the barns actually penetrates the house at times. An old wooden fence with buildings at each end present a constant fire trap," he said. (This fence marks the southern boundary of the Exhibition grounds.)

After hearing essentially the same testimony from every McGill St., representative, chairman Harstone said that the court would certainly have to make further investigations. The court agreed that judgment should be reserved until all the claims had been heard and requested sufficient time for consideration.

Mayor Enquires Into Winter Use Of Horse Barns

Mayor Waddell began this morning an enquiry into the use of the race horse barn at Exhibition Park for winter stabling which was one of the complaints presented to the Court of Revision Monday night in appeals by McGill St. property owners against their 1954 assessments.

McGill St. residents allege in their context that the barn at the southwest corner of the Exhibition grounds, and close to Park St., has been converted into winter use for housing an unstated number of horses. They say that the footing of the barn have been banked with manure, that it is a neighborhood nuisance affecting the value of their properties, and finally that their assessments should not be increased.

Mayor Waddell called in Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH, to ask him what information his department had obtained about the horse barn.

Noise, dust, flies, smells are the main details of the protests which were rather vigorously outlined to the Court of Revision.

Discussion today reached out to the Exhibition Board, at least with the proposal that its executive should ask for information about the circumstances of granting permission for stabling of race horses in the Park, and particularly in the building on the Park St. front.

STEWART'S HORSES

General reports have indicated that Hugh Stewart had arranged to house some of his horses in the premises, a temporary arrangement until other permanent quarters could be obtained. Mr. Stewart dispersed his stable of racers early this year, but it was stated that he was building up a new herd of horses, that the barn was used most of the year by horsemen who worked out their oat-burners on the good half mile track, and that there was no departure from the general use of the building.

The McGill St. people are objecting to the barn as a permanent nuisance, no more at present than during the rest of the year. It is expected that information will be forthcoming from both Dr. Wells and the Exhibition authorities.

One comment heard today was to the effect that official reference was made to the horse barn a month or two ago.

WOLF INVADES CITY—This 60-pound female brush wolf came crashing through the cellar window of the home of Percy Benson in Toronto's East York. Roy Greer, from the Humane Society, holds the wolf, captured alive and turned over to the zoo. Officials believe the animal came into the thickly settled suburb in search of food and smelled the remains of a turkey dinner on the back porch. Frightened by a dog it leaped through the window.

Sure Great Lakes Treaty Can Be Made With Canada

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Charles E. Potter (Rep. Mich.) expressed confidence Monday that Canada and the United States can agree on a treaty to restrict trade between Great Lakes ports to vessels of the two countries.

The proposed treaty would not affect trade between Canadian and United States ports and those of other countries. It would apply only to vessels in the Canadian-U. S. trade.

Potter first discussed the matter with President Eisenhower last week. He talked at the White House Monday with Bernard Shanley, special counsel to the president, and representatives of the state, defence and commerce departments, the maritime commission and the budget bureau.

In a statement Potter asserted it is "imperative that only American and Canadian vessels should be permitted to engage in the transportation of goods by water between the United States and Canada."

Maintenance of U. S. and Canadian merchant fleets, Potter continued, "is essential to the national defence and internal security of both nations.

"We cannot afford to rely on foreign ships to support this trade. We know from experience that these vessels would have to be removed from these waters in time of war, and therefore, would not be available to prosecute this defence effort which is so important to our countries."

Potter added that "because of existing treaties which permit foreign operators to gain certain tax exemptions, these companies have gained a substantial competitive margin over American merchantmen.

"This is not only an incongruous situation but hazardous in many respects to the security of our national defence."

Potter plans to introduce a resolution next month under which Congress would urge the president to negotiate the proposed treaty with Canada.

He came to British Columbia from Winnipeg.

Prudent Administration Spared Italy Disasters Of Inflation

By JOHN CAIRNCROSS

ROME (OFNS)—It is one of the proudest boasts of many Italians that prudent administration has spared their country the disasters of inflation since the war. Even so, prices have risen by a fifth since 1948 and recent increases in railway fares and in controlled rents have pushed up the cost of living. The official figures show that wages have risen at least in proportion, but they are still not by any means high. Twenty-five pounds a month (seventy U.S. dollars) is regarded as a fairly good pay packet. Whatever the rights and wrongs of the matter, there is no doubt of the strength of the present move for increases in the wages of workers, peasants and civil servants. These latter, by the way, include teachers and railway workers, and number about a million and a half in all. Over half the State budget goes in paying their salaries.

On December 11, the civil servants and Public services such as the post office staged a one-day token strike. Four days later, the industrial workers followed suit. Next it will be the turn of the peasants. The strikes staged so far were by no means complete. The railway strike was probably the most effective, as I can testify from having been compelled to spend the night in a wagon-lit in Milan station and the following fifteen hours in an army-manned train travelling south to Rome. (The journey should take eight hours at most.)

ABUSED BY BOTH SIDES

But the important point was not the success or failure of the strikes, but the fact that both the Communist and the Catholic trade unions took part in them, although, technically speaking, the latter form part of the same Christian Democrat Party as the present government. The Pella government has done what it can to break the deadlock between workers and employers, and has suffered the usual fate of mediators, to be abused by both sides. The employers' annoyance has been heightened by the government's refusal to expel the workers who occupied the Pignone foundry at Florence. The Communists, who are the driving force behind the strikes, can pride themselves on having, by concentrating on the purely breadj-and-butter issues and adopting flexible "Popular Front" tactics, driven a wedge through the opposing wings of the Christian Democrat Party. The consequences of the strikes can be as serious economically as politically. Italy is at present running a foreign trade deficit of over one million pounds a day, and though most of this is made up of "invisibles" such as tourism and by American aid, it is clear that the country is living beyond its resources. On the home front, Italy has a regular budget deficit of two hundred million pounds and, in spite of stringent cuts ordered by the economy-minded prime minister, it is not likely to be lower next year. A strike of any length or a sizeable round of wage increases would be enough to upset the present precarious balance.

RELY ON MONARCHISTS

Nor is the economic problem the only one to be faced by Signor Pella. If the Trieste dispute is dormant for the moment and Italy can still stall on ratification of the European Defence Community, the government is far from having secured a stable majority in parliament. The previous prime minister, Signor Alcide de Gasperi, was the man of the Centre Coalition. Pella has tended to rely on the Monarchists and the tacit support of the Fascists.

The "Old Guard" of the Christian Democrat Party has never been very happy about the situation and recently they have put up Signor Mario Scelba, who was De Gasperi's minister of internal affairs, to fly a kite in favor of the reconstitution of the old Centre block. Signor Scelba's speech was frigidly received all round. The small Centre Parties, such as the moderate Socialists led by Signor Saragat, are inclined to band together in order to draw the government away from the Right, but are afraid of being swallowed by the Christian Democrats if they join them in forming a government.

Signor Pella is therefore obliged to continue his political tight-rope performance, and there is at present no alternative to his administration except one based on a Left-wing Coalition.

Otherwise, the situation grows, if anything, more fluid from week to week. The Italian political scene resembles nothing so much as a rapid war of movement in which the guerillas of the Right and the Left carry out repeated and successful raids on what is left of the old Centre.

OVER WITHOUT A DRIVER—Suspended by a guard rail, this new model car owned by H. J. Buys, of Toronto, is shown after it came to rest over a bridge near Oakville, with its front wheels resting on the ice of a creek. Mr. Buys wasn't in the car when the accident occurred but was discussing a minor accident with another motorist when a third car came along and pushed Buys' car over the bridge.

Believes Administrators Should Read Campus Papers

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. C. T. Bissell, vice-president of the University of Toronto, told the 16th annual conference of The Canadian University Press that campus administrators should make it their duty to read their undergraduate newspapers.

Speaking to editors of 23 college papers, Dr. Bissell said Monday that only in campus publications will you find the voices of the students frequently raised in sharp criticism of the policy and activities of those in authority.

He said it was more important in university papers than in a big daily, especially since "we pride ourselves in turning out critical students who do not take everything for granted."

FAVORS EXCHANGE

The opening session was under the chairmanship of The Gazette, University of western Ontario's newspaper, whose editors moved a motion favoring an exchange of information with the news bureaux of the Communist-dominated International students Union and Western European papers. The motion was passed unanimously.

The Varsity, University of Toronto paper, is host this year. The editors represent college papers in every province except Prince Edward Island, whose publication was not considered large enough to join.

Pleads Guilty To Gaming House

TORONTO (CP)—William Dominic Simone pleaded guilty Monday to keeping a common gaming house in North York Dec. 15, when 126 found-ins were arrested in a police raid.

Simone was remanded to Jan. 8 for judgment on request of his counsel, W. E. MacDonald, who said he wanted a chance to prove illegal dice played no part in the game.

Police said a pair of dice was found in Simone's right sock, with one cube having two threes and no four on its face, and the other two fours and no three.

One found-in, Edward Miller, pleaded guilty and was fined $10 because he had several similar convictions. Those who had no previous convictions were fined $50.

Expect Pressure Bring Troops Out Of Korea

OTTAWA (CP)—Every day the Korean armistice continues brings Canadian forces there that much closer to home, officials here said.

They said the United States has set a precedent for other United Nations members which may want to withdraw troops from Korea.

Canada has no immediate plan to withdraw its army brigade and three destroyers from the Korean theatre, but these sources said it is only a question of time until they are brought home, providing the truce can be maintained.

EXPECT PRESSURE

They predicted that withdrawal of two U.S. divisions from Korea, announced by President Eisenhower Saturday, will result in public pressure on the governments of other participating countries to bring their troops home.

As the armistice in Korea continues, this pressure will get stronger. And Canada has never intended to leave its forces there indefinitely.

New Shipment Of Russ Gold

LONDON (AP)—A special plane brought into London Monday night another shipment of "hammer and sickle" gold bars valued at $4,200,000. Official sources disclosed last week that Russia has secretly flown $65,000,000 in gold into Britain this winter.

The latest consignment was taken in closed trucks from the airport to the London branch of the Soviet state bank.

This is the fourth Soviet gold shipment this winter. Financial sources said the gold is being bought by the Bank of England in sterling.

The Russians want to sell, these sources said, to help finance Prime Minister Malenkov's drive to step up the living standard of Russians by boosting imports of consumer goods.

This is the first gold deal between Britain and Russia central banks since 1936.

Child 5, Found Dead By Register

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. A. R. Routledge, coroner, said that an investigation will be held into the death of five-year-old Wayne Marshall Finlay who was found lying against a hot-air register Monday.

His father, Cpl. Harold W. Finlay of the Army Service Corps, said the child apparently slid out of his low bed to the register. The family of five moved here recently from Baden.

Dr. Routledge said a post mortem failed to disclose cause of death but he expected to find natural causes. An answer is expected in about 10 days.

The child's hand and forearm were burned from the hot-air register.

Sentenced For Fraud

TORONTO (CP)—Harry Girdler, 50, Monday was sentenced to 12 months for defrauding the Ontario hydro-electric power commission of $3,275 while doing electrical conversion work during 1953. He pleaded guilty. Police said Girdler did contract work for persons moving from 25-cycle to 60-cycle areas. In several cases bills were turned in but no work was done.

Red Cross Girls Help With Christmas

OTTAWA (CP)—It was a merry Christmas and a busy one for Canadians serving in Korea this year—especially for the four Red Cross girls who danced with more than 100 soldiers at the men's canteen behind the lines.

Army headquarters, discussing the holiday festivities of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, said that after the girls finished dancing with the soldiers in the canteen they visited other men on duty in the line.

Besides the dancing, and religious services, soldiers found enough time to put on Christmas parties for four Korean orphanages and to present a gift to each of about 750 young orphans.

Egypt Serious On Neutrality

CAIRO (Reuters) — Aneurin Bevan, left - wing Welsh Labor leader, said after talks with Egyptian leaders Monday that "Egypt is very serious about declaring a policy of neutrality in the East-West cold war."

The government of President Mohamed Naguib has reached an advanced stage in its plans for such a policy should talks with Britain on the future of the Suez canal base fail to reach agreement, Bevan added.

Bevan, who arrived here Sunday night for a four-day visit, said he would welcome such a development as an enlargement of a third area in the world political pattern. He called it "an increase in the number of foot-loose nations."

But Bevan said he got the impression that the Egyptian government is "too weak" to take such decisive action though he could see little possibility of fruitful negotiations on the canal dispute in the foreseeable future.

Arrange Bus Tour See Yule Decorations

WINNIPEG (CP)—For 50 cents you can see the Christmas lights in Winnipeg on a mid-winter bus tour.

The Greater Winnipeg Transit Company launched the idea to let people see Christmas displays in several residential areas which have been described as the best in history. Officials said thy expected two or three busloads.

Nearly 2,000 took the trip during the week-end. Officials dispatched 23 buses Saturday night, 22 Sunday night, and now are planning to continue the trips every night this week.

Policemen Promoted

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Three provincial police officers of the Niagara Falls detachment have been promoted from constable to corporal. They are Harry Bent, Leonard G. Chambers and W. H. Gould.

WOMAN MLA — Mrs. John Lyle Robinson, 53, widow of Alberta's former labor minister, has succeeded her husband as Social Credit member of the province's legislature for Medicine Hat, less than two months after his death. For 18 years prior to her marriage Mrs. Robinson was a commercial telegrapher for the Canadian Pacific Railway. Born at Fort MacLeod, Alta., May 28, 1900, she married Dr. Robinson in 1936. She piled up a 4-1 majority in a light vote in the Medicine Hat by-election.

ELECTRONIC AGE-COMPUTER — University of Manitoba researchers have developed a new method for dating of archaeological and human remains as far back as 40,000 years. Complex electronic apparatus tells the age of any carbon-bearing matter —human bones, fossils and vegetation— within 10 years of actual existence on earth. Dr. R. W. Pringle (right), newly-appointed head of the physics department, with an assistant, Bill Turchinetz, are in the laboratory with some of the equipment.

New Year's Celebrations Costing $100 In Toronto

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some partying Canadians will spend more than $100 each on New Year's Eve celebrations, but most revellers will settle for a cheaper evening in a friend's home.

A Canadian Press survey shows that cost of the biggest celebrations across the country, including taxis, food and drinks, ranges from $20 a couple in St. John's, Nfld., to $100 in Toronto.

"You can spend $100 here as easily as rolling off a log," said a manager of a Toronto night club which caters to business executives. The club's New Year's party cover charge is $25 a couple but the cost comes in the extras — three bottles of imported champagne rate a $50 tab.

WIDE PRICE RANGE

In between the St. John's-Toronto cost figures are: Vancouver, $40 a couple; Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Ottawa and Saint John, N. B., $30; Halifax, $25. There are no cost estimates from Montreal where a 10 p. m. provincial curfew will close night clubs at 10 p. m. and shunt celebrations into private homes.

The majority of Canadians will bring in the New Year on a much less lavish scale. Many plan to attend midnight movies and others across the country wil go to house parties and drink nothing stronger than ginger ale.

In Vancouver, prices of New Year's Eve entertainment range from $4 to $15 a couple. Some places serve a turkey dinner; others have only dancing.

Two big hotels in Vancouver were booked early for 1,400 persons, mostly young. Older couples prefer house parties.

In the Prairie cities, hotels serve supper at New Year's dances for about $15 a couple.

INTERNATIONAL FLAVOR

The big spenders in Manitoba are expected to go to Minneapolis or St. Paul in the United States for their celebration.

Toronto night spots expect scores from the United States. One reports reservations from as far away as Calgary. The Royal York Hotel, which is accepting reservations from 450 couples, has some booked from Mexico.

Sample delicacies from the Royal York's 10-course menu: oysters on the half shell, eggs stuffed with caviar, sea turtle soup, sweetbreads, and roast pheasant. Cost is $35 a couple for food only.

MOSTLY HOUSE PARTIES

In Ottawa, most persons celebrate at house parties but the Chateau Laurier has a dinner and dance at $16 a couple. Tickets have been sold out for days. Drinking spots in Hull, Que., across the Ottawa river are closing at 9 p. m., under a Quebec curfew law.

Montreal night clubs, long considered Canada's loveliest, will be quiet because of the curfew.

In the Maritimes, prices for hotel dances range from $10 at St. John's, Nfld., to $13 at Saint John. Midnight movies and house parties are favorites in Maritime centres.

Would Curb Opinions In Editorials

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Opposition to personal opinion in editorials featured debate in the Ontario Older Boy's Parliament Monday.

The government proposed to make The New Citizen, a publication of the boys' work board, the official voice of the parliament.

John Burbidge, opposition member from Victoria College, University of Toronto, moved an amendment to disallow personal opinion in New Citizen editorials. He said editorials should express the opnion of the parliament as a whole.

NOT NECESSARY

Members voted the amendment down as unnecessary. Minister of publications and automatically editor of the magazine this year is John Hilborn of Brantford.

Four girls dropped in to pick up ideas from the all-boy parliament. Members of the Canadian Girls in Training, they were Joyce Parliamen of Markdale, provincial president; Mamie Yamasaki of Toronto, Sharon McKnight of Ottawa and Nancy Gray of St. Catharines.

The 100 members of parliament represent some 6,000 boys organized in Protestant church groups in Ontario.

Approve Sale To Chrysler

DETROIT (AP)—Stockholders of Monday approved sales of Briggs' seven auto body and aircraft parts plants to Chrysler Corporation for $35,000,000.

The vote was 1,347,932 shares for the sale and 10,757 against. The shares are held by approximately 19,000 individuals.

Chrysler Corporation announced that the sale will be consumated today.

Chrysler also has committed itself to purchase all Briggs' aircraft parts and body-making inventories. They amounted to around $40,000,000 a year ago, but there was no immediate indication of their value. Chrysler long has been Briggs' largest customer, and Briggs has employed around 30,000 in its body and aircraft parts plants.

Recount Confirms Vote

WELLAND (P) — A recount Monday confirmed the election of Allan Pietz as deputy reeve of suburban Rowland township. It increased his margin over Michael Perenack in the Dec. 7 municipal election to 28 votes from 16. Recount figures were Pietz 1,469 and Perenack 1,441.

Charge Withdrawn

TORONTO (CP)—A charge of wounding against Thomas McDermott, 26, was withdrawn Monday. He was charged after a fight in a schoolyard earlier this month in which another man lost most of his teeth.

Boxer In Canada Illegally Gives Up To Authorities

MONTREAL (CP)—A 23-year-old Belgian boxer who entered Canada illegally two months ago has given himself up to immigration authorities so that he may return to Europe and make proper application for Canadian citizenship.

Detained at the Montreal headquarters of the immigration department, former welterweight fighter Sill Fonti told reporters Monday of travelling more than 12,000 miles, mostly on foot, through Mexico, the United States and Canada in seven months trying to get back to Belgium.

Fonti said he left Antwerp in the summer for Guatemala aboard the Norwegian freighter Mafalda. At sea he learned by cable from his mother that a brother had been granted legal entry into Canada.

HOPED TO DO SAME

"That is the way I wanted it and I decided to return to Europe and apply. My brother received permission after only two months and I hoped to be able to do the same," Fonti said.

From Guatemala, he added, he travelled through Mexico to U.S. eastern sea ports looking for work on a ship. He failed to find anything and hitch-hiked across country to Seattle from where he entered Canada.

Fonti made his way to Montreal but again failed to get work. After two days here he gave himself up.

Visitors Crowding Hotel To Watch Statue Bleed

ENTREVAUX, France (Reuters) Visitors crowded an Entrevaux hotel Monday night to see a wooden statue of Saint Anne which eyewitnesses claim bleeds when damaged.

Jean Salade, 40, manager of the hotel in this little town 40 miles from Nice, bought the statute at an auction for the equivalent $3.50. It stands four-feet high and is about 200 years old.

Salade stood the statue on the floor of the hotel dining room while waiting to decide the best place to put it. Playing cards with some friends Sunday he pushed back his chair in an argument and broke a finger off the statue.

Monday morning Salade was astonished to see a drop of red liquid form and drop from the broken stump of the finger followed by another.

30 WATCH PHENOMENON

He called neighbors, about 30 of whom witnessed the phenomenon. Drops fell at the rate of one a minute for half an hour.

Dr. Jean-Louis Monner, a local physician, collected some of the drops and took them to a chemist in the neighboring town of Puget-Theniers. The chemist, Paul Warin, made tests and reported that the liquid appeared to be human blood.

The parish priest, 83-year-old Father Dexdier, was not able to investigate as he is ill. Church authorities so far decline to comment.

Jacobs Remanded

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — William Jacobs, 32, of nearby Port Weller Monday was remanded to Jan. 4 on a charge of murder in the Christmas eve bludgeon death of his 72-year-old landlord. Police said the blood-spattered body of Alfred Hendrea was found in a small cottage behind an apartment where Jacobs lived with his wife and five children. A crowbar was found on the floor near the body.

TRIPLETS FOR CHRISTMAS—Mrs. R. J. Cousens, of Winnipeg, celebrates Christmas with the birth of triplets—her first children—in a Winnipeg hospital. The babies, two girls and a boy, weighed five pounds, five pounds six ounces, and six pounds two ounces.

Navy Makes Big Strides In Program During 1953

OTTAWA (CP)—The navy today looked back on 1953 with some pride and in a review listed several "firsts" among its achievements.

The Prestonian, Toronto and Lauzon were the first of 16 frigates to be rebuilt and re-equipped.

The first naval torpedo to be manufactured in Canada was delivered to the navy at Hamilton. The current defence program includes torpedo contracts worth $40,000,000.

The Algonquin was commissioned in February as the first of the navy's 14 new anti-submarine destroyer escorts.

RESERVE AIR SQUADRONS

The first naval reserve air squadron was formed at Toronto and before the end of the year there were two more, at Kingston, Ont., and Victoria.

The navy placed its first order for all-weather jet fighters. The American-built Banshees will not be flown from the aircraft carrier Magnificent but from the new flat-top Bonaventure when she is ready around the end of 1956.

A separate command to administer the reserve was established at Hamilton.

Naval strength reached a new peacetime high in 1953—16,887 officers, men and wrens on full-time naval duty. The target is 21,000 by the end of 1954.

VETERANS OF KOREA

More than 3,500 sailors are veterans of the Korean war. Despite the armistice, Canada still maintains three destroyers in Korea. The Athabaskan has completed three full tours, or 34½ months, since the navy joined Korean operations in July, 1950.

The destroyers Huron, Crusader and Iroquois now are serving in the Far East. Iroquois will be relieved next month by Cayuga and Huron will be succeeded by Haida early in February.

The navy said in its year-end review that not only did it have more men and ships than at any time since wartime forces were demobilized, but there was "an evident increase in experience and efficiency."

There are 42 ships in commission — an aircraft carrier, two cruisers, eight destroyers, one destroyer escort, five frigates, four minesweepers, five coastal escorts and 16 miscellaneous craft. The minesweepers are the first of 14 due for completion next summer. Six of them will go to France under the North Atlantic Alliance's mutual aid agreement.

MODERNIZATION PROGRAM

The navy also has 56 ships in reserve. Twenty have been modernized and most of the others are in varying stages of modernization.

Five Canadian ships took part in "Operation Mariner," largest maritime manoeuvres ever conducted by NATO. The five were the Magnificent, cruiser Quebec, destroyer escort Algonquin and frigates Swansea and La Hulloise.

Six ships—Magnificent, cruisers Sioux and the Swansea and La Hulloise—represented Canada at the Coronation naval review at Spithead, England, une 15.

Shore facilities were expanded during the year. New barracks were completed at HMCS Naden at Esquimalt, B.C., and at HMCS Shearwater, the naval air station at Dartmouth, N.S.

TRAFFIC TOTEM—This confusing stretch of signs is supposed to help motorists find their way through Albany, N.Y. The traffic light is an aid—as most everyone slows to a stop to read the signs at the intersection, which could be called crossroads of the nation.

Baby Born In Manger Blessed Dutch Mother Says

CLINTON (CP)—A happy Dutch mother said Monday she knew that a healthy son born to her Christmas morning in a manger "had been blessed."

Mr. and Mrs. Leenton Rehorst came to Canada from The Netherlands three years ago and now have a 100-acre farm 18 miles north of Stratford. About 80 yards from the house is an unpainted barn. There, in a straw-filled manger just before dawn, the nine-pound boy was born.

It was after Mr. Rehorst went to the barn to milk and feed the cows that his 32-year-old wife realized the baby was about to be born.

She waded through knee-deep snow to reach him.

"I had to lie in the straw and I remember as the baby was being born a young calf poked its head through a wooden grate," she said.

Mr. Rehorst picked up his wife and the baby and carried them to his truck. He wrapped the child in one of his jackets and drove as fast as he dared over icy roads to the hospital, a few miles northwest of his farm.

Doctors said it was a "miracle" both mother and child came through the ordeal in satisfactory condition.

Mrs. Rehorst said she didn't realize the significance of time and place in the arrival of her son until she heard a nurse singing a Christmas carol in the hospital corridor.

"When the nurse sang about the Christ child in the manger, I knew our baby had been blessed," she said.

The Rehorsts who also have a 22-month-old daughter, Annie, plan to call their son John Leenton.

Miners Support United Kingdom Communist

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — Scottish miners Monday threw their support behind a leading British Communist as their candidate for the presidency of Britain's National Union of Mineworkers.

Abe Moffat, 57, a member of the Communist party's executive committee, thus became a leading contender for the top post in the 700,000-man union which dominates Britain's coal industry.

His candidacy got support from 91 of the national union's 96 Scottish branches at a meeting of the Scottish area executive committee here. The almost unanimous nomination was called unique in the Scottish union's history.

Another avowed Communist, Arthur Horner, is already secretary of the union. But Sir William Lawther, a "moderate," at present holds the key post of president.

Russia Farms Experts Out Exploit Empire's Reaches

(The Soviet Union is popularly known as Russia, but it actually encompasses 15 republics besides the Russian Republic where Moscow is situated. William L. Ryan visited eight republics in a 6,000-mile tour of the Soviet Union. In this article, second of a series, he tells of Moscow's efforts to russify —and get the most out of—the outlying areas.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Tired-looking two-engine planes hit the ground with a soggy wheeze, their wheels setting up a splattering storm of mud.

Ancient passenger trains creak intod ingy railway stations, encrusted with the ice of long and weary miles through barren steppes.

Rickety autobuses bounce crazily over narrow, frozen dire roads, slamming their huddled, fur-capped passengers against the sides and lurching them from their seats.

In the capitals of central Asia and the Caucasus, the planes, trains and buses discharge unwilling pioneers, the new empire builders of Great Russia.

EXPERTS IN EXILE

By the thousands they pour into provincial capitals — Communist political experts, agronomists veterinarians, engineers and mechanics of all grades. They are well dressed by Soviet standards, but often look unhappy and often are accompanied by much less happy looking fur-coated wives.

For a long time these privileged people have had things too good. Now they must pay the first installment of their debt to the Soviet state for educating them. The palmy days are over for many.

These "volunteers," fresh from carefully staged and propagandized celebrations of farewell and congratulations, have had to be pushed into the remote reaches of the far-flung Soviet empire to do their part to bring order to the chaos of consumer economy.

Generations of Russians before them brought Russian culture and Russian domination to almond-eyed Kazakhs, the gentle, swarthy Tadjiks, the nomad Turkmens and all the scores of nationalities cemented into the Soviet Union.

The new crop of pioneers has been assigned the task of exploiting the natural riches of these rich lands so that the Soviet Union's home front will achieve the elasticity it needs to cushion it against the possible shock of a new world conflict.

PRODDED INTO ACTION

Debarking into the thick mud of a provincial airport, a specialist takes a shivering look at the great vastness beyond the republic capital, and decides to stay in town, hoping to be part of a sort of headquarters corps. Fut that won't do.

"It is impossible," said Tadjikistan Communist, official party paper of that republic, "to tolerate the fact that many specialists, instead of going to work in machine-farms, continue to live in cities and simply pay flying visits to their work."

This reflects Moscow's irritation with the slowness of the new program. It has promised a great upsurge of farm production in two to three years, but all depends on the peasants, and the peasants must have technical help.

So the "volunteers" have to be pushed. The party cracks down hard, not only to round them up but to get them moving into the fields. Young specialists, the ink on their diplomas scarcely dry, are being shoved out to the cold, remote regions for active work, even before livable quarters are ready for them.

China's Financial Troubles

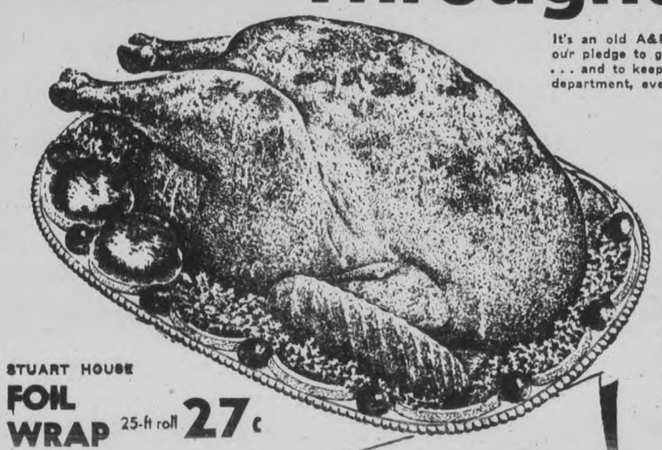
By O. M. GREEN

LONDON (OFNS)—The forthcoming issue on January 1, of Chinese National Construction Bonds to help meet the deficit on the budget, as recently announced by Peking, is now said to be for six million million yuan —roughly £88 millions—with interest at four per cent per annum.

In private borrowing five per cent per month is considered quite reasonable and normal in China.

Added to the £200 millions which are to be lopped off State enterprises before the next Budget is due in February, and the reduction last March of one-fifth of the year's contribution to the Five Year Plan, the total of savings and borrowings may well be a quarter of this year's £3000 millions budget.

The Communists express confidence that, because of the all-round rise in prosperity brought about by their rule, there is much idle capital in China, which the new bonds will "canalise" for State construction.



In view of the huge raids on private property last spring in the campaign against corruption, swindling of the State, and so on, (which caused such economic chaos that it had to be called off hurriedly in May) this may be optimistic. But there is no doubt that the bonds will have to be taken up to the extent, it is forecast, of seventy per cent by townsfolk and thirty per cent by peasants.

Meanwhile, all cadres, (official Communist agents) literary folk and teachers are being intensively educated in the correct method of publicising and popularising the new Party line for subordinating all private enterprise to State control during the transitional period which will lead to State ownership of all industry and commerce "in the beautiful future of socialism."

Trade Minister Howe Predicts

Prosperous Year Ahead In Canada But Rate Of Expansion May Drop

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe today predicted another generally prosperous year for Canada in 1954 but estimated that the rate of expansion may drop.

"Some industries are encountering difficulties," he said in a 4,000-word year-end review, "and for this reason expansionary trends in the Canadian economy in the year now ahead may be less pronounced than in the last three years."

But capital investment—reaching a record $5,600,000,000 in 1953—would "remain high." The prospect for sales in the Canadian market is "firm" and government spending for defence and other purposes will likely continue to act as a "stabilizing influence."

RECORD PRODUCTION

The gross national produce rose to a record $24,200,000,000 during 1953, up from $23,000,000,000 in 1952. Officials are still hopeful of some increase in 1954, but not of the $1,200,000,000 magnitude.

Mr. Howe said that there is some recession talk in the United States but that there is nothing in the over-all picture to indicate "any serious interruption in the generally prosperous conditions now prevailing."

Even in the U.S. there was no evidence of pre-recession boom which could lead to collapse. There might have to be some "adjustments" in the U.S. but this should not lead to reduction of Canada's major exports to that country—Canada's biggest market.

As for overseas markets, there had been a "considerable" drop in Canadian exports. But the exchange problem is improving and some "pick up in sales of basic materials is possible." The exception is wheat. In the face of improved world production, "grain sales are almost certain to fall short of the record shipments achieved in the last two years."

A BANNER YEAR

Mr. Howe said that 1953 was another period of record economic achievement. Crops again were exceptionally good. The general rise in production was accompanied by a further increase in employment. Farm income had declined slightly but income generally was higher.

But more significant was the rise in living standards. Canadians were able to buy more with each consumer dollar. Consumer prices averaged about one per cent lower this year than last.

"In 1952 real per capita consumption rose by 2½ per cent over that of the previous year, the first significant gain since 1947. A greater increase has occurred in 1953."

Mr. Howe, also minister of defence production, touched briefly on the 1953 arms program, stating that in terms of new orders the program has reached its peak "and shows signs of levelling off."

FULL-SCALE PRODUCTION

Most of the key defence facilities required now were established. The year's highlights included full-scale production of the CF-100 Canadian jet fighter, "together with the development of a new version," and continued large deliveries of the F-86 Sabre fighter.

Canada also made a start on production of other aircraft, advanced plans for production of speeedy escort vessels, produced equipment for Canada's radar screen and increased output of the American three-inch, 50 - calibre twin naval guns for Canadian and American forces.

A significant trend was the decline in dependence on American industry for Canadian defence equipment. The Canadian Orenda jet engine replaced the American J-47 engine in the Sabres.

Pakistan-U.S. Have Signed Aid Agreement

KARACHI (Reuters) — Pakistan and the United States today signed an agreement by which Pakistan will receive $22,000,000 economic aid in the current financial year.

Pakistan will receive the aid in the year ending June 30, 1954.

Of the total, $19,000,000 will be devoted to projects already receiving American aid and to new projects to be agreed on by the two countries.

The remaining $3,000,000 will support American technicians and experts sent to Pakistan.

PAKISTAN PAYS, TOO

Pakistan has agreed to make available for all projects at least the equivalent amount in rupees of the dollars received.

The joint fund created will be administered by the Pakistan government and the directors of the United States foreign operations administration.

The United States is already contributing to more than 20 projects. The proposed new projects are mainly concerned with food production.

Permit Transfer Of More Ships

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Kingdom has agreed to permit the transfer of more deep-sea Canadian ships to British registry, it was learned today.

Two ships so far have been transferred to the British flag, under the arrangement reached after a Canadian cabinet decision this month to open negotiations with the U. K. government.

Canada's decision was taken after a request by shipowners for the removal of government restrictions on the disposal of Canadian vessels, whose operating costs under this country's registry are among the highest in the world.

The cabinet refused to lift the restrictions completely, but decided to ask the U. K. to take some of the ships under British registry, where running costs are much lower. In 1950, the U. K. took 92 Canadian ships in this fashion, with ownership remaining in Canada.

Story Of Handkerchiefs Has A Romantic Origin

Things aren't always what they seem. You may be thinking of your Christmas handkerchiefs as smart and wearable accessories, but failing to remember their romantic origin. For it is the fascinating truth that handkerchiefs travel all over the world before they reach your bureau drawer.

What other feminine accessory may start out as a tiny flaxseed in Ireland, be shipped in fabric form to China, then embroidered and returned to this country? Or, may be fine Cotten fiber from Egypt, then processed and embroidered in Switzerland, finally sent here! It's good to remember that the trade lanes are open to handkerchiefs, and a fine example of co-operation when as many as three or four countries may be involved in the tiny square you prize as a cherished possession.

SOUVENIR

Varied types, ranging from delicate expensive ones to every day handkerchiefs appear in the stores of the Olympic host country.

In London, in 1948, windows were gay with bright colored ones —each with its Olympic five circle crest. Some even bore the names of countries competing. Like Olympic stamps, these have become a collector's item.

FROM MADEIRA

Lovely Madeira, a beautiful island off the coast of Africa is noted for the splendor of its scenery and its quaint customs. Ancient costumes are yet worn by its inhabitants and a popular means of locomotion still is a wooden sled which is pushed up and down Madeira's cobbled and hilly streets.

The most expensive and beautiful table napkins, table cloths and handkerchiefs come from Madeira, where women sit in the old-fashioned sewing circle and produce beautiful hand-embroidered goods.

Switzerland is famous not only for its craggy mountains and glamourous winter sports, but for the beauty and excellence of its textiles, particularly the fine embroideries which are produced in the home of its craftsmen.

Limited to a small production, the handloom produces the finest embroidery with the most delicate and intricate shadings . . . however, Schiffli machines, with their huge banks of needles now create designs which are marvelously intricate and fine.

Next time you see a gay Swiss rose or violet think of the patient planning and work which goes into its production—as much as 8 or 10 months, from the time the idea dawned in the brains of a stylist to the moment it graces the store counter.

For fabric glamor, Irish linen is first in many a smart woman's shoppers' book. For this is truly a practical and glamorous fashion fabric, an age-old industry in Ireland, where production methods similar to those used centuries ago are still in use.

Incidentally, authorities claim that no commercial bleach will produce such a fine finish as God's own sunshine—and Irish handkerchief linen is still bleached out under the soft Irish skies.

PRIME FASHION INSPIRATION

France and Italy, both are prime fashion inspirations in the styling of handkerchiefs. Add to this the fact that beautiful handwoven handkerchiefs are produced in both countries, and fine laces in France, and you'll have a fine international stew!

Look closely at a lovely hand-embroidered hanky either white or colored—see it? Chances are it started out in the hands of a patient Chinese woman in the Province of Swatow. There, each family specializes in one type of embroidery, and the handkerchief is sent to many individuals before it is finally inspected and packed for export.

Truly, there is romance in handkerchiefs, from a glorious past to a fascinating present; hankies are not only a lovely fashion and good-grooming accessory, but also a symbol of "hands across the seas!"

Jean Millar Weds Ralph Puffer Lakefield Church

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Lakefield United Church was the setting for a wedding of wide interest on Saturday evening, in which Helen Jean, daughter of Mrs. Millar and the late David Bruce Millar was united in marriage to Mr. Norman Ralph Puffer of Haliburton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Puffer of Clarina.

The church was lighted by candles placed in the windows and at the altar and banked with white 'mums and snapdraggons and flanked by miniature Christmas trees aglow with ice-blue light.

The ceremony was performed by the minister, the Rev. H. C. Wolfraim and Mrs. Wilfred Lee was at the organ. Prior to the bride's entrance, Mrs. Raymond Jackman sang "The Wedding Prayer." During the signing of the register she sang "Still As The Night."

Given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Carl Graham of Peterborough, the bride was lovely in a strapless gown of white nylon net, appliqued with white velvet medallions, centred with rhinestones. A redingote of white French martinized velvet, with scalloped neckline and front, and long pointed sleeves was held closed at the waist with tiny self-covering buttons and had a three-yard train. Her finger-tip veil was caught with a coronet of seed pearls and rhinestones and she carried a shower bouquet of white carnations.

She was atended by Miss Jean Spence as maid of honor, Miss Nancy Graham and Miss Joan Graham of Hamilton as bridesmaids, frocked in similar gowns of American Beauty velvet with fitted bodice, floor length full skirts and white mittens. Their headdresses were of matching velvet and white feathers and all carried cascade bouquets of white 'mums. Little Miss Cheryl Graham was a charming flower girl in white nylon lace over satin and a marabou headdress. She also carried white 'mums.

The groom's attendant was Mr. John Payton of Sarnia and the ushers were Douglas Montgomery of Frankford and David Millar of Peterborough.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Kawartha room of the Empress Hotel, Peterborough. The bride's mother received in a floor-length gown of Princess grey Chantilly lace over sunset rose farmer's satin, small matching sequin hat and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother wearing mauve-light English lace over orchid crepe, matching slipper satin hat and accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

For a wedding trip to New York the bride chose a blazer-red flannel suit, with black jersey blouse, small white velvet hat with feather trim and a Persian lamb and ranch mink coat.

A short business session was in charge of retiring president Miss Marion Brown, who has had two very successful years in this office. Afterward she led a short worship service and George Bedford accompanied at the piano for several hymns. The service was closed with prayer. Lunch was served by the retiring executive and the losers in the recreation competition washed the dishes.

Agency Exists To Give Help If Unexpected Crises Arise

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver organization of 150 women trained to cope with any domestic emergency is doing a flourishing business here.

Known as the helpful Aunts Bureau, it was founded by Mrs. Joy Dunford, a widow who aimed at establishing a business that would not only help her remain at home to look after her two daughters, but would help others with similar problems.

"It is not an empluoyment agency," she said, "but exists for the unexpected crisis in domestic affairs—the sudden illness, the unheralded arrival of visitors."

The typical auntie is between 40 and 60 years old, one whose family is now grown and who finds time heavy on her hands. From a large list of applicants, Mrs. Dunford finds it easy to maintain a high standard. Her helpers are Canadian citizens of good character. "They do not drink and they do not talk excessively."

"We are ready to tackle anything," she said. "The firm's log book lists a variety of chores: Sitting up with an expectant mother of setter puppies; making slipcovers for furniture; taking small fry to see Santa Claus; filling in on a bowling team or making a fourth at bridge; packing the household treasures on moving day shopping for a shut-in or arranging a wedding."

Aunts prepare food for every occasion—sandwiches for the business girls' bridge night, canapes for a cocktail party, and Christmas dinner for a whole family.

Greater part of their attention is occupied by baby-sitting. The experienced matrons are in demand for taking over household and children when parents feel the need of a week-end or so off or when mother brings the new baby from the hospital.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Home-Canned Tomatoes In Cream of Tomato Soup

By MARY MOORE

Note Of Explanation: As late as December 15 I was receiving still letters asking for recipes for Christmas baking—some without name and address—not to mention stamped envelope. All who enclosed name and address were answered by direct mail. Please give me a break and at least give your name and address to make it possible for me to reply. This column has space for only a small fraction of my answers. Always remember that I want to answer you and will if you will cooperate.

QUESTION: . . my problem is in making cream of tomato soup using our own home-canned tomatoes. My recipe calls for 2 cups tomatoes, 1 quart milk, ¼ teaspoon soda and flour and butter, etc. and every time the milk curdles in the soup . . can you tell me how I can overcome this difficulty . . .

MRS. PERCY K.

ANSWER: Yes. One thing you must remember is to add the tomato slowly while stirring to the milk mixture. Here is the method:

CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP

To 2¼ cups tomatoes (canned, stewed or fresh) add 1 small slice onion, and, if desired, ⅛ bay leaf, and simmer covered 5 minutes. Mix together 3 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons flour, then strain into this the cooked tomato, stirring until thick. Add ¼ teaspoon soda and 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Heat 4 cups milk in double boiler and when scalding hot, slowly stir in the tomato mixture. Serve at once.

QUESTION: May I tell you that your column is simply wonderful? Could you tell me how you make this type of cookie . . I had it at a dance lunch and it was so tasty . . I believe it is made of angel food cake squares, rolled in a brown sugar mixture and then in chopped nuts . . .

MRS. D. A.

ANSWER: You sure may. I sure can.

ANGEL PECAN BALLS

Break or tear angel cake in pieces 1 inch in diamter. Dip, covering completely, in Double Boiler frosting cooked only 4 minutes. Drain well and roll in chopped pecans or shaved Brazils or fine cocoanut. Double Boiler Frosting: Put in top of double boiler 2-3 cup each white sugar and brown sugar, 2 egg whites, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, 3½ tablespoons boiling water and 2 tablespoons corn syrup. Place over boiling water, turn heat low, stir gently until sugar is dissolved, wiping off sides of double boiler to remove sugar crystals, with damp clean cloth; then beat with rotary beater for 4 minutes. (If this is to be used for ordinary boiled frosting beat until mixture stands in peaks.) After dipping cake in this and nuts let dry on wax paper at least ½ day.

DEAR MARY: How are you and your family . . I have mislaid the recipe for molasses drop cookies again . . .

MRS. GORDON C.

ANSWER: We are all tip-top and ship-shape, thanks, and hope you are the same.

MOLASSES DROP COOKIES

Two-thirds cup shortening, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup molasses, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1½ cup unsifted flour, 1¼ cups rolled oats, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups chopped nuts and chopped dates or cocoanut mixed, and if desired, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg. Cream shortening, gradually beating in the sugar, then molasses, then eggs. Sift flour and other dry ingredients together, except rolled oats. (Raw wheat flakes may be used in place of rolled oats if desired.) Add sifted dry ingredients, then oats and nuts. Drop dough from tip of spoon onto buttered baking sheet, spacing them to allow spreading. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 10 or 12 minutes.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Finds Husband Not Companionable

DEAR MISS DIX: After 15 years of marriage, I can't say that I'm a happy woman. My husband is a good man, but not the attentive kind and he doesn't give me the companionship I crave. For the past three years I've been going with another man, married also, who is much to my liking. He says he loves me and is just staying with his wife for the sake of their child.

The only doubt I have about him is that he often makes a date with me, then breaks it, and gives as an excuse that his wife won't let him out. Is that possible in the case of a grown man? I think he should rather be with me than with her. I know I'm wrong in loving a married man, but it can't be helped. I'd prefer not to have this printed since I'm sure everyone will recognize it.

Thelma.

ANSWER: Let's work backwards! You don't want your problem printed, yet you failed to give me a complete address for a reply. As for the problem being recognized, practically everyone who reads it will know somebody it fits. Though I've changed the name, and times, it will fit a great many persons. It's amazing how many women, and occasionally men, can shrug off adultery with the simple comment that "It can't be helped," or "I love him and can't give him up," etc., ad infinitum and ad nauseum. Some cases are complex, yith involvements that really do constitute acute problems, but others, like yours, are deplorably simple. Your husband is a good man, offering love and security to the best of his ability. The other wife concerned is likewise a good person, doing her level best to maintain a home for her children and to keep their father on a reasonably straight path. Your reason for trying to break up both homes is boredom. Does that sound like adequate justification? You aren't sufficiently interested in your own home, or are too lazy to do anything in it, to have it provide any sort of fulfillment for you. It's so much easier to satiate your vanity, love of pleasure, and desire for conquest. There isn't one single mitigating circumstance in your case. Your only solution is to break with the man and set about being a decent wife. Will you do it? I doubt very much that you will.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been writing to a sailor for the past year. He's 18, I am 16. I have never met him, but am told he's married. Should I believe the people who told me, or ask him?

Vera S.

ANSWER: The fair thing would be to ask the boy. While it's foolish to put stock in stray gossip, it's equally unwise to be too trusting concerning a correspondent whom you have not met in person.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Since we moved to this town three years ago, my husband and I have been friends with another couple. Now I'm becoming aware of the fact that my husband and the other wife are more than friendly. Is there any way I can break it up before the matter becomes serious? Vi.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Talk the matter over with the other husband. Perhaps he, too, has seen the portentous signs and is as anxious as you to avert trouble.

Rork Ferguson Bows Out, J. Nixon Reeve

JOHN NIXON

NORWOOD — (ENS) — Rork Ferguson, veteran municipal and federal politician, said today he would not be in the running this year for reeve. So the village's 1954 reeve, by acclamation, is John Nixon, a councillor for nine years.

Ten were nominated Monday at the annual nomination and ratepayers' meetings for the four council vacancies, but it is still too soon to know how many will run. There are indications that the nominees will sort themselves out so there won't be an election this year.

RORK FERGUSON

The qualification deadline is 9 p.m. tonight.

If all qualify, there will be no election for the two public utilities commission vacancies and the four vacancies on the school board.

Four were nominated for reeve. Red Webb, 1953 councillor, declined; Gordon Parker, another 1953 councillor, qualified for council, instead; Mr. Ferguson said he was out of the running; and Mr. Nixon qualified for reeve.

Mr. Nixon has a men's furnishings store in the village; formerly he was in the grocery business.

At press time here's the way it stood with the 10 council nominees:

Ivan Beggs, councillor for two years who said he would qualify; Gordon Parker, conucillor for two years who did qualify; Kenneth Cavanaugh, declined; John Nixon, qualified for reeve, instead; Rod Webb who didn't commit himself; Richard Patterson, Alfred Bongard and A. A. Waddell, all newcomers who didn't indicate what they would do; and Joseph Clements, also nominated for school trustee.

If Mr. Clements switches from the school board (he is a trustee up for re-election) to council it will force another nomination meeting for the school board. Only four trustees, just th to will the vacancies, w ated.

The four trustees ated were Irwin Warner, Edmunds, David McNeil and Joseph Clements.

PUC nominees were S. E. Flett and Kennie Edmunds.

Mr. Ferguson was reeve for 12 of the last 13 years. The exception was 1948 when William Pakenham held office.

He was warden of Peterborough county in 1934 (as reeve of Asphodel) and he was Liberal MP for Hastings-Peterborough 1935-40.

It was announced that because of unexpected expenditures the village will have a small deficit this year, about $500.

If an election is required it will be Monday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., both polling booths at the village hall.

Fear U.S. Death Toll May Reach 360

CHICAGO (AP)—The American traffic death toll for the New Year's weekend, the National Safety Council estimated today, may reach 360.

The council said its estimate, for immediate traffic deaths only, covers the period from 6 p. m. Thursday, New Year's Eve, to midnight Sunday (local time).

The council's advice to the possible 360 victims was: "A wonderful way to start the New Year would be to start it!"

In the similar Christmas weekend period, 523 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents, 13 more than the council had predicted.

Ask Inquiry In Killing By Sheriff

GROVE HILL, Ala. (AP)—Percy Fountain, federal district attorney, will ask an investigation of Sheriff Jenkins Hill's killing of a Negro who testified against the sheriff at a liquor conspiracy trial.

Fountain announced today that he will ask agents of the federal alcohol tax unit to look into the shooting here Monday of Moses Jones of Bessemer, Ala.

Hill reported he shot Jones three times when the Negro jumped him and tried to take his gun. The sheriff said he had brought Jones back from Bessemer on a fugitive warrant because Jones had failed to pay a liquor fine.

CONSPIRACY TRIAL

The sheriff, Sam Deas, a night club operator of Kushla, Ala., and Pat Rome of Jackson, Ala., a used car dealer, were tried here last fall on charges of a federal liquor conspiracy. The case ended in a mistrial.

Jones testified then that he turned down a proposal to sell liquor for Hill and Deas under a protection arrangement. He said that four weeks later Deas and another man beat him and told him "not to be caught" in the town again.

Fountain said he had expected to use Jones at a new trial for Hill and the other two defendants.

Seek Substitute For Adjudicator

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dominion Drama Festival is seeking a replacement by Jan. 11 for Evan John Simpson, the British playwright who was to have judged regional drama festivals across Canada in the next three months.

The body of Mr. Simpson, 52, was found shot dead Monday near his farm at Henley, England.

Mr. Simpson was to have arrived in Canada Jan. 5 for a series of regional drama festivals starting in Toronto Jan. 11. The adjudication is to choose plays for the Dominion Drama Festival later in the spring.

Richard MacDonald, secretary of the Dominion Drama Festival, said he has "no idea" who will be chosen in his place. Arrangements for the adjudicator had been made through the British council in London and the festival secretary said he hoped to get further details today in a transatlantic telephone call to the council.

Noted Mountaineer Badly Hurt In Fall

VIENNA (AP)—Kuno Rainer, a leading member of the German-Austrian team of mountaineers which climbed 26,660-foot Mount Nanga Parbat in the Himalayas this year, was reported out of danger but still badly hurt today after a 90-foot fall in the Austrian Alps.

Rainer, an Austrian, tumbled off the side of a peak in the Zillertaler Alps in the Tyrol Saturday while climbing with three other mountaineers. All were planning to take part in a 1954 assault on Mount Godwin Austin (K-2), which at 28,250 feet is second only to Everest.

A safety catch on Rainer's rope broke and he was reached only after seven hours rescue work in biting cold.

Pope Maintains Stiff Program

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Despite his first serious ailment since he became Pontiff in 1939, Pope Pius maintained a pace during the year now ending that would have exhausted many younger men.

A resume of his activities during 1935, issued today by the Vatican press office, shows that the 77-year-old Pope received 381,584 people in private, special and general audiences. That was slightly less than in the preceding year, when he received 457,797.

But this year, from Jan. 22 to March 12, when the Pope's illness "held the entire Catholic world in anxiety," audiences were suspended, the resume said.

The Pope made 84 major speeches and radio broadcasts during 1953. He spoke 34 times in Italian, 29 in French, eight in German, five in English, four in Latin, three in Spanish and one time in Portuguese. These figures do not include the numerous times that he spoke briefly in five or six languages to people received in general audiences.

Sport In Brief

ESKIES SEEK TALENT

EDMONTON (CP)—Coach Darrell Royal of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union left Monday for Florida, where he will watch the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

Royal, a former Oklahoma Sooner who brought the split-T formation to Canada, is then scheduled to fly to Starkville, Miss., to bargain with split-T quarterback Jackie Parker, an all-American ranked eighth this year in the selection of the finest United States college football players.

Royal was non-committal concerning Eskimos efforts to recruit Parker, but club manager Al Anderson said Royal would try to get in touch with the player and other prospects at Mississippi State University.

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union said Monday night they have signed end Tom Miner of Tulsa University for next season.

Miner, who stands six feet, four inches and weighs 230 pounds, is the third player from the Oklahoma college to join Stampeders. Floyd Harrawood and fullback Howard Waugh were signed earlier.

Calgary manager Bob Robinett said he signed Miner after watching him play against Texas Tech in Miami, Fla., Christmas Day.

Alcohol Burns Fatal

DETROIT (AP) — An exploding drum of alcohol turned Leslie Swenson, 45, into a flaming human torch Monday night. He died a few hours later. Swenson was burning rubbish in a steel drum when the heat caused a nearby drum of alcohol to explode.

Congressmen Approve Gouzenko Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several Congressmen agreed Monday with a suggestion by Igor Gouzenko that the United States should try to crack any Soviet spy rings now operating in the country by offering protection and security to members who expose them.

"I believe in fighting fire with fire," Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, told a reporter.

Wiley likened the offering of protection to Soviet agents if they provide vital information to the "use of silver bullets."

Senator Herman Welker (Rep. Idaho), a member of the Senate internal security sub-committee which has been probing Communists in government, said such a proposal might cause some criticism that "you are giving social security to a spy, but it also might collapse Soviet espionage apparatus here."

WOULD TRY IT OUT

Senator Lester Hunt (Dem. Wyo.), a member of the Senate armed services committee, said the plan should be tried.

Gouzenko, former code clerk in the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, cracked a spy ring in Canada by his testimony and documents he produced in 1946.

In a copyrighted interview with the magazine, U. S. News and World Report, Gouzenko said there may be hundreds of Red agents now operating in the United States.

He recommended that the government "make it worth while for some of them to quit and come out with their documents."

Noranda Men Reject Company Offer

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—Striking workers of Noranda Mines Limited Monday voted 730 to 79 against acceptance of a company offer of a 7½-cent wage increase. In the union-sponsored balloting there were 12 spoiled ballots.

In another vote on the wage offer, conducted by a citizens' committee, 118 ballots favored acceptance and 14 were opposed.

A spokesman for the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CL) said the balloting shows the union members do not want interference by a third party (the citizens' committee). He added:

"Maybe now the company realizes that our package demand still stands."

NEW OFFERS

He said the company has recently made additional offers to the union and that the citizens' committee knew nothing about these offers.

About 1,600 men went on strike at Noranda Sept. 24 to enforce demands for an increase of 22½ cents in the hourly basic pay, then $1.05, a cut in working hours from 48 a week to 44, shift premiums, pension and welfare plans and the checkoff of union dues.

Voting was carried out in near-zero weather. Miners trudged down snowy streets of this northwestern Quebec mining town to the polling places where newspaper men handed out the ballots and tabulated the union-sponsored vote.

Heavy Penalties First Step In Safety Drive

QUEBEC (CP)—Court proceedings and heavy penalties should be the first step in any highway safety drive, the Quebec province Chamber of Commerce said today.

The 25,000-member chamber said in a brief prepared for submission to the Quebec government too many motorists break the law "because they feel safe or do not fear penalties."

"A law is effective only as much as it is observed and it is best observed if sanctions are feared," said the 33-page brief which dealt mostly with highway safety.

LIQUOR CAUSES MISHAPS

Noting that liquor is one of the main causes of traffic accidents, the chamber said three kinds of motorists are mostly involved in accidents: "The unfit, the ignorant and the careless."

"To eliminate the unfit, instruct the ignorant and keep the careless at a distance, the chamber believes it would be advisable that all motorists undergo a competence test," the brief said.

The tests would include all drivers under 25 years of age, all whose permits have been suspended temporarily and all who have been held responsible for accidents.

Drinking Drivers Jailed, Fined

LINDSAY (ENS) — Two Victoria county drivers, who disregarded the warning against drinking and driving over the Christmas holiday weekend received stiff punishment in Lindsay police court on Monday, when both appeared on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Lloyd Thornton, 42, of Omemee, the father of six children, pleaded guilty to the charge, laid by OPP officers after they alleged his car almost side-swiped theirs in the village early Christmas morning. Thornton, said Constable Plumtree, of the Lindsay detachment, fell out of his car when the officers stopped it, and needed assistance to enter the county jail when he returned to Lindsay. Thornton, who appeared without benefit of counsel, told the court after the officer's evidence had been heard that he didn't "think I had been quite that bad."

Magistrate Gee commented that Thornton was fortunate no other cars had been on the highway at the time of his arrest. "You might easily have killed someone," he said. He sentenced Thornton to seven days in the county jail, plus costs of $15.50 or another ten days.

HIT CAR AHEAD

The second charge was laid by Lindsay police on Christmas eve, after a rear-end collision on Kent street. A car driven by Fred Webster of Woodville, collided with the rear of another vehicle, driven by Khalio Butt, of Lindsay, when Butt stopped in the traffic line as a car turned off the highway.

Webster, charged with driving while intoxicated, was defended by Col. R. I. Moore and pleaded not guilty, but guilty to a charge of driving while his ability was impaired. He admitted having a drnk at the constructon shack where he is working, but said he did not realize that Butt's car was so close to him when he tried to stop behind it.

Magistrate Gee admitted there was a definite difference between the two cases. Though Thornton had not been in an accident, he said, he felt his was the more serious offence. He found Webster guilty of driving while his ability was impaired and fined him $125 and costs of $18.50, or 60 days in jail.

Masonic Lodges Observe Festival Day

Members of Peterborough's four masonic lodges and their guests celebrated the festival of St. John the Evangelist on Monday night at the Masonic Temple. The lodge room was filled to capacity for the opening ceremonies presided over by Rt. Wor. Bro. Ross L. Dobbin. District Deputy Grand Master Fred Hills introduced the new masters of the lodges and Wor. Bro. Walter Jones delivered the address in memory of the masons who had died during the year. Each master read the names from his lodge and a minute of silence was observed.

THE TWO JOHNS

Bro. the Rev. Henry Cotton delivered the address. His subject was "The Two Johns and Masonry." These are St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist. The original dedication of lodges was to St. John the Baptist more often known as the Holy St. John. In all religions there are certain days consecrated to festivals and Christianity has taken over some of these. The chief festival of the operative or stone masons in the early days were those of John the Baptist on June 24 and the Four Martyrs of November 4. The later was discarded by speculative masons and now the two festivals of the St. Johns are kept.

Following the service in the lodge the assembly adjourned to the dining room where the program was presided over by Wor. Bro. Hugh M. Niven. With Bro. Ben Smith directing the Salvation army male chorus provided a musical program which was one of the highlights of the celebration. Mrs. Smith accompanied on the piano. W. Bro. Donald Munro introduced the speaker, Bro. Dr. Eldon Ray principal of Kenner Collegiate.

Dr. Ray declared it was the task of every mason to take the raw materials of his life, his weaknesses, his passions, his ambitions, his strength and his desires— and through patience, despite mistakes, by dogged determination in the face of failures, by loyalty to high ideals and the noble life plan which masonry offers, strive to achieve something of enduring worth.

TEACHER MUST BE IDEALISTIC

Dr. Ray took as his subject "Ideals" but in his address he sought to get away from keeping masonic ideals too etherial and he brought his subject 'down to earth' by making references to his work as a teacher. He declared that it was not sufficient to pour into young people the prescribed facts to pass the prescribed examinations; it is not enough to be able to blugeon the restless students into passive acceptance of what is said; it is not adequate to give youngsters a series of tests and reduce their difficulties to problems and then say "we have a problem child." He said every teacher should have some idealism.

"I wish to state most emphatically that young people are not going to the devil anymore today than they were 25 or 30 years ago. They ask questions about how to get along with others, difficulties with parents, with other members of the family, social drinking and cocktail parties, hot necking and petting. Perhaps some of you would be shocked to hear the questions they ask. But can you image how let down these youngsters feel if they are talking to a person without idealism. These youngsters are looking eagerly for ideals, for values that are accepted by society, or with apologies they are looking for a star to which to hitch their hot rod. The youngsters do not undermine a teacher's idealism, that is done by the parents."

Jail Kidnapper For 21 Years

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP)—Mrs. Tommie Dene Doughty, 17-year-old unrepentant kidnapper of a five-month-old Indiana child, Monday was sentenced to a 21-year-term in federal prison for the crime.

Mrs. Doughty, former carnival strip-teaser, pleaded guilty to abducting the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lee Stammer while baby-sitting with the boy in Evansville, Ind.

Her lawyer, appealing for a suspended sentence, said Mrs. Doughty had a mother complex because she had lost a baby of her own. Psychiatrists ruled her sane.

After her arrest at her Oklahoma home, the young kidnapper said she would take the child again if given the chance. The boy was recovered unharmed.

South Korea Assails India For Stand

PANMUNJOM (AP) — South Korea's foreign minister today assailed India for backing a report blaming South Korea for sabotaging the explanations to balky war prisoners.

"We are not surprised," Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai said, "because we know India will side with the Communists on all important issues."

Pyun's attack was the opening blow of an expected South Korean thunderclap against India's neutrality in the touchy prisoner situation.

SIDED WITH REDS

India, chairman power of the five-country repatriation commission, sided with Poland and Czechoslovakia in a majority report that accused South Korea of controlling compounds housing more than 22,000 anti-Communist North Korean and Chinese war prisoners.

Only a small number of the anti-Red prisoners ever met Communist persuasion teams in the 90-day explanation period. Those that did rejected return to their homelands by an overwhelming majority.

A minority report by Sweden and Switzerland blamed Communist explanation teams for dragging out the interviews sometimes as long as five hours.

DISPUTES CHARGES

Pyun told a press conference in Seoul that he does not know what went on behind the prison compounds in the neutral zone but added: "I do not think the Communist charges are fully founded."

The Communists were backing away from a Korean political conference because it would then make the release of unrepatriated prisoners Jan. 22 "look like a faulty procedure."

The Communist high command maintains that after 90 days of explanations any prisoner remaining should be turned over to the political conference for disposition. Negotiations toward setting up a political conference are at a standstill.

The United Nations command maintains the armistice provides that all unrepatriated PoWs be released as civilians Jan. 22 or 30 days after the explanation period which ended Dec. 23.

Canadian Athletes Make Improved Showing In International Field

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Four champions in international amateur competition and a figure-skating pair who lost out narrowly for world honors combined in 1953 to draw attention to Canada's sport potential. It was the best showing against foreign athletes in years.

Their accomplishments, made mainly in non-spectator sports, practically went unnoticed in a country where football, hockey, curling, horse racing and golf are kings. At home, slowly-dying track and field sports perked up with establishment of the Canadian Olympic Training Plan, the most significant move toward helping the run-for-fun athletes in 20 years.

Eastern Canada took major honors in east-west intersectional competition and football continued to rivet the country's sports attention from August to December. Hockey interest, apart from Montreal Canadiens' Stanley Cup victory, centred mainly on squabbles among officials, resulting in court cases, suspensions and reinstatements and an almost-general what-is-it situation.

ACCLAIM "LITTLE MEN"

The four title-holders represented widely-varied sports — weight-lifting, golf, horse riding and water-skiing. And only one, Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., received widespread acclaim and recognition in and out of Canada.

The others, unknowns on the sports scene, hardly caused a stir.

Doug Hepburn, 280-pound weight-lifter from Vancouver, travelled unheralded to Sweden and on Aug. 30 at Stockholm won the world heavyweight championship with a total lift of 1,030¼ pounds.

Hepburn, who took over the title from John Davis of the United States, Olympic and world champion, was named the "strongest man in the world" and his accomplishment was marked by Canadian sports editors and sportscasters who voted him the outstanding male athlete of 1953 in the annual Canadian Press poll.

The 19-year-old Marlene, an established golf star, became the first Canadian to win the British women's amateur championship in the tournament's 60-year history. She did it June 25 at Prthcawl, Wales, with a 7 and 6 triumph over Irish champion Philomena Garvey in the 36-hole final.

And the sports editors and sportscasters voted her the country's outstanding female athlete of the year in the CP poll for the third straight year.

CLEVER HORSEWOMAN

Shirley Thomas, 18-year-old horsewoman from Aylmer, Que., became the first woman to ride on Canada's four-member international equestrian team and took premier events over leading American, British and Irish riders—men and women—at New York's Madison Square Garden and at Toronto.

Carol Ann Duthie, 16-year-old water-skier from Toronto, won the world championship at her home town last September, defeating a big international field. Her accomplishment was hardly noticed.

Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden of Toronto lost to Johnny and Jenifer Nicks, brother-sister figure-skating team from Brighton, England, in the world pairs championship at Davos, Switzerland, but won the NoAmerican pairs title at Cleveland and the Canadian title for the second straight year.

The newly-inaugurated Canadian Olympic Training plan brought athletes from across the country for a two-day track meet at Toronto, the first representative meet in 20 years. It revived interest in the sport and was acclaimed by amateur officials as a big success.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was caught in the middle of squabbles over player rights in eastern an western Canada. The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association was suspended and later reinstated when it apologized for defying a CAHA ruilng.

The Quebec Senior League resigned from the QAHA in mid-May and turned professional.

In the autumn, the feuding over players rights continued. Court cases and CAHA intervention again made amateur hockey and lively topic and again the CAHA was in the middle. And so it went. . . .

BIG BUSINESS

Big-time football went on its merry way with promoters in the Big Four and Western Conference spending more than $2,000,000 in the mad fight for a championship club. The season ended at Toronto Nov. 28 in possibly the best-played Grey Cup final in 30 years when Hamilton Tiger-Cats edged Winnipeg Blue Bombers 12-6.

It was the finale to a season that saw the Bombers stage a tremendous battle to defeat Edmonton Eskimos 30-24 in the third game of the best-of-three final series and win the western title on the passing arm of Indian Jack Jacobs.

As usual, the $15,000 Canadian open golf championship went to an American—Dave Douglas of Newark, Del. Doug Ford of Harrison, N.Y., won the newly-inaugurated $25,000 open at Montreal and Don Cherry, from Wichita Falls, Tex., won the Canadian amateur.

Ontario won the Willingdon Cup with a three-stroke margin over second-place Quebec, 590 to 593. second-place Quebec, 590 to 593. Henry Martell of Edmonton won the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association title at Quebec and Gordon Mackenzie, 17-year-old youngster from Vancouver won the Canadian junior title at Montreal.

Barbara Romak of Sacramento, Calif., astounded the golfing fraternity with a 2 and 1 victory over Miss Stewart in the Canadian women's open at London, Ont.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS

Canada's Davis up team defeated Mexico in the first round of the North American zone tie and lost to the United States in the North American zone finals. Australian and Mexican players took all major titles in the Canadian tennis championships at Toronto.

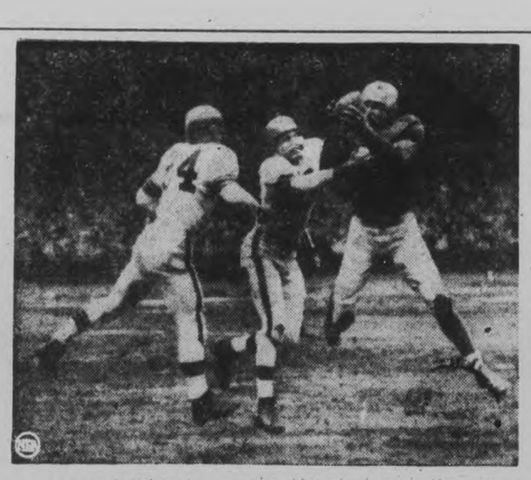
In boxing, Toronto-born Earl Walls emerged as the fighter of the year in Canada and Armand Savoie's title dream ended when the Montreal lightweight was knocked out in a world title bout at Montreal by champion Jimmy Carter of New York.

Montreal Royals won the International Baseball League title and aded the little world series with a victory over Kansas City Blues of the American Association.

Montreal Canadiens defeated Boston Bruins four games to one in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final; Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen took the Allan Cup by defeating Penticton in the best-of-seven series and the Memorial Cup went to Barrie Flyers as they won the best-of-seven final four games to one over St. Boniface Canadiens.

The Alexander Trophy was won by Halifax Atlantics, Maritime Major Hockey League champions who automatically captured the trophy when Quebec dropped out of the QAHA.

BASKETBALL TITLES



Toronto Tri-Bells won the Canadian men's senior basketball championship, defeating University of Alberta Golden Bears at Edmonton and two other hoop titles went west. Vancouver Eilers won the women's senior title three straight over Toronto Benny Maids and Winnipeg Light Infantry took the junior crown for the second straight year, defeating Montreal Hi-Aces.

Western Canada retained curling laurels. Ab Gowanlock's rink from Dauphin, Man., won the Canadian championship at Sudbury, Ont., and Gary Thode's rink from Saskatoon made it two straight in the high school tournament at Moncton, N.B.

The east and west split lacrosse honors. Peterborough Trailermen won their third straight senior title by defeating Victoria Shamrocks four games to one in the best-of-seven Mann Cup series at Victoria, and New Westminster Salmonacs defeated Long Branch Monarchs at Mimico, Ont., to win the junior title and Minto Cup.

It was a history-making betting season at Canada's race tracks as patrons poured $77,796,588 into parimutuel machines. The previous betting record of $75,000,000 was set in 1921.

Canadiana won the 94th renewal of the Queen's Plate at Toronto June 3, Coronation Day. The 8-to-5 winter-book favorite, owned by industrialist-sportsman E. P. Taylor of Toronto and ridden by jockey Eddie Arcaro, won the Queen's 50 guineas and a record-breaking purse of $20,570 for the 1¼-mile classic.

PASS COMPLETE — The Detroit Lions Jim Doran (right) receives a pass from Bobby Lane for a 20-yard gain in the first quarter of the Lions-Browns championship game at Detroit. Trying to stop Doran are Warren Lahr (No. 24) and Ken Gorgal (No. 15) of the Browns. The Lions went on to win 17-16.

Mammoth Ice Shows Replace Britain's Stage Pantomimes

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Stage pantomimes, as traditional to the Christmas season in Britain as plum pudding and mistletoe, are being pushed out of London by Hollywood-type glamor served on ice.

Mammoth ice shows with huge casts have moved in and almost taken over. Three major skating extravaganzas are booked into stadia in or around London for the Yule season but only one specimen of the time-honored "panto" on boards is scheduled here.

There is no doubt as to the popularity of ice spectacles. At least one ticket agency has sold out its allotment of seats for all three shows while the Keith Prowse agency, London's largest, reports its share almost gone.

BARBARA ANN POPULAR

One of the first large-scale ice shows to hit London following the war was a version of "Rose Marie" which starred Canada's Barbara Ann Scott. It opened in September, 1950 and ran for three months. Since then the ice shows have caught on with Britons and can count on full houses.

Ice shows in recent years have borrowed heavily from straight pantomimes for theme and treatment while adding more color and action.

British critics are generally agreed that the secret of the ice shows' success is that they combine the best of several theatre attractions. The speed and acrobatics of the circus, the music and dancing of a Broadway musical and the dazzling sets and costumes of a Hollywood film are all mixed into the program.

CANNOT KEEP UP

Pantomime producers like Emile Littler, London impresario, protest that they cannot possibly afford to stage shows to rival the ice spectacles, each one of which costs about £150,000 to produce.

Some of the expensive gimmicks employed by promoter Tom Arnold for "Humpty Dumpty" are typical of those used in big-budget ice pageants. His show boasts a £10,000 colored fountain controlled by a console organ, a dozen electrically driven swans, each worth £150, a mock pullman train and several replicas of order of chivalry decorations, each insured for £1,000.

City Carpetball

The schedule for the week of January 4th is: Legion No. 9 vs Glens No. 6; Lawn Boys No. 2, vs Red Patch No. 13; Legion No. 11, vs Orphans No. 8; L.O.L. No. 12, vs Legion No. 3; Legion No 1, vs Fire Hall No. 10; Legion No. 5, vs Legion No. 7; Fire Hall No. 4, vs Posties No. 14.

The results of the last week's play are: At the Legion Hall; the Orangemen had as their opponents Orphans No. 8. In the first the L.O.L. team captured the first three ends and then won no more until the 11th and 12th frames. The Orphans scored 20 points in the seven frames won while King Billie only scored 10 points in their five ends. The second game was much closer and again the Orphans won by virtue of a big five end in the eighth frame and then by scoring a deuce in the final frame to take the game 11-10.

The games between Legion teams 11 and 7 resulted in a split. The first game was 16-5 for No. 7 after leading No. 11 by 15-0. The second game saw No. 11 take and hold the lead early and then finish ahead in a 10-7 contest. A big six end by Legion No. 3 on top of an early lead proved the difference between a win or a loss for them as they rolled to a 19-5 victory over Legion No. 1. The second game was different as they (No. 3) only scored a total of five while No. 1 chalked up 10.

The most tightly fought games were between Glens No. 6 and Fire Hall No. 4. The first was a see-saw battle resulting in a victory for the Smoke-eaters by a 10-9 score. The second was also a very close battle every frame. The game was tied at 10-all going into the final end—then the Glens scored a single to win 11-10. The posties after coming from behind to make it 4-all swept on to a 17-7 victory as they allowed their opponents to score in only two more frames. The second game was a nip-and-tuck affair. This game ended in a 9-all tie when the Posties scored a single in the final end.

The Red Patch tried hard to stop Legionnaires No. 9 but again Chuck's team were hot as they won both games. The first game's score was 14-5 for No. 9 as they kept their opponents scoring only singles whenever they lost an end. The second game was closed but a big five end in the 8th frame proved the difference between a victory and a loss when the final scored show it was 15-10 for No. 9 again.

SCORED A SIX

Fire Hall No. 10 won the first game from the Lawn Boys No. 2 when No. 10 scored a great big six. This handicap proved too great for No. 2 to overcome as they lost 10-12. In the second game while No. 2 did score a five end, those Smoke-eaters came back later with another six end and No. 10 went on to make it two victories by winning 14-11.

The scores of the previous week were: Legion No. 7 won one and tied one against Fire Hall No. 4. The Glens swept to two victories over the Post Office; Legion No. 5 and 11 split each winning one game. Fire Hall No. 10 won 11-8 over Legion No. 3 and lost 8-10. Legion No. 1 lost both games to the Red Patch by scores of 8-10 and 12-15. Lawn Boys won 7-6 over L.O.L. and lost 7-12. The Orphans proved that the league leading Legion No. 9 can be beaten as they won a 13-3 victory. But again No. 9 showed they had the stuff when in the second game trailing 6-7 going into the 11th frame they scored a three and then a two to win 11-7.

Trafton Leaves Bombers With Year's Pay

WINNIPEG (CP)—Fiery George Trafton now is a free agent and will be able to dicker with football clubs in Canada and the United States.

Trafton and the Winnipeg Blue Bombers came to their official parting Monday in a statement issued by Trafton and Bomber president Karl Slocomb at the club's annual meeting.

Terms of the settlement give Trafton a full salary of $12,500 for the 1954 season.

Trafton, who took the Bombers to the Grey Cup final this year, said "I've had a contract up until now and didn't feel free to negotiate with other clubs, therefore I have nothing lined up."

Slocomb told members "the executive committee unanimously passed the recommendation that a new head coach be hired for 1954 and that the president be instructed to negotiate with Mr. Trafton with a view to working out some mutually satisfactory agreement."

WANTS YEAR'S SALARY

Mr. Slocomb said he had been informed by Hart Green, representing Trafton, that the former Chicago Bear star "would terminate his contract in consideration of payment of his full salary for 1954."

A number of applications have already been received for coaching positions with the club, Slocomb said. He said he thought a coach should be signed for one year with option of renewal.

The new executive, which holds its first meeting next week, will handle hiring of the 1954 coach.

The official statement ended weeks of wrangling by the coach and executive. Trafton recently announced he had been fired and Slocomb countered this charge, saying a new "head coach" would be hired for 1954.

SHOW PROFIT

Bombers had a good year at the gate, clearing an estimated $12,540 from the Western Interprovincial Football Union regular league schedule. They will also share in receipts from the western play-offs; the semi-final game against the Ontario Rugby Football Union champion Toronto Balmy Beaches; and the Grey Cup final against Hamilton Tiger-Cats. The club expects to clear considerably more than the $16,800 they netted in 1952.

Total revenue was $399,280, while expenses were $286,660. Receipts from two exhibition games and eight league games played in Winnipeg's new stadium totalled $378,700.

TITLE BOUT DENIED

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Weill, manager of heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, said Monday he hasn't agreed to a Marciano-Danny Nardico title fight in Miami Feb. 24 or "any kind of a fight for Rocky yet."

Weill called The Associated Press over a story from Brockton, Mass., Rocky's hometown, which quoted Marciano as saying he was going to defend his title against Nardico in Miami, Feb. 24.

Rocky was quoted as saying "I'm going to New York Thursday to sign for the fight."

"He must have been misquoted or misunderstood," said Weill. "Rocky doesn't know who he's going to fight next. He may not even fight in Miami. I haven't closed for any fight.

"I've been talking to Jim Norris (president of the International Boxing Club) on the 'phone," said Weill. "We've mentioned Nardico, Dan Bucceroni and Don Cockell as possible opponents for Rocky down there in Miami but he haven't settled anything."

HOCKEY PLAYER FINED

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Lionel Heinrich, defenceman with Humboldt Indians of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, was fined $25 in police court Monday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of assault causing actual bodily harm.

Police said Heinrich struck a Prince Albert fan on the head with a hockey stick during a game here Nov. 28. The incident occurred when Humboldt coach Scotty Munro and Bill Fraser, coach of Prince Albert Mintos, staged a fist fight as both teams were leaving the ice.

The fan, Hugh Critchley, said he was not paying much attention and was looking the other way when "clubbed." Heinrich said Critchley was trying to get on the ice to grab a teammate.

Campbell Cracks Down On Stick-Swinging

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League swung the big stick Monday night in the sequel to a stick-swinging duel in Madison Square Gardens Dec. 20.

In the harshest rebuke in some years, Campbell suspended Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens for eight games and Ron Murphy of New York Rangers for five as punishment for the incident in which both were injured.

His announcement, after a week-long study, said neither player was blameless and that the officiating of the game will be the subject of a separate investigation by the referee-in-chief.

Campbell said:

"But it is not sufficient to consider only the comparative results for the principals. What is much more important is the possible effect of the entire episode on the game as a whole, including other players and the clubs and the public.

GREATEST RISK

"Stick swinging is the greatest single risk to the careers of players and jeopardizes the entire conduct of the sport. . . ."

Geoffrion dropped from second to third place in individual scoring position during the week, it was shown in league statistics released today. It is Murphy's first year in the NHL.

Campbell said Murphy, still in hospital with a broken jaw, first menaced Geoffrion with his stick while the Canadien player was attempting to fight with his fists. As linesman Dom Baolto tried to separate the men, Geoffrion suffered a blow on "the right side of his head opening a cut which subsequently required four stitches."

Geoffrion then retrieved a loose stick and "took a terrific two-handed overhead swing at Murphy but missed and his stick struck the ice. He immediately followed with another two-handed baseball swing which struck Murphy on the left side of the face and Murphy fell to the ice."

"Subsequent medical examination showed that Murphy had suffered a fracture of the upper left jaw near the ear and a severe concussion which the medical report states will incapacitate him for the balance of the season," Campbell's statement added.

POOR PUBLICITY

Campbell said the game was played against a background of "ill-considered publicity" suggesting the renewal of an earlier feud among several other players on both teams, and "the players and fans followed that cue."

The suspensions, dated from Dec. 20 mean Geoffrion will miss the next seven games between Canadiens and Rangers. Murphy is suspended for the next four games. Neither player played in last Saturday's game here, which went without fireworks.

Geoffrion, interviewed at Sudbury, Ont., where Canadiens played, an exhibition game Monday night, said he considers it a stiff suspension for "something I did to protect myself."

Dick Irvin, Canadiens coach, commented in similar vein.

SUSPENDED—The National Hockey League has suspended Boom Boom Geoffrion, high-scoring right-winger with Montreal Canadiens for eight games following an official inquiry into the Boomer's stick-swinging duel with Ron Murphy of New York Rangers, December 20. Murphy suffered a broken jaw in the battle at New York.

Find 21 Boxing Fatalities Recorded During 1953

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — A record number of 21 boxing fatalities in 1953 was recorded by Ring magazine in a copyrighted article appearing in its February issue.

The records showed 11 professional and 10 amateur deaths with only two pro deaths in the United States. Dick Miller died after a Worcester, Mass., bout April 21 and Robert Lee (Bobby Donald) after a Miami Beach match Aug. 18. Of the 10 amateur fatalities, six occurred in the United States.

In 1952, there were 17 deaths.

Ring also selected Nino Valdes of Cuba as the pro boxer making the most progress in 1953. The 28-year-old heavyweight, six feet, three and 215 pounds, hit the high ratings by upsetting Ezzard Charles at Miami and knocking out Heinz Neuhaus in Germany to become the No. 1 contender to champion Rocky Marciano.

RECOGNIZED FOR PROGRESS

Wallace (Bud) Smith, Carmen Basilio and Earl Walls of Edmonton also were recognized for 1953 progress. Smith took over the No. 1 ranking among lightweight challengers and Basilio moved into the same spot in the welter class after knocking down champion Kid Gavilan while losing a disputed split decision in a title bout. Walls moved into the No. 5 spot among the heavyweights by twice knocking out Rex Layne.

Ring selected Carl (Bobo) Olson, the middleweight champion, as the "boxer of the year" although the Boxing Writers Association had named welter champ Kid Gavilan as their "fighter of the year." Ring editor Nat Fleischer's board selected Olson over Gavilan, Marciano and Jimmy Carter.

The new No. 1 challengers were: Heavyweights, Valdes; light heavy, Harold Johnson; welters, Basilio; lightweights, Smith; feathers, Red Top Davis, and bantams, Robert Cohen. Randy Turpin still is No. 1 among the middle contenders and Jake Tuli in the flyweights behind champion Yoshio Shirai.

Arthur King of Toronto was rated No. 8 and Armand Savoie of Montreal No. 10 among the challengers for Carter's 135-pound crown.

I Remember

the first game I ever refereed!

BY MIKE RODDEN

"My debut as a senior referee in Sault Ste. Marie thirty years ago was memorable in the extreme. The famous Soo Greyhounds were 'entertaining' the illustrious and hard-bitten Sudbury Wolves in the inaugural test of another season and feeling was running high. Referees worked alone in that era, unaided by linesmen, the fans or team officials. I was a stranger in the roaring Soo and for that I was thankful. That game in the Soo left little to be desired with the sole exception that the howling Sudbury Wolves bore down and whipped the Greyhounds 8 to 3. A great silence prevailed when it was over—but I was not badgered or molested. The following morning, however, I ran the gauntlet of bitter fan criticism until Bill Phillips, whom I did not know or recognize, intervened a bit forcibly on my behalf."

Hitchock Begins New Suspense Film Thriller

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pudgy Alfred Hitchcock, the sultan of cinema suspense, is a sucker for tough pictures. In his latest one, the hero spends the whole film in an apartment, encased up to the chest in a plaster cast.

"I don't like to get into a rut by directing normal pictures all the time," remarks Hitchcock. "One must have a challenge now and then, you know."

He's had 'em. For instance, "Lifeboat" took place almost entirely in one lifeboat at sea after a German torpedoing.

Then there was "Rope," a grim story of a thrill killing by two young men. Hitchcock aimed to tell the tale in continuous action, with no cuts except for the end of each reel.

SCIENTIFIC PEEPER

Now he's doing "Rear Window," the story of a newspaper man, James Stewart, who breaks a leg and is confined to his Greenwich Village apartment. With nothing else to do, he starts studying the neighbors. Sort of a scientific peeping Tom, you might say.

During his peering, he notices that an invalid woman fails to appear in her apartment window. Two men come there and carry away a trunk. He thinks it's murder, and he tries to prove it by means of telescopic cameras. Eventually the murderer finds out what he's up to and pays him a visit.

"The whole action is seen from his apartment," explained Hitchcock. "The only persons who visit Stewart are his girl, Grace Kelly; the nurse, Thelma Ritter; a detective, Wendell Corey, and the murderer. All the rest of the cast are seen at a distance across the court between the apartment houses."

The director showed me the movie set and it is one of the most impressive I have ever seen. An apartment house rises six storeys in the Paramount stage, and all the 31 apartments are occupied by actors.

PUMP OUT WATER

Crews dug 20 feet below the stage floor to create a sunken garden. When the picture started, the sound man couldn't account for a gurgling noise that came through the microphone. It turned out that the excavation had struck water. Now pumps are operated between takes.

Although the scenery is limited to the surrounding apartment houses and a small patch of sky, the movie is being made in color. I asked Hitchcock how come?

"To get moods and times of day," he remarked. "The scene changes from the bright rays of morning to the subdued light of afternoon and the red of sunset.

"Also, we need color to pick out the characters at such a distance. If they were in black and white, you would scarcely notice them."

One Soldier Killed While Marking Border

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—One Israeli soldier was killed and a second was wounded in two recent incidents on the Israeli-Jordan border, an Israeli Army spokesman said Monday.

He said a soldier was killed while accompanying a survey group marking the border near the Jordanian village of Boudros, in the Lyda district.

Jordan had been asked to co-operate in the border-marking to ease friction in the area, he said.

Must Start Building Within 30 Days

OTTAWA (CP)—Home construction must start 30 days after approval of loans by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the government's housing agency said Monday.

Under the old regulations, the time limit was 90 days. The new order went into effect Dec. 17. The 90-day limit will be honored for all loans approved before Dec. 17. After that, if construction is not started within 30 days, the homeowner's loan approval will be cancelled and he must submit a new application.

Fear Fishing Finished In Lake Erie

PORT DOVER (CP)—A fisherman said Monday that there are so many ale-wives, gizzard and smelt in Lake Erie that there is no room for commercial fish.

Carl Kolbe, long a fisherman here, said the lake is just about fished out and predicted: "It's going to slump worse soon."

He blamed the loss of commercial fish on nylon nets which were introduced about three years ago when pickerel were at a low point in their population cycle. The pickerel didn't recover their numbers, he said, and "scrap fish" are taking over.

"It would take five years to get the industry back on its feet."

It was announced Monday that the licence fee for pound and trap nets has been reduced from $40 to $30 a net. Mr. Kolbe said the reduction will not keep fishermen "from going bankrupt if the fishing is no good."

Commercial fish are naturally predatory, he said, and normally keep down the number of scrap fish. But commercial fish now had become so scarce that the scrap fish were crowding them out.

Ale-wives are non - commercial fish related to the herring. The gizzards is a type of shad.

Stiff Fines Imposed On Drinking Drivers

TORONTO (CP)—Jail sentences or stiff fines for drinking drivers were the rule in Toronto police court Monday.

Five men were convicted of driving with ability impaired. One man got 15 days and another was fined $150 or 15 days, two others $100 or seven days, and another $75 or seven days.

Police and magistrates warned last week that heavy fines would be laid against drinking drivers arrested over the Christmas holiday period.

Gives Up Mail Run After 10 Years

LEAMINGTON (CP) — After 10 years and more than 8,500 flights, veteran pilot Harry Honey Saturday gave up his Pelee Island mail run.

Mr. Honey, who plans to start a business in the United States, has an accident-free record on his 22-mile run which he first flew in a single-engined plane out of Windsor. When Leamington airport was completed he moved.

The plane is the only connection between the island, off the shore of Lake Erie, and the mainland for about three months each year. His cargo has included mail, pump handles, assorted groceries, injured persons and women in the advanced stages of pregnancy.

Piston-Engine Bombers To Be Dropped By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States aircraft industry disclosed Monday it may quit building piston-engine bombers next year and confine production of fighting planes to jet aircraft.

This likelihood was expressed by retired admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, president of the Aircraft Industries Association, in a year-end review.

Ramsey reported that during 1953 the industry produced, for the first time, more airplanes powered by jet engines than by pistol engines.

"At least four new jet fighter models will reach volume production during the coming year and deliveries of jet bombers will continue to increase," Ramsey said.

75% OF OUTPUT

"Production of jet aircraft by year's end may comprise 75 per cent of the monthly military aircraft output.

"1953 saw delivery of the last piston-engined fighter and in all probability the last piston-engined bomber will be delivered during 1954."

If this prediction comes true, the only new piston driven aircraft to be acquired by the military would be transport planes, trainers, helicopters and small reconnaissance craft.

Worst Cold In Years Hits Ontario

60 Below Zero In N. Ontario, Temperatures Tumble

TORONTO —(CP)—Ontario was the coldest province in Canada today with temperatures sliding to 60 below zero in some of its northern regions.

Armstrong, 140 miles north of Port Arthur, reported 57 below. Normally it would be having temperatures a few degrees on either side of zero at this time of year.

Meteorologists in Toronto said it was the coldest spell to hit Ontario for a number of years.

Ten below was forecast for areas around Toronto Thursday with temperatures moderating for a short time Friday. Normal in the Toronto area and southern parts of the province at this time of year is a high of 32 and low of 20 above.

SNOW IN PENINSULA

Five or six inches of snow are expected today in the Niagara and Bruce peninsulas.

The weather office said the cold will probably reach Montreal later today and move into New Brunswick and Nova Scotia tonight.

Winnipeg forecasts said temperatures which have been well below zero will rise.

Alberta and Saskatchewan had mild temepratures today. British Columbia reported normal weather, just above freezing.

RCAF Transport Crashes

VANCOUVER (CP).— Fifty-one persons aboard a crippled RCAF North Star transport escaped death or serious injury today when the plane crash-landed.

VANCOUVER (CP) — An RCAF North Star transport plane crashed at the Vancouver International Airport today, but first reports said no one was killed.

It was not immediately known if anyone was injured. Six ambulances were en route to the scene of the crash, 12 miles from downtown Vancouver. Normally, the RCAF transports carry a crew of seven.

The plane overshot the runway and flipped over in a cloud of smoke. Firefighters from the airport had flames under control within minutes.

From the control tower, witnesses said the big four-engined plane crashed into bushes at the end of the field.

Sarnia Officer Given Transfer

SARNIA — (CP) — Sergeant Arthur Dymond, senior officer of the nine-man Sarnia detachment of the Ontario provincial police, said today he has been promoted to district sergeant of the OPP's Niagara Falls district, effective Jan. 11.

Two constables from Sarnia would be transferred at the same time—Thomas Shields to Bowmanville and R. J. Hall to Chatham.

Sergeant Dymond said the transfers were ordered by commissioner E. V. McNeill after study of a report made by deputy commissioner W. H. Lougheed, who conducted an investigation earlier this month into the Sarnia detachment.

No announcement was made of replacements for the Sarnia officers.

New Operating Rooms To Be Painted Green

TORONTO (CP)—The days of shiny white operating-rooms, white clad surgeons and attendants and patients shrouded in white covers may be numbered. Green is favored as a possible replacement.

Officials at Toronto General Hospital said Tuesday they plan to swing to less reflecting materials in all operating-rooms.

The neurosurgical department has been using green in its operating-rooms for several years.

It was found intense lights directed on the patient were reflected into the surgeons' eyes, causing the pupils to contract and thus reducing their ability to see.

When green was tried, doctors said, the effect was as if the light had been doubled in intensity but was not as hard on the eyes.

6 Killed, 4 Others Hurt In Head-On Crash On Hill

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—A head-on collision on an icy highway 12 miles north of here Tuesday killed six persons and injured four others. Police said automobiles driven by Paul Kunce, 42, of the Barrie district, and Kenneth Hager, 21, of Timmins, met in a snowstorm after the Kunce car pulled out to pass another car at the bottom of a steep hill on Highway 11, five miles north of the Kenogami bridge.

Killed were Hager, a hydro employee; his 20-year-old wife, whom he married last June; his wife's sister, Mrs. James Eastman, 32, of Timmins; Mrs. Eastman's daughters, Dorothy, 8, and Shirley, 6; and Mrs. Kunce, 36.

Injured were Kunce, one-time proprietor of a Toronto fish and chips shop and now operator of a fishing camp on Little Lake, just north of Barrie; his daughter, Pauline, 13, and son, Roland, 9; and James Eastman, husband of one of the woman victims.

Police said the Kunce car was a late-model heavy vehicle, while Hager's was a small English model.

The six persons in the Hager car were returning to Timmins from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. Rice at the Matabitchewan power station on the Montreal river. The Rices are the parents of Mrs. Hagar and Mrs. Eastman.

The Kunces are believed to have been visiting cousins who live just north of Kirkland Lake. They were on their way south to Barrie.

The impact drove both drivers against their steering wheels so violently that both steering columns were bent up toward the windshields. Rescuers spent three hours with crowbars to free Hager's body, which was pinned in the wreckage.

Dr. J. Brill of Timmins, who had been travelling along the highway, came upon the scene in time to help arrange to move the dead and injured to Kirkland Lake in private automobiles.

London Blacked Out By Smoke, Fog

LONDON (AP)—Smoke, soot and fog were combined in an evil-smelling blanket over central London today, practically blacking out the city at noon.

Londoners used pocket handkerchiefs as smog masks. Automobile headlights were turned on full at mid-day. Traffic slowed. And in movie houses the usual fog chorus of coughing and throat clearing was heard.

The smog blanket was heaviest over the heart of the city and interfered only slightly with service at London airport.

Plan To Name Moscow Envoy

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada soon will nominate an ambassador to Moscow, it was learned. The nomination must be approved by Russia before he can assume his post, unfilled for seven years.

Speculation about the nominee has centred around four veterans of the external affairs department, all of whom have served in some capacity in Moscow.

The four are John B. C. Watkins, Canadian ambassador to Norway, Leon Maynard, Canadian ambassador to Chile, and R. M. MacDonnell and J. W. Holmes, both assistant undersecretaries of state for external affairs.

Canada has not been represented at Moscow by an ambassador since 1946. The previous year, Russia withdrew Ambassador Georgi Zaroubin from Ottawa and in 1946 Canada called home ambassador Dana Wilgress from Moscow. Zaroubin, now Russian ambassador to Washington, left about the time that a Soviet spy ring was exposed in Canada but a Canadian royal commission cleared him of any connection with it.

Accept Russian Plan To Meet January 25

PARIS (AP)—Foreign Minister Georges Bidault told the French cabinet today that France, the United States and Britain will accept Russia's suggestion that the Big Four foreign ministers meet Jan. 25.

He also said that the note to be sent to Moscow soon will accept the proposal for a preliminary meeting of the four high commissioners in Germany to discuss the exact place of the meeting.

Earlier Bidault reported to the National Assembly's foreign affairs committee that at Bermuda Prime Minister Churchill had favored integration of a West German army into the North Atlantic alliance, but that he reminded Churchill France holds a veto on new members in NATO.

He reported also that President Eisenhower held the opinion that "an autonomous German army is desirable neither for France, for the United States nor for Germany."

Murder Never Committed

Feared Capture By Police Lived Months In Hollow Tree

HAMILTON — (CP) — Ontario provincial police today pieced together the strange story of a man who lived in a hollow tree for months because someone told him he was wanted for a murder that was never committed.

The story came out in police court when Stanislaw Wisiewski appeared on a vagrancy charge. Magistrate John E. Robinson remanded him for a week for mental examination, saying "this man certainly needs help."

Wisiewski was arrested after two boys on a hunting expedition in Barton township noticed a pair of boots protruding from a hole at the base of a large tree. They challenged the owner of the hoots and out came the man. The boys fled to the police.

WORKED IN HOSPITAL

Ontario provincial constables found Wisiewski once worked in a Hamilton hospital, doing odd jobs. Someone told him that the police were after him—that he had killed a woman.

Wisiewski disappeared from the hospital sometime last October, took to the field of Barton township and found the large hollow tree which he made his home. He placed burlap bags inside, drove stepping-spikes so he could climb up and look around without being seen and lived from food obtained from district farmers.

Canada, U.S. Exchanging Isotope Data

CHALK RIVER (CP) — Canada and the United States have been exchanging atomic information on processing isotopes for some time. An official of Canada's atomic energy plant here said Tuesday.

The official was commenting on a Washington report quoting Senator Bourke Hickenlooper as saying the U.S. is exchanging such information with friendly countries. The senator is vice-chairman of the joint Congressional atomic committee.

The Canadian official at this atomic centre said there was "nothing new" in the senator's statement.

Exchanges of information on atomic "processes" had been going on for about a year, he said, since the U.S. atomic energy law was amended to permit such discussions.

He declined, however, to describe the general nature of the information exchanged.

EXCHANGING DATA

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (Rep.-Iowa) has disclosed that the United States already is exchanging some secret atomic information on "materials processing" with friendly countries.

The exchange has dealt with atomic isotopes, he said. Some isotopes, or twin forms of certain elements, are used for medical treatment and scientific experiments. Industrial uses of atomic energy were not included in the exchange because of restrictions in the U.S. law, he said.

Hickenlooper, vice chairman of the joint congressional atomic committee, said in an interview Tuesday amendments to the present atomic energy law would be required to carry out President Eisenhower's proposal for international pooling of atomic energy materials for peaceful uses.

ACT AMENDED

He said the present exchange of atomic data with other free nations is possible because of a revision of the Atomic Energy Act during the last session of Congress.

"We opened up the act a little bit for exchanging of certain information with regard to materials processing," he said.

Hickenlooper did not say that countries are benefiting from American research in this field or from what sources the United States is receiving information.

$25,000 Fire Destroys Store

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — Fire early today destroyed the Saugeen Motor Sales on the main street of Walkerton and damage was estimated at $25,000. The office and parts deparment were burned along with the garage and showroom.

Firemen battled the stubborn blaze in zero temperatures but were hampered by the bitter weather and dense black smoke from burning tires.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Walkerton is 30 miles south of Owen Sound.

Two Tankers Collide, 9 Casualties

Ships Crash In Fog Killing 4 Men, 5 Others Missing

WILMINGTON, Del., (AP)—Two tankers crashed in the fog bound Delaware river early today, killing at least four men. Five others are missing.

The tankers, Atlantic Dealer and Atlantic Engineer, collided as they sought safe anchorage in the fog-shrouded river. The crash set fires on both vessels. The fire apparently caused little damage and both the Atlantic Refining Co. tankers awaited favorable tides to proceed under their own steam to Philadelphia.

The bodies of the victims were recovered by rescue ships from the U. S. army engineer sub office at Edgemoor, Del. An army engineer spokesman said its vessel, the Liston, picked up three bodies and the New Castle another.

FIVE MISSING

Eleven of the 41 crew members aboard the 1,600-ton Atlantic Dealer were thrown into the river and five still are listed as missing.

Company officials said all 46 crew members of the 19,000-ton "super-tanker" Atlantic Engineer are safe.

FIRES CONTROLLED

Fires aboard both ships were controlled quickly by the crews. Preliminary reports indicated no serious damage to either vessel and said no one was burned.

A lifeboat with a crew of five was launched almost immediately from the Dealer. Some time later the Chilean freighter Copiapo, bound for Baltimore from Philadelphia, picked up the lifeboat crew and two men who had been rescued from the river.

Both ships were bound for Philadelphia from Texas, the Atlantic Engineer with 218,000 barrels of crude oil and the Atlantic Dealer with 9,000 barrels of gasoline and 114,000 barrels of other refined products.

Beavers Lead Merry Chase

CHESTER, Eng. (CP) — Four Canadian beavers today explored colder and healthier quarters in the Chester zoo, where they won't be in danger of catching pneumonia.

The Canadian expatriates were moved Tuesday, climaxing a splashy, three-hour operation involving the Chester fire department, zoo keepers, a dozen laborers and a large crowd of probeaver spectators.

The dam-building animals had burrowed under the adjacent and tropically-heated reptile house during their six-year stay at the zoo. When they went outside to work they were in danger of catching pneumonia. Two youngsters had died of the infection and a third was saved only by penicillin shots.

At one point during Tuesday's chase—part of which was pressed by perspiring firemen among tortoises—the beavers fused the lights and plunged the zoo into darkness.

However, the firemen pumped out their pond and the fugitives were flushed from their 90-degree, log-lined retreat into cages for transport.

Tihrd Murder Suspect Believed Under Arrest

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Detective Chief William T. Fitzgibbins said today authorities in Green River, Wyo., are holding a man who apparently answers descriptions of Ralph Grubisich, a third man sought in connection with the holdup murder of a Buffalo Jeweler.

Fitzgibbons said he was in contact with police there and that every effort was being made to establish the man's identity.

Details of the arrest were not available.

The 30-year-old Grubisich, once a resident of Windsor, Ont., has been the subject of an intensive police search through the United States and Canada since Donald F. Hurd was shot during a holdup of his jewelry store in downtown Buffalo Dec. 9, 1952.

Maurice O'Dell, 28, and Walter Griffen, 27, both of Hamilton, have been convicted of first - degree murder in the case. They identified Grubisich as their partner.

18 Climb Through Window, Drop In Snowbank Outside Pembroke Junction

PEMBROKE (CP)—A rear-end sleeper on a Canadian National Railways transcontinental express burst into flame early today and one man died as 18 others scrambled to safety through a smashed window. The victim, trapped in the vestibule of the blazing car as it slowed to an emergency halt near here, has not been identified. He was believed to have boarded the train at Ottawa. Ontario provincial police detained Charles Faucault of Noranda, Que., for medical examination. Members of the train crew smashed in the door of his compartment and found the room ablaze.

WOMAN CLEARED WAY

Of the 19 passengers aboard the sleeper, several suffered light injuries and bruises as they tumbled out into the sub-zero cold in night clothes after Mrs. Charles Hoyt of Ottawa had used her travelling case to smash a passage through the window.

Mrs. Hoyt lowered her 10-year-old daughter, Dale, to the ground, then leaped out, injuring an ankle. Mrs. E. Gauthier, Valgagne, Ont., broke both wrists in her leap to safety. G. Zavalkoff of Montreal received a cut on the right foot.

Most of the passengers were asleep as the car erupted into flame when westbound transcontinental No. 1 was picking up speed outside Pembroke Junction at 2:05 a. m. EST.

The flames roared through the all-steel coach in a few seconds after conductor Frank Pink of Haileybury, Ont., and porter Joseph Bailey of Montreal had broken down Faucault's door.

The porter, making his rounds, had heard noises behind the door but could get no answer to knocks.

ROOM IN FLAMES

When the railwaymen smashed in the door, bedclothes, window drapes and even woodwork were afire.

They said Faucault, still unsinged, was jumping up and down on the smouldering rug and screaming in evident panic.

Smoke and flame gushed into the narrow corridor, following the conductor and porter down the aisle as they roused the passengers and herded them, in pyjamas and nightgowns, into the rear vestibule.

SIX FOOT PLUNGE

As the train ground to a halt, the passengers plunged six feet through the window to the frozen snow-covered embankment below. Out first went Mrs. Hoyt's daughter, pushed headlong by her mother, a trained nurse.

Meanwhile, the flames roared

Had Narrow Escape Passengers Say

NORTH BAY (CP) — "We really thought we had had it," said 12-year-old Dale Hoyt of Ottawa.

Dale and her mother, Mrs. Charles Hoyt, of Ottawa, were among 18 passengers who escaped early today from a burning Pullman of a westbound Canadian National Railways transcontinental train. The sleeper caught fire after leaving the station at Pembroke.

Dale was taken by ambulance to hospital here for examination of a possible spine injury.

In climbing out a sleeper window after her mother smashed it with a small overnight case, Dale fell seven feet to the ground. Despite her injury, the girl appeared calm although pale and exhausted as she described how the whole car was "all up in flames."

MANY IN NIGHTCLOTHES

The rest of the passengers who scrambled to safety sat in the lounge car when it arrived here 3½ hours late. They were dressed in pyjamas, underclothes, coats—anything they could grab.

Mrs. H. Martin and 11-year-old daughter Joy of Timmins lost everything except their nightclothes and coats in the fire. Neither had shoes but a pair of socks were provided for the child.

"Joy was hysterical and I had to quiet her," said her mother. "I automatically grabbed my coat."

Dr. S. P. C. Casey, a passenger, said the most severely injured were Mrs. E. Gauthier of Val Gagne, Que., who suffered two broken wrists, and Gerald Zapalkoff of Montreal, with a cut foot needing several stitches.

Dr. Casey and his wife, who arrived at Halifax from Ireland Monday, are en route to Grand Prairie, Alta.

No Contact Made With Kidnapper

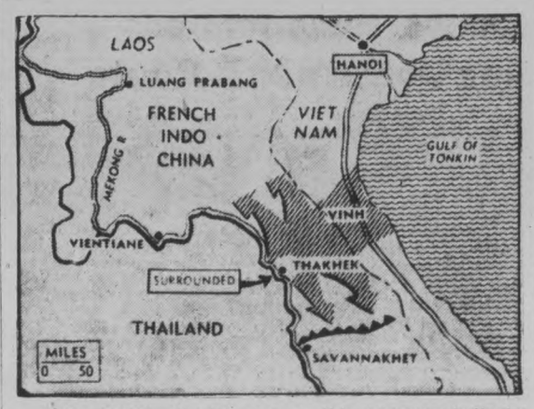
TORONTO (CP)—No contact has been made with the writer of a letter demanding $50,000 ransom for the return of Marion McDowell, chief constable Wilfred McLellan of Scarborough township police said today. He said police attribute the letter to a prankster.

However, Miss Anne Shaw, director of a school of handwriting analysis, said the note should not be dismissed as a hoax just yet.

"It could easily prove to be a hoax," she said, "but again it might not, and I can tell you that whoever wrote that note has a terrible mind."

NOT RESOURCEFUL TYPE

Another handwriting expert, Arthur Black Farmer, said Tuesday the letter-writing shows no sign of "enough resourcefulness to work one out."



The letter, signed "The Kidnapper," was written to Ross McDowell, father of the blonde junior typist missing since Dec. 6. It said Marion was alive and safe.

Rebels Increasing Pressure On Fortress

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—Vietminh rebels tightened their pressure today on Dien Bien Phu, the last French fortress in northwest Indo-China. French sources speculated that it is the major objective in the current Communist winter campaign, perhaps in preparation for another push into the invaded kingdom of Laos.

The Red-led invaders who knifed across southern Laos to Thakhek on the Thailand border last week, cutting the peninsula in two, have made no apparent move in four days. But at Dien Bien Phu, 300 troops of the Vietminh "iron division" today drew within four miles of the fortressed plain bristling with French Union troops and U.S. supplied arms.

A French army spokesman said strong French Union patrols clashed twice with Vietminh troops northwest and southwest of Dien Bien Phu. There was a strong indication that the Vietminh might be trying to move striking forces into encircling positions before launching an attack.

REDS MOVE—Shaded area on this newsmap indicates where Communist-controlled Vietminh forces are on the move again in Indo-China after a few days lull in the fighting. Laotian guerrillas still hold out in surrounded Thakhak, vital Mekong River port, as Communist spearheads probe toward Savannakhet, where French Union forces are being supplied by airlift. The Communist drive has cut the country in two.

Farm Income Sets Record For Nine Months

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian farm cash income totalled $1,901,500,000 for the first nine months this year, a record for the period, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The figure includes income from sale of farm products and from participation payments on previous year's crops. It does not include Newfoundland.

The amount for the January-September period is four per cent above the corresponding 1952 figure of $1,827,200,000 and nearly two per cent above the 1951 figure.

The bureau said the record level of farm cash income can be attributed primarily to the "unusually large" amounts of western wheat delivered by producers during the January-September period this year at weighted average initial prices higher than a year ago.

GRAINS AWAY UP

Net result was that total income from grains, seeds and hay rose to an estimated $713,900,000, about 16 per cent above the $614,200,000 figure for the first nine months last year.

Smaller receipts from other field crops such as tobacco, vegetables and potatoes provided the major offset to the total increased returns from grain crops. The great decline was in income from potatoes, which dropped about 56 per cent as a result of lower prices.

Returns from livestock and poultry were placed at $542,600,000, about one per cent below the 1952 level. Returns from cattle and calves rose to $250,200,000 from $237,900,000, increased marketings more than compensating for lower prices.

Poultry income was about five per cent higher at $75,900,000. But returns from sale of hogs fell from $232,900,000 to $211,500,000. Sheep and lambs brought slightly lower returns.

DAIRY PRODUCTS GAIN

Receipts from dairy products rose to $304,500,000 from $295,300,000 in the first nine months last year due to higher production. Egg income rose from $70,750,000 to $90,900,000.

Farm cash income rose in only three provinces—Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Cash income for the nine months in Ontario was $526,213,000. The 1952 figure was $535,884,000.

Fall 3 Storeys 3 Cheat Death

TORONTO (CP) — Three workmen escaped death Tuesday in a three-storey plunge from a scaffold on the side of a downtown Toronto building. They were taken to hospital.

Herbert Harrison and his brother Gordon suffered multiple bruises, shock and other bodily injuries. Henry Wilson suffered a back injury.

The workmen fell when part of a scaffold on which they were working collapsed. Police said their fall was broken by a framework erected beside the building.

14,000 Building Lots Will Be Available

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario planning department will make available almost 14,000 building lots in the province for low-rental housing or private building.

The largest block, nearly 5,000 lots, will be ready in the Malvern section of Scarborough township, on the eastern outskirts of Toronto.

Almost all of Ontario's main population centres are being provided with building space, either at their own request or after the government, figuring that housing will be needed, has obtained the property and then advised municipalities it was available.

Up to Oct. 30 this year, 1,100 land assembly lots had been sold; another 380 lots are available and 985 are being developed.

Grant TCA Use Of Field In Michigan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board has authorized Trans-Canada Air Lines to stop at Tampa, Fla., on flights between Montreal and Mexico City.

The CAB also granted Trans-Canada permission to use Kinross Field, Mich., as the airport serving Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

The board said Trans-Canada could operate through Tampa for a six-month period, and use Miami International airport as an alternate field when Tampa is "closed in" by weather. Similarly, Merida or Vera Cruz, Mexico, may be used as weather alternates for Mexico City.

The permit said Trans-Canada may carry between Tampa and Mexico City only such passengers, property and foreign mail as are taken on either at Montreal or Mexico City and are destined for Mexico City or Montreal.

The authorization may be extended for a six-month term.

LACKS AIRPORT

Trans-Canada said it plans to use Kinross Field, Mich., on a new all-Canadian route — Montreal, Ottawa, North Bay, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. It said there is no airport in Canadian territory to serve Sault Ste. Marie.

Under the new authority the Canadian airline must carry all passengers landing at Kinross across the international boundary by bonded automobile to the Canadian city. This arrangement already is being used on the airline's Toronto-Sault Ste. Marie-Winnipeg service. It permits intra-Canadian traffic to avoid double customs inspection and immigration formalities.

The authorization was for a trial period of six months.

Plan To Help Displaced Sailors

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is planning measures to provide new trades for deep-sea sailors displaced in the transfer of some Canadian ships to the British flag.

Informants said Tuesday no final decision has been reached but it is probable the government will meet the cost of training them for new jobs and pay them a living allowance while they are studying.

The ship transfers, disclosed Monday, are being permitted to allow financially-pressed vessel operators to take advantage of lower running costs under British registry. This involves manning the ships with British crews, who work for considerably less than Canadian seamen.

Two transfers have been approved so far by the Canadian and United Kingdom governments, and another 15 applications are under consideration. About 40 ships of the Canadian flag deep-sea fleet of 62 are regarded as in financial difficulties, though a good proportion of these will be retained under the Canadian flag.

H. F. Angus, president of the Canadian Shipowners Association, said in Montreal that an estimated 600 seamen will be laid off if all pending transfer applications are approved. In addition, shore staffs would have to be cut.

Ask City Of Sarnia To Take Over Arena

SARNIA (CP) — The City of Sarnia will be asked to take over operation of the Sarnia arena as soon as possible, the chairman of the arena's operating committee said today.

W. J. Miller said the city might obtain a provincial government grant to pay off the $8,000 remaining on the arena mortgage.

City officials refused comment on the request.

The arena was opened in 1949 after a campaign to raise funds. All but $40,000 of the original cost was obtained by public subscription.

Max Scott is the 1954 reeve of Asphodel township. He succeeds James Humphries who stepped down this year after holding the reeveship for 10 consecutive years.

Another nomination meeting will be called for January 8 because only two councillors qualified Tuesday night. They were Carman Metcalfe and Arnold Stevenson. So nominations, called for 1 p.m. in the Westwood village hall, will be for the other two councillors.

The school board are in by acclamation.

Both Mr. Scott and Mr. Humphries were nominated Wednesday but the latter, after thinking it over, decided to withdraw. Mr. Scott was a 1953 councillor.

Here is the 1954 slate:

Reeve—Max Scott.

Councillors—Carman Metcalfe and Arnold Stevenson. (Two must still be elected).

School Board—William Hefferman and James Moore(both newcomers), and Wilfred Buck (a sitting trustee).

The nomination meeting was Monday in Westwood.

All Market Groups Higher In Trading

TORONTO (CP) — All market groups were higher in moderate early afternoon stock market trading today.

Western oils led the gain. Base metals and uraniums were higher, industrials just a little stronger and golds stronger in mixed trading.

Volume at 1 p. m. was 1,562,000 shares.

Steels, liquors, refining oils and manufactures were strong in the industrials. Banks, foods and papers slipped. Utilities were steady. Weston's was a strong issue in the foods as it gained 75 cents to reach a new high.

Juniors lifted the golds into gaining territory, with several small gains and only one fractional loss. Consolidated Howey was up-and-down in active trading as almost 100,000 shares traded. Tombill was up more than five cents with a volume of more than 60,000 shares.

Noranda's dollar loss was the only senior base metals drop, as most were lightly traded for smal gains. All junior price changes were small with a few more gains than losses.

Uraniums were ahead with small gains slightly more numerous than losses. New Bidlamaque was the most active with a three-cent gain and a volume of more than 125,-00. Bathurst area base metals were quiet in mixed trading.

Canadian Williston was the western oil leader with a 44-cent gain. Almost a dozen issues showed gains of 25 cents or more.

Canoes, Hospital Beds Line Queen's N.Z. Route

By GOMER JONES

HAMILTON, N. Z. (Reuters)—New Zealanders turned out in everything from canoes to hospital beds here today to shout their welcome to the Queen on her Commonwealth tour of New Zealand.

And they used dyed lambs, trimmed hedges and gaily colored balloons as visible signs of greeting.

The Queen and Duke of Edinburgh arrived in Hamilton, where they will spend the night, after a motor tour from Auckland which took them through some of the richest dairy country in the world.

Proud residents of the small town of Tuakau trotted out three little lambs—with coats dyed separately red, white and blue—to parade by the roadside as the royal car passed.

At other points along the route, hospital patients had been brought out on the sidewalk in their beds, and the couple had a special wave for them.

One suburban hedge had been carefully trimmed to spell "au revoir."

WATER GREETING

Workers at an industrial gas factory released a cloud of brightly colored balloons at another point, and at Mercer, on the Waikato river, two water ski enthusiasts waved at the royal car while speeding along behind a motorboat.

The Queen and duke lunched at Alton Lodge Farm, home of Sir James Fletcher.

The duke leaves the Queen Thursday to attend the memorial service at Wellington for victims of the Christmas Eve rail disaster at Tangiwai. He will rejoin the Queen at Waitomo.

Thousands of persons crowded the main street of Hamilton, principal city of Waikato province, to watch the couple arrive at the hotel. Their program here included a civic dinner tonight and attendance later at the annual fiesta of youth organizations.

Police Officer Indicted In Kidnap Case

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A federal grand jury says Louis Shoulders, the veteran police officer who caught the Greenlease kidnappers, lied in his testimony about the handling of $300,000 ransom money recovered at the time of the arrest.

The jury Tuesday indicted him on a charge of perjury, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Robert C. Greenlease, millionaire Kansas City automobile dealer whose six-year-old son, Bobby, was kidnapped and killed last October, paid a record $600,000 ransom.

Approximately $300,000 was recovered with the arrest of Carl Austin Hall and his alcoholic paramour Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady. They were convicted and executed in the Missouri state prison gas chamber a week before Christmas. The other half of the ransom is still missing.

ARRESTED IN HOTEL

Shoulders, aided by Patrolman Elmer Dolan, arrested Hall in a St. Louis hotel room Oct. 6. The veteran officer, who testified before a grand jury that indicted Mrs. Heady and Hall, told the jurors that the suitcases containing the money were taken promptly to the police station.

In its indictment Tuesday, the grand jury said Shoulders testimony "as he then and there well knew and believed, was untrue and false in that the suitcases mentioned therein containing ransom money were not taken into the police station at the time and in the manner alleged."

Dolan, who was indicted on a charge of perjury two weeks ago, also had testified the suitcases were brought to the police station along with Hall. Other witnesses who were in the station at the time Hall was booked testified they saw no suitcases brought in with him.

Police records show Hall was book at 8:57 p. m. Kansas City and St. Louis authorities declined to say when the suitcases first were reported seen by persons other than Shoulders and Dolan. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has reported, however, that some policemen at the station said they first saw the suitcases at 11:30 p. m.

Drunk Drivers To Get No Mercy

Drunken drivers can expect no mercy from city police during the New Year holiday weekend. The department intends to stamp out this type of offence and extra vigilance will be the order of the day from now on.

These were the sentiments expressed by police chief John Thompson today as he forecast severe penalties for anyone convicted on a drunk-driving charge.

During the Christmas holiday the accident rate had not been so bad, continued the chief. However, the total 1953 record for Peterborough did not present an attractive picture. In the coming year the police department intended to do all in its power to help the public, both drivers and pedestrians, become safety conscious.

Chief Thompson blamed office and house parties as major contributors to drunken driving. Office parties were illegal and the cause of far too many accidents.

"Hosts and hostesses can show real hospitality by ensuring that their guests' one for the road doesn't end up as one for the hospital or cells", he said.

The chief also wished to thank all those who assisted Constable Don Mackay with the Christmas safety parade last week. He knew of many drivers who had taken caution from the safety messages broadcast and the wrecked cars exhibited.

Construction Industry Sets All-Time Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's construction industry in 1953 handled $4,500,000,000 worth of business, an all-time record.

John N. Flood, of Saint John, N.B., president of the Canadian Construction Association, announced this figure Tuesday and added that the outlook for 1954 was at least as favorable.

Mr. Flood, whose organization represents about 1,000 construction companies from coast to coast, said the industry had employed 468,000 on-site workers this year.

Boys' Air Rifles Not Toys Chief Warns

Two small boys, their knees visibly shaking, made an apprehensive approach up the stairway leading to police chief John Thompson's office in the city hall Tuesday.

They knocked timidly on the door, and at a stentorian command, entered the inner sanctum. About 15 minutes later the door opened again and the youngsters made a wide-eyed bolt for the exit.

The boys were just two of many who each year cannot resist the temptation to shoot off their air guns (commonly known as bee bee guns) around the city streets. On this occasion a window had been broken. The two boys admitted firing their rifles in the vicinity, but pleaded absolute innocence to the punctured window.

"This business of air rifles and broken windows is the usual aftermath of any holiday and especially Christmas," commented chief Thompson. "We don't want to spoil the youngsters' fun, but these so-called toy guns are a menace. Many a person has lost the sight of an eye because of them."

FIREARMS

What many people did not know was that air guns are classed as a firearm and there is a bylaw which prohibits firing them in the city.

It should be a warning to parents that it is against the law to give any child under 14 years an air rifle. Shopkeepers are not allowed to sell air rifles to anyone under that age. Such offenders can be charged under sections of the criminal code. Police can also confiscate the rifles.

To illustrated the potential danger and velocity behind an air gun pellet Chief Thompson produced a sheet of plate glass, one-quarter of an inch thick. A lead pellet, fired from a distance of 15 feet, had penetrated the glass and carried on far a further distance.

down the green night curtains of the berths and through the bedding.

Police quoted Faucault as saying:

"The fire started when I went to sleep with a cigarette . . . that's how it started . . . I went to sleep with a cigarette . . .

They said he repeated it over and over again.

BEING DETAINED

He was detained on a holding charge under the Mental Hospitals Act, and justice of the peace John Campbell remanded him for medical examination.

Zavalkoff was believed to have been injured in trying to smash one of the heavy windows as the passengers jammed the tail-end vestibule in a pile-up towards the rear door.

After first aid, all passengers were able to continue as far as the North Bay divisional point, where the train arrived four hours late.

The body of the dead man, burned beyond recognition, was found in the rear vestibule of the coach, where he apparently had suffocated while waiting his turn at the window.

BURNED TWO HOURS

Pembroke firemen fought the blaze for more than two hours before it was extinguished. When the train crew noticed the fire, the 10-car train was brought to a jolting stop and the burning coach was uncoupled. A freight engine from the Pembroke station was dispatched to pull the ill-fated coach, by then a flaming inferno, back along the main line to where the Pembroke fire department was waiting with a hose hooked to a hydrant.

Police officers Huntly Munro and R. W. Ritchie were among the first to spot the blaze. They assisted the train crew in summoning aid.

Investigation is being conducted by Cpl. Larry Gartner and constables J. I. Doney and E. N. Milner of the Pembroke detachment of the Ontario provincial police.

Dr. J. H. Joyner of Pembroke, treated the injured, who were moved into the adjoining car. Only a few suffered cuts, and all were allowed to continue on to North Bay after a three-hour delay.

EXPECT INQUEST

Coroner J. C. Bradley of Pembroke was called. It is expected an inquest will be held.

Those who escaped included:

Miss Margaret Jones, Kirkland Lake; Bill Vance, Montreal; Mrs. Charles Hoyt, Ottawa; Dale Hoyt, Ottawa; Miss Cecille Maille, Montreal; Miss Joyce Martin, Timmins; Mrs. H. Martin, Timmins; F. W. Wilkinson, Schumacher; C. A. Napier, North Bay; J. C. Dukeshire, Ottawa; R. C. Squires, Chicago; Joseph Bailey, Montreal.

RAILWAY GIVES DETAILS

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways officials gave the following account of the fire in a sleeper of a westbound transcontinental train near Pembroke early today during which a man lost his life:

"Reports received from the crew of train No. 1 stated that after the train had left Pembroke Junction at 2:15 a.m., porter J. D. Bailey of Montreal discovered sleeping car Louisburg on fire. This car of all-steel construction was on the rear of the train.

"The porter stopped the train and awakened the passengers who were transferred to other cars on the train. All passengers in the sleeper Louisburg were safely accounted for with the exception of one unidentified male passenger who apparently died during the fire.

"The fire apparently started in one of the drawing rooms of the car and the occupant of that room was removed from the train by the Ontario provincial police.

"The train proceeded after a delay of three hours and 14 minutes to its schedule."

Would Set Up Wheat Marketing Plan

KITCHENER (CP) — A movement is under way to set up a wheat marketing scheme for Ontario aimed at lending support to the farmer growing wheat as a cash crop.

Raymond Hergott of Matryhill, chairman of the "wheat commodity group" outlined various aspects of the plan Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Waterloo county Federation of Agriculture.

Mr. Hergott said a considerable amount of Waterloo county wheat is now used for feed purposes.

If and when large crops are grown for re-sale, farmers would be faced with a storage problem until it was time to move the crop.

Given Shiner After Refusal Zsa Zsa Says

LAS VEGAS (CP)—Shapely Zsa Zsa Gabor's photographs today showed her with a black patch over her right eye. She said it concealed a shiner bestowed on her Sunday night by Porfirio Rubirosa.

In New York, where Rubirosa was scheduled to marry Barbara Hutton today, the hot-blooded former diplomat heatedly denied Miss Gabor's charge that he struck her after Zsa Zsa refused to marry him.

"I emphatically deny that I asked her to marry me when I was in Las Vegas," Rubirosa told reporters.

He added that he hasn't proposed to Miss Gabor since he asked Miss Hutton to marry him two weeks ago.

But in Las Vegas, where a physician described the Gabor eye as "black as the ace of spades," Zsa Zsa insisted that "the poor boy lost his temper when I refused him."

She added that she has been refusing Rubirosa all over the United States and Europe for the last eight months.

Currently appearing with her sister, Eva, in a $20,000-a-week night-club show, Zsa Zsa declared that, shiner, or no shiner, the show must go on.

"I'm going to wear dark glasses," she said.

Croll To Be Chairman Of Banking Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — David Croll, Liberal member for Toronto Spadina is expected ot be elected chairman of the Commons banking and commerce committee, which will have the toughest committee job at this session of Parliament.

Major job of the committee will be to scrutinize the government's proposed bill to revise the Bank Act. It will be a long and technically difficult task.

Fourth Gas Victim

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor's fourth gas victim in a week, Mrs. Antoni Kerbel died this morning in Hotel Dieu Hospital. Firemen and police broke into her home last week to rescue her. Her husband was dead when they arrived.

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Novak were found dead of gas fumes.

Teachers To Fight Schedule

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario high school teachers Tuesday took action to back up their opposition to the single salary schedule with all the resources at their command. Public school teachers favor the scheme under which both high school and public school teachers receive equal salaries for equal qualifications, experience and responsibility. The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation is opposed on the grounds that high school and public school teachers should have separate salary scales so they "can bargain for themselves alone."

The dispute, which affects Toronto in particular, has been simmering for months. The rift was widened this week by decisions taken at the annual assemblies here of the OSSTF, representing 6,200 teachers, and the Ontario Public School Teachers' Federation, with a membership of 4,500.

MASS RESIGNATIONS

The Toronto Board of Education is faced with a mass resignation threat next May by high school teachers if it refuses to change its decision not to eliminate the single salary schedule. Toronto has 883 high school teachers and of the public school teachers about 400 are qualified to teach in secondary schools.

The OSSTF, in the second session of its three-day annual assembly, agreed to support the fight against the single salary schedule in Toronto. It also voted in favor of a province-wide levy on its membership for funds to support the Toronto teachers and to set up machinery to expel any federation member who teaches after next June under any school board which operates a single salary schedule.

WHOLEHEARTED SUPPORT

The views of the elementary school teachers on the issue was expressed by president Thomas Aldcorn of the OPSMTF. He pledged in an address to the federation that "unanimous and whole hearted support" will be given to the principle of a single salary scale.

The OPSMTF has voted that qualified public school teachers would be considered to be acting ethically if they took high school posts made vacant by resignations of secondary school teachers.

National Grocers Warehouse At Lindsay Closes

National Grocers Co. Ltd. have announced that their warehouse in Lindsay will be closed January 16, 1954 Customers of that warehouse will be then supplied by the warehouses in Peterborough, Oshawa, and Orillia.

Employees at the Lindsay warehouse who wish to stay with the company will be re-located in the other three warehouses.

The Lindsay warehouse, acquired in 1925, is considered completely out of date. Yet, the business in the Lindsay district, especially in summer, has increased considerably. So much so, the present warehouse is completely inadequate.

An entirely new warehouse has been built in Orillia replacing the old one which burned in March of this year. Additions to the Peterborough equipment were made some time ago, and the Oshawa establishment is undergoing revisions which will increase its capacity by 50 per cent.

Through a division of the business between these three branches a much better service can be maintained than is presently possible in Lindsay.

William Vance, 28, of Montreal said he believes there may be more than one life lost in the fire. He said when he heard the commotion he got up, dressed leisurely and then walked back towards the fire. He tried to get out the back door but it jammed. When the train started up again he was ready to get out but another passenger held him back. Motion of the train forced smoke into the back of the car where terrified passengers were trying to open the door. Finally he escaped through a window.

"A matter of seconds," he said, "and we'd all have been goners."

Mr. Zapalkoff also said he believed more people may have been lost in the fire.

Mrs. Gauthier, still walking around with two broken wrists when the train arrived at North Bay, was returning home after spending Christmas in Montreal and Quebec. With her was her eight-year-old son, Remi.

She pushed the child through a window and then followed, breaking both wrists in the fall.

Passengers agreed that a few vital seconds made the difference between life and death and that they were saved by the fast work of the conductor, Frank Pink of Montreal, and car porter Joseph Bailey of Montreal.

The conductor pulled the emergency signal to stop the train after the porter raced up to tell him the train was on fire. Mr. Pink said he used blankets to try to beat out the flames when "suddenly it just exploded up into my face. I shouted, 'Everyone get out.' I (again) pulled the emergency signal. By that time the car was an inferno. I thought everyone got out. Then I passed out."

Newcastle Man Killed By Truck

Joseph Domacola, 25, of Newcastle was killed early Tuesday morning in the village when he was struck by a trailer-transport that was travelling west along King St., the continuation of Highway 2 in Newcastle.

Domacola was on the north side of King St. and George Mooney, the transport driver who lives in the Ottawa district, tried to avoid him. The transport went into a skid, jack-knifed and ran up onto the sidewalk.

Mooney was temporarily trapped by a load of wallboard that was thrown out of the transport by the sudden stop. He was freed by a woman motorist who was passing. Domacola was killed almost instantly.

The cab of the transport was wrecked.

Newcastle police investigated the accident.

Cobourg Men Still Hunting Veterans' Ages Total 157

COBOURG (ENS)—Ezra Houghtailing, 84, and Norris Roberts, 73, are two Cobourg "youngsters" whose hobby is hunting. Both have hunted from the time they were boys and can still walk the legs off the average younger man.

Around the middle of November, Ezra and Norris and Ezra's coon hound, Tony, hunted for a week along an area extending from north of Cobourg up to Hastings. In on day they accounted for seven coons, getting a total of 15 coons in the week, plus two fox. Both men are noted marksmen, but they give most of the credit to the dog, Tony.

A word or two here about this sleek, light tan hound would be appropriate. Tony is three years old and is a Kentucky Red Bone with one cross of bloodhound.

"Boy, oh boy, that fellow Tony can hunt coons. If there's one in the neighborhood he'll have it up a tree and then he'll hollar like blazes for you to come and get him.

NEARLY LOST LIP

"One old coon was a little too quick and just about tore Tony's lower lip off. He'll go for rabbits or foxes too, but once he hits the trail of a coon that's all he's interested in. When we're ready to move on, all I have to do is blow the horn on my car and he comes a-running," said Ezra.

Ezra has lived in these parts all his life. He was born near Roseneath and was a blacksmith for forty years. He moved into Cobourg some thirty yeears ago and went into the garage business, an occupation which he had followed during the latter part of his residence at Roseneath. Naturally when business slacked off a bit in the winter, he took advantage of the situation by getting out the hound, shoving some shells in his pocket and slinging old Betsy under his arm.

KNOWN AS EXPERT

Ezra is known all over the district as an expert with the shotgun or rifle. He belonged to the Northumberland Fish and Game Club when it was active, and when he goes to a turkey or goose shoot he is sure to win a bird. In spite of his 84 years he is rugged and strong and would pass for any well-preserved man of 60.

His hunting pal, Norris Roberts, has only been a Cobourg resident 11 years. Before that he farmed near Trenton. He now works on the night desk at the Chateau Hotel. Like Ezra, the years have been kind to him. He is tall and lean and very active.

Although he is 73 years of age, he thinks nothing of a long walk with gun and dog, and he and Ezra have hunted all over Northumberland County.

Cobourg Mail Reaches Total Of 205,000

COBOURG (ENS)—Approximately 205,000 pieces of mail passed through the cancelling machines at Cobourg post office during the Christmas rush, which was an increase of nine per cent over last year.

In addition, it is estimated that about 25,000 pieces of mail were received from the eight rural offices in the surrounding area.

The regular staff of 15 were assisted by 12 additional men taken on for a week during the rush. The public responded to the mail-early appeal and mailings started on December 14, reaching the peak on December 16 and 17.

It was pointed out by Postmaster Peter Quinn that all mail received in the office up to noon on December 24 was delivered. Heavy mail was received the night of December 24 and delivered on December 26.

Former Rector Assists In Cavan Services

MILLBROOK (ENS). — The Rev. C. M. MacLean of Niagara Falls, N..Y, assisted the present rector of the parish of Cavan, the Rev. L. R. Pocock, with all three serivces last Sunday — one in St. Thomas', Millbrook, the others in St. John's, Ida, and Christ Church, Bailieboro. Mr. MacLean served as rector of the parish immediately before the Rev. A. A. Chote, who was Mr. Pocock's predecessor.

Mr. and Mrs. MacLean and Douglas were the dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Winslow, and Dianne was the guest of Janet Hobbs.

"New Look" In United States Defence Policy

By A. BUCHAN

WASHINGTON (OFNS) — In August this year an entirely new joint chiefs of staff of the United States armed forces took office under the chairmanship of Admiral Arthur Radford, with a directive from President Eisenhower to restudy the whole basis of the defence program and strategic commitments of the United States. The final drafting of the military budget which will be presented to Congress at the beginning of next year by the President, as part (and the most important part) of the main Federal budget, has made it possible to judge some of the results of this "New Look."

The new military budget contemplates an actual expenditure in 1954/55 of some $38,000 million, a reduction of $4,500 million over the expenditure in the current year, and a reduction from $34,500 million to $32,000 million in the request for new appropriations.

MUCH DISPUTE

This reduction is based on a strategic decision which has been arrived at with great difficulty and inter-service, dispute namely to reduce the man-power and size of the navy, army, and marines while permitting the Air Force to continue its expansion. Thus the new joint chiefs, with the President's backing, have abandoned the concept of "balanced forces," that is of keeping the three main fighting services in roughly constant proportion, in favour of increased reliance upon air power.

While the new joint chiefs have refused to commit themselves to a firm decision beyond the middle of 1955 and even tentatively beyond the middle of 1957, the present plans call for a reduction in the size of the Army from its present strength of 1,500,000 men to 1,225,00 by mid-1955 and to one million men by mid-1957; the the Navy would decline from its present strength of 775,000 to 670,000 by mid-1955 and to 650,000 by mid-1957, with proportionate reductions in the Marine Corps. Conversely, the air force will expand from its present strength of 945,000 men and 110 wings (a combat group varying in size up to about seventy aircraft) to 970,000 and 127 wings by mid-1955 and possibly to 137 wings by mid-1957.

This change of emphasis, according to the public statements of Admiral Radford, has been caused by the desire to put the American military program upon a long-term basis. The original rearmament program launched by the Truman Administration after the outbreak of the Korean war in 1950 envisaged a rapid build-up to a peak of strength to be reached between 1954 and 1956, after which both expenditure and production would be reduced to a care-and-maintenance basis. This program has begun to be abandoned before President Eisenhower took office, but the arrival of a new administration and a new Joint Chiefs of Staff has accelerated the process.

The American military program is now based upon the following considerations:

1. The danger of a Russian land attack in the West has lessened while the possibility of both an all-out atomic aerial war and of limited conflicts in the Far East and elsewhere has increased.

2. Whatever the chances of a lowering of tension between Russia and the West through diplomatic action, there are no indications that justify a relaxation of a "strong military posture" on the part of the United States for the next ten or twenty years.

ASSAULTS OF CONGRESS

Therefore the American military program must be reorganised on the most economical basis possible in order to prevent a distortion of the American economy and in order to render it as immune as possible to the assaults of Congress. The long term figure for annual military expenditure is calculated at somewhere below $30,000 million and with forces of three million men(the present strength of all the armed forces is 3,500,000 men).

3. This can be done only by taking the fullest advantage of the firepower of all forms of atomic weapons and new missiles, to replace that of men and formations stationed overseas. The American soldier, because of the social climate of the United States, is the most expensive soldier in the world, by some three or four times, to maintain abroad. Even if the American public were prepared to accept a lower standard of living on his behalf, the present strategic disposition of the the forces of the United States, with six of its twenty-three army and marine divisions in Germany and nine more at the opposite end of the world in Korea and Japan, is exceedingly expensive to maintain. While all three services have made strides in the use of atomic weapons, air power is still the most satisfactory means of delivering atomic bombs on any scale. It can be argued that a squadron of heavy bombers with atomic bombs based in Germany is as great a deterrent to the Russians as an American army division there and costs far less to maintain.

4. Russia's possession of the hydrogen bomb presents a new threat to the industrial heartland of the United States itself against which no defensive system, however elaborate, can be fool-proof. The most effective defence of the United States and of Western Europe rests on the certainty of immediate and devastating retaliation against such an attack, and this gives a renewed importance to the American Strategic Air Command—the long-range bombers.

APPLY GRADUALLY

As Admiral Radford has made clear this change of emphasis can be applied only gradually. Moreover senior defence officials, including Mr. Charles Wilson, the Secretary of Defence, have made it clear that this is a policy of military evolution, not revolution, which will take a long time to bear fruit and may be considerably modified as it proceeds.

There is considerable unhappiness both in the U.S. Army and the Navy at the prospect of a decline in their relative importance at the expense of the Air Force, which may have its effect upon the view which Congress takes of the new program.

The diplomatic repercussions in Europe of a gradual reduction (though not wtihdrawal) of American ground forces there and of its effect upon the American position in NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organisation) have not been fully thought out. But it is clear that the technological change in warfare which atomic weapons are producing is going to have a profound effect upon American strategic policy.

Turkey Market Favorable At Christmas

Farmers who raised flocks of turkeys report a more favorable market at Christmas than a year ago. Twenty tons of poultry sold at Meaford in Grey. Turkeys brought 45 to 58 cents, chickens 42 and 43, ducks and geese, 35 and 42. A Huron county man sold his entire flock of 9,000 birds.

Turkeys in Ontario county (at Uxbridge) sold up to 55-60c; ducks 40-42c; geese 38-40c. A comment from that county: "Prices being paid to farmers for broilers are at a low level now, but this is accounted for by the fact that the demand is for heavy fowl at this season of the year."

A few fields of corn are still to be picked in Middlesex, but in South Simcoe the last field of grain corn was harvested 10 days ago, yielding about 55 bushels to the acre.

Grenville reports that dealers in grain corn are meeting with greater sales for 1954. Quite a number of cattle and other livestock were out in the fields until Dec. 14, "where there was long grass and protection resulting in considerable saving of feed and labor". Cattle are not as in good condition as might have been expected. "Perhaps it would have been better if they had been stabled earlier."

Livestock Boom

CALGARY (CP)—A record total of 208,334 head of cattle and calves were marketed at the Alberta stockyards here in the first 11 months of 1953. The previous record was in 1948, when 182,157 head were marketed in 12 months

Girl 7, Dies Of Food Poisoning

TRAIL, B. C. (CP)—A seven-year-old girl died in hospital Tuesday night, second victim of Christmas dinner food poisoning.

The girl, Jennie Hlookoff f Grand Forks, B. C., died of botulism, a deadly and comparatively rare form of food poisoning. Her father, 29-year-old logging truck driver Peter Hlookoff, died Monday.

30 Below Zero In Minnesota

CHICAGO (AP)—Biting cold hit the northern Midwest today as Arctic air from Canada spread southeastward from the Dakotas to the Ohio river valley.

It was 30 below zero in northern Minnesota early today. Sub-zero readings also were reported in Wisconsin, North Dakota and Iowa.

Frigid spots included Bemidji and International Falls, Minn., -30; Duluth, Minn., -18; Grand Forks, N. D., -14; Grantsburg, Wis., -12, and Minneapolis, -5.

The leading edge of the cold air stretched from lower Michigan southwestward through Illinois to northern Texas.

Light snow fell in sections of the cold belt and another storm north of the Montana border moved east and southeastward to bring more snow into the Dakotas. The snow was expected to extend over much of the Midwest today and Thursday, with the cold weather continuing.

Police, Critics Unimpressed By New Jane Russell Film

ST. LOUIS (CP) — The critics were left cold and the cops weren't talking after Tuesday night's world premiere here of "The French Line" a 3-D movie starring curvaceous Jane Russell which failed to win approval from movieland's self-censor, the Breen office.

Members of the St. Louis morality squad attended the opening, which Miss Russell herself passed up, and said they would report to their superiors today. Police chief Jeremiah O'Connell said the to discontinue the movie if the to discontinue the movie if he squad members declare it obscene.

Miss Russell was critical of her controversial dance sequence in the movie and decided not to make a personal appearance at the premiere.

ADVISED NOT TO ATTEND

Roman Catholics of the St. Louis area were advised in churches Sunday not to attend the movie. A letter condemning the movie and issued by two Roman Catholic lay groups was read to the congregations.

Lieut. John Doherty, one of the morality squad members assigned to the theatre, said the squad members had a tough time getting to their seats because of the crowd. Doherty quoted the theatre manager as saying it was the largest crowd in six years.

Movie critics were much more free with their comments in today's edition of the two St. Louis newspapers.

Myles Standish o f the Post-Dispatch wrote:

"All I can say is, the song and dance in question which crudely exploits Miss Russell's wares may or may not be immoral—though certainly in bad taste—but the whole film is so tedious and inept I myself would never have stayed long enough to see the number if it weren't for the publicity.

"The police, of course, would not investigate the fraud being committed—that of continuing to exploit Miss Russell as an actress. Her talent is so meagre, after 10 years in films, as still to be amateurish."

The Globe-Democrat's Herbert L. Monk wrote:

"The plot . . . is largely for the purpose at hand. Largely that seems to have been to permit Miss Russell to display the voluptuousness which is her stock-in-trade and for which she is more noted perhaps than for he acting . . . otherwise there is little that is likely to strike many as unduly risque, fewer still as vulgar."

Queen Heals 80-Year Breach By Calling On Maori Chief

HAMILTON, N.Z. (AP)—Queen Elizabeth today healed an 80-year-old breach between a Maori chieftain and the crown by calling on "king" Koroki, head of the 250,000-strong Waikato tribe, at his pa (village), about 18 miles south of here.

The dispute concerns ownership of land claimed by the tribe, and controversy raged among the Maoris for months preceding the royal visit on whether the Queen should call on Koroki or not.

Koroki claimed that according to Maori custom a visiting "chieftainess" passing through his territory should visit him on his own marae (meeting ground). He refused to allow his tribe to attend the official Maori welcome to the Queen scheduled for Rotorua Saturday unless the Queen called at his village on the way to Hamilton today.

The fact that the Queen did so was hailed by the tribe as the final burial of the dispute.

REIGNS SUPREME

Inside his own pa Koroki reigns supreme. He has his own police, Maoris dressed in red jackets, white topees, blue trousers and brown shoes, and even his own traffic police.

The Queen was met with scenes of tremendous enthusiasm. As soon as she stepped from her car, wildly excited Maoris thronged about her.

There was the customary challenge by a Maori warrior as she approached, followed by the powhiri (Maori welcome), in which 100 women, dressed in black and wearing ferns in their hair and holding fern branches, chanted.

As the Queen drove across a bridge spanning the Waikato river, on the banks of which Koroki's village lies, two Maori war canoes, each more than 100 feet long, glided down river. Each was manned by 50 Maoris, stripped to the waist and paddling in unison to the chant of a leader in the centre of each canoe.

At the end of each stroke they pounded the butts of their paddles on the wood of the canoes and shouted.

The Queen, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, stopped the car in the middle of the bridge to watch.

FAR FROM HOME—The northland's most prominent resident took a deep swing south on his annual journey of cheer ad stopped off at Government House in Auckland, New Zealand, this week to call on Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. And here's the Royal Couple—Her Majesty all smiles and her husband curious—as Santa himself digs into his bag of tricks to find a pram and a doll for Princess Anne and a toy train for Prince Charles. For his journey south, the old gentleman used a scarlet painted buggy drawn by five dappled ponies.

Newmarket's Don Willson fired a long shot that hit the wire screen behind Nationals' goal. The puck landed on top of the goal and slowly rolled forward. While the crowd roared warning, goalie Ginger Hall peered from side to side as the puck slowly toppled, struck his back, and bounded into goal. Newmarket went on from there to win the Canadian Championship".

Crash! Crump

This is a dangerous week for cars and people in them. Here in Peterborough there is more driving after dark than in any other week of the year; people are pleasure-bent as well as going about their usual affairs. The increase in night traffic causes more risks. The danger becomes greater if—as can happen in an hour during a winter's evening—the weather deteriorates, surfaces become wet or icy, or thick falling snow obscures the view. Under such conditions or possible conditions, is it wise to add to these risks those created when a driver has had a few drinks?

* * *

The Peterborough County record of accidents is not one to indicate that the vigilance of either the drivers or the police can be relaxed this week. During the first nine months of the year (the latest period for which such statistics have been compiled) there were 587 accidents in this city and county. Last year, for the same period there were 451. The increase in accidents locally is therefore 30 per cent. The increase in accidents generally across the province for the same period was 13.7 per cent.

* * *

Let us look at the results of accidents which happened in this county in the first nine months of the year. Nine persons were killed, 201 were injured. Property damage was incurred in 457 accidents. It is not a pretty record. It should make Peterborough city and district drivers exceedingly cautious at this time of year when driving conditions are likely to be unfavourable and when the festive spirit of the holiday season is, too often among drivers, fed by bottled spirits.

* * *

Peterborough is not the only place in the province with a bad record of traffic accidents. The statistics show that again throughout Ontario there were increases in the numoer of accidents, the number of deaths resulting from them and in the damage done to property. Part of the increase is due to there being more cars, more licensed drivers, and faster cars than ever before. There are now 1,359,500 motor vehicles registered in the Province and 1,608,500 licensed drivers. These, in the first nine months of this year, had 46,636 accidents in which 736 persons were killed, and 17,668 injured. A total of seventeen million dollars' worth of damage was done to property (cars, fences and the like). Nearly half the drivers involved in these accidents were aged 25-40—principally because nearly half of all drivers are between those ages. The next largest age group of drivers involved in crashes was those aged 18-24—19,998 of them.

* * *

All the statistics we have given above, both Provincial and local, indicate an increased rate of accidents, of damage to property, of injuries to persons. At this time of year especially therefore, it is wise to drive with care and courtesy, and to heed the admonition: Arrive Alive; Don't Drink and Drive.

The Permanence Of Five Billion Dollars

When the flags were furled in 1945 and the drums of war no longer heard, Canadian taxpayers had a large hope and a faint fear. They hoped that multi-million dollar budgets for defence would end with the war; they were at the same time somewhat fearful that when the great spending for military things subsided there might be a slump. Neither has happened. There was no slump; the slack—if there was a tendency towards it in 1946—was taken up by spending on long-delayed civilian needs and to meet the requirements of a larger population rich with war-time earnings. By 1950, when the U.S. was showing signs of an economic slump ("recession" was then the word) the Korean War came, and the Western world had already begun rearming against Russia. The economy continued to flourish expansively. The corollary of this is that the tax bills did not decline.

Canada has felt these conditions in the same ways, but in differing degrees from the U.S. War came and went but military costs came to stay. In the last three years Canada has spent five billion dollars on "national defence." Uniforms remained, too. Before the last war the appearance of a military uniform on George Street caused people to stop and stare. Now blue and khaki are part of the street's colour. It is no longer odd to see a soldier, sailor or airman in a civilian crowd in a peacetime Canadian town. And although there is now no war in which this country is engaged, Canada continues sending troops and military materials overseas.

The Departments of National Defence and Defence Production are the largest spenders in the country. Item: a $250,000 recreation centre north of Seoul, built by Canada at Canadians' expense, has just been opened to give Canadian troops in Korea a place for sport, leisure and fun during off-hours and on weekends. Does it seem strange that this country should spend a quarter of a million dollars to build a permanent recreation centre in the Orient—a centre opened after the war which took Canadians to Korea in the first place has been stopped? It is strange because it is a sign of a new condition in Canadian life: the permanence of national defensive activities and a budget to support them.

From now until the end of time, or the beginning of universal brotherhood, Canada will be engaged in such alien activities as stock-piling bombing planes, garrisoning European territories, policing areas in the Orient, and spending tens of millions of dollars every year in the name of national defence. When Canada became a nation in fact and name she also took upon herself the historic national obligation which an imperfect world forces on any great or rising people: defence of the nation which, according to military law, implies readiness for offensive action, too.

The penalty of being a Power is that you have to have power. This costs money. It has cost Canada five billion dollars in the last three years. It will continue to cost Canadian taxpayers millions of dollars each year, and to require of them and their sons their work and their service.

Mexico Got Carols From Canada

Christmas in Latin America—from Mexico to Chile—is miles apart from a northern Christmas. It is a hot season. Further, the celebration has until recently been purely religious; it was not a secular holiday or festival. The times are changing, due in part to the influence of advertising, in part to migration of northern peoples (Europeans) to Latin America, in part to tourists from this country and the States.

Even Mexico has felt the change. Christmas does not exist officially in Mexico at all, because the Church is disestablished and religion is merely tolerated, not encouraged. However, Christmas has slunk in, as a correspondent of ours touring in Latin America wrote in his Christmas letter to us. "In Mexico City stores like the Palacio de Hierro and El Puerto de Liverpool are as jampacked with elbowing women as Macy's in New York. The radio in Mexico is not allowed to sponsor religious broadcasts, but gets round that by relaying carols from Canada, with the curious result that a Spanish-speaking country seems suddenly to have switched to English and French." Well, it is charming to know that Mexico has its carols—even if by the back door of Radio Canada.

Santa Claus is having his innings in Latin America, our correspondent wrote: "One unexpected effect of the secularization of Christmas has been a boost in the popularity of Santa Claus, which is frowned on by local Church leaders, who consider this a disguised pagan cult, and point out that anyway Santa Claus's prototype, St. Nicholas, is the patron saint of thieves. If the children want presents, say the priests, they can wait till the Three Wise Men come around on January 6th. The children are not convinced. They don't see why they shouldn't get presents on both occasions. So papa digs into his pocket once more, and a cash register rings again in a downtown department store."

January 6th—Twelfth Night—is the traditional Latin American time for the giving of presents to children. It is the Dia de los Reyes, and the Three Wise Men took the role of Santa Claus of the North. But as we have said, the customs are changing. Our South American correspondent wrote in the same letter that although Christmas comes to Buenos Aires in blazing midsummer, "the shop windows along crowded Calle Florida and the aristocratic Avenida Santa Fe are lavishly decorated with artificial snow, imported or synthetic holly, stuffed reindeer and animated robins. Christmas cards, ranging in subject matter from snowbound stage-coaches to gauchos round the camp-fire, have taken the place of the former visiting cards or occasional holy picture. In the big department stores bearded Father Christmases encourage Juancito and Carmencita to get papa to part with yet more of his hard-earned pesos."

The southern children seem to get the best of both worlds at this festival season; the imported Christmas and the traditional Latin American Twelfth Night. Let us hope, for the sake of our pocket-books, that the compliment of mimicry is not exchanged, and that January 6th does not become a second Christmas-gift day here.

NOTES AND COMMENT

All that alarm about roses at Christmas appears to have been unnecessary.

If 375 more babies are born in Winnipeg before the end of the year, the city will have a new birth record. To your action-stations, storks!

"Neutralism" In Egypt

By THOMAS R. LITTLE
(in Cairo)

THE CRY is being heard with renewed force in Cairo that Egypt and the Arab States should be neutral in the cold war struggle between Russia and the Western democracies.

This is an established doctrine of extreme nationalism in the Middle East, which is fostered partly by ignorance of the issues at stake and partly by subversive elements which are believed to be financed by Iron Curtain countries. That the desire for neutrality should exist in an area which considers itself to have been persistently cheated by the Western Powers, particularly over Palestine, is not surprising.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE ARGUMENT of the "neutralists," who can be found at the opposite extremes of the right-wing Moslem Brotherhood and the fellow travellers of the "peace movement," is simply that the West is "imperialist" and seeks domination, whereas Soviet Russia has done the Arabs no harm.

There are also people who support neutralism in the hope, rather than the belief, that by some miracle the Middle East could escape the world war they dread by ostentatiously having no part in the political preliminaries. They regard the British troops in the Suez Canal Zone as the magnet which would draw an enemy into the area which otherwise could remain a peaceful backwater.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS POLICY has peeped through the cracks of official censorship ever since the coup d'etat which put the present Egyptian military regime in power. Recently it has come more into the open with outright suggestions that the Egyptian Government is planning to be neutral. In fact, the most that has ever been said by an Egyptian military leader is that if it proves impossible to come to terms with Britain and the West, Egypt might be forced to adopt such a policy, but the former Wafdist newspaper, "Al-Misri," read into this statement a deliberate intention which, incidentally, coincides with its own policy.

Elaborating upon this theme, "Al-Misri" has contended that the victory of the pro-Egyptian National Unionist Party in the Sudan has paved the way for Egyptian leadership of the nationalist movements in Africa as well as the Arab world and that a plan to this end is being elaborated by the present Egyptian leaders.

It is a matter of importance to Britain as she attempts to negotiate the final clauses of an agreement for the evacuation of her troops from the Suez Canal Zone that Egypt should not calmly walk out of the Western camp immediately a settlement is reached. The British Foreign Office and the United States Department of State have therefore given some thought to the resurgence of neutralist propaganda in Egypt.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT WOULD probably be true to say that the United States views the present situation more seriously than Britain. The latter, although aware that neutralism is a strong current of opinion in the nationalist Middle East, is more apt to consider the present license given to neutralists by the Egyptian Government as part of a deliberate pressure exerted on the West, and particularly Britain, to hasten a settlement which would satisfy the nationalists in Egypt.

There is good reason to think the British view is largely correct. The principal military leaders in Egypt have privately stated that they believe that neutrality is an impossible policy for Egypt.

The policy of the military regime has been as strongly anti-Communist in domestic affairs as any of its Royalist forerunners, not least because the Communists have campaigned against it. In everything except it's war against the old politicians and the former Egyptian royal family, the regime is about as radical as the British Liberal Party. Its economic policy, as shown in the budget and its demand for foreign capital, is in essence conservative, although expressing radicalism in certain domestic issues such as labour-employer relations and land tenure.

✧ ✧

IT IS, therefore, reasonable on the part of Britain to assume that a settlement of the Suez Canal issue which would hold out the promise of greater economic and military co-operation with the West, would restore the balance of Egyptian policy, and that neutralism, which would disturb Western confidence, would be frowned upon, if not actually suppressed.

What makes it different to assess the strength of the neutralist movement in the Egyptian leadership is the form of government in Egypt. The Council of Revolution is within itself a democratic body deciding issues by majority vote.

The members of the Council have shown their ability to abide by majority decisions, but inevitably in a group brought together by former military ties rather than political doctrine, there are trends of opinion which have to argue themselves out at periods of doubt.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS SEEMS to be the situation now. Those members of the Council who believe in a settlement with Britain and the West are now under greater pressure from their more sceptical colleagues because of the failure to reach an agreement with Britain in nearly eight months of sporadic negotiations.

"You see," some members of the Council say, "it is useless to negotiate with Britain. Drop the whole business. Let the British get out in 1956 when their treaty ends. Let us be neutral and trust to ourselves."

It is quite possible that this opinion would become dominant if there were to be a complete breakdown in the Anglo-Egyptian negotiations, but it is difficult to believe that neutralism would survive the practical benefits which would accrue to Egypt from a settlement with Britain. Essentially it is a policy of frustration which has fed on the Arab failure against the Jews in Palestine and the dispute with Britain, and the end of the latter would remove half its nationalistic justification.

THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER

The New President of France

By NORA BELOFF

WHY has the affable 71-year-old Senator, Rene Coty, and his plump grandmotherly wife, almost unknown to the public until today, been suddenly and unexpectedly hoisted to the pinnacle of the French State?

First reason: the business of electing a new President of the French Republic had to end before Christmas and indeed had already dragged on too long for the dignity and convenience of the nine hundred Deputies and Senators who sat together as the Congress of Versailles. The interminable political intrigues surrounding the election which at first had amused the French public were beginning to cause disgust and anger. Significantly Congressmen were cautiously removing their parking notices on the front of their cars which singled them out outside the premises of the Chateau of Versailles for ribaldry and abuse. "Il faut en finir" (We must put a stop to it.) was the slogan of the thirteenth and decisive ballot which chose Senator Coty as the new President.

Second reason: This is a conservative Parliament, probably the most convervative France has had in nearly thirty years, and in his decades of Parliamentary activity or even in his early youth, when he entered politics through local government, Senator Coty has never deviated from the Right.

On the other hand, unlike so many French conservative politicians, the President-elect never flirted with fascism. His absolute refusal to associate his name with capitulation and war-time collaboration with the Nazis, meant that he escaped the pulverisation on the Right-wing groups which took place in the Parliamentary elections immediately after the war.

✧ ✧ ✧

HE WAS, therefore, able to represent his Norman constituents at the two Constituent Assemblies and has the merit of having warned France against the feeble political system the Assemblies chose, a system which has provoked a government crisis about twice a year ever since.

Third Reason: Senator Coty was the man who divided the Right and Centre parties least. The notables in these parties had at least as many friends as enemies. There was no obviously dominant character except M. Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber of Deputies, who, as 83 years of age, has declared himself too old to face the Presidency.

The only other outstanding candidate was the outgoing President, M. Vincent Auriol, but he was a member of the Socialist Party and although in principle the President is not supposed to be a political and party man, he was handicapped by the fact that he no longer represented the dominant political trend. Senator Coty, on the other hand, benefitted from being obscure and having no pronounced opinions on the politically explosive issues of the times.

Finally, it is only fair to add that M. Coty's own personality was all to his advantage. It is true, of course, that in the inter-Party manoeuvring and bitter personal quarrels which went on during and in between the first twelve ballots at the Congress of Versailles, very little was heard about who had the qualities to make the best President. Nevertheless, when came the time for decision it was generally recognized that M. Coty was a very presentable old gentleman with a charming smile, several decades of political experience and an almost British capacity for compromise. The son of a headmaster of a private school in Le Havre, he has no family fortune (he is not related to the famous cosmetics firm of oty), to enrage egalitarian instincts but also no egalitarian convictions to frighten the French propertied —and for the time being governing—classes.

It is safe to guess that the President-elect will not be the instrument of the profound political and social changes of which France seems to stand so desperately in need. But under the French constitution he is there to reign and not to govern. It is equally sure that he is not the man to put himself up as a shield of a condemned regime, nor to raise a neo-nationalist conservative clamour against existing plans for a united Europe defended by a single European Army.

Dumping Duties

(Winnipeg Free Press)

In the controversy over the demands of the Canadian textile industry for higher protection, secured through more stringent anti-dumping regulations, there has been evidence of some confusion as to precisely what the term "dumping" implies.

A recent bulletin issued by the Canadian Importers and Traders Association points out that many now urging tighter regulations contend that, if goods are sold cheaper than the cost of similar Canadian goods, this constitutes dumping. As the bulletin accurately notes, such a contention is ridiculous. On the basis of such a rule, anyone presumably could produce a Canadian article on a completely uneconomic basis and then demand the exclusion of normal imports from abroad on the grounds that these sold for prices below his own absurd production costs.

Indeed there is no good reason why anti-dumping regulations should be invoked merely because a foreign supplier happens on occasion to offer goods below cost. For business normally involves both profit and loss and an importer should not be denied the opportunity of seizing a legitimate chance to make a favorable purchase, which is open equally to any buyer in the country where the product originates.

Letter To The Editor

A HOLIDAY REMINDER

Please listen friends, tho' this is not a lecture that you hear
But a request to go easy on the liquor and the beer.
Now most folks think a little drink will cause their star to shine,
Oh, I forgot to mention! Please go easy on the wine.

To grab the wheel makes some folks feel they're the king of Spain
But just a little accident can cause a lot of pain
For a little booze makes some folks snooze;
some reckless and brave
And it's quite away to judgement day when your lying in your grave.

Chief Thompson said as you have read no leniency he'll show
If you are caught intoxicated, wallowing in the snow;
But still you're better walking tho' you won't go far,
For you'll be sunk if you're caught drunk and driving in your car.

Some sixty person now have died. God grant
there is no more
Will go this way, (that's what I pray). Have happiness galore
And try each day while on your way to spread a little cheer
And we'll round her out in glory, folks, the closing of the year.

So if you drink or if you drive or anything you do
Just think the other fellow likes to live the same as you
And happiness and peace of mind will come to you the more
And you'll find the world a better place in 1954.

SO MUCH TROUBLE

A woman in the midst of legal proceedings was complaining to a friend about the boring conferences she had to endure with lawyers.

A BRITISH OPINION

"Let's not tell 'em the strike's off—and anyway we nobbled the horse . . ."

CHICAGO (AP) — Oscar (Battling) Nelson, 71, former lightweight boxing champion, is in a psychopathic hospital suffering from complete loss of memory.

Nelson, who earned an estimated $300,000 in a 22-year fight career that spanned the turn of the century, was moved from his small hotel room to the hospital Monday.

Dr. Clarence Geary, psychiatrist assigned to the case, said Nelson "is out of contact with the world and is suffering from senile dementia."

"When he was admitted to the hospital he weighed only 80 pounds," said Geary. "He can remember nothing, not even his age. We will keep him in the hospital for a few more days for treatment and observation before making a decision on what should be done with him."

Nelson has been in his present condition ever since his wife died last Saturday.

Favor Governments Aiding Amateur Sports In Canada

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian amateur sports officials today got the backing of sports editors and sportscasters in their appeals for government money to develop athletes for international competition and for a healthier nation.

In The Canadian Press year-end poll 49 of 76 participating voters said "yes" to the question: "Do you believe amateur sports (track and field, swimming, etc.) should be subsidized by Dominion and provincial governments?"

Nineteen of those favoring subsidies said Canada should be made a serious contender in international competition such as the British Empire Games coming up in Vancouver next July and August, and also in future Olympic games.

Appeals for government funds for coaches, tracks and other training facilities were intensified after Canada's dismal showings in the 1948 and 1952 Olympic Games. While federal and provincial governments have contributed to Olympic team expenses none has yet subsidized sports training.

Six of the voters mentioning subsidies referred to the part of amateur sport in building a healthy nation while three said the amateurs should have money "just to keep them alive."

The 28 who voted against subsidies indicated they hold strong opinions.

Tommy Shields of the Ottawa Citizen said that if a sport cannot attract enough interest to make it self-supporting "then it should be dropped to the recreation category and not be a load on the public." Dave McKay of the Moncton Times said "taxes are high enough now" and Scotty Melville of the Regina Leader-Post thought athletes should help themselves, "There's too much subsidy by governments already."

ALSO VOTED 'NO'

Others who were against the idea included Bill Westwick of the Ottawa Journal; Vince Lunny, Montreal Herald; Jack Meek, Winnipeg Tribune; Bobby Hewitson, Toronto Telegram; Len Taylor, Kitchener-Waterloo Record; Milt Dunnell, Toronto Daily Star, and Alf Cottrell, Vancouver Province.

Of the subsidy voters, Johnnie Kelly of CLKC, Kingston, thought money was needed to "bring our Canadian amateurs to the fore in world competition." Ken Milton of CKX, Brandon, Man., said Canada "has failed miserably in international competition for many years and the apparent reason is lack of funds and consequent lack of interest. Both Dominion and provincial governments should contribute generously to get Canada on the right track."

Similar comments were made by Fred Wheeler of the Sarnia Canadian Observer; Hugh Bowman, CJOY, Guelph, Ont.; Ross M. Caw, CKCR, Kitchener, Ont.; Jim McKay, Woodstock Sentinel-Review; Jerry O'Grady, Brockville Recorder and Times, and Chick Appel, Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Don Pilling of the Lethbridge Herald commented that there must be more competition in amateur sports if Canada is to win anything at the Olympics and W. E. Walker of the Victoria Times, Lionel Wilson of the Prince Albert Daily Herald, Eric Swangard of the Vancouver Sun and Bill McLoughlin of CJAT, Trail, B.C., agreed.

CURB INTERFERENCE

Len Walsh of the St. John's, Nfld., Evening Telegram thought that government subsidy would eliminate what he termed "professional interference."

The development of a healthy national youth was mentioned by Frank McCool of the Calgary Albertan, George Ludgate of CHEX, Peterborough, Ont., Frank Blizzard of CHSJ, Saint John, N.B., and Britt Jessup of the North Bay Nugget.

An opinion that the subsidies should not be permanent was expressed by Hal Pawson of the Edmonton Journal. Amateur sports needed "a transfusion for the good of the nation" but any subsidy should be aimed "only at putting a sport on its feet and be designed to make it self-supporting," he added.

130 Men Have Graduated From Dorchester Prison's Vocational Training Centre

DORCHESTER, N.B. (CP)—Dorchester penitentiary, a grim hilltop fortress of grey stone, is proving that some convicted criminals can be turned into useful, law-abiding citizens.

The federal prison for the Maritimes illustrates the modern penological emphasis on reform and rehabilitation where possible.

About 560 men are confined. They come from Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick in addition to at least 50 from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary due to overcrowding in the Quebec institution.

130 GRADUATES

Canadian penitentiaries began to concentrate on reformable criminals about 1945, taking as their guidebook the report of the Archambault royal commission on the country's penal system. In the last five years approximately 130 men have graduated from Dorchester's vocational training centre and returned to society as plumbers, bricklayers, carpenters, upholsterers and draftsmen.

"We feel our contributions in trade training are a factor in a man's re-establishment," says the chief vocational officer, Robert K. Allaby. "But the major effort must come from within the man himself. His rehabilitation starts there."

Col. G. T. Goad, Dorchester warden, has similar views. He says the man who won't be reformed can't be reformed.

Efforts to equip the convict with a profitable trade, find him a job on the outside and give him a chance to go straight are concentrated on youths and first offenders. The older repeater, however, is not automatically eliminated.

Although life in Dorchester is regimented sternness, without coddling, the inmates are treated like humans. They have individual cells sheets, radio earphones, a wash basin and toilet.

The solitary confinement section is above ground, well lighted and ventilated. A prisoner here cannot smoke. His reading is restricted to trade journals. He sleeps on a wooden pallet a few inches off the floor. He has two blankets but no sheets or pillow. His toilet is a bucket. For 45 minutes a day he is exercised in the yard.

The prisoner in "solitary" for misconduct is seen daily by the penitentiary doctor. The diet is bread and water or bread, water, porridge and potatoes.

No guard will touch an inmate unless a tense situation demands force. The only weapons are rifles and revolvers in guard towers. If an enraged convict is armed with a makeshift weapon the guard on the spot must depend on judo training.

ALCOHOL FACTOR

Many prisoners battle alcohol while others try to make it. Warden Goad estimates alcohol was a factor in 50 per cent of the crimes for which the convicts are paying. An Alcoholics Anonymous group, of voluntary membership, was formed nearly five years ago and holds weekly meetings.

Occasionally ingenious prisoners concoct home brew with ingredients pilfered from the kitchen and farm. There has been no evidence of it in the last six months.

There's no lock-stepping file at Dorchester, no close-shaven head or striped suit. Neither is there any cursing of inmates—profanity is forbidden.

The penitentiary can hold about 600 men. All the men have jobs, paying five, 10 or 15 cents a day depending on grade. Of this, three cents is put aside toward the day of release.

Mercurys Crush Stratford Indians 10-6

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tommy Burlington's age might indicate he's over the hill as far as hockey players go but the scoring statistics prove otherwise.

At 33 he's the second oldest player with Owen Sound Mercurys and is one of the few players in hockey with the sight of only one eye. Despite this handicap he's nearly always been one of the top marksmen in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A group.

Tuesday night he took over the individual scoring leadership in the league as he led the Mercurys to a 10-6 win over Stratford Indians in Owen Sound with two goals and four assists. His scoring spree gave him 21 goals and 35 assists for 56 points, four more than Jack Taylor of Hamilton Tigers.

MERCS MOVE UP

The win moved the Mercurys into sole possession of second place two points behind the leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and two points ahead of Windsor Bulldogs and the Tigers.

Windsor Bulldogs advanced into a tie for third place with the Tigers by edging Niagara Falls Cataracts 2-1.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, North Bay Trappers downed the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds 3-1 at North Bay. Two unanswered third-period goals gave the Trappers the decision.

The Mercurys held a 4-3 lead going into the third period but they broke the game wide open with a three-goal splurge in the first 2½ minutes of that frame.

LECKIE GETS THREE

Burlington with his two goals and four assists was the top point getter but Roy Leckie was the leading goal scorer with three, all of them in the final period. Gerry Reid and Buck Forslund each counted twice for the Mercurys with Elwyn Morris getting the other.

The Indians' goals were shared by Keith Tolton, Lou Bendo, Mike Delich, Johnny Muretich, Ron Ingram and Dinny Flanaghan.

Windsor got both their goals in the first period and held on for the victory despite a closing rally by the Cataracts, which saw Ed Plata spoil Nick Pidsodny's bid for a shutout with a goal with less than two minutes to play. Bob Hayes and Frank Bathgate counted the Windsor goals. The loss was the third straight for the Cataracts.

Bill Dwyer scored North Bay's winning goal against the Greyhounds after the teams ended the second period deadlocked 1-1 with Ed Marineau of the Trappers and Ron Lay of the Sault club matching goals in that period. The Trappers' third goal by Ches Koneczny in the dying seconds came with Sault goalie Tom Donachey out of the net for an extra attacker.

Tonight Niagara Falls visit Hamilton and Owen Sound travels to Stratford. No games are scheduled in the NOHA.

20 Athletes Named To All-Canadian Track Team

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ten athletes from eastern Canada and 10 from the West have been named to the Amateur Athletic Union's 1953 all-Canadian track and field team.

Vancouver stars won eight places in the annual selections announced Tuesday night by Fred Rowell, national chairman of the AAUC's track and field committee. Winnipeg and Saskatoon had one each to complete the western roster.

Toronto athletes took most of the honors for the East with five placings. Hamilton had three and Montreal two. The Maritimes failed to win a place.

Don McFarlane of Hamilton, Canada's top sprinter, was ranked first for both the 100- and 220-yard dashes. He held the same spots on the 1952 team.

Other double winners were Gord Crosby of Toronto in the 120 high hurdles and 220 low hurdles and Bill Parnel of Vancouver in the mile and pentathlon events. Parnell was named to the 1952 team for the mile and Crosby for the 120-yard high hurdles.

THREE REPEATERS

Three other members of the 1952 team repeated again this year, Ron Miller of Toronto in the pole vault; David Blair of Vancouver, high jump; and Allan Craib of Winnipeg, hop, step and jump.

Rowell said team members were selected on their competitive record during the year. Canadian athletes attending United States universities were not included unless they competed in Canada in 1953.

Following are the top three selections in each event (x-denotes first place on 1952 team):

100 Yards: x-Don McFarlane, Hamilton; Bruce Springbett, Vancouver; Harry Nelson, New Westminster.

440 Yards: Jack Carrall, Montreal; Doug Clement, Vancouver; Murray Cockburn, Toronto.

880 Yards: Doug Clement, Vancouver; Bill Parnel, Vancouver; Bruce Waller, Montreal.

Mile: x-Bill Parnell, Vancouver; John Ross, Oakville; Peter Harris, Vancouver.

Two Miles: Doug Kyle, Vancouver; Ron Wallingford, Ottawa; Jerry Swan, New Westminster.

British TV Headliner Hailed As 2nd Chaplin

LONDON (Reuters)—A little fellow with sad eyes and a rubber mouth is being hailed as a second Charlie Chaplin.

Norman Wisdom, 33, has been a vaudeville and television headliner here for the last few years, but the critics broke out in a new burst of praise for his first movie, "Trouble in Store."

Wisdom, once a homeless waif who had to join the army to be sure of a meal, takes the part of a luckless salesman in a big store.

The critics commented: "A little genius . . . potentially the greatest living comic of the screen . . . the comedian the screen has been looking for since Chaplin and Harold Lloyd stopped being funny."

STARTED 5 YEARS AGO

Wisdom, five foot four and 112 pounds, hit the big-time in vaudeville five years ago. Since then he has become Britain's most popular TV comedian and now is starring at $5,000 a week in a Christmas ice show, "Sinbad on ice."

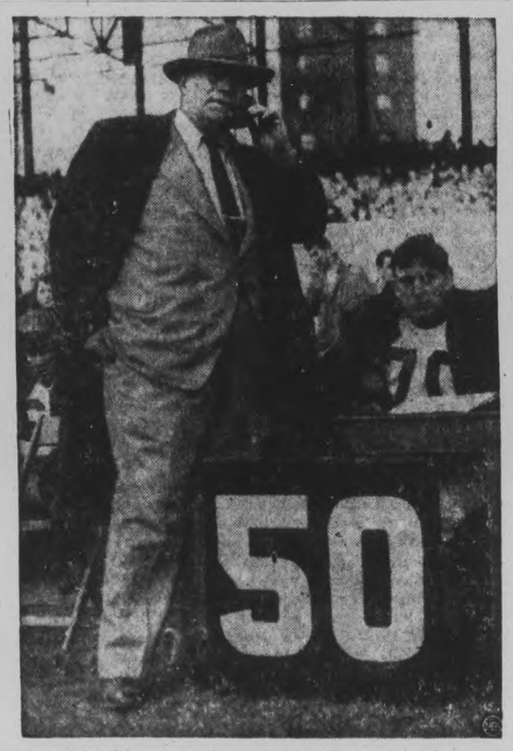
"I feel grateful," said Wisdom of his success. "If I felt otherwise, I should just think back a couple of years to when I did not matter to anybody."

Back in 1948, he mattered only to his bride, Janet, a 20-year-old dancer. With assets of only a couple of pounds, they were living in one room.

A few months ago, the Queen toured television studios and asked him: "Why don't we see more of you on television? I could go on looking at you forever."

His ambition is to play "the Hunch-back of Notre Dame."

Reds Jail Policemen



BERLIN (Reuters) — The anti-Communist "Information Bureau West" says an East German court at Potsdam has sentenced four policemen to prison terms ranging from 18 months to three years for visiting West Berlin. All four were members of the East German border police, stationed in East Berlin with strict orders not to visit West Berlin.

Irish Score 9-5 Victory Over Royals In Tough Tilt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto St. Michael's scored a 9-5 victory over Montreal Royals Tuesday night in a bruising opening game of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and Quebec Junior Hockey League interlocking schedule.

The win keeps St. Mike's abreast of St. Catharines TeePees, also on the winning side, with whom they share first place.

Strong man in the Toronto win was goalie Gerry McNamara who was injured three times in the game which saw four major penalties and one misconduct handed out during the third period.

The middle period was halted soon after the 15-minute mark when McNamara was injured by a hard shot. The remainder of the period was tacked on to the beginning of the blood-smeared final frame.

TORONTO SCORERS

Toronto scorers were Paul Knox, Ken Gribbons, Jack Caffrey, Ted Toppazzini, Dick Duff, Bill Colvin and Jim Logan. Montreal scorers were Bob Laforest, Brian McCann, Scotty Bowman, Stan Maxwell and Sandy Morrison. Dick Duff drew a major and a misconduct in the long third period for fighting and for arguing with the referee.

The TeePees' 6-2 win over Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts came after the winning score early in the third when a pass deflected in off Jack Armstrong's skate.

Other goals for the winners were netted by Brian Cullen with two and Wimpy Roberts. Hugh Barlow and Hank Ciesla, Grieg Hicks and Paul McPherson scored for the Shirts.

Hamilton Cubs scored two goals in 30 seconds for a 5-3 victory over Galt Black Hawks. The win boosts Hamilton to within one point of fourth place Greenshirts. Galt is tied with Barrie for the cellar spot.

Brian Kilrea scored twice for Hamilton. Others were Cumming Burton, Lou Dietrich and Martin MacAlendin. Galt's scorers were Hec Lalande, John Sheaver and Ralph Markarian.

Marmora And Wellington In Pre-Season Final Game

MARMORA (ENS) — The playoffs of the Trent Valley pre season series in Marmora Arena on Monday evening resulted in Wellington defeating Trenton 6-5 for the supremacy of the southern section and Marmora beating Madoc 3-1 to secure the northern honors.

In the first encounter, Trenton, who had a goal deficit in the first period, played strenuously for the remainder of the game and effected a tie at the close of the other periods. Going into 10 minutes overtime the same thing resulted, the teams having five goals apiece. The first goal to be scored as they faced each other again was to decide the issue. Day received the plaudits of his teammates as he scored on Bryant's assist.

A. Scott, Schmidt and Beale were the pick of the losing team with Bone, Day, Graham, Scott and Byrant standing out for Wellington.

A ROUGH FRAY

The second game was fairly rough before 350 fans. In the third period Lavender was helped off the ice after a collision with Shadbolt. The latter received five minutes plus a 10-minute penalty for this for intent to hurt. Marmora were without three regular players and with the tactics introduced into the game could not give the brand of hockey they are accustomed to.

As a result of their win they meet Wellington in the Marmora rink on Wednesday evening to decide the winner of the pre-season series.

Deny Canadian Rugby Team Carried Out Hoax

TORONTO (CP)—There was "no hoax implied or intended" in a visit to London by the Toronto and Montreal rugby football touring team, Wally Williams, publicity director of the Ontario Rugger Union said Tuesday.

Williams was commenting on a report in the London Star which credited the touring team with the "gayest rugby football hoax of the century." The team from Canada was beaten 46-0 Monday by a London hospitals pickup squad.

Williams said about 40 made the trip by chartered plane to London. The players were drawn from the Ontario union—which has 22 teams at Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Brantford and Guelph—and from the Quebec union which has two or three teams.

NOT BEST TEAM

"It wasn't our best team," said Williams. "You might say it was a representative goodwill side."

The Ontario union, which is affiliated with the English Rugger Union, gave the team permission to play in England "as a goodwil gesture, not as a hoax."

The travellers were all Britons who now live in Canada. Wiliams said they paid their own way on the trip.

THE POWER PUNCH BOYS on Uncle Sam's Davis Cup squad, Tony Trabert (left) and Vic Seixas (right) put on full steam Tuesday to slice off Australia's young Lewis Hoad and Rex Hartwig in the Davis Cup Challenge round doubles. The three straight victory of the American duo has the Aussies reeling. Seventeen thousand fans in the huge Melbourne stadium were shocked that captain Harry Hopman's gamble on Hoad and Hartwig failed to pay off. Hoad came back to whip Travert and tie the series 2-2.

Bowl Games Keep Fan Interest High

NEW YORK (CP) — Michigan State will clash with UCLA in the traditionally glamorous Rose Bowl setting at Pasadena, Calif., but the major New Year's Day football interest will be centred 2,500 miles east.

While the Michigan State Spartans, ranked third nationally, and the fifth-ranking Panthers are expected to draw the usual 100,300 sellout crowd, the holiday plum promises to be the Oklahoma-Maryland clash at Miami's Orange Bowl.

Maryland's Terrapins, a disputed choice over Notre Dame as the college team of the year, are looking for a convincing victory to justify their rating. Unbeaten over their 10-game schedule, the Terrapins were criticized by some experts for establishing their record against comparatively weak opponents.

Oklahoma, picked as the country's No. 4 team, won eight games, tied one and lost to Notre Dame in what many described as the toughest game on the Irish schedule. Notre Dame is following its usual policy of shunning post-season activity.

GAMES ON TV

Crowds of 414,000 expected for the nine bowl games will be swelled by millions who will hear broadcasts or watch the games on television. The CBC will carry the telecast of the Rose Bowl from Toronto and Ottawa.

Both Rose Bowl contenders have 8-1 records. Michigan State, champions of the midwestern big 10, are making their first Pasadena appearance and are favored by six points over the Pacific Coast titleholders.

Favorites of the day are Georgia Tech's eighth-ranking Engineers, picked by 13 points over West Virginia in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

In the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Rice (8-2) is a 7½-point favorite over Alabama (6-2-3).

Other New Year's Day games: Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., Auburn vs Texas Tech.

Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., Mississippi Southern vs Texas Western.

Cigar Bowl at Tampa, Fla., Lacrosse State, Wis., vs Missouri Valley.

Salad Bowl, Phoenix, Ariz., Great Lakes Navy vs Fort Ord.

Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., Arkansas State vs East Texas State.

Expensive Suspension

MONTREAL (CP)—The wallop Montreal Canadiens' Bernie Geoffrion will take in the pocketbook as the result of his stick-swinging duel with Ron Murphy of New York Rangers may reach an estimated $1,100.

The figure is guess-work but appears reasonable. Neither the National Hockey League nor a club makes public the salaries paid players. On the same basis of estimation, Murphy's set-back financially may be about $600.

In the disciplinary action announced by Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, Geoffrion's suspension was eight games, all against Rangers. Murphy was suspended for five games, all against Canadiens. The players lose pay for games while they are under suspension.

Geoffrion's salary is believed to be about $9,000. He will miss about one-ninth of the season, for a financial loss of $1,000. On top of that he incurred an automatic $100 fine for his match penalty at the time of the ruckus, Dec. 20 in New York.

Murphy's salary probably is between $6,000 and $7,000. Figuring it at $6,500 and his suspension about one-thirteenth of the season, he loses $500 in salary. He also incurred a match-penalty $100 fine.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Sometime ago OHA top brass complained that the NHL was taking some of the better OHA referees after the provincial body had trained them. So pro and amateur big shots got together and worked out an agreement whereby each would contribute some money to help train more refs. One of the results of this will be seen here tonight when a six-man refs' school will be held during the OHA junior "B" game at Civic betwixt Collingwood and Young Petes. It'll be under OHA chief referee Pat Patterson and Bill Hanley, manager of this provincial body. Two different arbiters will handle each period while the others observe and get pointers from Pat and Bill.

* * * * * *

Bun Kingdon of this city and Sixty Coombs of Lindsay are two of those working the game. Bill Holway of Belleville and Doug Calhoun of Oshawa are two more. Cain of Cobourg and Hodgetts of Port Hope are the other pair. Some have had OHA experience before. Frank Buckland tells us the OHA would like to develop more arbiters, and he wonders why fellows like Dootch Vitarelli, Ray Harding (though he's still an active player), Jack Jopling, Les Burton and other former players don't go in for refereeing. Also some ex-juniors who didn't make senior ranks. There should be lots of talent available for tryouts and training. The pay is quite good. The OHA viceprexy assures us that any applicant will receive careful consideration.

* * * * * *

All Juniors on Deck

As for the game itself this e'en, Coach Red Creighton will ice a full Peterborough team, Uren Blake and Buddy McDougall returning to action. Young Petes presently are tied with Lindsay in second place, just a game back of Port Perry, made up of Oshawa puckists. The latter have 16 points, while Petes and Lindsay have 14 each. Ed Bush has a husky young club in Collingwood and the youthful shipbuilders should make it an interesting scrap when they meet the locals for the first time at Civic Arena. The Creighton crew can climb into a tie for top spot, so they'll shoot the works. Straight hockey no doubt will prevail with so many referees around. The game rates a big crowd.

* * * * * *

Senior "B" Petes are off tonight for Kingston and then can rest for a week. Ed Redmond's men can hurdle the K's into second spot in the standing by a victory, as they're only a point behind Goodyears at the moment and rolling right along. Should have won in the Limestone City last meeting but for an odd call on a goal they scored, so it wound up a draw, meaning a point apiece. The Petes' board of strategy of Redmond, Jim Ellis and Drake Jopling has the TPT-ers hot for the past couple of weeks. If they don't cool off tonight they'll be starting the new year right up there on the heels of the leading Oshawa Truckmen. Donlevy has been going fine in goal behind a strong defence, and all three forward lines are hustling hard these days.

* * * * * *

PMHA-ers in Action

Dick Ouimet's PMHA-ers swing back into action tomorrow night at Civic, with these hour-long tussles going, commencing at six: Midget Aces vs. Norwood, IOOF juveniles vs. the Aces, Norwood midgets vs. Shamrocks, and Norwood juves vs. the Oddfellows. On Friday morn at 10, it'll be bantam Aces vs. the Optimists. Next week, they'll run according to schedule. The Peterborough Minor Hockey Association is about halfway through its regular season, playoffs beginning the first of February. As the setup is affiliated ith the OMHA, the PMHA will have representatives in provincial playdowns the latter part of winter and mayhap into early spring.

* * * * * *

George (Red) Sullivan continues to lead the AHL scorers by a comfortable margin. The Hershey ace has 13 goals and 39 assists in 35 games for 52 points, eight more than Jack Gordon of Cleveland. The redhead from Ashburnham has served 34 minutes in penalties so far. Besides Sullivan, Hershey has three other sorrel-tops, Andy Branigan, Gordie Henry and Skip Teal. With Cleveland Barons, where Don Ashbee performs, are three of the tallest forwards on one line in hockey. Gus Karry's is six-two, Ray Ross six-one and Jack Stoddard Six-three. They weight respectively 195, 187 and 185, so they can hardly be termed sitting ducks for rival defencemen.

Hoad Defeats Trabert, Ties Up Round

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP) — Lewis Hoad, one of Australia's 19-year-old wonder boys, today defeated the American ace, Tony Trabert, 13-11, 6-3, 2-6, 3-6, 7-5 in a miserable, steady rain to tie the Davis Cup challenge round 2-2.

The condition of the Kooyong court was so bad after the match, which went 62 games and lasted just five minutes short of three hours, that officials decided to postpone the deciding singles test until Thursday.

Now the optimism that was rampant in the United States camp has subsided somewhat. For the Americans' slumping star, Vic Seixas, will go into action against Ken Rosewall, the other Australian 19-year-old, who has licked Seixas six times in a row.

The only real ray of sunshine that U.S. captain Billy Talbert can see is that in a way Rosewall has been as bad as Seixas. Ken was benched in the doubles Tuesday after his poor showing in the opening singles against Trabert. So the pressure will be on both players.

RESULT DISAPPOINTMENT

Still, today's match was the one the Americans had counted on winning. They thought Trabert would clinch the cup for the U.S. for the first time since it went to Australia in 1950, and Tony's failure to master Hoad was indeed a disappointment.

It wasn't that the University of Cincinati basketball player didn't perform well. He did. On occasions, he was brilliant.

The rain and wretched condition of the court bothered Tony, but that certainly was not why he lost. Young Hoad had to play on the same court. Perhaps Trabert was annoyed a bit more because he is a bigger fellow than Hoad and had more trouble balancing himself on the slippery turf.

Trabert slipped three times in the early going, and referee Cliff Sproule came onto the court after the fourth game of the second set and looked over the grass. He returned to his position without comment.

ALLOWED TO WEAR SPIKES

But two games later it became obvious that something would have to be done, and he told both players that they could wear spikes. Trabert accepted the offer but Hoad elected to go on with his tennis sneakers since he was ahead. The youngster probably thought it better not to change tactics while he was winning.

He changed his mind, though, in the third set when Trabert began to move in front and before it was over both were wearing spikes. The turf was a mess when the match was over.

Russia Taking Part In Stockholm Tourney

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Russia will participate in the world ice hockey championship tournament at Stockholm, Feb. 26-March 7 according to Rudolf Kock, a sports writer for the Stockholm afternoon paper Aftonbladet.

Kock, visiting Russia with the Swedish hockey team, said he had lengthy talks with Russian hockey leaders, Alex Dangunsky and Boris Myaninkov, who said they were only waiting for an invitation and details of the tournament.

New Specs Helpful

CLEVELAND (AP)—A pair of plastic discs, smaller than a dime, are responsible for one of the most successful comebacks in professional hockey.

The discs—contact lenses—belong to defenceman Fred Shero of the American Hockey League's Cleveland Barons. With them he has scored nine goals and 15 assists for 24 points and a tie with Pittsburgh Hornets' Frankie Mathers as the league's top scoring defence player.

Shero, 28, came to the Barons three years ago from New York Rangers. Because of poor vision he didn't do well. After being sent to Seattle Shero bought contact lenses.

Barons manager Jim Hendy gave him a chance to try them out in action. He's been a star ever since.

Says Shero:

"It helps a lot to know you can see as good as the next guy."

DUCK SOUP—Oregon State's Swede Halbrook scored 23 and 21 points against national champion Indiana on successive nights.

Lindsay Takes A 5-2 Win Over Lakefield

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Muskies won their third game in a row in their comeback as they handed the Lakefield Lumbermen a 5-2 beating before the largest crowd to view a Lakeshore league game here this year.

The 900 fans roared their approval as Vic Corley scored twice early in the third period to bring the homesters from behind a 3-2 deficit and the Muskies added two insurance tallies in the late minutes. Referee Don Doolittle of Aurora kept a close watch on proceedings, holding the teams down when outbreaks of temper threatened. He drew the ire of the fans in the third when he failed to see Muskie Coach Al Burns cut by a high stick in a scramble. The fans littered the ice with paper and a bottle requiring attendants to sweep the Lindsay end of the rink.

AN EARLY LEAD

Dick McCracken gave Lakefield an early lead on a rush with Ab Caravaggio. Harding's goal-tending maintained the lead into the second period, when Doug Hunter gave the Lumbermen their second goal on a solo effort.

Two minutes later Bob Lewis netted Lindsay's first counter on passes from Hicks and Burns, and the score stayed at 2-1 until the third, due mainly to great work by the rival goalies, Harding and Poole.

Corley cracked the Lakefield defence twice within a minute early in the third, on passes from Hicks and Green, and then Hicks and Davis. He completed the hat trick in the late minutes from Hicks and Lewis.

With a second remaining, Wyatt notched his first goal on Lindsay ice this year, on a solo rush from centre ice, with Dean Wasson sitting out a late penalty.

The teams split the 15 minor penalties called throughout the game.

Boston Bruins Clip New York For 6-2 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Six years ago Ed Sandford came into the National Hockey League touted as one of the game's most promising centres. Until this season, he never quite lived up to the advance billing. There was nothing amateurish about Sandford Tuesday night as he led Boston Bruins to a 6-2 victory over the fifth place New York Rangers with two goals and two assists. It was the only game of the night and Sandford showed 12,482 fans at New York's Madison Square Garden that he probably is heading for his best season in the big time. The 25-year-old centre put the Bruins ahead 3-2 in the second period and scored in the third to run his goal total this season to 11.

Sandford never has scored more than 16 goals in one season. He got 16 in the 1948-49 campaign.

The victory gave Boston a strong hold on fourth place in the league standings. The New Yorkers remained in fifth spot, nine points behind the Bruins.

SCORES IN SECOND

Sandford scored his first goal at 16:03 of the second period when he took a pass from defenceman Warren Godfrey and slapped the puck past goalkeeper Johnny Bower.

He scored again in the third period on a pass from Dave Creighton. Then he assisted on Bob Armstrong's goal less than two minutes later to give Boston a 5-2 edge. The other Boston goals were scored by Godfrey, defenceman Hal Laycoe and Johnny Peirson.

Veteran centre Max Bentley and Nick Mickoski scored for the New Yorkers.

Boston went in front 1-0 in the opening period on Laycoe's goal at 5:32. Fleming Mackell and Milt Schmidt got assists.

The Rangers came to life midway in the second session, scoring twice within 22 seconds to go ahead 2-1. Bentley beat netminder Sugar Jim Henry at 12:10 and Mickoski tallied at 12:32.

GO ON RAMPAGE

The Bruins went on the rampage minutes later.

The game marked the return to action of 33-year-old Edgar Laprade, New York centre who retired two years ago. Laprade didn't figure in the scoring but he turned in a good performance.

Only one game is scheduled for tonight when second-place Montreal canadiens meet third-place Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Report Charles Interested In Bout

EDMONTON (CP) — Fight promoter Jack Berry said Tuesday night heavyweight boxing challenger Ezzard Charles is willing to fight Earl Walls, Canada's heavyweight champion, in Edmonton for a $35,000 guarantee or 35 per cent of the gate.

Berry said he received a telegram from Jake Mintz, Charles' co-manager, outlining the terms. The guarantee or the gate was optional.

Berry offered $10,000 last week to any one of five leading world heavyweight title contenders to fight Walls. In addition to Charles, the others were Nino Valdez, Roland LaStarza, Dan Buccoroni and Don Cockell.

Berry said he hasn't given much thought to the Charles offer.

Remand Two In Connection With Explosion

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Two men were remanded to Jan. 5 Tuesday on charges laid in connection with a Christmas Eve explosion that sent John Kusiks to hospital with a torn hand.

Police said Frank Zagar, 23, made small bombs from detonator caps he found in Vasil Wosilenko's kit bag and threw them out of the door of a bunkhouse where they were staying while working at an Ontario Hydro camp at Niagara Falls.

Officers said Zagar tossed the bombs outside to hear them explode. Kusiks, a fellow worker, came along and picked one up before it went off.

CHARGE LAID

Zagar is charged with causing an explosion that resulted in severe injuries. Wosilenko, 24, is charged with illegal possession of explosive materials.

Kusiks, a pianist who had been studying piano for 16 years, suffered severe lacerations to his right hand and fractures of two fingers. He may never be able to play the piano again.

War Correspondent Wade Werner Dies

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Wade Werner, 61, Associated Press foreign correspondent and war correspondent for 25 years before his retirement in 1945, died Monday night.

Serving in Europe during most of his career, Werner covered the rise of Hitler and the blood purge in Berlin and was chief of the AP bureau in Vienna at the time of the 1943 revolt against Austrian Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss. He covered the treason trials as AP chief of bureau in Moscow in 1938-39 and was a correspondent in Finland during the Finnish-Russian war and later in Western Europe during the Second World War.

Committee To Keep Lash At Reformatory

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's committee on reform institutions agreed Tuesday it is opposed to any increase in corporal punishment but has no intention of recommending outlawing the strap or the lash.

The point was raised during a discussion of a letter from George M. Hay, former staff psychologist at Brampton reformatory. Mr. Hay wrote that corporal punishment much used during the early days at Brampton was a failure.

Sarnia Watchers Note 41 Bird Species

SARNIA (CP) — Sarnia bird watchers reported Tuesday that they noted 41 species of bird life in the city and township during the annual Christmas bird census, compared with 29 species last year.

The census was part of a continent-wide bird count sponsored by the National Audubon Society.

A total of 2,398 birds were counted this year, including 13 species of ducks. In 1943, 16 species of birds were counted altogether.

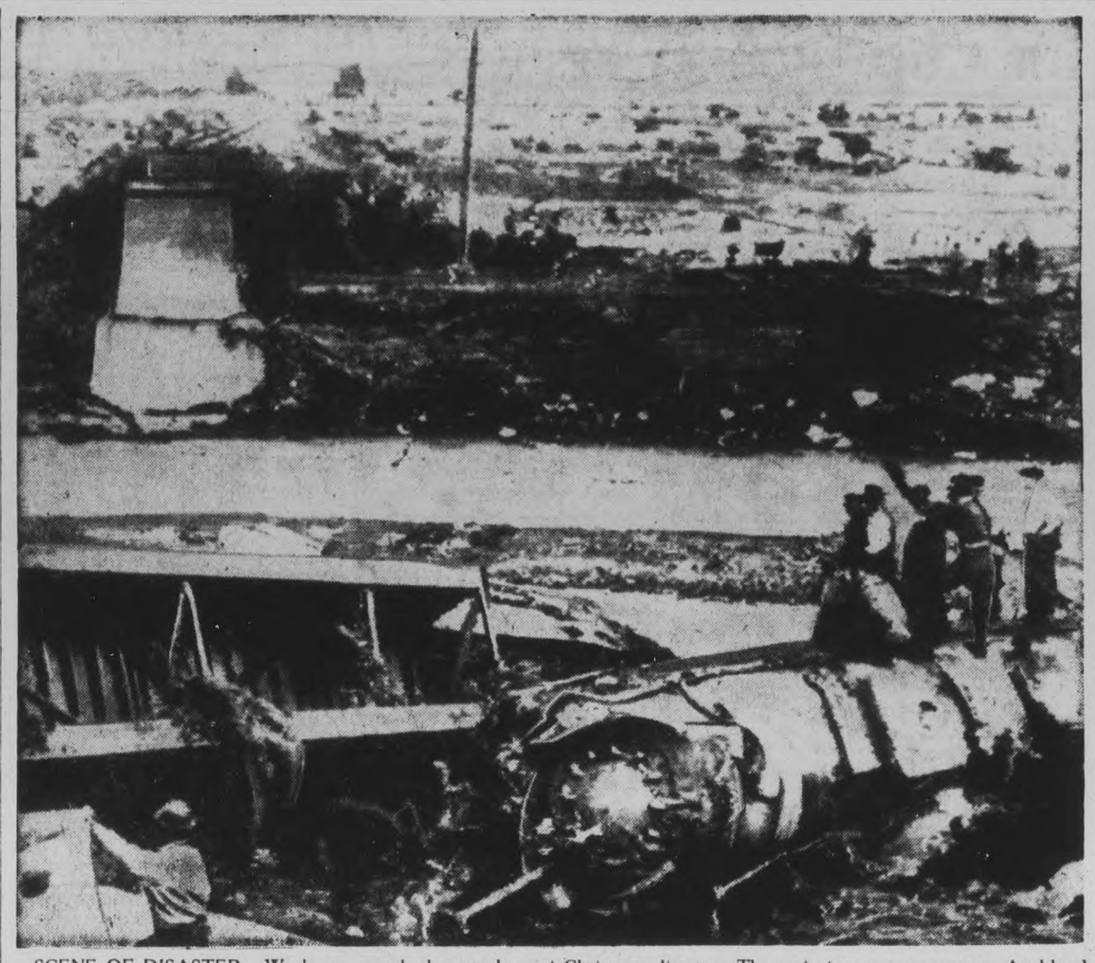
Boys Parliament Passes Act For $25,000

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Older Boys' Parliament Tuesday passed a finance act calling for $25,000 to be raised in 1954 for boys' work.

The campaign for funds will open Feb. 7. Prime Minister Bill Dowdell of Windsor said: "I challenge the opposition to a contest to see which side of the House can raise the most money." There was no reply to his challenge.



Opposition members objected to the bill as asking too much. They said the 1954 budget called for expenditures of $22,500 and the fund-raising campaign should aim for that figure.

HARD TO RAISE

Opposition Leader Eric Snider of $16,700 last year, "our boys of $16,700 last year, "our boys barely raised $16,500."

The $22,500 in this year's budget will go to the Ontario Council of Christian Education for boys' work. More than $8,000 will be used for salaries, $1,150 for rent and $1,000 for work of boys' groups.

The 33rd Parliament represents 6,000 boys organized in Protestant church groups in Ontario.

Suicide Verdict For Adjudicator

HENLEY, England (Reuters)—Capt. Evan John Simpson—novelist Evan John—committed suicide, the coroner decided here Tuesday.

Simpson, 52, who was to have officiated as regional adjudicator for the 1954 Dominion Drama Festival in Canada, was found shot in a wood near his home Sunday.

The coroner said he had "tried to find a loophole so that a suicide verdict shall not be recorded—but I cannot."

Mrs. Dorothy Elsie Simpson said her novelist-actor-playwright husband had suffered from periods of extreme depression.

Simpson, a British intelligence officer in Greece during the Second World War, wrote several books under his "Evan John" pseudonym. They include "Time in the East," "Kings at Arms," "The Dark Path," "Crippled Splendor" and his latest, "Atlantic Impact."

Juvenile Started Fire In Church Basement Crown Attorney Reveals

Fire In Basement Threatened Church Before Brought Under Control Damage Done Not Yet Estimated

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, verified today reports that the Immaculate Conception church fire was set deliberately. "We know who it was," he added. He declined to disclose any more details other than the fire was the work of a juvenile. Mr. Bradshaw said a full report on Saturday's fire in Ashburnham was scheduled to arrive early in the week from the fire marshal's office.

Meanwhile Inspector D. H. Craig of the fire marshal's office left today for Toronto, presumably to complete reports on the blaze. Together with Fire Chief William Sorrie he investigated the fire and they completed investigations Tuesday.

Mr. Bradshaw gave no hint to the child's identity. He only remarked: "What can you do with a juvenile?" implying it was only a mischievious youngster.

Still no damage estimate has been made. The Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan said adjusters would arrive next week to set the damage.

Health Board Orders Horses Out Of Barns

The board of health decided at noon today that horses or other animals cannot be kept in stables or other buildings in Morrow Park. The only exception to this will be during the annual exhibition — and only then if departmental regulations are complied with.

This decision will immediately affect Hugh Stewart, who has 15 horses stabled in the horse barns, located in the southwest corner of the park. They must be evacuated by Jan. 31, 1954 (i.e., within little more than a month), the board of health decided today.

Mr. Stewart, owner of standard-bred race horses, is understood to have an agreement with the board of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition to stable his horses in the horse barns from November to the end of May. The presence of these horses during the six-month period started complaints from McGill St. residents who are asking for a revision of their assessment.

The McGill St. people say the horses and horse barns are a nuisance and depreciate the value of their property; so their assessment should be lowered. They claim a nuisance from stable odors, flies, burning refuse, and surface water flowing from the grounds.

Because of the 58 McGill St. objectors the court of revision reserved judgment on their assessment appeals until the matter was looked into further.

Peterborough's board of health was brought into the picture because they set out the regulations controlling the keeping of animals.

WRITING REPLY

In the absence of president N. W. McConkey, John Kitney of the Peterborough Exhibition executive was taking time out from his personal affairs today to write a reply to the city regarding uses of the Exhibition Park, mentioned by McGill St. property owners at the Court of Revision meeting Monday night.

AT SHORT COURSES

Junior Farmers attending the short courses at Ontario Agricultural College this week are: Howard Howson, Don Cameron, Langton Gardner, Francis Walsh, Robert McDougall. Several are taking mechanics' work and others field husbandry. Alan Drummond is spending this holiday week on leadership, and Harold Lewis on economics, particularly in regard to co-operatives.

LAND SALES DOWN

Now that filing of new applications for Crown Lands, for cottage and resort ground in the Kawarthas has finished for the year at the Lindsay office of the Department of Lands and Forests officials find that applications are fewer than in 1952. Plans and descriptions, prepared by registered Ontario Land Surveyors for the department, are being checked at Lindsay before forwarding requests to the surveyor-general at Queen's Park.

MORE TRAPLINES

There are 109 registered traplines in the Lindsay area of the Department of Lands and Forests, an increase of 46 since last season. Trapline allotments are smaller in the Kawarthas than in Northern Ontario because there is more patented land here than Crown Land available for this purpose. This does not cause any hardship for district trappers since they work at it seasonally in conjunction with other employment.

H. R. Hammell Succeeds Col. M. E. Clarke

Lt.-Col. M. E. Clarke, ED, OC of the 50th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment, RCA, for more than five years, officially retires this Thursday. The position will be assumed Jan. 1 by Major H. R. Hammell, CO, who simultaneously receives his promotion to lieutenant colonel.

In civilian life a Quaker Oats superintendent, Lt.-Col. Clarke retires at 41 with a 25-year military record. He started his career enlisting as a private in the Peterborough Rangers reserve unit in 1928.

In 1935 he received his commission as a second lieutenant in the 4th Canadian Machine Gun Battalion. He became a full lieutenant in 1938, and in 1940 went overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Regiment.

He was assigned to the 9th Canadian Infantry Brigade, headquarters staff of the 3rd Division, and served in England until 1942 when he returned to Canada.

TO ITALY

Returning overseas in March, 1943, the then Captain Clarke joined the 11th Canadian Infantry Brigade which, in October of that year, went to Italy. He was transferred to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment while in Italy and became a general staff officer, grade three, at the headquarters of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade.

In March, 1945, he was transferred again to northwest Europe where he served at the headquarters of the 1st Canadian Army.

Returning to Canada at the war's end, he was discharged, and joined the Prince of Wales Rangers reserve unit. In 1946 it became the 50th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment and in 1947 he received his majority.

Attaining the rank of lieutenant-colonel in April, 1948, the retiring officer assumed command of the regiment.

In his home life, Lt.-Col. Clarke is married and has three children.

Major Hammell becomes head of the 50th with a 13-year background as soldier and officer at home, overseas in combat, and in occupation forces.

He joined the Prince of Wales Rangers in 1940 and in the fall of 1942 was selected for the COTC at Three Rivers, Quebec. He qualified as a second lieutenant, trained at Camp Borden, and in July, 1943, went overseas.

While there he was transferred to the Toronto Scottish and remained with that unit when it went into action in France in July, 1944. As commander of a heavy mortar platoon, he fought through France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

At war's end he received his captaincy and joined the 3rd Battalion, Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa with which unit he served a year in the occupation army in Germany. On his return to Canada in August, 1946, he was discharged.

Later that year he joined the newly-formed 50th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment, became a battery commander in 1946, received his majority in 1948 and was promoted to second-in-command in 1951.

Now 37 years old, Major Hammell is single and works as a salesman for National Grocers.

Licence Granted To Operate Skyboro Airport

A temporary licence has been granted to the Canadian Aircraft and Auto Co., Ltd., to operate its Skyboro airport, Charles Kingan, company manager said today.

The licence has been granted pending the issue of a permanent certificate. Inspectors will visit the airport when the ground thaws in the spring in order to see if the ground is sufficiently firm to support aircraft.

If so, the permanent licence will be granted.

The strip is equipped with an operations hut, telephone and anchors for aircraft stopping there.

New Houses Built In Otonabee Total $179,600

New residences built this year in Otonabee township amount in value to $179,600 as reported by Don Deyell, building inspector.

Manufacturing and commercial permits totalled $183,650. That sum includes $140,000, the value estimated in the permit, for McGinnis Trailers new building.

The permit was taken out when the property was still part of the township. It is now being transferred by annexation to the city. Another item is the valuation of a motel which is planned for No. 7 Highway opposite Town and Country service station.

SUMMER COTTAGES

Summer cottages contribute $11,950 to the new property values.

Two permits amounting to $19,200 were for a school in the parish of the Assumption and a small addition to the Catholic Church at Keene.

These items make a total of $394,410, new property values which come within the 1954 assessment and taxation. This amount is slightly less than a year ago, with the decline noticed in the residential brackets.

Sold Ungraded Apples In City

Two Toronto firms were given substantial fines by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, in the magistrate's court today for selling apples which were not graded and packed in accordance with the provisions of the act.

The complaints which led to the convictions were laid by fruit and produce inspector Earl Walton against British Fruit, 83 Front St. E., Toronto, and Church Produce, 44 Church St., Toronto. British Fruit was fined $150, costs $2.50, and Church Product $25, costs $2.50.

Ornamental Swimmers Show TV Viewers Champion Form

By DON GRANT

When Pansy Forbes and her eight-girl Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club team boarded the 7:10 train for Toronto Tuesday morning, they were excited and nervous. Five hours later when appearing for rehearsal for the TV show, Matinee Party, produced over CBLT by Drew Crossan, the girls were still nervous, only more so than before.

But by show time, 2:30 p.m., the girls, like the champions they are, lost their nervousness and flawlessly gave their first "live" performance over Canadian television.

The Peterborough swimmers have appeared several times, both in Canada and the United States, over TV networks but on every occasion their routines had been filmed previously.

Tuesday the girls swam, the TV cameras focused on them and TV viewers within a 100-mile radius of Toronto saw every move the instant it was made.

FILMED TOO

At the same time the girls' act, Stardust, was filmed and along with the other parts of the Matinee Party will likely be shown later this week from TV stations in London and Sudbury.

The girls, Nancy Doubt, Dot Russelle, Pat Nickels, Bev Rumary, Betty Welch, Shirley Moldaver, Joan Lynch and Iris Reilly, discovered there's quite a difference between making a "live" performance rather than one by film.

As soon as they arrived at the exclusive Carlton Club where Matinee Party was being produced, they were met by orderly confusion.

Light technicians raced about with lengths of wire, spotlights, floodlights, lengths of pipe. Announcers mumbled their lines. Singers exercised their vocal cords. The organist played. The cameramen adjusted their cameras. Models strutted across the expensive rugs.

MORNING PRACTICE

About 10:30 the Peterborough girls ducked into the pool for a practice, giving the cameramen time to follow their movements and allowing technicians to adjust lights.

Above and around the pool the electricians put ladders hanging the huge floodlights, wiring sound system. Still the girls swam, chilled by the wintry blasts coming from an open door.

For an hour and a half the girls were in and out of the pool several times, timing their actions with organist Lou Snider, and perfecting their routine even more. Finally they were given a 20-minute break.

At 12:12 rehearsal under the direction of Crossan began. There were the usual commericals, interviews by Rosemary Boxer, songs by Bernie Johnson and Terry Dale, and other parts of the program. Each act was gradually finalized in time, movement and lighting.

Then again the girls came out. Under Crossan's eye the swimmers swam through their routine as the camers, one at the end of the pool and a second at the side, followed their movements. Tense facial expressions showed nervousness in each girl but they still more than satisfied Crossan.

Then they left until show time.

Announcers, singers, models, technicians and cameramen worked perfecting their parts until 2:20 when all was completed and the show was ready to begin.

Then suddenly there was peace and quiet. The show started.

After several interviews and commercials, a song by singer Terry Dale, the Peterborough girls filled the TV screen. For approximately seven minutes they glided and dove through the water, showing everyone just why they won the United States senior women's championship this year.

Birth Of 1954 May Be Costly And Troublesome

The birth of 1954 is going to cost some people about the same amount as a maternity bill.

Of course the hours leading up to the event will be spent in a more leisurely fashion. The men will probably smoke as many cigarettes, the difference being the motive. The women will probably feel just as relieved and happy when the whole thing is over.

To begin with there is a purchasing of bottles for the baby. Care must be taken to acquire the correct size for the individual grip. Bottles falling and breaking, usually bring a grimace to any cherubic face—if not downright tears.

Next is the question of the formula. Of these there are many types for every style of digestion. With care, no one should become upset, but it is a general rule that the formula should remain unchanged once feeding has begun.

One of the most simple and efficient nourishments is synonymous with a well-known nationality spilled gently over ice. The effects vary according to the individual, however, and the price of the substance does not permit the average man to make continuous use of it.

Another liquid often used on such an occasion is the amber stuff with the snowy top. The one requirement here for proper assimilation is constant burping. Otherwise unpleasant bloating may result. Several companies and magazines offer suggestions about formula.

Clothing presents an additional expense. There are full skirted dresses and flowers to be purchased for the women. Rattles, horns and similar noisy toys must be on hand for little 1954. And the men must at least be dressed in a distinguished manner. A stiff shirt and tight coat helps to hold them up.

Now for the matter of entertainment. The most socially recognized type is the dance, be it public, private, formal or otherwise. This is the common form of celebration to welcome in the newborn year, and anbody who can bend a knee or sprain an ankle is expected to attend.

Most of the entertainment establishments about town have prepared well. Hats, horns, balloons, and food will be available at a reasonable price. The entire bill of fare will be included in admission with at least the psychological advantage of digging only once.

There is just one more item. The drug stores will be closed on the morn, so a stock of baby's own tablets on hand would be advisable.

Build 4 Rooms To Grove School

Plans for an addition to the Grove public school were reviewed on Tuesday night by the accommodation committee of the board of education.

H. R. Roberts, the architect, presented working drawings of the four-room addition which is to be built on the south end of the present school. The addition of two stories will run east and west with kindergarten and primary rooms on the first floor and two regular classrooms on the second floor.

The addition will be connected to the present school by a short corridor. A separate heating plant will be installed.

The board hopes to be able to go to tender early in the year.

The rooms will be required for the opening of the school term in September.

Churchill Healthy Eater Shows Gourmet's Interest In Various Dishes Served

CALGARY (CP) — Sir Winston Churchill has a healthy appetite. At the Big Three conference in Bermuda he ate more heartily than the other delegates and show a gourmet's interest in the varied dishes served.

Henry Goldsmith, maitre d'hotel of the Calgary Petroleum Club who was in charge of catering at the conference, said the British prime minister particularly liked wild game sent from Alberta.

A young man who went to Calgary in July after serving in some of Europe's exclusive clubs, Goldsmith was requested by the management of the Mid Ocean Club in Bermuda to cater for the conference.

PRESIDENT LIGHT EATER

He noted that President Eisenhower dined lightly on simple foods while Premier Joseph Laniel of France, suffering from a severe cold, could eat only what his doctor permitted.

Mr. Goldsmith recalled one incident:

"Churchill, after much persuasion, got President Eisenhower to try some strawberry ice cream, the prime minister's favorite dessert.

"The offer of a Churchill cigar, however, was refused by the President who doesn't drink or smoke."

Goldsmith brought back one of Sir Winston's cigars, a half-smoked butt and autographed photographs of the British prime minister and of Anthony Eden, Britain's foreign minister.

Goldsmith got the butt as a result of the daily coffee break when Sir Winston went through a ritual that kept the maitre d'hotel and his staff on their toes.

CIGARS ON THE RIGHT

"We would set the table with the coffee service and a box of the famous cigars, always on the right, along with Sir Winston's special cigar clipper," Goldsmith reported.

"Each day Churchill would first sip his coffee, then ceremoniously pass the cigars to his guests, take one himself, smoke half of it and ne[illegible]y butt it in the ash tray."

[illegible] of these rituals that Goldsmith obtained his souvenirs.

The Alberta game birds which included pheasant, grouse and wild duck, were sent especially to the conference by Harold Siebens of Calgary.

"Sir Winston had these delicacies on several occasions," Goldsmith said.

The Calgary maitre d'hotel said the American, British and French groups each had its own dining rooms with their own specially-prepared menus. Occasionally, the French would entertain the British, the British the Americans and so on, but never during the conference did they all dine together.

CATERED FOR BIG THREE—Henry Goldsmith, maitre d'hotel of the Calgary Petroleum Club, was in charge of catering at the Big Three conference of Prime Minister Churchill, President Eisenhower and Premier Laniel of France at Bermuda early in December. Goldsmith, a young man who went to Calgary in July, 1953, after serving in some of the exclusive clubs in Europe, was requested by the magagement of the Mid Ocean Club in Bermuda to take over catering for the conference. He is shown looking over autographed photos of Sir Winston and Anthony Eden, Britain's foreign minister.

Missionary In India Sends Greetings

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lander, Coldsprings, received greetings from the Rev. Lewis Julian, MA, Language School, Bangalore, S. India.

Mr. Julian visited Coldsprings prior to leaving for his new post. After spending a year at the school, he will go to Ceylon as a missionary and teacher under the British Wesleyan Methodist Church.

Mr. Julian is a brother of the Rev. W. G. Julian, United Church minister, Bracebridge, a former resident of this community.

Licence Suspended

KITCHENER (CP)—The driver's licence of Walter S. Koch, 21, of nearby Conestogo, Tuesday was suspended for two years. He was convicted of dangerous driving as a result of what police said was a 75-mile-an-hour chase along country roads and was given suspended sentence on payment of court costs.

PLEAS FOR EUROPEAN UNITY—Pope Pius XII, speaking from his golden papal throne at Vatican City, issues a Christmas appeal for European unity as the spiritual and moral key to world peace. He said, "No materialism was ever an apt means to establish peace, for peace is above all an attitude of the mind and only secondarily an harmonius equilibrium of external forces."

Two Weeks In Gaol

Mr. Duncan, the thirty-three-old son of a former Governor-General of South Africa, was convicted after participating in a civil disobedience campaign directed against the Union's racial discriminatory laws. He was sentenced to 100 days in prison, with the alternative of a fine. He chose to serve fourteen days as a pronot withstanding that he is suffering from a serious affliction of his leg. He had earlier resigned his position as a district officer and mogistrate in the Basutoland Administration, to identify himself with the passive resistance campaign.

By PATRICK DUNCAN

Prison is not a pleasant place. I suppose that is true of most prisons round the world: it is certainly true of Boksburg Gaol, in the Transvaal, where I recently spent two weeks.

From the outside it is a pleasant enough low building, curiously lacking in windows, near a small lake. But when I arrived there, handcuffed and carrying my few effects, I had no time to look at it. I was hurried into the office, whence I was taken to a small yard, in which was a door of iron bars. The door was opened, and the warder and I stood in a small dark passage, in one side of which were three iron-clad doors. It was quiet, and when one of these doors, and an inner barred door, were opened, it was a surprise to see six people within. They were lying on felt mats on the floor. I went in and the doors were locked. None of the six looked up.

That was my introduction to the most extraordinary fortnight of my life. I lived in the same group as men sentenced for selling drink to Africans, men picked up drunk, a boy who had failed to attend Active Citizen Force parades, and three thugs: a man who had committed two fearful rapes for which he had been sentenced to thirteen years and eight lashes, a confidence-trick man, and a young gangster who specialised in store-breaking and stealing cars.

THUGS IN CHARGE

The thugs had established a complete ascendancy over the rest, and as I did not obey them, it was a considerable strain living in such a group. The drunks were natural gentlemen. Two of them were immigrants: Taffy was from Rhymney, the only Welsh town I know, and John was from Cumberland. They both wished they were dead.

Naturally, we were all white, and we were strictly segregated from the majority of our fellow-prisoners who were black. Our food was brought to us by long-term black prisoners, but it was not possible to do more than greet them. They seemed decent, and it amused me to hear them call our thugs "baas". According to South African etiquette, an African priest or doctor would be expected to do the same. (There was one indomitable coloured man in our gaol who insisted on addressing the warder as "van Rensburg" instead of as "Meneer van Rensburg". He was always getting solitary confinement, it was said.)

We could see nothing of what went on among our African fellow-prisoners, but could hear them being mustered—and hit if anything went wrong—at the morning roll-call. Beatings in our prisons are unfortunately common, and on my way to Boksburg I saw tough Zulu wardens in Germiston Gaol laying about them with heavy sticks on the heads and backs of about forty new recruits, just to put them in the proper frame of mind.

White and black wardens often use obscene language to prisoners, and a common way of dismissing a black prisoner is to scream, "Voetsek, you bastard." ("Voetsek" is used at dogs and means "get away.") One official in my presence shouted at an African prisoner who understandably hesitated to drink medicine from a bottle marked "Mist. Diabolic," and added, "Ek skop jou in die bek." (I'll kick you in the teeth.) In general, white prisoners have little to complain about; but black prisoners are abnormally treated.

Why serve a prison term sentence when it can be avoided? People object that to do so brings law into disrepute; that it is theatrical, unnecessary, unconstitutional, and so forth.

SITUATION INTOLERABLE

I have done it because I believe that for a majority of our people in the Union of South Africa the present situation is intolerable, and gives no reason for hope. I believe it is urgently necessary to work for a Government which will attract the loyalty of all races, and this cannot now be done inside Parliament. Our Parliament represents merely the white minority of 2,500,000, with all its limitations. It is as little representative of the other 10,000,000 as was the German occupation government of the French people.

Up till the defeat of the United Party in 1948, and the death, a few months later, of its heir-apparent, Jan Hofmeyr, it was possible, though not intelligent, to believe that the white group, acting within the parliamentary framework, might reverse the century-old trend away from the equality of the non-racial Cape constitution of 1853. After 1948 it was no longer possible to expect this, and it became reasonable for the non-whites, as for the British working-class a hundred years ago, to look outside Parliament for help.

After 1948 I became convinced that our best hope lay in non-violent civil disobedience outside Parliament. If our future political life was to be driven outside Parliament by the white supremacists, out on to the spectrum of extra - parliamentary activities ranging from pure non-violence right through to bloodshed and disintegration, then it was vital to hold it as near to the top end of the spectrum as possible. Acting on this belief. I resigned from the Colonial Service and participated in last year's campaign. It was just in time, for our batch was the last to go in. The prison sentence was imposed on me as a result of this participation.

What good can individual actions like this do? The answer is that in themselves individual actions can do little. There is only one internal power that can, and is destined to, challenge successfully the colour-bar backed by embattled Afrikaner nationalism. That is the working-class, which is largely African. This latent power may manifest itself in the Communist Party. It may do so in a pan-African nationalist party. Or it may do so in a South African party open to all races on a programme of emancipation.

In my view the future of this country depends on the success of this third alternative, and my individual action was aimed at affirming this truth, at pointing the way to common action and at clearly dissociating myself from the colour-bar. Next year I hope to be elected by the 3,000,000 Africans of the Transvaal and the Free State to the Senate, and thus to be enabled to press this view.

"But you are playing with fire. This will all turn to violence." I do not agree. Our Africans are wonderfully patient, sensible, and conservative. But let us concede it for the sake of argument. Which other way promises less violence? There is no safe path. Our way is beset with great dangers, the heritage of generations of wrong, which cannot just be willed away. We are in a fearful situation, and our task as realists is to choose, not a perfect path, but the least imperfect path possible.

Perhaps in this we are in much the same predicament as the rest of the world. — Copyright.

Government's Uneasy Christmas

Wage Trouble Bubbling Up In Engineering Industry

By ROBERT MILLER

LONDON (OFNS) — The ministers of the British Government went away for the Christmas holiday in a slightly uneasy frame of mind. The country has escaped a railway strike but on the other hand the Government is well aware that wages trouble is bubbling up in the engineering industry. Sir Walter Monckton, the Minister of Labor, will undoubtedly have a lot of work to do during the New Year.

The railwaymen have been given a rise in pay of four shillings a week and have been promised a further increase within a short time. Until the amount of increase is agreed we shall not know what the final bill is going to be, but most observers are agreed that the railways will have to pay out about £16 millions more in wages. It is a formidable total and the employees, the British Transport Commission, took a brave decision the other day when they announced that they would not try to cover the whole of the cost of raising fares. Only five and a half million pounds will be collected by increasing fares, freights, and dock charges. The other ten million pounds will, they hope, be saved by running the railways more efficiently.

The great question now is whether the men will co-operate. Two years ago the railway unions promised to help and indeed agreed on "the impressive need of the fullest co-operation with the Railway Executive in the elimination of waste of manpower, in increasing efficiency, and improving productivity." Stirring words but unfortunately only words. The unions have done little or nothing during the two years to translate them into action. The anomalies and restrictive practices that have grown up in the industry are just as bad today as they were in 1951.

RAISING OUTPUT

This time the men have been much more forthcoming. An observer who took part in the talks which led to a settlement of the threatened rail strike, tells me that the union representatives were the first to raise the question of efficiency. At long last they seem to have realized that the industry can only give higher wages if the railways are made to pay. For this reason informed circles put a great deal of emphasis on the new pledges that have been given. The unions and the employers, we are told, agreed not only to examine the wages structure but to "correct anomalies and give added incentives (including differentials) in desirable cases." They also promised "to confer in order to evolve ways of increasing the efficiency of the railways oganization."

If the unions really mean business, it would be a great day not only for the railways but for the whole of British industry. Everybody knows that output in this country could be greatly raised if only the workers could be persuaded that it is in their interests to increase productivity. Not that we should put all the blame on the men. People are not gong to work harder unless they get something out of it and too many employers have kept for themselves all the extra benefits that have come from greater productivity and given the men nothing—or as little as they dared. That is part of the case the workers are putting forward in the engineering industry. Productivity, they claim, has steadily gone up since the war but the men are really not much better off.

In the United States, the attitude of the workers seems to be different: the unions are as anxious to increase output as the employers. Indeed a wise American once defined the difference between labor here and in the United States in these words: "In America," he said, "every working man thinks he has a chance to be a millionaire. In Britain a working man believes he will remain a working man all his life." By and large that seems to me a true observation.

COST OF LIVING

Some observers are a little puzzled that labour in this country should have become so restive at this particular moment. In general the unions are partly basing their claims for higher wages on the argument that the cost of living has gone up—an argument that is not very convincing, to say the least of it. The cost of living index has increased by only one and a half per cent, in 12 months. Nor is it true that people are eating less because food is much dearer. During the third quarter of the year the public spent another £26 millions on food as compared with the same period last year. Significantly, the amount of tobacco being smoked increased during these months. The public spent on tobacco the staggering sum of £221 millions, which is a new record. Indeed, it is £20 millions more than is spent on rent and rates. It is not even true that wages are lagging behind prices. They have been keeping ahead for some considerable time.

THE SUEZ "REVOLT"

But it is not only the industrial field that is worrying Ministers. The other day 39 Conservative M.P.s put their names to a motion calling for the suspension of talks with Egypt on the future of the Suez Canal Zone, and there is no doubt that still more are highly critical of the Government's policy on this matter. If it is asked why these other critics did not sign the resolution, the answer is not necessarily because they were afraid to do so. Everybody had his prejudices and one may refuse to associate with a group on the ground that one dislikes some of its members either for personal or intellectual reasons.

My own view is that nothing has so shaken the rank-and-file of the Conservative Party as the negotiations with Egypt. There is even a minority in the Government that secretly agrees with the rebels, though I personally do not think it includes any well-known Ministers. But there are certainly some minor figures and a number of parliamentary private secretaries who thoroughly dislike these negotiations with Egypt. Let me give as proof a significant little scene that occurred during the recent debate on foreign affairs. While Mr. Fitzroy MacLean, on the Conservative "rebels" was speaking, one private secretary was so carried away that he shouted out "Hear! Hear!"

Rebellion has always been considered rather bad form in the onservative Party and therefore one naturally tends to discount the threats and snarls that can occasionally be heard from the wings. All the same the Government cannot be sure that this particular movement will come to nothing.

Driving Tips from R. W. Buyers, General Manager, Ontario Safety League.

HOW TO PULL OUT OF A SKID!

Turn your front wheels in the same direction as the skid.

- Don't turn wheels too far in direction of skid. This may throw rear end into dangerous reverse skid.
- Keep your foot lightly on the accelerator to keep rear wheels rolling, and maintain traction.
- Keep your foot off the brake. Jamming on the brakes locks your wheels so that they act like sled runners.
- When you have car straightened out, pump the brakes gently to bring the car to a stop.

Skid turns into dangerous spin.

Skidding stops and car straightens out.

Wider Social Security Underlined By Labor Heads

OTTAWA (CP) — Problems of Canadian unemployment and demands for wider social security measures were underlined by Canada's two top labor leaders in their annual New Year messages.

However, they labelled 1953 as a year of advance for labor and expressed optimism for 1954.

The messages, released today, came from Percy R. Bengough, president of the 480,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and A. R. Mosher, president of the 375,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor. The organizations are the largest of Canada's central labor bodies.

"The year now closing," Mr. Bengough said, "had had its share of difficulties, but there have also been gains. In the main it has been a year of progress."

"On the other hand," he said, "there have been the dark spots. And for many these troubles are increasing rather than lessening as the year ends.

UNEMPLOYMENT SERIOUS

"Unemployment and underemployment are already serious in some industries and are on the increase throughout the whole of Canada. Those normally employed in textiles, railways, aircraft plants and the rubber industry have felt the cruelty of layoffs most."

Mr. Bengough said that never before in Canadian history has unemployment been so high at this time of year. The federal government should inaugurate a public works program and do all possible to encourage re-employment in private industry.

The TLC president renewed the congress' demands for extension of unemployment insurance benefits and a national scheme of health insurance.

President Mosher said that while Canadians are concerned with the economic outlook, he believes they may look forward to the new year "with optimism tempered by an intelligent study and understanding of both the domestic and the international aspects of the trade picture."

SEES BRIGHT FUTURE

"Canada has become one of the world," he said, "and, even so far as the immediate future is concerned, there is no reason for undue apprehension.

"There is widespread agreement that the long-range future for Canada is extremely bright, and I believe that our people have the ability to meet any situation and solve any problem which they may have to face."

Much of Canada's economy depended on international trade, but this was a matter which "we have not yet learned to handle in an effective and satisfactory manner."

Russian Santa Receives Orders To Improve Toys

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP) — Old Grandfather Frost is getting some pretty strict orders in Russia these days. He's being told to pack mama dolls that really say mama and boys' games that won't fall apart when he makes his gift-bearing rounds on New Year's Day.

Grandfather Frost is the Soviet version of Santa Claus. He arrives a week before Christmas in the Soviet Union, which is observed Jan. 7 in accord with the old Julian calendar used by the Russian orthodox church.

Friday, millions of Soviet children will gather around fir trees to receive gifts and sweets. The grown-ups exchange gifts, too, and this year the cry is for quality goods.

Premier Malenkov's government has promised more and better consumer goods. Letter columns of Soviet newspapers disclose that the Russian consumer wants to see this reflected in better-made gifts now that holiday buying is in full swing.

INDIGNANT COMMENT

A parent who bought a doll for his daughter had this indignant comment:

"The instructions said that this doll could walk, roll its eyes and say 'mama.' The doll looks very nice—if you ignore the fact that its wig is made of rags and cotton waste glued to the head, instead of hair. Neither we nor our child could make the doll walk.

"On the second day the doll was completely paralyzed. Despite careful handling the right arm fell off. Then, while trying to make the doll work, something broke inside and instead of saying 'mama' it only made hoarse sounds. Why do they put out such bad toys?"

Other letters complained about flimsy table games whose parts did not match and children's shoes that fell apart when exposed to rainy weather.

COMPLAIN OF COST

Moscow newspapers complained also about the cost of the toys. A doll's chair cost 22 rubles, as much as a chair for grown-ups. The Moscow research institute on toys came up with a toy kitchen with a real sink, water in the tap, washing machine, meat grinder, pots and pans. But the cost was 1,500 rubles, nearly as much as a real kitchen for a real family would cost.

(The ruble is quoted officially at four to the United States dollar, but 1,500 rubles would amount to more than two months' salary for an ordinary factory worker.)

Plan Enter Candidate

MIDLAND (CP)—The CCF association in Simcoe East said it will hold a convention here Jan. 6 to name a candidate to contest the Ontario riding in forthcoming by-election Feb. 8. The seat became vacant with the recent death of Dr. John McPhee who had held it since 1943 for the Progressive Conservatives.

Find Color Ban In Bermuda Outstrips South Africa

By HALCO FERGUSON

LONDON— (OFNS) — On the first morning of a recent visit to the island of Bermuda, I walked into a bank with a young Bermudian lady whom I had long known in England, and who had been a frequent visitor to our house. As we went in the tellers stopped telling, the depositors stopped depositing, the typists stopped typing, and the whole business of the bank came to a stop as everyone turned to stare at us. There was nothing in the least strange about us, except that I was white and she was colored, and we were together.

By staying with L.'s colored family— as I had stayed in colored homes throughout the Caribbean without causing the least comment — I had unwittingly broken an unwritten law which no one remembered having been broken before. Bermuda is as segregated as South Africa, but with one ironical contrast: the colored population is on a higher educational and cultural level, and is more sophisticated and travelled, than the white population. My friend, for instance, is the first Bermudian woman of any color to be called to the English bar — a fact mentioned on her return by neither of the white daily newspapers on the island.

COLLEGE GRADUATE

She is, intellectually, no rare exception among Bermudians, of her race. A colored taxi-driver, surprised to find where I was staying, started a long conversation with me. He was a college graduate with specialised training, but could not find an opening in his own field. Other people of his kind of qualifications and of his color, are often waiters, maidservants or even manual laborers. Even if they are professional or business men they are denied access to almost all hotels, restaurants, clubs, bars and beaches on the island: and up to the present colored girls have not been able to train as nurses.

The pattern is reminiscent of the least desirable and gradually disappearing features of the American Deep South. The owner of a highly respectable colored tavern near where I stayed is not admitted to any white licensed premises, but he cannot keep white people out of his own bar. Some whites who frequent it are nice people, but too many are in a condition in which they would be admitted nowhere else, and behave in a manner which would not be tolerated in white establishments.

The official explanation of Bermuda's segregation policy is that to change it would endanger the country's American tourist trade. This is sheer nonsense, and most insulting to the Americans, who flock to the non-segregated Caribbean islands in thousands; and who, when they speak of the set-up in Bermuda at all, generally deplore it. As one tourist told a colored friend of mine: "This is the kind of thing we're trying to get rid of in the States." Colored Bermudians, many of whom have visited the United States, know that.

The real explanation lies in Bermuda itself, and it is not a pretty one. Bermuda is controlled by a group of white Bermudian business men whose leaders are known to the colored population as The Forty Thieves. They are descended from people who gained their wealth and power during slavery days or shortly after, and they intend to retain their position, come what may. They do not use the crude racial justifications of the Afrikaner nationalists in South Africa, but speak paternally of the Negroes' need to develop, of slow evolution, of the necessity to take time. They love the colored people, they imply, only the colored people are children—which may be true in some societies, but is nonsense in Bermuda.

The basis of white power in Bermuda is inherited property. The franchise, under one of the oldest constitutions in the world, is based on property, and the whites take good care to see that too much of it does not pass into colored hands —they sell only to "approved buyers." As a result, of thirty-six members of the House of Assembly, only nine are non-whites; and some of these nine are colored people of limited intellectual capacity put up by white interests.

The dominant race uses its permanent Parliamentary majority to deny—for instance—Rhodes scholarships to coloured candidates, and to exclude Negroes from the civil service and similar professions. The police force is headed by a white man from South Africa and has a large number of personnel from the former Palestine Police, and white magistrates tend to send Negroes to gaol for offences for which a European would not even be arrested.

What are called the Bermudian Bermudians— that is, colored people whose families have been on the island since the days of slavery and who are often unacknowledged relatives of members of the white ruling class— tend to put up with the situation for the sake of peace and because they enjoy economic security and patronage. But there are other colored Bermudians, typified by my hostess, whose ancestors came from the effervescent islands of the West Indies; and they are becoming ever more solid in opposition.

Because they are educated and often traveled people, they know too much to submit tamely to indignities, and are in consequence feared and disliked by the people in power. Their spokeman in the Assembly is Dr. Edward Fitzgerald Gordon, who was born in Trinidad, to which the ruling class would be only too happy to return him if they could find a suitable excuse. As it is, Jamaicans, for instance, are not allowed to reside in Bermuda for more than three months.

This situation in a tiny island might seem unimportant, but the visit of Queen Elizabeth and the meeting of the Big Three, have recently focussed world attention on Bermuda; and in any case the colored people of the world are supremely sensitive to and highly conscious of any injustice to their race anywhere.

It is symptomatic that the British Guiana State Council, at a time of political crisis in that country, unanimously—and regardless of Party or colour— voted to protest at the exclusion of its colored president, Sir Frank McDavid, from a Bermudian hotel when his plane was held up there overnight.

Race relations in Bermuda can cause lack of confidence between blacks and whites throughout the West Indies, and even further afield, and in the long run it is the whites, who are far fewer in number, who will suffer from racial conflict.

Consolidation Of Economy Seen During 1954

MONTREAL (CP)—The easing of international tensions will probably bring about a readjustment in Canada's economy during 1954, W. J. Borrie, president of the Canadian chamber of Commerce, said today.

In a year-end message, Mr. Borrie said the major task for Canadians in 1954 may be the consolidation of gains made during the post-war period "prior to a further upward climb from this plateau."

BROAD OUTLOOK GOOD

This period of readjustment would be similar to the one in 1950, following the outbreak of the Korean war. However, economic activity in 1954 should be at a reasonably high general level despite possible regional difficulties.

"What many people do not realize is that current expansion in Canada has been due largely to an upsurge in civilian sectors of the economy," Mr. Borrie said.

"Actually we should be gearing our thinking to the great opportunity afforded . . . if international tensions are . . . somewhat eased."

PRODUCTIVITY IS KEY

Mr. Borrie said a high degree of productivity is needed to achieve a still higher standard of living.

Improved technology, more efficient management and willingness on the part of production workers would result in greater productivity.

Money Sickness Cause Of Many Ailments—Doctor

By FRANK CAREY

BOSTON (AP)—Your stomach trouble, headache, back pain or even an irregular heart might actually be a form of "money sickness" caused by a virus familiarly known as the dollar.

This new wrinkle in diagnosis was reported today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by a Boston doctor. He said various physical symptoms can sometimes stem from emotional upsets which, in turn, can be brought on by "money problems" possible among people in all income brackets.

"Money sickness," said Dr. William Kaufman, is "the most common psychosomatic illness of our times"—and yet one that is often missed by doctors in seeking the underlying cause of a physical or emotional symptom.

Anyone from a miser to a gambler and from chronic bargain hunters to "salesmen and executives who are cozy with their own money but lavishly spend on their company's expense accounts," are candidates for the malady, Kaufman told the AAAS' 120th meeting.

And, in addition to physical symptoms like headache, muscle and joint pains or stomach trouble, it can take the form of serious emotional disturbances like hysterical paralysis, depression, anxiety states or reactions of "panic."

Kaufman, a practitioner of internal medicine, explained it somewhat like this:

DEPENDS ON MEANING

The trouble doesn't necessarily come from how much money you have or haven't. It comes from the particular 'meaning" you have come to place on money, and how you have learned to use it. And it could come from "feeling" you need more money when actually you don't. Furthermore, it all starts back in your childhood.

"One of life's major disappointments which almost every child experiences," said Kaufman, "is that his parents cannot provide him with limitless money. . . .

"The manner in which a child resolves his early conflicts about money will determine some of his basic personality and character traits, aspirations and behavior patterns."

High Prices Have Dropped For B.C. Fish Livers

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia fishermen are still making good money with fish livers, a vitamin source, but high prices of a few years ago are no longer available.

Once the chief source of A and D vitamins, fish livers now have to face competition from new synthetic vitamins chemically produced and an influx of Japanese fish livers into the American market.

Prices now are only a fraction of what they were in 1945 and 1946, when the livers added $1,000,000 annually to B.C. fishermen's income. High potency livers that used to bring 80 cents a pound are now worth 25 or 30 cents. Low grade livers that once brought 25 cents are now worth only five or six cents.

However, long-liners and trawlers still extract the livers from halibut, cod and other fish caught and market them as a profitable by-product.

Fishermen still make sets for dogfish, using old gill nets. Dogfish livers have a high vitamin content and a small load brought into Vancouver recently from the Gulf of Georgia brought 90 cents to $1 a pound.

Price paid is based on the result of chemical analysis. Livers this year on the average are low in vitamin potency, thought to be due to the marked shortage of natural organic feed in the water. Many varieties of fish live on plankton, minute sea vegetable which authorities say has been lacking in some Pacific waters.

No Decision Made About MP Increases

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe, acting prime minister, said today "nothing has been decided" about pay increases for members of the Commons.

It has been reported persistently that the government at this session of Parliament will introduce legislation to boost the members' sessional indemnities, now $6,000 with $2,000 of this as a tax-free expense allowance.

Mr. Howe declined to confirm even that alternative proposals are under consideration.

Find Mistrust In Buganda Britain's Tactical Blunder

By DOUGLAS HYDE

LONDON (OFNS)—I have just returned from Buganda, the most important of the territories in the British East African Protectorate of Uganda, whose native ruler, the Kabaka, was deposed by the British authorities on November 30 because he was not co-operating with the Protectorate Government. "If we see the next few months through without anyone doing anything silly," I was told there, "we should be able to say that all the anxiety caused by the Kabaka's removal is over. But if anyone should do anything silly, then literally anything could happen."

This view I heard—and more than once—in circles close to the Uganda Government. But my business also took me among Europeans living in Buganda, and among a great many of the people of Buganda, with whom I exchanged views and among whom I stayed and travelled—not only in the capital but up-country. And I would like to report what I saw and heard rather than attempt any political analysis.

Among the Europeans there seemed to be a widely held view that in announcing right at the start that under no circumstances would the young Kabaka be permitted to return to his country, Britain's Colonial Secretary, Mr. Oliver Lyttelton, made a tactical blunder. For he unnecessarily slammed behind him a door which he might have left ajar. Now, it was argued, if the Kabaka had for any reason to be brought back, the Governor of Uganada, Sir Andrew Cohen, would have to go —if not Mr. Lyttelton himself.

KABAKA NOT LIKED

I found general agreement among both Europeans and Africans that the concern of the people of Buganda was for the kabakaship rather than for the Kabaka himself. For Mutesa II, the deposed ruler, was not a popular king. In his relations with his people he was remote and unsympathetic, passing through the crowds which would gather to pay homage with neither a word nor a look for any of them.

Moreover, the reputation he enjoyed of being a playboy at home, and still more of one abroad, did not recommend him to his subjects, most of whom spend their days tending the bananas, beans, coffee and cotton which grow on the little plots surrounding their mud-and-wattle homes. Nor did it earn him the respect of the European community, so that he was a man who belonged to neither group. For this reason, many believe that exile from his country means little hardship for the Kabaka.

But it would be wrong to suggest that because there was little love lost on the Kabaka, and because there have been no violent reactions to his removal, the Baganda have not been deeply troubled by the whole affair.

Travelling the country I found plenty of tell-tale evidence of the fact that the people were, and remain, profoundly disturbed. Not least are they disturbed by the way in which, after the British had spent generations building up the idea of the king-emperor, one of our politicians could remove a native king, with a long line of rulers behind him, without any reference to the people of Buganda.

The first evidence I found was in the senior boys' school. In the library I was shown copies of the official Government paper. In the week before the Kabaka's removal there arrived, instead of the usual single copy, a curiously large number. On the front page was a picture of the Governor. On the back was one of the young king.

When I looked at the papers more closely I found that in every case the face of Sir Andrew Cohen had been rubbed or picked out. The school, like most mission schools, was a boarding establishment, so that the boys had not been influenced by their families; and it was miles from any town. So the resentment behind the action would seem to be wholly spontaneous.

I visited the model tobacco factory at Jinja, where hundreds of Africans straight for the bush are doing mass-production work. There I was told that on the day the news broke, production fell and men went about the place looking unhappy and resentful. Gradually they had settled down again; but nothing had happened to lessen their resentment.

NOT SEPARATED MOVE

Buganda students to whom I talked seemed almost unanimously to accept the idea that each native ruler of Uganda had agreed to call for independence and that the Kabaka had done no more than the others. They felt that his call for independence for his province was not a separatist move at all.

I suspect it will be a long time before the British administration has lived down the recent events; for they have undermined much of what has been achieved in the last few years. The government's news service, for instance, has been a valuable one, carefully built up as being "as impartial as the British Broadcasting Corporation."

Loudspeaker vans have gone out to the villages, and their fortnightly visits have been a highlight in the lives of the people. The appeal of the news service has been a highlight in the lives of the people. The appeal of the news service has been in the carefully-fostered belief that it was committed to neither group in the Protectorate; and the same was true of the government's news-sheets. But when the "emergency" broke the whole service became frankly propagandist, and all claim to impartiality was thrown aside. And with objectivity was discarded the people's trust.

Many Europeans in Uganda take the view that somewhere behind the nationalist movement are the Communists. To suggest that every leader of the Uganda National Congress, which is the principal body of this kind, is a Communist is to distort the real situation. In any case, one or two Communists in carefully-chosen positions could direct or influence the movement with little difficulty. And that that is the position seems not improbable.

An indication that Eastern Europe is not unaware of the Congress's existence and potential importance lies in the fact that prominent among the advertisers in the current issue of its recently - established paper is a Hungarian trading company. It offers the Africans who read the paper "silverware, fancy jewellery, brushware, and bentwood chairs," giving them an address in Budapst from which these commodities may be purchased. It seems improbable that the company can expect much response in terms of business; but advertising can, of course, be a veiled form of subsidy.

Nova Scotia Girl Has Quick TV Success Story

By JOAN BARBERIS

TORONTO (CP) — Perhaps the speediest success story on Canadian television is that of 21-year-old Marion Clarke of Pugwash, N.S., who bids to become known as a lovely, alert mistress of ceremonies.

She had just made a brief appearance on a program carried by the CBC television network from Toronto when a long distance telephone call from Ottawa brought the advice: "Don't let that girl get out of the studio."

The caller was Ernest Bushnell, assistant general manager of the CBC and co-ordinator of CBC television, one of many who were immediately impressed by Marion's personality.

Marion had been selected by a national magazine from 400 entries in a contest for girls who wanted help with grooming problems. She is a tall, outspoken brunette with political ambitions.

After arrival in Toronto, magazine photographers took pictures for a spring issue; she was entertained, given new clothes and a new hair-do.

The guest appearance on TV was an unexpected item in the program.

"It just can't be me," she said in an interview afterwards. "These things don't happen."

Now working as clerk with an oil company in Halifax, she said she had been offered a number of jobs in Toronto besides television work. But she's going home to Pugwash to "talk it over with mother and dad" before she decides on her future.

Blue-eyed Marion describes herself as a staunch Tory. She attended normal college at Truro and won a scholarship to Mount St. Vincent. She's taking night courses in journalism and political science at St. Mary's College.

Her chief ambition is politics, and her main concern is the Atlantic provinces.

"The Liberals need a larger opposition in Parliament," she said. "It would be good for Canada." As for geographical rights, she says: Upper Canada is self-satisfied and we young Maritimers must not be too complacent about it all." freight rates, among other things, but her political views do not subdue her feminine feelings.

"Look," she said. "They plucked my eyebrows and cropped my hair. It's been one mad dash since I came here."

She was almost sure she would return to Toronto in January. "But that doesn't mean I'll give up Pugwash, or politics," she said.

Steel Production Gains Faster In Red Lands

NEW YORK (AP)—Behind the Iron Curtain, steel production is gaining than it is in the free world; but tonnage output in the democracies is still nearly four times higher than in the Communist lands, Iron Age, the metal working weekly says.

A study of world steel production just completed by the American publication shows that the combined production of Russia and her satellites was 14 per cent greater in 1953 than in 1952; output in the free world was only 10 per cent higher in 1953 than in 1952.

But the free world produced more than 200,000,000 net tons of raw steel in 1953 while the output of the Communist bloc was only a bit over 54,000,000 tons.

U.S. MAKES OVER HALF

World steel production in 1953 was 11 per cent greater than in 1952. The 1953 output was 254,600,000 net tons—a record.

The United States accounted for 111,900,000 net tons, well over half the free world production, says Iron Age.

Iron Age says steel operations in the U. S. this week are scheduled to advance nine per cent to 74 per cent of rated capacity, compared with the Christmas week low of 65 per cent. A seasonal year-end lag continues to prevail in the market.

Slow Progress Toward Education

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Strikes, stonings, smashed heads and shattered windows are becoming symbols of India's unhappy progress towards fuller education.

One of the country's leading educationists, Prof. Venkatarangaiya expressed a widely-held view when he said: "In India, young men undergoing the process of education have become strangers to an orderly and well-regulated life."

Behind the unhappy state of education lie low salaries for teachers, a lack of opportunity for college graduates, and student-teacher counter-charges of student "irresponsibility" and teacher ineptness.

Latest figures show that 16,251 college graduates and 112,562 others with college training are unemployed.

OVERCROWDING FACTOR

Student-teacher relationships are worsened by overcrowding. India's 30 universities are catering to 460,000 students and the country's 771,809 teachers must cope with the education of more than 25,000,000 pupils.

Universal education is still little more than a cherished hope in the government's mind.

"If we were to provide the sort of basic education we consider necessary, it would cost much more than the total income of the government of India today," Prime Minister Nehru said recently.

So far, India has only achieved a literacy rate of 19.9 per cent of a population of 352,000,000.

More Nylons Promised Women In U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — British women were cheered today with a board of trade announcement that more nylon stockings and fancy lace-trimmed lingerie may be imported next year from Canada and the United States.

The increased imports of feminine frivolities from the dollar area will result from minor changes in the British token import program which provides for continued imports of a small fraction of the pre-war total on goods traditionally purchased from North America.

QUOTAS REDISTRIBUTED

Quotas will actually be unchanged at 30 per cent by value of each North American manufacturers' average United Kingdom trade in 1936-38.

But next year the entire stocking quota may be all nylons. Nylons have heretofore been limited to about one-third of the stocking imports.

Similarly, restrictions have been removed on the proportion of lace-trimmed garments which may be imported under the apparel quotas.

Even so, the increases will only be a trickle. Probably about 400,000 pairs of nylons will cross the Atlantic next year—compared with current British production of 2,000,000 pairs a week.

Isaac-Knight Nuptials

WARKWORTH (ENS)—The marriage was solemnized in St. Paul's United Church, Warkworth, on Saturday of Joan Isobel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Knight, and Ronald Jack Isaac, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Isaac.

The Rev. A. L. Sisco officiated, and Mrs. Douglas Knight, aunt of the bride, was at the organ. Before the ceremony and during the signing of the register, Mrs. James McCleary sang.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white ensemble. The strapless waltz length gown was fashioned of nylon tulle with bodice edged with pearls and rhinestones. The coat was an triple faille with roll collar. The headdress was of ostrich feathers with fingertip veil of French embroidered nlyon tulle.

Miss Barbara Taylor of Peterborough as maid of honor, gowned in powder blue net with matching headdress. Bridesmaid Miss Jacqueline Potter of Tweed wore cocoa brown net and Miss Anne Pollock, cousin of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, was in shrimp net.

They wore watching headdresses and white velvet capes. Little Donna Knight, frocked in eggshell brocaded taffeta with floral headdress, was her sister's flower girl. All the attendants carried nosegays of roses and forget-me-nots.

Mr. William Isaac, brother of the groom, was groomsman, and Kenneth Johnston and Clair Knight, brother of the bride, were ushers.

A reception was held at the home of the bride where her mother received, wearing a gown of mink taffeta with a matching hat and a corsage of cream roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of cascade blue crepe with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The couple will live in Peterborough.

Roma Williamson Weds Kenneth Derraugh, London

White tapers and tall standards of white chrysanthemums effectively decorated Knox United Church for the wedding at four o'clock Tuesday afternoon of Margaret Roma Williamson to Mr. William Kenneth Derraugh of London, Ontario, which was solemnized by the Rev. H. G. Douglas.

Miss Williamson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross A. Williamson of Peterborough and was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Derraugh of Ottawa.

Junior and intermediate choirs sang "O Perfect Love" in a processional before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register they sang "Go Forth with God". The wedding march and accompanying music was played by Mr. Donald Kennedy.

Shantung taffeta in rose powder shade was fashioned with tightly molded strapless bodice and bell skirt in waltz length for the bride. The skirt fullness was achieved by numerous unpressed pleats. Matching shade velvet formed a narrow turned down cuff at the edge of the bodice and lined the tiny bolero jacket. A band of flowers trimmed the back hairline of her hat of the velvet and she also wore velvet gloves. Her colonial bouquet was of debutante camelias and snow drop poms.

Mrs. Graham Ritchie of Ottawa as matron of honor wore a similarly designed gown of mallard blue shantung taffeta and matching velvet hat and gloves. She also carried a colonial bouquet which was of Sunshine poms.

Mr. Ted Henry of Ottawa attended the groom. The ushers were the bride's brother, Mr. Lloyd Williamson of Hamilton, and Mr. Howard Kelly of Huntingdon, Quebec.

Guests from Peterborough, Ottawa, Huntingdon, Detroit, London, Hamilton, Toronto, Bowmanville and Bobcaygeon attended the wedding and the reception following at the YWCA.

The bride's mother chose a gown of moss green English wool crepe designed with pencil slim skirt, the fitted bodice with flattering picture frame neckline bordered in Canadian mink, and wore a hat of coronet gold velour in shell style embroidered with blending shades of bugle beads. Her corsage was of talisman roses.

The groom's mother wore a two piece costume of brown shot taffeta trimmed with beads and a hat of pale pink velvet flat flowers with veiling, and her corsage was of pink Butterfly roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Derraugh will live in London following their honeymoon. He has graduated from the Carlton College, Ottawa, with BA degree, and from the University of Western Ontario, London, with an MBA. The bride graduated from the Ottawa Civic Hospital and is a registered nurse.

For going-away she wore a suit of sea foam blue cordella twill with box style jacket, a small jewel-trimmed navy Malusine hat and navy accessories and a silver blue muskrat jacket.

French Skater Makes Bid For Fame In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—France's Jacqueline du Bief steps up into fast company Christmas night in her first big bid for professional ice skating fame and fortune.

The 21-year-old world's champion figure skater of 1952 gets star billing alongside Canada's Barbara Ann Scott, in the Hollywood Ice Revue's Chicago Stadium opening. Miss Scott turned pro after winning the world and Olympic titles in 1948.

Only a few days ago, Miss du Bief, a dark-eyed, handsome brunette, was killing time in Paris. Then the phone rang.

On the other end in Chicago was Arthur Wirtz, the operator of the revue. Following some introductory pleasantires, Wirtz came up with an eye-popping offer.

"I say yes, of course," said Jacqueline, explaining it all.

So now, after an airplane trip and a hurried costume-fitting stopover in New York, she is putting the finishing touches on two "singles" numbers for the show.

"PRETEND I'M TIGHT"

One is a drinking skit: "You know, I pretend I'm tight." The other portrays the visions that go through a sculptor's mind as he molds a statue. After some dreamy manoeuvres, Miss du Bief becomes the finished product.

"Jolly Jackie"—they call her that in Paris—has been skating professionally for more than a year and she makes no secret of her ambition to be one of the sport's headliners—in the Sonja Henie - Scott class.

"I think they are expert with the classic skating figures. I do not care for these school figures. I am interested more in the interpretation. To get over the impression."

Marion Crawford 1st Queen Of PCVS Annual At Home

Inauguration of choosing an "at home queen" at the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School's annual Christmas week dance came as a surprise to most of the 400 students and graduates attending the event Tuesday evening at the Club Aragon.

Miss Marion Crawford won the honor and distinction of being the first queen, and was given the official title of "palm queen" since decorations for the 1953 dance simulated an African jungle of tall palms and native huts, incorporated in a huge mural and on the dance programs.

PCVS principal Mr. C. S. Browne was called upon to place the "crown" of palm leaves on the lovely young queen, and Mrs. Howard David presented her with a bouquet of roses.

Announcement of the selection was made by at home committee chairman Miss Isabel Anderson. The choice had been made by the patrons and patronesses, Mr. Browne and Mrs. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Adamson, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Simmers and Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Gell, who were in the receiving line with Miss Anderson and Mr. Ronald Gell, president of the Students' Council.

Dancing under a ceiling of light and dark green streamers followed a program on which number 12 was listed as "College Medley." For these spirited numbers the dancers formed a conga line and "snaked" up and down the dance floor and among the tables for about 15 minutes, singing words of the college songs as they went.

The couples were registered as follows:

Miss Maureen Fletcher, Ron Gell, Miss Isabel Anderson, Bev. Eddington, Miss Mary Elizabeth Hunter, Carmen Bulmer, Miss Susan Last, Melville Barns, Lorarine Bacon, Terry Fitzpatrick, Miss Pat Pogue, Ron Brazer, Miss Pat Elliott, Richard Atkinson, Miss Roslyn Moldaver, Bob Beath, Miss Doyne Johnson, Bob Findlay, Miss Marie MacFarlane, Dave Hickey, Miss Audrey Sampson, Norman Moffat, Miss Patricia Warman, Walter Woodhouse, Miss Gwen McKee, K. PIONEER LINK

The first submarine cable in Canada was laid between Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick in 1852.

HISTORIC SPOT

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Is Your Goose Hung High For New Year's?

Who said that I never give you a recipe for roasting a goose? A reader did. She was right too, but I'm going to remedy that fault herewith in our New Years Dinner Menu:

Cranberry Juice Cocktail with Anchovy Canapes
Roast Goose
Bread and Onion Stuffing
Brown Gravy
Apple Jelly or Cranberry Moulds
Potato Puff
Brussels Sprouts
Lettuce Hearts with Rosy Mayonnaise
Carrot Pudding
Nutmeg Brown Sugar Sauce
Mixed Nuts
Coffee

DIRECTIONS

All instructions will be very short but specific enough to carry you through.

CRANBERRY JUICE COCKTAIL

Boil together 2 cups each washed cranberries and water until soft. Strain. Add ¼ cup sugar and 1 tablespoon lemon juice to juice. Chill.

ROAST GOOSE

Do not cover, do not cover with cloth, do not baste, do not turn, do not add water. Roast a 7 or 8-lb. goose (drawn weight) at 325 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes to the lb.—approximately 3¼ to 4 hours; an 11-lb. goose (drawn weight) at 325 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes to the lb. approximately 4½ hours.

BREAD & ONION STUFFING
(for 7 or 8-lb. goose)

Peel and parboil onions just long enough to make them tender enough to chop. To them add 4 cups well-packed soft breadcrumbs, 1½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 or 2 teaspoons sage, ¼ cup very finely chopped celery and 2 or 4 tablespoons melted butter.

POTATO PUFF

Make very fluffy mashed potatoes, using 8 medium potatoes and 2/3 cup hot milk and at least 2 tablespoons butter and plenty of salt. Beat in 2 well-beaten egg yolks, then fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Pile in greased casserole, brush top with butter, sprinkle with fine old cheese and paprika and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until puffed and brown.

ROSY MAYONNAISE

To ½ cup mayonnaise (genuine) add 1½ tablespoons very thick chili sauce or catsup, 6 drops onion juice and 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

CARROT PUDDING

In a large mixing bowl mix together 1 cup brown sugar, ¾ cup very finely chopped suet and 2 tablespoons sour milk. Into this put 1 cup each grated carrot and potato and immediately stir to prevent potatoes browning. Add 1¼ cups breadcrumbs, 1 cup each raisins and currants, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ cup unsifted flour, 1 teaspoon each salt and cinnamon, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, and ½ teaspoon allspice if desired. Mix very well. Turn into well-greased moulds, tightly cover and steam—individual moulds 1¼ hours, large moulds 3 hours. If you do not have moulds for this purpose use vacuum-pack coffee cans, filled 2/3 full—2 will hold this. Cover tightly and steam 3 hours. Serve with

NUTMEG BROWN SUGAR SAUCE

In top of double boiler mix together ½ cup brown sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, shake of salt and when well mixed stir in 1 cup boiling water. Cook stirring over boiling water until thick, then cover and cook 20 minutes, stirring twice. Remove from heat and add ½ of a freshly grated nutmeg, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon lemon juice or finely grated rind or ½ teaspoon vanilla.

I did not know whether I would run out of space before I had mentioned everything—so left out the anchovy canapes, but I still have a line or so: Spread circle of toast with buttered and seasoned anchovy paste, garnish with crescents of green pepper on each side of a sliced stuffed olive in the centre. If desired 3 tiny pearl onions may be placed at centre, and circled with a thin strip of canned pimiento.

I'll say my special Happy New Year to you tomorrow.

DOROTHY DIX

Happy Wife Resents Mother Slipping Him Money

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem is an in-law one—but with a difference. Van and I have been married a year, and his people are just wonderful to us. They live quite a distance away, and we visit them for a week end about once a month. On every visit his mother corners Van to discuss "business," then slips him some money. Of course, this isn't supposed to be a secret from me; I think it's just her way of being tactful. However, I resent this money business, since Van makes a good salary and we do not need financial assistance. I prefer to be independent. Do you think I'm being foolish, or should I continue to object to my husband's taking money from his mother?

Irene V.

ANSWER: Your reaction isn't exactly foolish, Irene, but it is squeamish. Doesn't it seem unfair to resent something as innocuous as a mother's help to her son, especially when there is absolutely nothing else in the in-law relationship that disturbs you? Independence is a wonderful quality, but when it must be exercised at the expense of another's feelings, it loses much of it merit. Certainly, the whole matter isn't worth arguments between you and Van. If you cannot discuss it without acrimony, it would be far better to have him take the money, park it safely in a bank for emergency use, and forget about it. Perhaps the day may come when Van's mother will need it herself; apparently she's the type who prefers giving to saving, and a rainy-day fund could come in mighty handy in case of illness or financial setback.

Your desire to stand on your own is most commendable, but don't get arrogant about it. Comes a time when it's good to have someone to fall back on. In the meanwhile, handle this financial angle intelligently. Don't make a row over it; have Van explain to his mother, tactfully, that he doesn't need the money. But if it's obvious that giving it is a pleasure to her, accept the kindness as it's intended, with graciousness.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a high-school junior in love with a boy of 18, who is in service. My mother knows we've been going steady, but doesn't realize that we are engaged. We expect to wait two years before we marry. How shall I tell her?

M. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your mother should have been kept informed of the progressive romance. Since she knows you are going steady, the news that you're serious shouldn't be too much of a surprise, and, as she likes the boy, she probably won't be displeased. The important thing is not to keep the engagement a secret any longer.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I recently met and fell in love with a girl of 21, who is married. She claims she doesn't love her husband, that she married him just for a home. She wants to divorce him and marry me, yet she apparently hesitates to break the news to him. Whenever I suggest it, she finds an excuse.

Ted R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Don't let the girl make a fool of you, Ted. She's giving you an old-fashioned run-around. Naturally she wants to keep the security she has, but she also likes the excitement of a hideaway love affair. There's no honesty in her, and the sooner you realize it the better.

Propose Fund Set Up To Buy Milk Surpluses

KITCHENER (CP) — Formation of a fund to buy milk surplusses off the Ontario market and export them to world channels was proposed today by K. M. Betzner at the Waterloo county Federation of Agriculture annual meeting.

Mr. Betzner, vice-chairman of the Ontario milk control board, said Canada is faced with a surplus of dairy products for the first time since Confederation.

Factors responsible for the increase, he said, are the U. S. embargo on export of cattle for a year and a half and lack of a cheese contract with Great Britain last year.

"Out of Canada's 18,000,000,000-pound milk production this year 3½ per cent was surplus production and yet this 3½ per cent affected the price of all dairy products in the Dominion," he said.

To stabilize the industry the Ontario dairy producers co-ordinating board has asked the Ontario government to place four dairy groups —the executive of which comprise the board—under one act to permit deductions for the proposed fund.

The four groups comprise the Ontario Whole Milk Producers, Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers Association, Ontario Cheese Producers Association and the Ontario cream producers marketing board.

Use A-Weapon If Attacked

SEOUL (Reuters)—South Korea's defence minister said today that the United Nations naval and air forces in Korea will use atomic weapons if the Communists again attack South Korea.

Questioned further by reporters at a press conference here, Admiral Sohn Won Il said "the whole matter is very delicate," and refused further comment.

Sohn conferred last week with Admiral Arthur Radford, chairman of the United States joint chiefs of staff.

The defence minister also said anti-Communist prisoners-of-war in India custody who refused repatriation will "definitely be released on Jan. 23."

"We have made all arrangements for anti-Communist prisoners now held in Indian custody. They will be given civilian status and guaranteed the freedom of South Korea."

Woman Freed In Shooting

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Nina Harrell, 35, is free today in the fatal shooting of her former husband, Earl Harrell, 35, who was married to her sister, Ruth, 26, when he was killed Christmas Day.

Prosecutor Chester R. Schwesinger held that Mrs. Harrell shot in self-defence and it was justifiable homicide. He declined to issue a warrant against her.

The sisters stuck together on the story of the shooting, which happened at the home where all three lived together. Also there were five small children by Ruth and a 13-year-old daughter by Nina.

Schwesinger said the sisters told him that Harrell ignored their demands that he quit drinking Christmas Day, and threatened to kill the entire family. They accused him of firing two shots at Ruth and Lenore, his 13-year-old daughter.

The two women told the prosecutor they and the older daughter struggled with him. Nina grabbed his gun, which went off, killing him.

Farmers Not Getting Fair Income Share

KITCHENER (CP) — Lloyd Hagey, president of the Waterloo county Federation of Agriculture told the annual meeting today that farmers are not getting their fair share of the national income and in fact are just getting by.

There is much left to be desired in the over-all farm price picture, he said. Farmers comprise 20 per cent of Canada's population but are getting only 10.6 per cent of the national income.

Parity prices, he felt, should be across-the-board in Canada. Beef, hog and poultry producers had parity prices for certain periods but never milk producers.

SKY-REACHING FLAMES lick their hungry way through roadside brush as a gigantic forest fire rages in California's timbered mountains some 20 miles from Los Angeles. More than 2,500 persons have been evacuated from the threatened towns of Seirra Madre and Upper Monrovia. Thick, choking smoke is everywhere in the air. Mt. Wilson Observatory, which houses a 100-inch telescope and other valuable equipment, lies directly in the path of the wind-whipped flames as fire fighters work desperately to save the telescope and seven television transmitters and aerials.

France's President Prisoner Of Protocol

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—When Rene Coty moves into the Elysee Palace in mid - January as France's new president, he will find himself a prisoner of protocol, dedicated to representing the nation without speaking for it.

He must preside over policy-making bodies without openly moving to help make policy. He must spend most of his working hours on political problems, yet be above politics. He must listen to the opinions of every political party, yet refrain from expressing any opinion of his own.

At one time the drafters of the 1946 French constitution considered abolishing the office. Almost all actual power was concentrated in the National assembly, the lower house of Parliament.

COULD INFLUENCE EDC

On the European army question, for example, the president has no say on when it should be called up for ratification, that action should be taken, or how the government should conduct itself. But when the cabinet makes its decision, the president will be chairman of the meeting.

By his summing up of arguments, his suggestions for compromising various views, and possibly by private talks with ministers to list possible means of action, he might have more influence than any individual minister.

PRESIDENT'S DUTIES

Briefly, here are the duties of the president:

1. To nominate new premiers. The National Assembly may not accept a nomination and, by refusing, leaves it up to the president to name a new man. Last May and June, in 37 days of crisis, President Vincent Auriol had to name five men before Joseph Laniel was accepted.

2. To preside over "councils of ministers," the most important type of cabinet meeting.

3. Preside over the council of the supreme magistrature, the top policy-making body of the judicial system. This group oversees the organization of the judiciary, appoints judges, decides on amnesty policies.

PRESIDES OVER COMMITTEE

4. Preside over the committee of national defence. Armed services chiefs of staff, the premier, defence minister and finance minister sit on this group. The president is commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

5. Preside over meetings of the high council of the French Union. In addition to being president of the French Republic, Coty will hold the title of president of the French Union. In practice the union never has been actively pushed as an independent organization. Only the three Indo-Chinese states are members and they are pressing for greater independence.

6. Receive all foreign ambassadors when they present their credentials. In addition, President Auriol received copies of all diplomatic cables each morning from the foreign office and went over them carefully.

SIGNS TREATIES

7. Sign all laws and treaties after they have been approved by Parliament. He may send bills back for re-consideration with a message explaining his motives. But Parliament is the final judge.

8. He may send messages to the National Assembly on other subjects, but President Auriol never has.

9. He receives and entertains visiting chiefs of state and visits foreign countries on state visits.

10. Finally, he must make numberless public appearances and lay countless wreaths at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. He opens art shows, dedicates dams, lends his prestige to horse races and championship football games, and aids worthwhile charities.

Health Board

Tuesday morning there was an informal meeting with Mayor Hugh Waddell, members of the board, members of the exhibition board, and Dr. J. P. Wells, medical officer of health, attending.

Early today the board held a special meeting to come to a decision.

Dr. Wells said that the exhibition board had been told as far back as 1950 and 1951 (by his predecessor, Dr. R. A. Kelly) that they would have to live up to the terms of the bylaw. A few changes —such as getting a screened manure box and eliminating outdoor toilets—were made.

Here are two sections of Bylaw 2016:

"All stables, pens and other places for cows, horses and other such animals inside the fire limits as now defined....shall have water-tight floors and be thoroughly drained and ventilated and kept clean throughout; and if so ordered by the local board of health, provision shall be made for draining all liquid excreta into the city sewer.

"No yard or shed in which horses, cows or other such animals are allowed to stand or remain, shall be allowed to drain over a sidewalk or upon a street."

GAVE NOTICE

Dr. Wells said that last April he sent the exhibition board notice that they had till the end of the year to make the required maintenance and structural changes.

Then, in the middle of November, Hugh Stewart apparently made a deal with the exhibition board to stable his horses in the Morrow Park horse barns for the winter. The department of health weren't informed of this.

It was first brought to the attention of city officials when assessment officers, hearing the appeals of Claraday ward homeowners, reported complaints about the smells and other nuisances near McGill St.

At their meeting today the board found that the exhibition board had not satisfactorily met their requirements regarding maintenance or structural changes. A deciding factor in their decision to put the deadline for stabling horses at Jan. 31 was the information that Mr. Stewart had moved his horses in on a six-month agreement.

During exhibition days the barns must be adequately maintained and provision made for prompt and sanitary disposal of manure.

No refuse may be burnt on the grounds.

Launch War Against Flies

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The Australian government took careful aim with spray gun today and launched an all-out attack against blowflies in preparation for Queen Elizabeth's Commonwealth tour here.

War also has been declared on the smaller domestic flies.

The blowfly is much larger than the house fly, resembling somewhat the North American horse fly.

The department of the interior will spray gardens and parklands along the royal route and a rubbish dump which the Queen will pass will be covered with soil and sand as an anti-fly measure. Troops will have their uniforms fly-proofed before ceremonial parades.

In the past, swarms of flies from the sheep - grazing country around the city have hampered distinguished persons and guards of honor trying not to move during the National Anthem at formal ceremonies outside Parliament.

Car Skids On Bridge Have Narrow Escape

ORILLIA (CP) — A Toronto couple, Mr. and Mrs. George Keyon, narrowly escaped death Tuesday night when their car skidded on the approach to Greenwater bridge north of nearby Washago and ended up with its front end hanging over the river embankment.

They escaped with minor cuts and bruises. Damage to their car amounted to $200.

Lord Glenorchy Out Of Jail Joins Circus Side Show

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Glenorchy, 34-year-old heir to an earldom who has just been released from jail, settled down today to a new job—assistant to a clairvoyant in a circus side show.

"Yes, my dear chap," the six-foot peer said, "at last life seems to be working out for me. It's good to be on top of the world again, especially after sewing mail bags in prison for a week."

Glenorchy, former major in the Black Watch infantry regiment, was imprisoned for failure to pay £100 maintenance allowance due his wife under an official separation order.

"A benefactor paid for me," Glenorchy said. He added that it was not his father, the Earl of Breadalbane and Holland.

The aristocrat starts work at the circus tonight. In the past he has been a laborer, a bagpipe player in a Christmas pantomime and a bartender.

His new boss is blonde Valerie Sinclaire, 37. "She has given me something to hope for," Glenorchy said. "I'll announce all her acts, play the bagpipes, wear my kilt and generally stood around, acting like a gentleman."

The thing that pleases the nobleman most is the fact that his bagpipes are out of pawn. "Got 'em back," he said with a big grin. "Delightful feeling, old boy."

Suggests Space TV Stations

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Four television relay stations high above the earth's surface could blanket the world with TV waves, eliminating the need for present-day stations, a noted rocket expert and astronomer believes.

Dr. H. R. J. Grosch of Cincinnati, former president of the American Rocket Society and a General Electric Corp. scientist, told the American Astronomical Society Tuesday that space television stations might justify the astronomical cost necessary to build them.

Television waves can be sent only in straight lines, so thousands of relay stations are necessary to overcome the earth's curvature and obstacles such as mountains. The space stations, once placed in motion in an orbit at about 18,600 miles an hour several hundred miles above the earth, would revolve without power forever, he said.

Travelling in the orbit at the same speed as the earth, the stations would constantly blanket the world with the TV waves.

Banned Film For Fear Of Antagonizing

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec film censorship board has banned the motion picture "Martin Luther" on the grounds it would antagonize the people of this predominantly Roman Catholic province.

Alexis Gagnon, chairman of the board, said today in an interview the decision was in keeping with the board's policy to prohibit the showing of films offensive to various religious groups.

The film, he said, was "refused by the majority of the board because it was felt it would be against the real interests of the population to show a film that would cause undue antagonistic sentiments."

DENIES PREJUDICE

He said there was no prejudice on the part of the board because the film dealt biographically with the 16th century revolutionary who left Roman Catholicism to found a Protestant religion.

In the past other films had been banned in Quebec because of objections from non-Catholics. The British film, Oliver Twist, was banned because Jewish organizations felt the portrayal of Fagin the Jew might lead people to think of all Jews as being malicious, said Mr. Gagnon.

Another film—he could not recall its name—was banned because it portrayed a Protestant minister as being narrow-minded.

Pleads Guilty To 8 Counts

James L. Hutchison, unemployed, of 289 Wolfe St., featured prominently in magistrate's court proceedings today when he entered written pleas of guilty to eight charges for breaches of the traffic code.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, fined him a total of $28 and costs $14.

Hutchison was convicted on four counts of parking in prohibited zones during July and August. His unlucky day, however, was August 2 when he received tickets for speeding, failing to carry a driver's license, not having number plates displayed in conspicuous positions and not stopping for a red light. A further charge of speeding on September 5 was adjourned to January 6.

His troubles are not over yet as he is awaiting trial concerning the theft of cheques and other charges laid by the OPP. At the moment Hutchison is on remand with bail.

Ask Dewey To Commute Two Sentences

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Counsel for two young Canadians doomed to die in the electric chair for murder Tuesday asked Governor Thomas Dewey to commute the sentences to life imprisonment.

The governor gave no indication of whether he would act on the pleas of Maurice Odell, 28, and Walter Griffen, 27, both of Hamilton, scheduled to die next week for the holdup murder of a Buffalo jeweler.

Dewey customarily does not announce his decision on any clemency appeal unless he commutes the sentence.

The Court of Appeals has set next week for the execution of O'Dell and Griffen for shooting Donald F. Hurd during a holdup at Hurd's jewelry store in downtown Buffalo Dec. 9, 1952.

NOT "KILLER TYPE"

Griffen's lawyer, John S. McGovern of Buffalo, declared that Griffen was not the "killer type" and had been led into the crime by his associates.

Robert W. Martin of Buffalo, one of O'Dell's lawyers, maintained that Hurd, if he were alive, would forgive the killers.

District-Attorney John F. Dwyer of Erie county asked that the death sentences be carried out. He said:

"If ever a case of first-degree murder were proven, this is it."

O'Dell and Griffen are in the death house at Sing Sing prison. Police still are searching for a third man, Ralph Grubisich, 30, of Windsor, Ont., wanted in connection with the holdup and slaying.

Corn Crop Boosted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—An initial outlay of $40,000 by a United Nations agency added $24,000,000 to the value of Europe's corn crop in 1952. This came to light today in a year-end report on the activities of the Food and Agriculture Organization. Hybrid maize seed developed by FAO brought about a 60-fold increase in the value of the Eruopean crop. It was introduced to European farmers in 1947.

Holland Winning Battle Of Dikes Against North Sea

WASHINGTON — Holland has scored another victory over its ancient enemy, the North Sea.

In the Netherlands' coastal plains—fertile lowlands ringed by a network of dikes—hundreds of gaps in the seawall were counted following last February's disastrous flood. Nine months later, all breaks were plugged. Pumping of sea water from the fields is in its final stage. A long-term rehabilitation program to restore farms and homes has begun.

Over 400,000 acres—one fifth of Holland's cultivated land—was ravaged by gale-swept waters from the North Sea. Tons of sand and salt washed over the farmlands, source of nearly 10 per cent of the nation's agricultural produce.

APPALLING DAMAGE

When the flood subsided, the greater part of four islands remained under water. One island had vanished completely. Deep channels piercing the seawall created inland creeks. Along 700 miles of dikes there were 67 major breaks and countless smaller holes.

Working almost round-the-clock, the Dutch succeeded in closing all but four of the breaches by August. Less than 40,000 acres remained under water. To close the last four holes, 67 sand dredges, 283 draglines, 133 tugboats, 266 tractors and steam-shovels, and 115 locomotives were required.

Dutch engineers also called into play wartime equipment and experience. Eight 7,000-ton floating caissons which were used in the Normandy landing in 1944 were sunk in three openings. The 210-foot concrete floats were bought from the British who had salvaged them after the war and towed them back to England.

SUNKEN NATION

Nearly half of the Netherlands is below sea level at normal high tide. With 10½ million people living on 12,505 square miles, it is the most densely populated nation in Europe.

For a thousand years its residents have struggled to make the marshy lands habitable. The first dikes were built in the 10th century. Windmills were initially used to pump out the water, later steam and electricity.

Holland today has 1,800 miles of dikes. The average seawall is made of clay and sand and planted with grass. It is 14 to 17 feet high, 60 feet wide at the base, tapering to 30 feet across at the top. An asphalt road may run atop it.

Last February's flood was caused by a northwesterly gale of hurricane force which struck just at springtide. The inundation, accompanied by the highest water levels in Dutch history, swept as much as 12 feet over the dikes. The death toll reached 1,785. Over 50,000 head of livestock were killed. Almost 50,000 homes were damaged or destroyed. Damage costs totalled $300,000,000.

The three inunated provinces—South Holland, Zeeland and North Brabant—grew over half the country's onions in 1752, one-forth of its sugarbeets, linseed and flax, and between one-sixth and one-tenth of its wheat, beans, peas and potatoes.

Nothing was produced on the land this year. The soil will be fit for only a small barley or hay crop in 1954. Pre-flood fertility will not be restored for at least three or four years.

Fortunately, the Netherlands' other eight provinces suffered little material damage and no fatalities. Industry, agriculture and stock breeding are being carried on as usual.

SAN GABRIEL, Calif. (AP)—A medical rarity — birth of twins whose weight is exactly the same—was disclosed Tuesday when doctors at San Gabriel Valley Hospital said the two-day-old daughters of Mrs. Sally Gibbs, 19, both weighed three pounds, 15 ounces at birth. Almost invariably, the doctors said, one twin outweighs the other.

Russian Department Store Nightmare For Shoppers

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press
Foreign News Analyst

A Soviet department store is a good place to go to lick on an ice cream cone and rubberneck. It's not a good place to go to buy anything.

The system of merchandising, more fantastic than the prices, makes shopping often a nightmare.

Soviet stores—both the big gastronomes which sell the groceries and the univermags which are the Russian version of a department store—are perpetually clogged with people.

Many go about the stores looking at goods, but not buying, and just licking on vafly (waffles) with ice cream at 1.95 rubles each.

(As explained Tuesday, the ruble has no exact equivalent in dollars. Only its purchasing power means anything to the Russian, any way. The working man in a factory is likely to receive 700 rubles for a month of four 48-hour weeks; thus the price of the ice cream cone is equivalent to about a half hour's pay.)

SERIES OF QUEUES

Those who must buy go through a dizzying series of queues so frustrating that the system has led to a peculiarly Soviet racket.

Militiamen are on hand in many a Soviet department store to guard against chiselers who prey on the frustration of shoppers. The chiseler patiently waits to get to counters and buy up items in demand. He then circulates through the store and on the spot sells the items at a profit to shoppers who would rather pay the extra than go through the agony of the system.

For meats and vegetables the housewife may avoid the jam of the state stores by going to the peasant markets. The price may be a bit higher, but she is surer of getting what she sets out to get. The state stores have limited supplies and often the items listed on the price lists are not on hand. Moreover, in the peasant market, the housewife has the pleasure of arguing and bargaining with the seller. In the state stores prices are fixed by the government.

For clothing, household utensils and almost anything besides food, the shopper goes to the univermag.

FIRST QUEUE AT DOOR

When mama gets to the store, she usually finds a long line at the doors waiting to get inside. Once inside, there are other queues. Mama decides what she wants to buy first. She gets in line at that counter. When she gets to the counter, she picks out the item. The sales person hands her a slip. Then she lines up at the cashier's cage. After a long wait, she pays for the item she selected. She then gets back again on the first line to wait her turn to surrender the receipt and receive the item she purchased.

If six items on her shopping list appear at different store counters, that means six time in line to select them, six times to pay the cashier, six times to pick up the items.

Even the Soviet management is beginning to see the futility of this. Signs over some counters in the big stores announce the sales person may be paid directly for the item. But that is the exception.

To buy an ordinary comb in a univermag took me 25 minutes. A week later, all the teeth were out of it.

RUDE, JOSTLING CROWDS

There are endless queues in Moscow, largely because of such systems. People are jammed together for hours in the stores. I have been in about 30 countries; the crowds in Soviet stores are among the rudest, most jostling and inconsiderate I have seen. But they must be, in self defence.

The lines for milk, of which there is a severe shortage in the Soviet Union, are even more heartbreaking. Housewives try to outguess the stores or the outlets in the peasant markets, try to judge the best times, but it's pure guesswork and it's difficult to win.

People form lines, carrying empty bottles. The milk is ladled out of big containers. Sometimes, long before the end of the line is reached, the milk is gone. The housewife must either give up or take her chances in another line, where the same thing may happen.

Swankier New York Spots Guaranteed To Leave Pocketbook Empty N. Year's

By JAMES DEVLIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Taking the best girl out for New Year's Eve will require the major part of a $100 bill at some of New York's swankier night spots.

The minimum tab at the hotel Pierre's Cotillion room will be $27.50 a person. For that patrons get dinner, a show, noisemakers, dancing and a champagne cocktail.

To the $55 for two, add the price of all other drinks, tips, transportation, a snack on the way home and maybe a headache remedy.

The Pierre's price includes the 20-per-cent luxury tax. At most other places the quoted price does not include the tax, which must be added.

The hotel Plaza's basic charge will be $25 a person in its Persian room for dancing, dinner, favors and a show. At the Waldorf-Astoria, the price will be $25 in the Empire room, $15 in the Peacock alley cafes, and $7.50 in adjoining cafes.

PROVIDE ICE SHOW

The hotel New Yorker will provide its ice show, supper, funny hats, noisemakers and dancing for $13.50, including tax.

The minimum is not to be confused with a cover charge, roughly equivalent to the price of admission, which some places will apply in addition to a minimum.

Some places will have "open house," meaning that regular prices will prevail without covers or minimums.

The Edison hotel, in the heart of New York's gay white way, is refusing to rent any rooms or suites for New Year's parties.

Irwin H. Kramer, the owner, says such parties would disturb the sleep of travelling salesmen who have to be up and on the job the next day.

At Long Beach, N.Y., police chief Leo Nolan is installing a "coffee bar" in police headquarters. Drivers returning from New Year's Eve parties are invited to stop in for a free cup or two of black coffee before continuing their trip home. Nolan hopes the plan will help to prevent vehicle accidents.

TOUGH-TURKEY "TENDERIZER"—Dignity reigns as this prize-winning White Stag turkey at the London National Poultry Show poses with his new "glasses." In reality, the plastic "blinkers" are wedged to his beak so he won't get into so many fights with his barnyard companions. Since he can't look forward, his pecking is confined to whatever is underneath him—ground and food. Farmers use the "glasses" to cut down losses due to fights.

CHRISTMAS APART — News cameras in two widely-separated parts of the Commonwealth record the Yuletide activities of the Royal Family. From the South Pacific, above, comes a graphic picture of Queen Elizabeth inspecting a colorfully-clad guard of honor during her visit to Suva. Meanwhile, at home in England, the two Royal children, accompanied by the grandmother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, and their aunt, Princess Margaret, arrive at London's King's Cross Station en route to Sandringham, where they are spending the Christmas holidays. At the country residence in Norfolk, Prince Charles and Princess Anne heard their mother's traditional Yule address to her people.

Fine Company For Daring Calendar Picture

OTTAWA (CP)—A tall honey blonde in a negligee, applying lipstick in front of a mirror, a redhead in lacy underthings holding an advertisement and a blonde wearing nothing more above the waist than a wisp of ribbon around the neck were exhibits in a court case here Tuesday.

Sorry, fellows, they weren't in the flesh. They were calendar designs apparently fashioned to brighten 1954.

Magistrate Joachim Sauve described the honey blonde as a nice picture, "but I don't think it should be distributed."

He fined the Mortimer Ltd., a printing establishment, $50 after the company pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing obscene pictures.

Similar charges against Steinberg's clothing store and Silverman's men's furnishings were adjourned until Monday without plea. The charges involved the calendars showing the redhead and the blonde with the wisp of ribbon.

Quebec Hydro Commission Studies Plan For Natural Gas

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Duplessis announced Tuesday the Quebec hydro-electric commission will study proposals for bringing Albert natural gas into eastern Canada.

Mr. Duplessis made the announcement following a two-hour meeting with Attorney-General Porter of Ontario and A. R. Crozier both members of a committee set up by the Ontario cabinet to report on the potential market in Ontario for western gas.

The report, now in the hands of Trade Minister Howe, is believed to express the opinion that needs in Ontario would warrant construction of a 30-inch pipeline from Alberta into Ontario.

Mr. Porter and Mr. Crozier came here to see if Quebec would be interested in getting the western gas. In that case a 36-inch pipeline might be warranted.

TECHNICAL PROBLEM

"Talks dealt with the distribution of gas from Alberta into eastern Canada," Mr. Duplessis said. "It is a technical problem and it is being submitted to members of the Quebec hydro commission who will report their opinion. The government will then act accordingly."

Mr. Duplessis said proposals to pipe in natural gas from Alberta would involve much expenditure.

"The potential market for the gas must be assessed and we must find out if bringing in the gas would be a good idea in Quebec.

"We are the wealthiest province in hydro-electric power and in that respect we are better off than Ontario.

"There is no doubt on the other hand that natural gas offers advantages which we must consider.

REPLACE COAL

"For instance, natural gas could well replace coal, the price of which may become prohibitive Moreover, most coal is imported from the United States, whereas natural gas comes from a Canadian province. . . ."

It has been reported that if the Ontario hydro-electric commission is given the role of bringing in the natural gas into Ontario, the commission will take over distribution at the Manitoba boundary and build the necessary lines from there to central Ontario.

It appeared evident in Quebec that the Quebec hydro commission would be charged with the job of organizing piping of gas if and when Quebec decides it wants to import it.

Friends Greet Missionaries

MONTREAL (CP)—A priest and two Roman Catholic brothers, the last Canadian missionaries expelled from Communist China, were greeted by relatives and friends when they arrived here Tuesday.

The Rev. Laurent Pilon, 41, Montreal, Brother Gustave Pineault, 62, of Montreal, and Brother Emile Bourgault, 43, of St. Lambert, Que., were ordered out of Manchuria in mid-November for opposing the establishment of a national Chinese church and for being "anti-revolutionaries." All are members of the order of the Clercs St. Viateur.

NOT MISTREATED

Father Pilon, who was in China 13 years before being expelled, told reporters he wasn't mistreated physically by the Communists although his mission at Szepingkai was watched constantly.

"But we had to submit to Red interrogation," he said. "We were questioned almost continually, even during the night."

Other Christians in China haven't been so fortunate, however, Father Pilon said.

Find Talent And Training Among Soviet Children But There Is No Childhood

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

William L. Ryan, in a three-month stay in the Soviet Union, talked to scores of Russians without benefit of interpreters. He travelled 6,000 miles without going on any of the "escorted tours" arranged for most foreigners visiting the Soviet Union. Here, in another of his uncensored stories, he gives an insight into communism's hold on youth.

AP Foreign News Analyst

"What do a Russian girl and boy talk about when they go out for an evening?"

Mystification prompted this question to a young Communist-reared woman. I had noted Russians in a restaurant attempting to have a good time and making a pretty glum affair of it. They just seemed to sit and stare at each other.

"Oh," she said, "there are lots of things to talk about."

"What, for example? You are married. Your husband must have courted you. What did you talk about?"

"Oh," she repeated. "There are many things. There's socialist competition, for example."

This is partly nonsense, of course. Basically, young men and women in Russia discuss any of the same things that couples elsewhere talk about. Nevertheless, their attitude toward life shows the effects of sealed off, effective training.

ACCENT ON YOUTH

The Soviet Communist party puts the accent on youth, though the party is interested principally in talented youngsters who will be indoctrinated and trained to form a hard core from which party leaders of tomorrow will be selected and trained.

Every Soviet town has its house or "palace" of young Pioneers. Theoretically, all Soviet children are members of the Young Pioneers. But those who frequent the Pioneer palaces are the ones who get special attention until they resembled little robots, responding automatically to commands.

During a trip to a half-dozen Soviet republics, I visited some of these Pioneer palaces. The one in Tashkent, capital of the Uzbek S.S.R., seems fairly typical. I went there one Sunday unannounced, and after some argument with the guard at the gate and showing my impressive Red police pass, I was allowed to go in.

I was a problem to the woman in charge, but she took me in tow for a guided tour. Fortunately for her, things had been arranged in anticipation of visits from a number of "delegations" including Brazilians, Indonesians and Mongolians.

SPIRIT LACKING

There were no more than 50 children in the building, with an equal number in the yard outside. Those in the palace were the cream of the talent the pioneers could boast in various fields. Obediently, they awaited quietly the guests' arrival. They were all done up in their Sunday best.

I was shown the "kabinet," where children ranging in age from about seven to 14 discuss young Ploner businss gravely—like a "little government," the guide said.

In other rooms I was shown children's handicraft, painting and sculpture, some of it remarkably good, and their biological and zoological collections.

The children were extremely shy with me, and later, with the delegations. There were no bubbling, rambuctious kids such as one might expect to find in that age bracket in any large group. Somehow they seemed spiritless. The talent was there, beyond question, and the training was there, but the childhood was not.

BEGINS IN NURSERY

The process begins in the nursery. Since most Soviet mothers work, children of three or four are sent to "dyetskayas"—nurseries—to be cared for and trained during the working day by Russian nurses and teachers.

Shielded from information from the outside world which does not fit into the Communist pattern, the children become obedient servants of a Communis society.

Many escape the rigid pattern, however. As the Soviet middle class continues to grow, more and more mothers are attempting to give up working so they may rear their children themselves.

A tremendous amount of attention is given to children by the Communist party and Soviet government. The education network is growing constantly because no highly industrialized nation can hope to survive in today's world without a broad base of education.

But Communist education comes first.

Deny Plant Be Transferred

HAMILTON (CP)—A spokesman for Canadian Westinghouse Company Limited denied Tuesday that arrangements were being completed to transfer radio and television manufacturing facilities from Hamilton to Brantford.

It has been rumored for several weeks that Westinghouse had taken an option on the Massey-Harris plant in Brantford in preparation for such a move. The same sources said that approximately 400 workers would be laid off in Hamilton as a result.

C. N. Appleton, vice-president and secretary of the Massey-Harris Company Limited, said today that no option has been taken on his company's Brantford factory.

H. H. Rogge, president of Canadian Westinghouse was out of the city. A company official did say, however, that an expansion program was being considered.

Celebrations Gayest Since War

New Year Spirit Sparks Hope For Peace In 1954

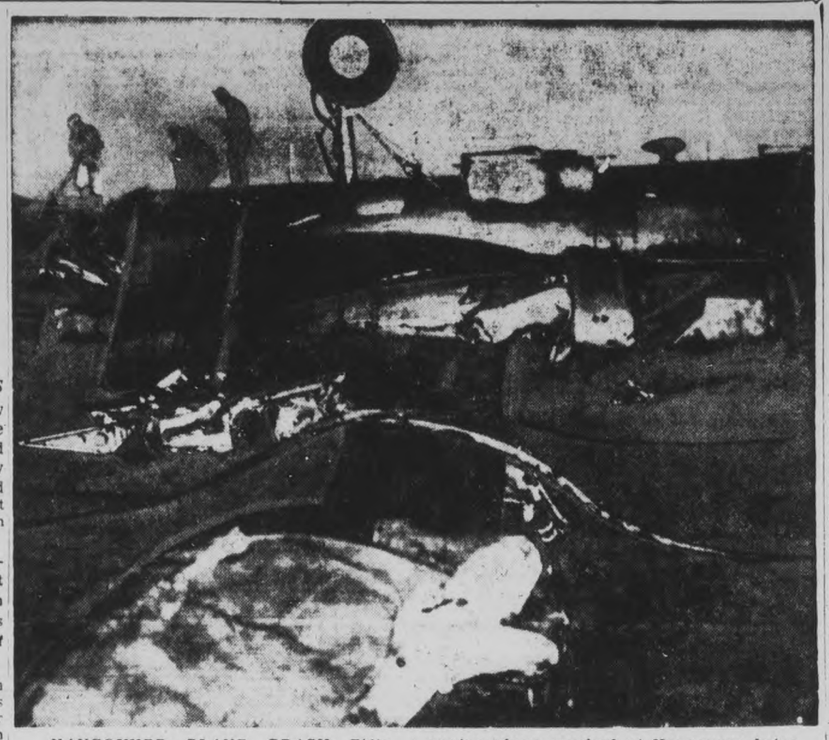
By THE ASOCIATED PRESS

The gayest and biggest New Year's Eve celebrations since the end of the Second World War were in prospect in many of the great cities of the world tonight—sparked by the hope that peace will have a better chance in 1954.

In Moscow, the sales of champagne tripled in comparison to last year's holiday period. In North America, theatres and night clubs expected the greatest crowds of the postwar years.

And many planned to gather in churches for watchnight services bidding farewell to the old year and praying for the peace, health and prosperity that 1953 did not assure.

Only 900 miles from the north pole, at Thule, Greenland, the men at the most isolated United States base will be entertained by Arthur Godfrey and 11 of his entourage. Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott, Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, commander of the strategic air command, and their wives flew there Wednesday night with the Godfrey group to greet 1954 with the airmen so remote from home-style holiday festivities.



$100 OR LESS FOR MOST

In cities across Canada revellers can spend as much as $100 or more at swanky night spots but the majority probably will settle for that good old Canadian custom—the house party.

Many will attend special church services and others will go to midnight movies planned across the country.

Despite estimates that it would cost most of a $100 bill at New York's swankier night spots to see the old year out, most managers expected to hang out the standing-room-only sign early. The city's night clubs, taverns and hotels took out 3,402 special "all night" permits to let guests tipple past the regulation 4 a.m. deadline. It was the greatest number ever issued.

CELEBRATIONS (Continued on Page 2)

VANCOUVER PLANE CRASH—Fifty-one persons aboard this RCAF North Star domestic trans-Canada plane escaped death or severe injury when the four-engine plane crashed at Vancouver International Airport. The plane was bound for Edmonton from Vancouver when it was forced to turn back after 45 minutes because of engine trouble.

Premier Predicts Future Peace

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday the interpational scene "is not devoid of signs of hope for the fulfilment of that future of peace and prosperity for all mankind that is our continual prayer."

He made the statement in a written New Year's message to fellow Canadians.

"Canada, as a growing nation, is playing an ever-increasing role in the struggle for world peace. Her voice is being listened to with more and more respect in the councils of the world," he said.

"Soon I shall be leaving on a tour around the world. I am confident that I shall be speaking for all of you in bringing greetings from Canada to the countries I shall visit, and in affirming that we are united with them in the cause of peace."

53 Red Rebels Killed In Violent Battle

SENO, Indo-China (Reuters)—A crack mountain division of Indo-Chinese rebels today fought a small but violent battle with French Union defenders of Dien Bien Phu, key mountain fortress on the main supply road from Communist China to Laos.

An official announcement said 53 rebels were killed. French losses were "much lighter."

The news renewed speculation here that the Communist-led rebels, camped around Dien Bien Phu, may launch a major New Year offensive against this rice bowl in the northern Tonkin hills and its strongly fortified airfield, to cap the spectacular results of their Christmas drive through central Indo-China.

Some military observers believed the Christmas drive may have been a feint to draw French defenses from the rice area.

REBELS STALLED?

The French field commander in central Laos believes the Communist force which made the Christmas advance now is incapable of going much further.

Gen. Andre Franchi today said he would like nothing more than for the Communist-led rebels to attack the French "and break their teeth on us."

He told reporters at his headquarters at fortified Seno airfield that the Vietminh rebels face two possible moves, retreat to Annam, the way they came, or stay in the hostile, thinly-populated jungle and seek food and recruits.

The rebels drove across the narrowest part of Indo-China—from the coast to the Mekong river on the border of Thailand — over Christmas.

Agrees To Reply

BONN, Germany (Reuters) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today endorsed the terms of the Western reply to the Soviet Union, which is understood to accept the proposed date of Jan. 25 for the Berlin four-power conference.

Russian Camps "Hell Holes" Murder, Violent Death Commonplace—Americans

BERLIN—(AP)—Two Americans released by the Russians after years of imprisonment and forced labor said today that Soviet detention camps are "hell holes" where murder and violent death are commonplace. Leland Towers, 28, a merchant seaman from San Francisco, told a press conference he had been a card carrying Communist "out never again". Pte. Homer Cox, of Oklahoma City said he was blown off the aircraft carrier Yorktown before the Japanese sank her in 1942 "and that was a picnic" compared to the Russian work camps.

The two men were turned over to the Americans in Berlin two days ago following negotiations.

VISIT NOT APPRECIATED

Towers said he had tried to go to the Soviet Union to see what the mainspring of communism was like, and had been refused a visa. He crossed into Russia over the Finnish border in 1951 and was arrested, convicted and sentenced to three years "for breaking in."

Ex-sailor Cox, a military policeman in West Berlin, said he was apparently "drugged" in a cafe the night of Sept. 5, 1949. When he awoke he was in Russian hands. He said they gave him 53 years after a quick trial on charges of being part of an "intelligence" organization, and suspicion of having slain a Russian officer.

MANY FOREIGN CAPTIVES

Both men said they saw many foreigners in various work camps in the Soviet Union. Cox said these included two American soldiers once stationed in Germany and six other soldiers from the Austrian occupation forces.

Cox said he worked in a coal mine at the infamous Workuta camp.

"Every day somebody died," he said. Some were machine-gunned by Soviet troops for lagging. Others were victims of accidents. Fights broke out constantly and some resulted in fatalities.

MET CANADIAN

BERLIN (CP) — Pte. Homer Cox, reported that he had met an RCAF group captain, Roy L. Linder at a repatriation camp.

Cox said he did not know Linder's hometown but remembered Linder's wife, Inge, lived in Stockholm and her brother, a Mr. Sandberg, was editor of a newspaper there.

Linder had been in Soviet hands about four years, Cox said.

He said the Canadian had told him he expected to be set free any moment, but later was told the authorities were "awaiting special word from Moscow" and was still in the camp when Cox left for Berlin.

Tankers Collide 11 Seamen Die

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Two tankers bound from Texas to Philadelphia collided in the fog bound Delaware river Wednesday, killing five of 11 seamen who either jumped or were pitched overboard.

The bodies, clad only in shorts and life preservers, were recovered. Coroner C. Everett Kelley said the men died from exposure.

Four men were listed as missing and presumed dead. The collision occurred about 6½ miles south of Wilmington and 25 miles south of Philadelphia. The area for 80 miles from Philadelphia to the Atlantic ocean is one of the world's busiest waterways.

The Atlantic Refining Company, owner of both tankers, said its 10,600-ton ship, Atlantic Dealer, inbound from Port Arthur, Tex., crashed into the 19,000-ton Atlantic Engineer, anchored two miles below New Castle, Del. The Atlantic Dealer also was seeking a safe anchorage to wait out the dense fog.

Aga Khan May Not Get Weight In Platinum

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—The top planner of the ceremony at which the Aga Khan is scheduled to get his weight in platinum disclosed today that there is some question whether enough of the precious metal can be obtained to match the religious leader's 215 pounds.

Amirali H. Fancy, convener of the Platinum Jubilee Association, said efforts are being made to obtain platinum from Switzerland for the Feb. 3 ceremony. It commemorates the 70th anniversary of the accession of the fabulously wealthy Aga Khan to leadership of the Ismaili sect of Moslems.

If the efforts fail, the association will consult the Aga Khan as to an alternative. At the rate quoted for platinum in the United States —$92 an ounce — enough to balance the Aga Khan would cost $315,880.

RCAF Does Not Know Of Soviet Prisoner

OTTAWA (CP) — RCAF officials said today they have no record of a Group Capt. Linder, reportedly a prisoner of the Russians.

Commenting on a Berlin news report which quoted a U.S. soldier as saying he had seen Group Capt. Roy L. Linder of the RCAF in a Russian detention camp before the soldier was released, an RCAF spokesman said:

"Our records do not show any officer of that name, or of any name close to it, as ever having served with the RCAF. Perhaps they could mean the RAF."

Canadian Tire Robbed Of $442, Safe

Two Brothers Arrested At Home Still Seek Safe

Two men escaped into darkness Wednesday night after stealing a safe and money totalling $442 from Canadian Tire. A pistol shot by a police officer apparently failed to damage their fleeing truck. The officer, PC Arthur Beardsmore, was nearly bowled over by the vehicle as it sped from a dark laneway behind the store.

In magistrate's court this morning Walter McCaskin, 26, of 117 Aylmer St., and Raymond McCaskin, 27, of 218 Wolfe St., were charged with breaking, entering and theft.

The pair were arrested late on Wednesday night by officers who waited at their homes. They pleaded not guilty today, elected summary trial, and were remanded on $1,000 bail until next Wednesday.

The safe has not been recovered.

BURGLAR ALARM

Police were first alerted when the store's burglar alarm was set off in the station. Detective Dennis Traynor and PC Sherman Keliele were radioed to the scene.

Upon their arrival the two officers checked all the doors and windows on the ground floor. They did not find anything amiss. At the station, however, the alarm was still signalling.

This took place at about 7:40. At eight o'clock, PC Beardsmore checking the laneway leading out from the backs of Water St. stores was almost hit by a truck speeding out. He fired a shot but the truck continued away.

Upon getting the vehicle's licence number he raced down the alley, checking doors until he found that of Canadian Tire open. Further investigating, he saw marks where the 300 to 400 pound safe was dragged out.

The safe was missing from its normal position under a night light about half-way back in the store. From the front window it is clearly visible during the day or night.

I. H. Keefer, manager of the store, who was called to the scene immediately, traced the path of the men who entered.

ENTERED FROM ... O.

They climbed up a rear roof, he said, and broke in a window on the rear second storey. Climbing into a stock room, they forced a second floor. The first alarm went off.

They found their way to the stairs leading into the store and when they forced it open, a second alarm was triggered. Once inside the main section of the CANADIAN TIRE

Woman Describes Mass Shooting

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany (AP) — A 35-year-old German woman from a Soviet slave labor village in Siberia today said she had seen 120 men shot down because they dared lead a strike against the Russians.

Brigitte Gerland, arrested in Dresden in 1946 while a free-lance journalist, said she had been sentenced to five years hard labor without ever being told why.

She was shipped to a slave labor area at Workuta, inside the Arctic circle in Siberia.

Russian soldiers form a ring of steel about the area, leaving slave laborers to move in comparative freedom in the guarded zone.

50 MINES STRUCK

Last May, she related, an organized strike broke out in the coal pits of the Workuta district. She believes 50 mines were involved and heard from others that in 32 of the pits the strike was 100 per cent effective.

Soviet troops moved in at once, and 120 strike leaders were ruthlessly mowed down by rifle and tommy-gun bullets. Lesser fry were taken from Workuta and never heard from again. She never learned what the strike was against, nor the final outcome, for shortly after she was moved to a camp in East Prussia.

Wives For Water!

FEROZEPORE, India (AP) —There is a practical reason for the popularity of polygamy in the Chandigarth area of the Punjab, Education Minister Jugat Narain told a school conference here.

"We live in an area where in places water is available only from a distance of eight or nine miles," he explained. "In one day one wife can make only a single round trip to the well. One bucket of water is not sufficient for a husband's needs.

"The solution therefore lies in having more wives."

Burned To Death When Truck Crashes Off Road

KINGSTON (CP) — A Smith Transport driver, James K. White, Napanee, was burned to death this morning when his careering transport left the road, smashed into the ditch and caught fire. The accident occurred about 10 miles east of Kingston on Highway 2.

Henry Butler, who was forced to take the ditch to avoid being struck, said that the big westbound tractor-trailer outfit seemed to go out of control as it swung around a bend. After weaving down the road toward him, the vehicle finally ended up in the north ditch.

Neither Butler or a passenger in his car were injured. They were heading for Montreal.

It is thought that the transport driver was knocked unconscious in the crash, and so was unable to save himself.

Big 3 Division Over Guarantees

PARIS (AP) — Britain, France and the United States Wednesday night were reported divided over the manner and timing of guarantees to Russia against any possible unprovoked attack.

An authoritative source said experts of the three Western powers have drafted a series of proposals for their governments broadly accepting the idea that some pledge should be offered to the Soviets to relieve their professed fear of aggression by the West, particularly through Germany.

This idea first was forwarded by Britain and accepted in principle, at the Bermuda conference of Prime Minister Churchill, President Eisenhower and Premier Laniel.

GENERAL DIFFERENCES

However, the informant said, these differences of approach have since emerged:

1. France believes the guarantees should be offered in a joint three-power declaration issued before the projected Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Berlin.

2. The U.S. view is that the offer of guarantees should be presented to the Russians during the Berlin talks on Germany's future, but that no mention should be made of Germany specifically. Moreover, the Americans are firm that no non-aggression treaty be discussed, much less concluded, before the reunification of Germany—the principal purpose of the Berlin meeting.

3. Britain's position has not yet been clearly stated, but there have been indications that she would, perhaps, favor a multi-party pact with the Russians—either the Big Three or, maybe, all the North Atlantic Treaty Powers on one side and Russia on the other—to provide non-aggression guarantees.

Approve 18 New Lanes For Peace Bridge

FORT ERIE (CP)—Construction of 18 new lanes for traffic at the United States end of the Peace Bridge over the Niagara river has been approved by the Buffalo and Fort Erie peace bridge authority. This will bring number of lanes to 32.

John W. van Allan, secretary-treasurer, said it is hoped to have the new lanes ready for temporary use during the week-end traffic rushes next summer.

Cost of the project is $500,000.

RCAF Transport Wrecked No Lives Lost

By DON MATHESON

VANCOUVER—(CP)—A giant four engined RCAF transport plane with one engine out, crashed during an emergency landing here Wednesday. None of the 51 persons aboard was severely injured. RCAF officials were mystified about what caused the huge North Star to flip over, and cause the first major crash at Vancouver's International airport in 24 years. After turning back from a regular flight from Vancouver to Montreal via Edmonton when one engine failed and icing conditions were met, the plane let down through light rain and mist.

Cpl. R. H. Beach of Montreal, crash truck crew chief, gave this account of the crash:

"She was coming in like a big bird, uneasy about where she was going to set down.

"One wing whipped into the air, snapped off, and tossed the ship upside down.

"It hung there, one wing ripped from the side, and tail down, for what seemed to be a full minute. Then she settled."

HANG FROM BELTS

It came to rest upside down. Passengers and crew hung from safety belts and the plane slid to a stop in a pool of gasoline.

The 43 passengers, including eight women and two children, and eight crew members scrambled through broken windows and a gaping hole in the fusilage.

Firemen and crash truck members, alerted when the pilot radioed from Penticton, B.C. that he was turning back, doused flames from a sheared-off engine before they could spread to the pool of gasoline.

The pilot of the big 426 transport squadron plane at Dorval, Que., Flt. Lt. John Evans of New Westminster, B.C., and Dorval, was one of the most seriously injured.

Pulled from a hole in the nose by crash teams, he suffered a cut head and abrasions.

Most severely hurt was airwoman Pat McHugh of Hamilton, Ont. She suffered abrasions and shock but was reported in good condition.

ENDING HOLIDAYS

Most of the passengers were returning to eastern Canada after spending Christmas at the Coast. Some were heading for New Year leaves.

Major Becomes Master At Buckingham Palace

LONDON (CP)—Maj. Mark Vane Milbank, 47, today became master of the Queen's household at Buckingham Palace. He succeeds Lt.-Col. Sir Piers Legh, who is retiring.

Both men have served the court in Canada. Maj. Milbank was comptroller to Field Marshal Earl Alexander, now Britain's defence minister.

Sir Piers, 63, started his career as aide de camp to the Duke of Connaught, then governor-general of Canada, in 1914-15.

Teachers Told Stop Extra Coaching Work

TORONTO (CP) — Secondary school teachers in Toronto were instructed Wednesday night to stop all extra-curricular activity—such as coaching sport teams or teaching music—on Jan. 22.

They were authorized to do so by a resolution passed by the executive of the Ontario Secondary Schools Federation.

Swept Overboard Teen-Agers Save Tug Captain

GODERICH (CP) — A grizzled tugboat skipper, who braved rough water in many a rescue here, was himself pulled from the ice-rimmed Goderich harbor today by his teenage crew of two—one of them a grandson.

For 15 minutes, Capt. Bert MacDonald clung to the hand of his grandson, Donald Bert McAdam, when a mishap swept him from the deck of his fishing tug Skipper McAdam. The second crewman, Sonnie Mallough, finally pulled him to safety with nothing more than a severe chilling. All three are from Goderich.

The tug was engaged in placing a winterboom across the channel when a cable parted and swept Capt. MacDonald overboard.

HERO MANY TIMES

In the past four years, Capt. MacDonald's deeds of seamanship have been twice officially recognized—on the first occasion by Goderich town council for his contributions to harbor safety; on the second for his assistance to a fishing boat in distress.

Capt. MacDonald has rescued at least 50 persons from the lake and harbor and has figured in the recovery of many bodies.

Says Possibility Of War Reduced

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill says the free world's growing strength and peace aims have reduced the possibility of a third world war.

The 79-year-old prime minister made the statement in a New Year's message to the Primrose League, a Conservative party organization.

"During the past 12 months," he said, "Her Majesty's government has dedicated itself to its proclaimed tasks of winning peace abroad and rebuilding the foundations of our national life at home.

"The growing strength of the free world, coupled with its desire to reach just and honorable agreements, has reduced the possibility of international conflict. . .

"During 1954, we intend to build further upon the good foundations already laid. We shall continue to strive for peace by every means in our power."

Flee In Night Attire As Fire Burns Home

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Occupants of an East Oxford street home fled in their night attire as fire broke out early today.

Mrs. George Legg roused her son Robin, 10, and ran out into 16-degree temperature in a dressing gown. An upstairs tenant, Mrs. Henry Roberts, fled with her son, Paul, 3, wrapped in a blanket.

Two rooms were gutted.

Duke Visits New Graves Of 21 Rail Crash Victims

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh today visited Karori Cemetery, in the hills on the outskirts of Wellington, where 21 unidentified victims of the Christmas Eve railway disaster were buried this morning.

The duke flew 300 miles from Hamilton with Prime Minister Sidney Holland in a special Dakota. After the flight, the duke drove along a silent route to the cemetery where he placed a wreath of deep red roses, hydrangeas and arum lilies with a card inscribed "Elizabeth R and the Duke of Edinburgh."

Crossing to the other side of the mass grave after the service, the duke spent 10 minutes talking to relatives of the victims.

More than 1,000 persons had gathered in the cemetery.

The 20-minute service was broadcast to all New Zealand.

Afterwards, the duke returned to the parliament buildings, where a small crowd was waiting, and had lunch with Holland. Later he flew to Waitomo to rejoin the Queen.

The Queen and the duke are celebrating New Year's Eve 12,000 miles from home. Tonight they will stay at a government hostel at the famous Waitomo Caves.

Their visit to Aranui Cave this afternoon was delayed for about an hour and a half to await the duke's return from Wellington.

Aranui Cave is noted for the delicate tracery of stalagmites and stalactites, and particularly in its vast "crystal palace" where translucent stalactites form huge chandeliers.

Tonight the royal party will also visit the glow-worm grotto by boat on an underground river. A boatman will pull the boat into the cave by a rope. Both the Queen and the duke will be asked not to say a word, as the glow-worms are easily disturbed.

Overhead the Queen will see one of the world's rarest sights—millions of tiny lights twinkling in a canopy of fantastic beauty.

Friday the royal party moves on to the Rotoru region.

Two Year Headache Gone Salmon Surplus Disappears

VANCOUVER (CP)—A two-year-old headache, a huge backlog of unsold canned salmon, is almost a memory to the British Columbia salmon canning industry.

When the 1954 canning season begins, packers expect to have a carryover from the 1953 pack of only 100,000 cases of the finny delicacy, compared to 700,000 surplus cases piled up in 1951.

Easing the headache are the prospect of a renewed British market and the sale of possibly 200,000 cases; strong markets developing in western Europe; a shortage of pink salmon in the United States and Alaska catches this fall; and combined lower prices and higher consumption in the Canadian market.

The big 1951 surplus piled up because it was a particularly good year for fishing and Britain bought no salmon when faced with a dollar shortage.

When this year's pack was completed, canners had 1,800,000 fresh cases and a 240,000-case carryover from 1952.

Sales to the end of December were approximately 800,000 cases, or more than one third of the stocks. Prospects for selling a good deal of the remainder, with a possible 100,000-case carryover, appear good, packers believe.

Packers are hopeful of selling 200,000 cases on the U. S. market this year. The combined Alaska-U. S. pack is estimated at only 3,600,000 cases this year, compared with a high of as many as 10,000,000 cases.

B. C. canners' biggest problem is the housewife's delight.

Prices are sliding. From a wholesale price of $33 a case in 1951 the price has fallen to $30 a case, with some companies reported selling at even lower level.

Says Cigarette Started Train Fire

Man Being Held Doctors To Make Mental Examination

PEMBROKE—(CP)—A man who said his burning cigarette started the railway sleeper fire that took one life early Wednesday is being held here for mental examination.

Police said that Charles Faucault of Noranda, Que., told them: "The fire started when I went to sleep with a cigarette." He kept repeating it as he was questioned.

Faucault and 17 others escaped into sub-zero darkness from the blazing Pullman at the rear of the Canadian National Railways' westbound transcontinental flyer, braked to a stop one mile west of this town 100 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The burned body of Dr. H. A. Collins, 61-year-old Ottawa physician, was found huddled in the end of the car after it had been towed back to Pembroke and the flames extinguished by local firemen.

Faucault, held for questioning by police, was charged under a section of the Mental Hospitals Act, appeared in court and was remanded for mental examination.

HEARD SCREAMING

Conductor Frank Pink of Haileybury, and Montreal orter Joseph Bailey said they broke into Faucault's sleeping compartment at the front of the car after hearing noises. They found him screaming besides his burning mattress.

It was 2:05 a. m. and the train had just pulled out of the Pembroke station.

The fire spread from the compartment down the green night curtains towards the rear of the car as the conductor and porter wakened the sleeping occupants. They crowded to the rear of the Pullman where Mrs. Charles Hoyt of Ottawa smashed a window with a travelling bag.

The trapped passengers tumbled through the opening into sub-zero weather. Later the train continued on to North Bay.

The victim, Dr. Collins, was on his way to Haileybury to visit his niece, Mrs. W. G. Gartshire, for the New Year's holiday. A bachelor, he was administrative medical officer at the Veterans' pavilion, Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Stocks Progress In Active Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks managed to make some modest progress in an active market today.

Railroads did better than any other major section. Also higher on balance were steels, motors, coppers, rubbers, distillers, radio-televisions, farm implements and chemicals. The margin of gain in some cases was small. Other groups were steady to mixed.

Higher stocks included Southern Railway, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Kennecott Copper, Du Pont, General Eelectric and Distillers Cor.

Canadian stocks were led on the upside by International Nickel, up ½. It was followed by Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagram, each ahead ¼. Dome Mines fell ⅛ and McIntyre was unchanged.

Royalite Oil, Canadian issue on the American stock exchange, eased ⅛; Lake Shore was unchanged.

Trading was active on the American stock exchange with prices mostly higher.

Sell Licence Plates As From January 4

TORONTO (CP)—J. P. Bickell, registrar of the Ontario motor vehicles branch, says 1954 motor-vehicle licence plates will go on sale Jan. 2 in branch offices and Jan. 4 at the Parliament Buildings.

The numbers will be blue on a white background, the reverse of the Coronation year's white numbers on a blue background.

There will be no change in the numbering system, he said. Some low numbers will be issued.

The Quebec government announced that numbers on plates in that province will start at 2,001 to eliminate criticism that "low numbers" are a sign of political favoritism.

New Municipal Government For Fast Developing Area

TORONTO—(CP)—A new form of municipal government, first of its kind in Canada, comes into being Friday in the Toronto area. It will govern one twelfth of Canada's population. Officially called the Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto, it will plan and carry out the development of essential services for 1,250,000 persons who live in 240 square miles of one of Canada's fastest growing areas.

Tens of thousands of new residents and scores of industries have invaded Toronto and its 12 surrounding municipalities since the war. The population, now more than 5,000 a square mile, brought on common problems that the new administration hopes to solve.

The 25 - member metropolitan council, as the new government is known, will be responsible in the 13 municipalities for arterial roads, housing, welfare, education, finance, transportation, sewage, water and parks. It will administer these services for more than the combined populations of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Previously each municipality was autonomous. Now each will have representatives on the metropolitan council and will retain its own elected government to look after purely local matters.

HAS BEEN ORGANIZING

Heading it is Fred Gardiner, 58-year-old Toronto lawyer who was once elected to public office on a platform wholly opposed to the municipal co - operation on which the new council is based.

"The council expects to spend more than $20,000,000 in 1954," he says, "this will grow to an annual budget of $45,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Plans for the next few years include $24,000,000 to be spent on education, $30,000,000 on sewers and water, and an unestimated amount, probably upwards of $50,000,000 on arterial roads.

In 1937 and 1938, Mr. Gardiner won election as reeve of Forest Hill on a platform of opposition to any form of co-operative government in the Toronto area.

As Toronto and its suburbs grew, his views changed. By 1946, as warden of York county in which all the municipalities are located, he was advocating co-operation to solve the mounting traffic and sewage problems.

In 1949 he refused to stand for re-election in Forest Hill. He had reversed his isolation stand and took to the public platform to plump for out-and-out amalgamation.

SET UP THIS YEAR

A workable solution to Metropolitan Toronto's problems didn't appear until early this year. In January, the Ontario municipal board rejected an application from suburban Mimico for joint administration of some services. It proposed instead a metropolitan council of all 13 municipalities.

The Ontario government acted on the municipal board's recommendation and made it the basis of the Toronto Metropolitan Act, passed by the legislature April 2.

Premier Frost picked Mr. Gardiner for the $15,000-a-year chairman's post, and he immediately began a nine - month program of planning with the help of his colleagues—Toronto's mayor, two controllers and nine aldermen, and four mayors and eight reeves of the 12 surrounding municipalities.

Funds for the council's projects, which include a multi-million-dollar expressway along the Toronto waterfront, will be provided jointly by the municipalities and the Ontario government.

Need Provincial Potato Market

SHELBURNE (CP)—Importance of a province-wide potato marketing organization was stressed to 40 Ontario potato producers attending a short course at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Ralph Davison, secretary of the Shelburne association, said "only through a well-knit setup following a definite quality-marketing program can Ontario potato producers hope to establish their product in firm competition with outside suppliers, particularly the Maritimes."

Ernest Krauss of Timmins said that due to preferential freight rates and the seaboard floor price of 56 cents a 75-pound bag, the Maritimers could sell their potatoes on the northern market cheaper than home producers.

The growers Wednesday toured the processing plant at the Dufferin Co-Operative Potato Growers Association in Shelburne.

First Move To End Grand River Pollution

KITCHENER (CP)—The Grand Valley Conservation Authority Wednesday made its first concrete move to end pollution of the Grand river and its tributaries.

It adopted, by a large majority, a resolution asking the provincial department of health to order "offenders" to cease discharging waters or solids not meeting standards to be determined by the department into the river or any tributary.

The resolution would have municipalities given sufficient time to provide the necessary sewage treatment facilities. It suggests that the target date for completing of such work be three years after issue of the order.

Blind Get Hit Tunes In Braille Form

TORONTO (CP)—A happy musical note was struck in 1953 for the blind of Quebec, Col. E. A. Baker, managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, said today.

"Arrangements were made for musicians to get braille sheet music of popular hit parade songs as quickly as the new ratings were announced," he said. "Many blind musicians play in night clubs and dance pavilions and this service is already proving a tremendous help to them."

The building program made strides last year, Col. Baker said. A centre for the blind was opened at London and others were launched at Port Arthur and Kingston.

When the safe was moved, a third alarm was set off.

They dragged the safe to the rear doors, opened them, put it in the waiting truck, then drove away. In opening the two doors at the back, they triggered two more alarms.

SEARCH OUTSKIRTS

Police today are searching northern sections of the city and outlying districts attempting to recover the safe.

Besides the money, it contains valuable store records, especially needed for year-end inventory being conducted now. Mr. Keefer said the records were more important to the store than the money stolen.

The stolen safe was only purchased within the past year.

RCAF Transfers

The crash, which wrecked the giant plane when it slid to a stop from a landing speed of 100 miles an hour, was the second crash of an RCAF North Star in three days.

A sister ship crashed Sunday while landing at an Aleutians airfield while enroute from Japan to McChord Field, Wash. Eight persons aboard also escaped injury.

Wing commander G. J. J. Edwards of 435 transport squadron in Edmonton, will conduct the official investigation into the cause of Wednesday's crash.

Five-year-old Linda Taylor, daughter of Cpl. and Mrs. Harry Taylor of Vancouver, seemed to sum up how the passengers felt.

"I've been in a plane crash," she called as she scampered about the hospital.

"It came down and all fell to pieces but I wasn't frightened."

Her three-year-old brother, Rod, rode out the crash in the tight grip of his mother's arms.

Work Done By Variety Clubs Told To Rotary

CAMPELLFORD (ENS)—Louis Davidson, Toronto barrister, and one of the executive members of the Toronto Variety Club, spoke at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club here this week. He told of the work of Variety Clubs in many parts of the world.

The Variety Club, which originated in Pittsburg, Penn., in 1927, has grown from 11 men in different parts of show business to a world-wide organization of over ten thousand, with "Tents" in 42 major cities.

At the start, the club was just an organization engaged in helping their less fortunate brethren in the show fraternity. For their first banquet in 1928, they rented the only available space to be found, the grand ballroom of the William Penn Hotel. Here, they staged a huge indoor circus complete with big-top circus acts, sideshows and all the accessories. Their program cover was a sketch depicting a typical circus barker, with big body clad in a frock coat, plaid vest, stand-up collar, high silk hat and sporting an enormous stud on his shirt front.

This became the official insignia of the society. The moustache represented strength. The diamond told the world that regardless of conditions, he was doing well, and his great hulk of a body was necessary to hold the heart of show business.

The speaker went on to describe the activities of many of the "Tents" that have been established in American cities. The Toronto "Tent" was incorporated in 1948 and immediately upon its incorporation, it endeavoured to find a useful charity to which it could devote its time. The "Tent" built "Variety Village," situated at the intersection of Danforth Avenue and Kingston Road, just outside the city of Toronto, and this village is unique in Canada. It represents a gigantic undertaking whereby physically handicapped boys are taught to be self-sustaining through learning trades and taking business courses.

The village is valued at more than half a million dollars and is maintained at an annual cost to the club of more than $60,000.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Bruce Fairley and thanked by Rotarian Fred M. Rutherford.

Shoulders Faces Perjury Charge

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Former police Lieut. Louis Shoulders, accused of lying to a grand jury seeking the missing $300,000 of Greenlease ransom money, surrendered Wednesday to face a federal charge of perjury.

Shoulders, who appeared to be in a jocular mood, went to the federal marshal's office with his lawyer, Henry G. Morris. He posted $10,000 bond and was released.

He is to appear before federal authorities at Kansas City at a date still to be set. The grand jury indicted him there Tuesday, saying he testified falsely on how he handled suitcases containing the ransom money. Less than half of the $600,000 paid by Robert Greenlease Sr., was recovered.

"I have nothing to say," Shoulders told reporters. "What can I say at this time?"

Morris said, however, that Shoulders would fight the perjury charge "all the way."

POWERFUL THREAT

The skunk when threatened can throw its jet of powerful scent at least 15 feet.

PRECIOUS IMAGE—Standing in a glass case in the Church of Ara Coeli, in Rome, Italy, is a life-sized figurine of the Christ child, considered one of the most priceless items in the Eternal City. Carved from an olive tree taken from the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem, the age-blackened statue is covered with jewellery and precious stones from all over the world, which have been donated by people who have had requests granted. The figure is placed in the centre of the church for the holiday season.

Celebrations

TIMES SQUARE CROWDS

Police prepared for the traditional midnight turnout in Times Square. Last year the crowd was estimated at 200,000 people, one of the smallest in years, perhaps due to its television coverage.

Elsewhere in the United States traditional parades were in the offing. Miami, Fla., prepared for one tonight, the 20th annual orange jamboree down palm-studded boulevards.

Philadelphia mummers also were getting ready for their annual march in comic dress Friday. Across the continent, finishing touches were put on 59 flower-decked floats for the annual New Year's Day tournament of roses review.

Some 412,000 U.S. sports fans already have paid an estimated $1,729,000 to watch nine football "bowl" games on New Year's Day. The daddy of them all, Pasadena's Rose Bowl, will draw the biggest crowd, just over 100,000 fans to see Michigan State meet UCLA.

Vodka and champagne will flow freely tonight in Moscow. There will be countless parties in hotels, "palaces of culture" and workers' clubs. Big restaurants, like Moscow's Hotel Metropole, have been sold out for months at 140 rubles (roughly $35) per person. That includes dinner and champagne.

PURSES OPEN

Western Europe, shrugging off its war fears and political squabbles, opened its purse wide to prepare for a big New Year's Eve. Reports from European capitals said cafes and hotels would be jammed with champagne-quaffing diners. Churches and cathedrals—in Communist as well as non-Communist countries — prepared for throngs of the devout waiting to greet the year with prayers.

European restaurants and night clubs reported sell-out business—at sky-high prices. In Paris a dinspot will cost around $42 a head.

In London's Piccadilly Circus, the statue of Eros—traditional climbing point for celebrating Britons—was boarded over.

MISTLETOE CUSTOM

The ancient European customs to be observed will see Austrian girls throwing slippers over their heads to find a husband, French girls hunting kisses under the mistletoe and Dutch schoolboys stripping unguarded farms of every movable item.

In Rome, a few stalwart youths braced themselves for a plunge into the icy Tiber river at midnight.

In Scotland the usual hogmanay hilarity will ring out the old and ring in the new. Scotch whisky and the complicated custom of "first-footing" are the main features.

Nothing is worse for a Scotsman than to be "first-footed" by a blonde—that is, to have a blonde person to become the first caller across the threshold in 1954. Dark Scotsmen will be busy rushing from door to door to deliver good luck for the year and to collect their "wee drappies."

Canada's Birth Rate Reaches New High

OTTAWA (CP)—Births in Canada reached an all-time high of more than 400,000 in 1953, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reported today.

At the same time, a company rate in 1953 was the second lowest in the country's history. It was at slightly higher than the record set last year.

Describing the national health record for the year as generally favorable, the statement said particular progress has been made in the fight against tuberculosis.

Price Gains Made In Cattle Sales

OTTAWA (CP)—Scattered price gains were reported from slaughter cattle markets between Monday and Wednesday, mainly due to short supply, the agriculture weekly livestock review.

Cattle pens were left virtually empty at the year-end after 15,500 cattle had been cleared in trading. The run was 5,500 above last week and 2,000 more than in the same period last year.

Choice steers were cashed for $20-$20.50 on eastern markets, Winnipeg's high was $19.

Good heifers had a range of $17.25-$18 at Toronto and there were early sales to $18.50. At Winnipeg the spread was mostly $14-$16.50.

COWS AT $11-$12

Good cows brought $11-$12 at Toronto and Montreal. In the west, the general spread was $9 to $10.50.

Good bulls were $12-$13.50 in the east, mostly $10-$12 in the west.

Toronto priced good stockers at $17.50, with lower qualities at $14-$16. Winnipeg paid $12-$14.

Grade A hogs sold at Toronto and Montreal for $34 dressed. Winnipeg paid $30.50.

Toronto paid a steady $22.50-$23 for good ewe and wether lambs and had a few choice at $23.50; Montreal $18-$20; Winnipeg $20.

Five Pulp Firms Claim $1,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—Five pulp and paper companies in the Ottawa valley have launched a $1,000,000 damage suit against the Ontario hydro-electric power commission.

The companies claim hydro projects on the Ottawa river interfere with the river's normal flow. They say they can no longer depend on the river to float logs downstream but must hire or buy tugs and build docks, harbors and other semi-permanent installations.

The companies are E. B. Eddy Co., Canadian International Paper Co., Consolidate Paper Corp., Gillies Brothers and Co., and the Upper Ottawa Improvement Co.

They are claiming $600,000 for costs of construction of equipment and $400,000 general damages for the increased cost of transporting logs.

The installations alleged to be causing the damage are the mammoth des Joachims generating station and the Chenaux and Otto Holden plants.

Two Killed In Plane Crash

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — A flying instructor and a member of the ground crew from the RCAF's No. 2 Flying Training School here were killed Wednesday in the crash of a Harvard training plane near Tilney, 12 miles south of here.

Killed were FO. Charles Robert Bryers, 37, of Port Alberni, B.C., and LAC. Francis Harry Tozer, 22, of Newcastle, N.B.

Air force officials said Tozer was taking a routine flight given occasionally to certain ground crew personnel.

Week Of Prayer

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Campbellford churches are joining with other churches throughout the Dominion next week by holding their Week of Prayer. Evening prayer meetings will be held in different churches throughout the week, with the minister of that church in charge of the meeting.

India Plans End Discrimination By Fines, Prison

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — The government Wednesday outlined a bill designed to end India's vast system of caste discrimination by sharp fines and prison penalties.

The bill would enforce the Indian constitution's provision of civil rights for some 60,000,000 "untouchables" — hereditary members of the lowest castes in the intricate social and religious framework which still marks modern India.

Literally untouchable to any member of a higher caste, the down-trodden millions were traditionally barred from roads, community wells and Hindu temples. Their occupations were restricted to the lowest form of manual labor by the Hindu religious code, origin of the caste system.

PRISON TERMS

The government bill, due to be introduced at the next session of Parliament, provides prison sentences up to six months and fines up to the equivalent of $100 for anyone ignoring the equal rights granted untouchables under the constitution.

Specified offences include denying an untouchable entrance to stores, hotels, or places of public worship or entertainment.

The penalties also would specifically apply to anyone barring members of the lowest castes from burial grounds, public wells, rivers and community baths.

Though most Indian states have passed laws backing up the equal rights provisions of the constitution, the bill which the government revealed Wednesday is the first attempt to set penalties for violators.

Says Officials Used 'Gestapo' Tactics

PARIS (Reuters) — William Clark, former chief justice of the U. S. appeals court in Germany, today accused American officials in Frankfurt of "Gestapo tactics."

In a telegram to U. S. high commissioner James B. Conant, he said: "Understand my personal and official files were tampered with by your office. Shocked by use of such Gestapo tactics."

Clark sent off the wire before leaving here for Cherbourg to board the Queen Mary on his enforced return to the United States.

The state department suspended the judge last month for ignoring an order to return home for consultations and later lifted his diplomatic passport. He was issued an alternate one permitting him only to return to the United States.

The row began when the state department decided not to renew Clark's contract as part of an economy drive to remove surplus personnel.

DENY CHARGE

FRANKFURT, Germany (Reuters)—A U. S. high commission official denied here today that American officials had "tampered" with the personal papers of William Clark, ousted chief justice of the U. S. appeals court in Germany.

"Mr. clark's personal effects were locked up and are to be sent to the state department at Washington where he can collect them," the official said.

Montreal Trading

MONTREAL (CP)—Trading was slow and prices unchanged on Montreal bond markets today. On the corporate side trading was quiet with convertibles generally slightly easier.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 9-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 97 9-16 cents. Pound sterling $2.73⅞, against $2.73 15-16.

Electrical Goods Production Hits Record High In 1953

Production of manufactured electrical goods in Canada during 1953 reached a new all-time high with a value of $850,000,000, an increase of 18 per cent over the previous peak year of 1952.

This statement is contained in a report made by CGE company president H. M. Turner released this week.

Employment in the industry rose to a new record of 76,000 and in spite of intensive competition from many highly industrialized nations, particularly in the field known as "apparatus," the industry's output must be regarded as one of the main contributions to the gross national production increase of 5 per cent.

However, Canadian manufacturers must carry out searching appraisals of their operations with a view to substantially reducing existing price differences with other trading countries.

There is a particularly increased interest in the peaceful application of nuclear energy, the report continues. Although at present electrical power from nuclear reactors cannot compete economically with other power sources, there seems no doubt that eventually it will be an important supplement to hydro and steam power stations.

SURPASSED EXPECTATIONS

The acceptance of television in Canada during 1953 far surpassed all expectations, the rate of market saturation in areas covered by TV signals exceeding that experienced in the United States. Color receiving sets will be available in test quantities in 1954, but will be several times the price of black and white models.

One of every six dollars Canadians spent in durable articles in 1953 went toward the purchase of major electrical appliances and labor-saving automatic equipment. The demand for lamps has doubled since 1941.

1953 has also seen the linking up of the power systems of Ontario and Detroit-Edison through a current limiting reactor of unusual size and design. This Canadian-built installation is probably the largest of its type in the world.

Rapid strides have been made by the electrical industry in the past few years in developing efficient economical equipment for controlling air temperatures in homes, business and public buildings. In 1953 the introduction of a new oil or gas-fired furnace line with matching cooling units made it possible to have an integrated year-round air conditioning system.

OIL MOST VALUABLE

In the $1,300,000,000 mining industry, oil replaced nickel as Canada's most valuable product.

In the field of electronics the electrical industry has proved that it has the skill and capacity to produce highly complicated ground and airborne radar equipment, with ever-increasing accuracy and range. It is now being called upon to continue its intensive research and development for defence and to train and maintain highly skilled technicians to service existing installations.

Continued and accelerated industrial expansion, together with the development of natural resources, has brought Canada to its present key position in the world markets. Conditioned by past progress, other nations have come to expect great things of Canada. It is upon the skill of the workers, the enterprise and imagination of the business community, the continued ability of the individual and the corporation to invest in the future, that Canada's success largely depends.

Jockey Gets Record Of 484 Wins In 1953

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Blanked in the first five races, jockey champion Willie Shoemaker hit the winner's circle in the last three races at Santa Anita park Wednesday to bring his record total of the year to 484.

The silent shoe sandwiched his riding triple with a victory in the day's feature, the $25,000 Breeders Trial Stakes for California-foaled two-year-olds, aboard H. L. Lewis' Lucky Martin at seven furlongs.

Hunt Lost Radium

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) Searchers with geiger counters crawled through sewers here today hunting for three tiny platinum tubes of radium missing from a city hospital. Police warned that the phials might be dangerous to touch and could cause serious harm if broken, allowing the powdered radium to come into contact with anyone. Authorities believe they were thrown away by mistake.

CEMENT FOUNDATION WORK IS PROGRESSING favorably on the new Simpson's-Sears store building on Lansdowne St., at Monaghan Rd. S., as a crew of 50 men pour cement footings for walls and pillar bases. Started about two weeks ago, contractors expect that that part of the job will be completed within a fortnight. They have not been unduly inconvenienced by the current cold weather, they say, but it presents its problems. The above photo looks from the rear southern wall toward Lansdowne St.; St. Peter's cemetery is in the background.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Says Ex-Sultan Had Husband Whipped Dead

MEKNES, Morocco (Reuters)—A woman has accused the former sultan of Morocco of having her husband whipped to death because he made love to the sultan's favorite harem girl.

They recently discovered the body of a man whom the woman identified as her husband. The body showed marks of a severe whipping.

The man, named Belkhir, was a servant at the sultan's imperial palace here. He disappeared in August, 1949.

WIFE HAD SUSPICIONS

His wife, mother of five children, was long suspicious but reported the matter to the police only after the sultan was deposed and banished to Corsica last August.

Police believe the servant fell in love with the harem girl while he was working at the palace, and reconstruct the affair this way.

Though the sultan had only the four wives allowed him under Moslem law, he had many concubines or "unofficial wives" in his harem.

One day he discovered that one of his favorite girls was expecting a baby. He ordered an investigation in the harem and the servant was implicated.

100 LASHES A DAY

The major-domo of the palace was ordered to carry out the punishment. Belkhir received 11 lashes a day for 10 successive days until he died.

The sultan was accompanied into exile by two wives and two sons. He had about 20 concubines flown to Corsica to join him.

Eight dusky-eyed concubines refused to board this special plane and went home to their families; others had already returned to their families; and older, unwanted members of the harem stayed at the royal palace at Dar-es-Salam, now the property of the new sultan.

Guided Missiles Tested In Australian Interior

WASHINGTON—Woomera, in the "dead heart" of Australia, 300 miles northeast of Adelaide port, is one of the world's liveliest testing grounds for guided missiles and supersonic craft.

Its enormous range flashed into news prominence recently when Britain's second and third atomic explosions were set off far in the interior. But the Woomera project, a joint British-Australian undertaking has been busy since it was established in 1947 for rocket-launching experiments.

"Woomera" is a sardonically apt name for the site. It was the aborigines' word for the notched throwing stick that native warriors once used to gain greater force and accuracy in hurling spears.

The contrast between such primitive weapons and those now being tested is no less startling than the difference between the modern town of science that has grown up to guide the work and its wild, prehistoric setting.

PARCHED "NEVER-NEVER" LAND

The test course of the administering organization, officially known as the Long Range Weapons Establishment, stretches more than 1,200 miles from central South Australia to the continent's northwest coast.

Its path lies through a parched, windswept wilderness where one can travel endlessly without seeing any sign of life, except perhaps a kangeroo, a dingo, or an ostrichlike emu.

Australians call the country west of Woomera the "Never-Never." Daytime temperatures there reach up to 120 degrees, then drop below freezing at night.

Dust storms swirl over the rolling red plains, dotted with broken stones, clay flats, and salt holes. Here and there rise ghostly gray-green patches of such hardy plants as the salt bush and blue bush, the gnarled and stunted mulga tree, the "dead-finish" acacia.

After the atomic blasts of October 15 and 26, observers reported that even these assaults by fire and force seemed to add nothing to Never-Never's scenes of chronic desolation.

OASES BEHIND WALLS

At the head of the range, Woomera Town is a man-made oasis in the arid waste. Built to house scientific, technical and labor personnel, it now has several thousand inhabitants, including hundreds of children.

Gardens, a school, church, shopping district, and a cricket field make for near normal community life. But Woomera, like similar research centers around the world, is set apart from other cities.

Invisible security walls isolate it from casual visitors, and residents within must watch their words lest they inadvertently reveal restricted information.

Woomera's daily places of business are in laboratories and technical offices, on near and distant launching sites, and its three airfields.

The tools it uses are incredibly complicated machines and instruments that control and analyze the performance of such futuristic weapons and devices as radar-directed missiles and pilotless jet planes.

Water for Woomera is piped in 250 miles from the Murray River, by way of Port Augusta. Food and other supplies come by plane and truck, and over the new rail spur specially built from Australia's east-west trans-continental line.

League Makes Protest To Quebec Board

TORONTO (CP) — The Association of Civil Liberties today sent "the strongest possible protest" to the Quebec board of censors of moving pictures against prohibition of the religious film "Martin Luther" from showings in Quebec province.

It termed the action one that might be expected in Russia but not in Canada and urged the board to reverse its stand.

The association, which concerns itself with defence of civil liberties in Canada, said the Quebec board's action was "indefensible from a democratic standpoint" and "denies Canadians the right of freedom of speech and expression, the right of freedom of thought and religion."

NO RIGHT OF CHOICE?

"It implies," the association's protest said, "that the people of Quebec do not have the right to think for themselves and exercise freedom of choice in their religious opinions.

"It suggests that the policy of the board to promote conformity and curb dissent."

The protest added that repercussions of the action could lead only to a "loss of prestige by Canada and Quebec throughout the world" and was "something one might expect from an administrative agency in totalitarian Russia or some other Communist country, but certainly not in Canada."

Actresses Asked To Play Leads

LONDON (CP)—Cecil Clark, artistic director of the Stratford, Ont., Shakespearian festival, said today he is negotiating with several British actresses to play lead roles in the 1954 productions.

He declined to name the women because negotiations are "far from complete." One British actress will be signed to play opposite James Mason in the three plays chosen for next summer: "The Taming of the Shrew," "Measure for Measure" and "Oedipus Rex."

Clark, who has been living in London since the fall, said he will go to Ireland next week to discuss the plays with British director Tyrone Guthrie at his home in Newbliss, County Monaghan. On Jan. 8 he will fly to Canada to begin auditions of Canadian actors and actresses for the Stratford company.

Our Predictions For 1954

He must be a poor newspaper editor indeed who cannot, at this time of the year, peep into his inkwell and there descry some visions of the future. After all, it is our business to deal in news. Surely a show of foresight may be expected of us when a New Year is about to dawn? And so we pull on our astrological robe, adjust our steeplecrown hat, sprinkle a few pinches of powdered unicorn's horn over our typewriter, and confidently predict the following:

That in 1954 there will be a considerable quantity of weather, and that people will discuss it avidly. If it is good, they will say 'We'll pay for this', and if it is bad they will say 'I knew we would have to pay for that fine spell'.

That our Fatherly Government, and also UN, will get out a great quantity of Blue Books and statistical records, all of which will be so much out of date that they will be of no use.

That there will be several major strikes in which Labour will boast that it has brought Management to its knees, and Management will boast that it has brought Labour to its knees, and that the General Public will be the only party to the quarrel which actually is on its knees.

* * *

That politicians will warn us that we need not expect any reduction in taxes. They will follow this by a dark suggestion that we are lucky to be alive at all.

That there will be two or three sets of quintuplets born throughout the world, and that they will not survive. There will also be a few cases of Siamese twins.

Several politicians will die, and their enemies, who have not said a civil word about them in twenty-five years, will suddenly discover that they were fine fellows and great statesmen.

* * *

That Russia will announce that Russians invented several things that were invented by Americans, and the U.S.A. will claim the invention of several things which were in fact invented by Englishmen, Frenchmen, Canadians, and others.

That Russia and the U.S.A. will accuse each other of warmongering, with roughly equal cause, and will be angry with any nations who do not express agreement with them.

That schoolteachers will demand higher salaries, threatening that if they do not get them, they will cut off the precious flow of education at the main. They will call this "assuming their professional status."

* * *

That several persons of advanced years will discover that the younger generation is no good and that the world is going to hell.

That several men and women will celebrate their hundredth birthdays and and will attribute their longevity to (1.) hard work (2.) loafing (3.) total abstinence (4.) boozing (5.) not worrying (6.) worrying.

That several of last year's wonder drugs will be denounced as worthless, if not actually poisonous.

* * *

That several people in several parts of the globe will see flying saucers, and will be laughed at for their trouble.

That Hollywood will demand to know what is wrong with the movies, and will believe anything except that they are dull and badly acted.

* * *

That Bruce Hutchison will declare that Canadians are rich, salty characters, concealing a Chaucerian breadth of spirit under a pawkily sober exterior: that Professor A. R. M. Lower will declare that Canadians are inferior creatures of meagre talents and shopworn intellect, and that both will receive newspaper publicity for these discoveries.

That Mr. Roy H. Thomson will buy several newspapers.

That several statesmen who need a holiday will declare that the world has not been so near war since 1939, whereas several other statesmen who have had a holiday will announce that international tension is easing.

* * *

We announce all these predictions in the assurance that they will come to pass. We could also make several other predictions, so libellous and inflammatory in the nature that we think it best to preserve them in petto for our private satisfaction.

And we further foresee that, in spite of everything, most of the subscribers of The Examiner will enjoy a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

General Knowledge Quiz

How much have you learned, dear readers, from the 305 issues of this family journal published during the year 1953? Be frank with yourselves, but not, please, with us. (One's own inadequacies should not become public gossip.) We ask the question boldly because this is a time for stock-taking, and information is our stock-in-trade. We ask it, too, because somebody asked us the same question, in the form of a mimeographed "General Knowledge Quiz". Fortunately the answers were given as well, so our score was 100.

In order to be equally fair to our readers, we propose to propound some general knowledge questions, and right away, give the answers. Several of the questions and answers we are lifting out of the questionnaire sent us; others we are taking out of our own head. Here goes:

1. Why is the Peterborough Lift Lock famous? Because it is one of the dams holding back water in the Trent system to make it—the system—the largest controlled natural reservoir in the whole wide world. (Does that answer surprise you?)

2. Here are some questions from the paper given us. At what time exactly was Queen Elizabeth crowned? D.S.T.? E.S.T.? G.M.T.? The answer given was "at thirty-four minutes past twelve"

3. What are the Queen's beasts? Well, we could think of quite a few. Dr. Malan? Nye Bevan? English weather? No. The proper answer is: Heraldic figures, representing the Lion of England, the Unicorn of Scotland, the Falcon of the Plantagenets, the Griffin of Edward III, the Bull of Clarence, the White Lion of Mortimer, the Greyhound and the Dragon of the Tudors, the Yale of the Beauforts, the White Horse of Hanover.

4. What group of Commonwealth territories became a federation? Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland became the Central African Federation. Dr. Malan did not attend the christening. He was busy segregating black from white for their own protection, and demanding the incorporation of Basutoland, Swaziland and Bechuanaland, so that he could extend this protection.

5. Which member of the Commonwealth decided to become a republic? No, not India; it was one already. Correct answer: Pakistan.

6. In which European country was female succession to the throne introduced in 1953? The question excludes Tonga, so the answer is Denmark. It was a good year for women all round. Queen Elizabeth became Woman of the Year in Britain. Mrs. Clare Booth Luce got herself sent to Rome when the Republican government of the U.S. took office, a Ambassador to Italy. Mrs. Alene Holt became our first woman alderman, and Mrs. Anne Rowell headed the polls in the elections to the Board of Education. She, Mrs. Rowell, is in line for the chairmanship of the Board, if she will undertake the work involved in this position.

7. Who succeeded Mr. Lester Pearson as president of the U.N. Assembly? A woman—Mrs. Pandit of India. This should permit Mr. Pearson, our Minister of External Affairs, a little more free time, perhaps enough next year not only to accept an invitation to come to Peterborough but actually to come.

8. Whose post was taken in what U.N. agency in 1953 by Dr. Gomes Candau? That's easy—another Dr. was Director-General of the WHO,—Dr. Brock Chisholm. He is the Canadian who made a stir a few years ago by saying that allowing children to believe in Santa Claus was unhealthy. Dr. Chisholm resigned his post, but did not return to live in Port Hope, where his mother had her home.

9. Who's WHO? The World Health Organization.

10. What famous Russian died in 1953, whose initials were J. S.? Another easy question—Old Black Joe.

11. What bier did Beria get in 1953? An unwanted, unhonoured and unsung one.

12. What Sirs were sirred for record runs? Sir Edmund Hillary on the eve of the Coronation for climbing Everest, and Sir Gordon Richards, before the Coronation, for winning the Derby this year, the first time the famous jockey won it.

13. Where did the Ashes go? From Australia to England, because of the Fifth Test Match (cricket, you know).

14. What town elected a mayor named Graham on the first Monday in December? The town of Deadwood (population 3,288) in North Dakota. Peterborough is a city.

15. How long had the hostilities in Korea lasted when the armistice was signed on July 27th? Just over three years and one month. Owing to Canadian governmental caution and care, Canadian troops did not have to serve in Korea during the first year (thus following, though for a shorter period, the American example in two earlier, bigger wars).

We could ask many other questions—who are the lacrosse champions of Canada? Who swims ornamentally? Who is the Piltdown Man. What was annexed to Peterborough in 1953? (Some irate citizens.) Why tent caterpillars? What does an assessor do when he assesses? (No sass, now!) We could ask more questions and invent more answers, but we herewith bow out of the game.

Unreformed Inertia

(MANCHESTER GUARDIAN)

THERE is something attractive about a forlorn cause whose aims are sensible enough but whose success or failure seems unlikely to make much difference to the happiness of the world, it allows one to enjoy (or deplore) the spectacle of reason baffled by human inertia without worrying too much about the outcome. Such a cause is the reform of the calendar which the World Calendar Association promotes year in year out with admirable though unrewarded zeal. A look through the latest issue of its journal shows that the crumbs of comfort which the association can find are still small; it also suggests some of the reasons. The chief crumb is a report in the Soviet press that Russia has agreed to international consideration of calendar reform; it is not much to go by, for Russia has been notoriously skittish in these matters. The news from the rest of the world is not encouraging. The confusions of the lunar calendar in Moslem countries, on which the journal reports, are notable enough; but India seems to take first place for complexity.

There are (we read) currently thirty or more different calendars—it is quite common to find important Hindu festivals being celebrated on different days in different parts of the country—or even in the same city, as happened this year at Calcutta.

This picture may appal the tidy-minded; but it is likely to confirm in their obduracy those who would rather enjoy not knowing just how many shopping days there were left until Christmas or wandering from one district of London to another and finding yesterday's holiday still in full swing. That is the trouble. Just because the reformed calendar is a rational, universally applicable, and mathematically respectable idea (it would enable us to know, for instance, that Christmas was to fall on a Monday to the end of time), it seems likely to make little headway against the human craving for the unexpected.

Seasonal Wrecks

(Windsor Star)

That New Zealand disaster, when 164 were feared dead as a train crashed into a river, is among the worst of all railway accidents. And many of the worst have occurred during Christmas seasons.

One of these, near Dundee, Scotland, on December 28, 1879, was similar to that in New Zealand. A train carrying holiday crowds back to their homes, after the Christmas celebrations, crashed off a bridge over the Tay, carrying 73 to their death.

Among other Christmas season train wrecks were those at Ashtabula, Ohio, December 29, 1876, 84 killed; Washington, D.C., December 30, 1906, 53 killed; Volland, Kansas, January 2, 1907, 33 killed; Rockmont, Ga., December 23, 1926, 20 killed; Dundas, Ont., December 25, 1934, 15 killed; Kishinev, Romania, December 25, 1938, 100 killed; Magdesburg, Germany, December 22, 1939, 125 killed; Friedrichshafen, Germany, December 22, 1939, 99 killed; Almonte, Ont., December 27, 1942, 34 killed; Bagley, Utah, December 31, 1944, 50 killed; Syracuse, Mo., January 1, 1948, 14 killed.

1933 The new home of the Pentecostal Church on Water St. is dedicated.

For I have said, Mercy shall be built up for ever: thy faithfulness shalt thou establish in the very heavens . . .

Justice and judgement are the habitation of thy throne: mercy and truth shall go before thy face. (Ps. 89:1, 2, 14.)

One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts . . .

They shall abundantly utter the memory of they great goodness, and shall sing of thy righteousness . . .

The Lord is good to all: and his tender mercies are over all his works. (Ps. 145:4, 7, 9.)

A BRITISH OPINION

PROPHECY FOR 1954

Russian Beggars Crowd Streets Of Soviet Cities

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Soviet Communists have a ready explanation for almost anything.

Are women doing the heaviest of toil? It's because they have "equal rights."

Are a surprising number of people going to the churches? Only old people really attend any more, and besides there is "freedom of religion."

But for the many beggars seen in the capitals of the Soviet Union, there is a unique explanation. They are all "professionals."

Some of these "professional" beggars looked miserable. A young mother in Stalinabad, capital of the Tadjik republic, sat on a curb, nursing her baby. There was agony in her face as she cried for alms.

Another young mother — she couldn't have been more than 19— sat on a landing in the big department store on Lenin street in Kiev, capital of the Ukraine. She, too, clutched her baby in her arms and begged for kopeks. Most of the crowd of shoppers passed her by without a glance.

MANY BEGGARS

I walked extensively through a half dozen Soviet cities and found many beggars of all ages. I asked about them and each time was told they were professionals. Often that seemed quite possible since they were congregated near the few churches still in operation, their hats on the ground beside them, seeming quite sure that the church's laws of charity would work in their favor.

It seemed impossible to get any accurate information on why these people do this in a society which claims to have outlawed poverty. Beggars in Moscow often live in streets and alleyways and try to find shelter at times in the metro (subway) stations. Police frequently are seen turning them out in the small hours of the morning. Some live in cellars near or under a church, or in tumbledown shacks outside city limits.

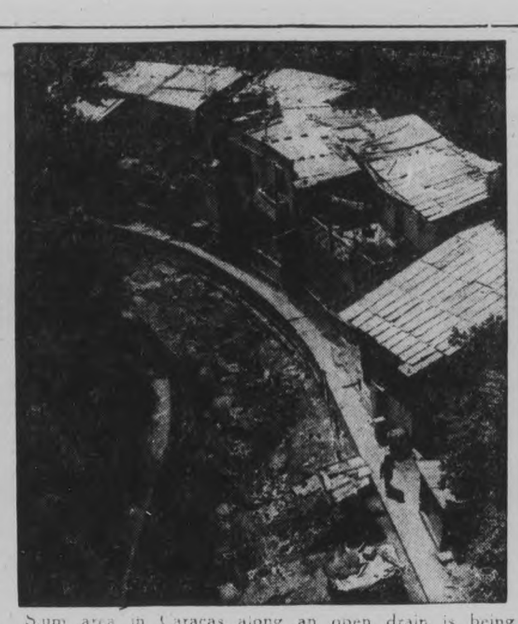
I found beggars in every city I visited. In Alma Ata, the snow-bound capital of Kazakhstan, many congregated at the end of Kalinin street near the still-operating Russian orthodox church.

MANY IN TASHKENT

In Tashkent, capital of the Uzbek republic, some of the crippled beggars on Lenin street had home-made means of locomotion such as boards on wheels. I counted 10 beggars one afternoon in a single half hour's walk along Pushkin street, where there are many new apartments. I saw beggars in pairs working together. I saw one ancient bearded man holding a little girl in his arms, apparently as a decoy, shouting for help for her. The child looked half starved.

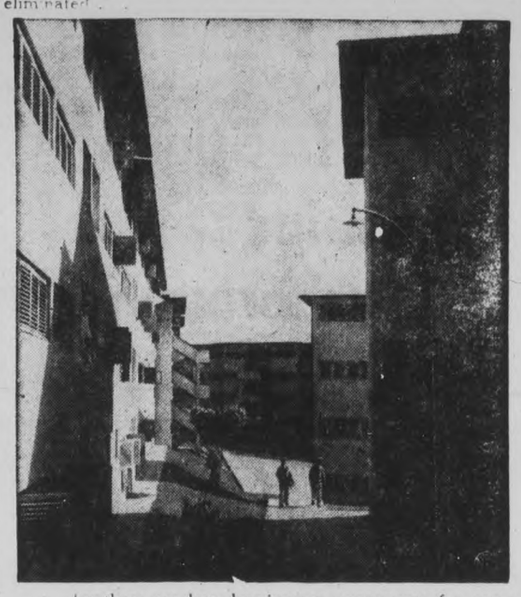
In Tbilisi, capital of Georgia, a large number of beggars congregated at a big Georgian orthodox church just off the main street. In Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, beggars, men and women, swarmed about the entrance to Andreevsky Cathedral, still in operation as a place of worship. They haunted the Lavra, the ancient Ukrainian seminary in the heart of Kiev. I saw tottering old beggars along Shevchenko street and Lenin street, two of Kiev's main thoroughfares.

In Moscow there are beggars to be found in many places, but once again particularly around places of worship. They swarm about the main Jewish synagogue, one of four said still to be in operation, and about the 50 or so churches throughout the capital.



Communists insist all this represents only the remnants of the czarist regime — which died 36 years ago. The churches, too, are placed in that category.

SMALLEST STATE



Rhode Island, smallest of the 48 states in the U.S., covers 1,214 square miles.

THERE IS NONE BETTER!

Slum area in Caracas along an open drain is being eliminated . . .

. . . by these modern low-income apartments for some 348 families.

VENEZUELA "WARS" ON SLUMS—Oil revenues are helping Venezuela wage "war" against slums. About $66 million have been spent to provide decent housing for slum dwellers and even larger expenditures are plannd for th future. Since 1948, more than 50,000 slum dwellers have been moved to modern two, three and four-room apartments complete with playground, kindergraten and shopping centre. The money has been collected from the sale of oil, chiefly to the U.S. Greatest building activity has centred in Caracas, which has tripled its population from 250,000 in 1936 to 650,000 in 1951.

Canadian Grain Exports Set All-Time Record In 1953

By A. B. GARRET
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) - Canada exported an all-time record of nearly 600,000,000 bushels of grain in the 1952-53 crop year through her complex marketing system which involves government, private and co-operative agencies.

But there are huge stocks still on hand at the year end after the third successive bumper crop, and there are important new factors in the world market.

High-grade milling wheat is Canada's major grain export, but there has been no trading in wheat futures on the Winnipeg grain exchange since September 1943. The Canadian wheat board makes all wheat purchases and controls all sales.

Since 1949 it also has handled oats and barley purchases but sells these grains through the Winnipeg futures market. Flax and rye trade is open.

DAILY ANNOUNCEMENT

The board announces daily its prices for wheat sold under the International Wheat agreement, outside the agreement (class two), and to domestic consumers. It either sells the wheat itself or approve sales through exporters and shippers.

Stanley Jones, president of the Winnipeg grain exchange, terms this pricing system "artificial" and "monopolistic." He says it has failed to move abundant production into use. History recorded other attempts to control prices artificially and the augury of failure usually was a large unsold surplus.

At the end of the 1952-53 crop year the four major exporting countries had a carryover of 1,261,000,000 bushels of wheat—twice the amount of the previous year. Mr. Jones said their carryover next July could be 1,400,000,000.

He called for restoration of an open wheat market in Canada but the government indicated no intention of making a change.

LIVERPOOL TRADING

In Britain, trading in wheat futures was resumed on the Liverpool exchange Dec. 1 after a lapse of 14 years. Prior to 1939, Liverpool was the barometer of world wheat prices and Winnipeg trade sources said the move might mean an attempt to regain that role. Exchange problems and the fact that large surpluses were held by government agencies reduced the market's effectiveness in early sessions.

Another major factor in the world market was the swing from a situation favoring the seller to one favoring the buyer.

The wheat board, facilitating sales to the United Kingdom, announced a deferred price system. In some quarters this was regarded as a partial substitute for a Canadian wheat futures market.

Late in the year, the United States announced it could sell limited amounts of subsidized wheat to countries outside the IWA. Some quarters predicted this would be a heavy blow to Canada. Trade Minister Howe said that it would mean competition—"no more than we had expected."

In reporting the export record for 1952-53 the board of grain commissioners said the 600,000,000 bushels was 77,000,000 bushels above the previous record set in 1951-52.

The board said prices for IWA and class two wheat, oats, rye and flax averaged lower in the 1952-53 crop year compared with the previous year, but barley prices were higher.

AVERAGE QUOTATIONS

The board gave the following average quotations for the year with the previous year in brackets:

Wheat (No. 1 northern) IWA—$1.75⅞ ($1.82¼); class two—2.16½ (2.33⅛).

Oats (2 CW) wheat board—.80⅜ (.90¾).

Barley (2 CW 6-row) wheat board—1.39½ (1.35⅞); grain exchange 1.33⅝ (1.32⅝).

Rye (2 CW) grain exchange—1.58¼ (1.93⅝).

Flax (1 CW) grain exchange—3.28⅝ (4.28⅛).

All prices are basis in store Fort William-Port Arthur.

Australia Seeks Gold Increase

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australia will back a South African call at the Commonwealth finance ministers' conference next month for an increase in the price of gold, according to well-informed sources here.

Nicholas Havenga, South African finance minister, said on his arrival here that South Africa would press in principle for a higher gold price, still at its 1934 level, at every suitable opportunity.

The view here is that a higher price would not only bring benefits to the Australian gold-mining industry but would also help the sterling area to reach its goal of strengthening the pound sterling sufficiently to make it freely convertible into dollars.

However, little hope is held out for world acceptance of a change in the gold price. It is unlikely that the United States, the only major gold-buyer, would agree.

Another Fatality

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's seventh traffic fatality in nine days was recorded Wednesday with the death of Mrs. Anna Kirzner, 68. Mrs. Kirzner died in hospital from injuries suffered in a truck-car collision 11 days ago. Her death raises the Toronto 1953 toll to 69, same as last year.

Templar Gets Appointment In Europe

LONDON (Reuters) — Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, high commissioner in Malaya for the last two years, will take over a key Atlantic Pact post in Europe next October, it was announced.

The 55-year-old general, whose brilliant combat record in the Second World War was cut short by a flying piano, will succeed Gen. Sir Richard Gale as commander of the northern army Group of Allied forces in central Europe. It is one of two main NATO commands under French Marshal Alphonse Juin, commander of Allied land, sea and air forces in central Europe.

Templer has become one of Britain's top administrative officers since the ironic incident of the flying piano on the Italian front in 1944. An army truck loaded with a grand piano struck a mine directly behind Templer's jeep. The piano landed on his back, crushing his spine.

After a "miraculous" recovery, he headed Britain's first military government in Germany after the Second World War and played a key role in the post-war reconstruction of the shattered country.

Petes Go Into Second Place By Beating Kingston As Fryia Gets Five Goals

KINGSTON (Special)—Peterborough's senior "B" squad, now in full flight, moved into second place in the Ontario Hockey Association group race when they defeated the wavering Goodyears, defending champions, by 7 to 5 in the Community Memorial Centre last night. It was the visitor's fifth consecutive start without a reverse and it left Goodyears winless in their last four games. In the fast going that enthralled a crowd of 2,929 fans for better or for worse, two rivals stood out above all others and accounted for no less than eight counters. Chum Fryia, turned in one of the best individual efforts ever witnessed in the centre and set a seasonal record by racking up five counters.

George MacGregor, responding to Fryia's amazing performance, carried the scoring mail for Goodyears with three goals and an assist. Moreover, he would have matched Fryia's mark or exceeded it if goalkeeper Jack Donlevy hadn't made several brilliant saves.

REFEREES LENIENT

Only five penalties were inflicted by the referees, Jim Crombie and Louis Lecompte, but as many more could have been called if the officials hadn't been a bit lenient. The players, did, however, adhere rather closely to the code and no outbreak of violence marred the interesting battle.

Although Fryia emerged as the outstanding star in the act it was a combined effort in stellar team play that enabled the visitors to skate off with the spoils. Monty Montgomery, Gus Leonard, and coach Eddie Redmond were conspicuous going both ways. Redmond did not figure in the point-getting, but the dashing Montgomery and the heady Leonard each picked up three assists in taking top honors in that important department.

Montgomery had the dubious distinction of drawing the first penalty 50 seconds after the game began, but it was his lone offence. While he was away Don Murray, aided by MacGregor and Johnny Myke, fired the puck past Donlevy. Goodyears continued to employ the ganging attack. MacGregor, with Ken Partis and Bob Londry figuring in the attack, shot the locals into a 2-0 advantage and darkened the outlook for the Petes.

GARVEY SCORES

At the 8:12 mark Toodie Greenlaw was sent away for hooking, but the champions failed to capitalize during his absence. At 10:33 Fred Garvey broke the ice for the invaders after Montgomery had launched the attack. The Petes continued to gang, but Ken Johnson balked them half a dozen times before Fryia, who had taken a pass from Jim Munro, blazed the disc into the webbing.

With the teams restored to full strength shortly after play began in the middle session Doc Prentice scored while Peterson lay injured on the ice near the Goodyear crease. McMaster drew an assist. Later, Fryia took a pass from the weaving Montgomery and beat Johnson from close range.

The Petes launched another all-out asault, but collected no dividends. Then Partis put MacGregor in the clear and the speedboy scored at 14.03. It was a 4-3 duel until the intermission.

The Petes did a bit of forcing, but Bert Hill and Crowley were wide of the mark with close-in shots. At 11:44 Jack White electrified the crowd when his rising shot caromed off Donlevy's glove and fell over the line. The cheering, however, had hardly died away befort Fryia sped to his fourth counter.

The victors will proceed into further provincial playdowns against other Ontario sectional winners. Young Petes Get 10-0 Win Against Collingwood To Draw For Top Position

Young Petes moved into a first-place tie in the OHA junior "B" standing Wednesday night by blanking Collingwood Shipbuilders 10-0 at Civic Arana.

It was no contest for Red Creighton's team who gained the upper hand by scoring five goals in the first period, adding two more in the second and coasting to a finish with three goals in the third. Play warmed up as the game progressed. Twenty-five penalties were handed out altogether: six in the first period, seven in the second and 12 in the third.

As the last few seconds of the final period ticked to a close, the Young Petes got a breakaway. Sonny Robinson, a try-hard performer for the visiting shipbuilders, found that his checking arm was short by about 30 feet. So he went into a two handed windup and threw his stick, bolo fashion, after his opposition.

The stick didn't do any damage. It just clattered harmlessly along ice into the boards, but it was the signal for a three-minute free-for-all that may have been foolish but at the same time seemed a lot of fun.

LEFT BENCHES

Players left the two benches with a whoop and rushed into the fray. They were joined by the two goalies and coaches Red Creighton and Ed Bush. At the end there few facial swellings but lots of smiles, which all goes to prove something or other.

Dripping with sweat but managing smiles, too, were Doug Calhoun and Bernie Hodgetts, referees in training, under the watchful Irish eye of Pat Patterson, the OHA's referee in chief. Pat looked over a different combination of tyro refs in each period: Sixty Coombs and Bun Kingdon in the first, Coombs and Bus Caine in the second and Calhoun and Hodgetts in the third—the most difficult of the three periods to handle.

As for the game—it was spirited, but no contest for the Creighton crew. They outscored, outskated and outstick-handled the lighter team from Collingwood who were making their first appearance on Peterborough ice this year.

The handful of loyal Collingwood supporters who made the long trip weren't disappointed, though. They pointed out that theirs is actually a junior "C" team moved up into a higher bracket. At the end of the season, after getting plenty of experience, they can move back into the junior "C" playoffs on a bye.

Pacing the Young Petes were Heffernan and Kearns with two goals and two assists apiece, and Uren with two goals and an assist.

Heffernan was particularly strong on the point in power plays, blasting hard shots at Leonard, the over-worked Collingwood goalie, and lading well-directed passes to forwards in the open. He was tops in the roughouse department, too, picking up four penalties, including a major for fighting.

FLATTENED OUT

It wasn't much of a fight. For some reason or other he started into Kirk of Collingwood after finishing a rush into the southwest corner. Kirk didn't even get a look-in and wound up sprawling on the ice, gesticulating to team-mates and spectators that he hadn't the foggiest what brought on the tiff.

During the bumping bouts, Mcmillan, right defenceman for the shipbuilders, reefed Heffernan a couple of times, proving they have some hardrocks up Collingwood way, too.

Smoothest play of the night was by Gary Kearns. At 18:07 of the second period Byrnes fed Kearns a pass as the latter was really hopping. The sawed-off forward stickhandled his way through the Collingwood checkers, shifted the last defenceman with a tricky feint, and then waited for Goalie Leonard to make his move. When Leonard sprawled out in hopes of a save Kearns avoided him and gently slid the puck into the left hand corner of the net. The crowd got a big bang out of that one.

Besides the paid help at the arena Wednesday night there were only 215 loyal customers—all, presumably, close relatives of the players, or hockey fans beyond hope of redemption. The arena was cold, about zero, and there was a 40-minute wait for the Collingwood team to show up; but, despite this, the crowd seemed in good spirits. Hot coffee and blankets helped take away the chill for most of them.

The last moment fracas, apparently an expected event at junior "B" games, seemed to leave both players and spectators in a good mood.

Successful Yeaar In Sports Four Championships Brought To Peterborough

(By CEC. PERDUE)

Four championships, of provincial or higher category, were brought to Peterborough during 1953. The Petes' Trailermen captured the Canadian senior "A" lacrosse championship for the third straight year, and will be out to defend their Mann Cup mortgage in '54. The local Orfuns' football club again won the Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate "A" title, later losing in the Eastern Canada playoff. The Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club took the team championship of the U.S.A. in international competition. And the PMHA Shamrocks won the Ontario bantam hockey crown. This record compared well with the five provincial or better crowns won by local teams the previous year.

OTHERS WON, ALSO

In addition, there were championships won by local athletes in competition of a smaller scale, but the city council here does not recognize these achievements officially. League or association crowns which do not mean provincial or better titles are ignored by the civic fathers when the annual "dinner of champions" is held for sports' organizations here. This dinner, incidentally, has not been held for the past two years, but winners in 1952 and 1953 are to be recognized at a civic banquet to be put on before the end of January of 1954.

Those attending the championship spread will, in addition to the four titular teams mentioned in the top paragraph be the senior lacrosse Timbermen (known this years as Trailermen) of 1952, the grid Orfuns, the juvenile lacrosse club—as OLA victors—and the UEW soccer club, as Ontario intermediate winners. Also, Mrs. Maurice Charlton and Verna Rose will be there as Ontario ladies' doubles badminton champions of last year.

INCREASE SPORTS

With a new gym built, St. Peter's High is increasing its scope in sports rapidly and this year won the COSSA junior "B" grid title and the senior "B" Ontario Catholice Conference football crown. The school goes in for considerable basketball, also. Kenner Colegiate is becoming prominent in sports, too, adding another athletic field to the city. PCVS continues to turn out strong football and cage crews. These and the public schools annually stage track and field days.

Preliminary action on the oft-delayed Memorial Centre project was taken during the past year under Mayor Hugh Waddell. A lawyer has been appointed to take steps to have a private bill presented to the legislature in February seeking permission to have Morrow Park named as the site for the centre. It is possible that the building may be started during 1954.

TWO FOLDED UP

While some sports increased in Peterborough during the year—including basketball, badminton, water-skiing and alley bowling—two of the summer games suspended operations. The Girls' Softball League folded for lack of sponsors. The Petes' senior baseball club dropped out for lack of a league, some of the players transferring to the intermediate team in Lindsay. Minor ball carried on, with teams led by Ray Clifford and Wimp Borland doing well in CBA playdowns. The juniors also played in the lakeshore loop. Men's softball and fastball in various leagues from school to senior "B" flourished on various diamonds in the city and district.

In hockey last winter, the Petes finished strong after a shaky start. They gradually added some good players from the defunct Eagles and crowded the leading senior "B" clubs in the group at the finish. The junior "B" Oddfellows finished their schedule and then decided to give up sponsoring junior hockey here, owing to heavy expenses. Red Creighton talked some other local enthusiasts into picking up the reins and the Young Petes this season are playing fine junior hockey. The senior Petes, with several imports, are making a good showing currently in a strong circuit. Eddie Redmond is playing coach. Much minor hockey was played again from peewee, school and church loops up to the OHA brand. This sport had a heavy play also in the district.

MORE POPULAR

Basketball, badminton and alley bowling proved more popular than ever here during the winter months, with more players getting into these games, girls as well as the fellows. Curling, of course continues to be a popular Peterborough indoor winter sport for young and old of both sexes. As in lawn bowling in warmer weather, many big competitions are held, attracting top players of the province.

Soccer is improving here and had a good season in '53, though the strong UEW team failed to repeat its provincial title of a year before. The "A" cricket team had an excellent season to win their section of the Toronto and District Council. More golfers than ever took to Kawartha and Peterborough Clubs' fairways. Tennis had its share of enthusiasts, and water sports drew plenty of followers. With snow sadly lacking to spoil skiers' winter fun, water skiing was on the increase in summer, and a big provincial meet was held here.

HUGE CROWDS

Lacrosse was the real summer sport again as far as fan interest went, the senior games drawing huge crowds regularly. Bob Thorpe's titular Trailermen again swept everything to take the OLA, the Eastern Canada and the Dominion championships. A strong junior club failed to go through to the Ontario title, and the large PMLA just missed out as several fine young teams reached provincial semi-finals or finals.

Football took over in the early autumn with plenty of action on high school and ORFU gridirons in Peterborough. The champion Orfuns repeated for the Ontario crown but lost out in the Eastern Canada final in Montreal, that team taking the Canadian title.

These are just a few of the sports' highlights in the athletics' picture presented in Peterborough during the past twelvemonth. Every season saw interesting and colorful competition for boys and girls, men and women, for participants and spectators. Behind the scenes, officials worked hard to stage these spectacles.

OTHER SPORTS

There were other sports than those mentioned in this year-end roundup. There were horse races, pro wrestling matches, gym games, swim competitions, carpetball, and others. Each had its heroes and its adherents. All had fun.

Jim McClenaghan returned to duty at the local YMCA after a long absence. Alex Sinclair announced his transfer from here as recreation commissioner to St. Catharines. The Charlie Kearns Trophy was revived for the city's outstanding athlete. Bill Huntley was judged top ORFU intermediate player in the province. Some good friends of sport died. The city received splendid advertising through athletics in 1953.

And so it goes—the merry sports' whirl continues as one year blends into another. Peterborough continues to be one of the better sports cities in Ontario. Every year sees at least several titles of provincial status or better brought here. It is expected that further championships will come this way during 1954.

Fred Atkins And Layton Win Top Grapple Bout Over DiPaulo And Hi Lee

Leopards don't change their spots, nor do pro mat villains improve in good company. This latter was noticeable to several hundred fans at the Brock Arena last cold evening when Hi Lee teamed up with popular Ilio DiPaulo against the rough pair of Fred Atkins and Lord Althol Layton. The final and deciding fall went to Layton in six minutes over lee, but it was an unwilling Lee that was pulled forcibly into the ring by his teammate in time to run into the "octupus" hold and curtains.

It came about that Lee, claiming an injured shoulders, refused to help his partner, Ilio, in the final two rounds, and thereby drew loud boos from the fans. They remembered him from his villainous acts here in previous bouts and warmed slightly, if at all, to him as a partner of DiPaulo, who is liked locally. Of course, nobody likes Atkins or Layton—unless it might be a wife or mother.

WON THE FIRST

Rugged Fred Atkins of Australia won the first fall over Lee in 21 minutes when Referee Bunny Dunlop stopped it as 292-pound Hi was hopelessly hung in a hammerlock and willing to concede. This, he claimed later, ruined his shoulder for the night. Atkins, at 252 pounds, was as aggressive as ever and full of nasty mat tricks, he and the slashing Layton teaming up better than hustling DiPaulo and roaring shaggy-maned Lee. The ref did not fool around too much with any of these husky grapplers, though he did try to keep order in the rival corners which proved "no man's land" for unwary wrestlers.

Ilio won the only fall for his side, the second round, in just seven minutes when he tied up Athol Layton in the "octopus" grip, making him concede with the back-breaker. The fans roundly booed Lee who refused to aid Ilio, when the latter needed help several times in a rough go. DiPaulo told his partner off at the end of the bout and strutted away by himself to the cheers of the fans. Again the Aussies teamed up better, especially in their corner, in this round, but Ilio proved a fast, tricky and resourceful grappler to earn the fall. He weighed 246 and Layton bumped the beam at 272.

GOES TO DRAW

The semi-final was a 30-minute draw between popular Timothy Geohagen, going 233, and rough Jan Gotch, at 226, who substituted for Firpo Syzbsko. This Jan guy proved a nasty character all the way and he specialized in pulling hair or standing on Tim's locks while Bunny Dunlop seemed to be looking elsewhere — mayhap thinking of a crooked dice game. The Irishman several times had Gotch set up for the "Irish sleeper," but each time it was too close to the ropes and the ref broke it up. Dunlop did get into it, finally, to knock Jan around toward the finish, and Tim was getting in his licks when the gong sounded the finish.

Pat Flanagan, scaling 232, won the prelim over 224-pound Johnny Harmon in 22 minutes when the latter was counted out of the ring. It was a clean scrap with both fellows showing plenty of ring savvy and smart grappling. They frequently drew applause for nifty wrestling tactics and speedy grips and breaks. Their aerial work was a treat to see and they came off the hemp in a series of holds that kept interest high. A mat classic, many folks said later, saying it was clean, yet rugged, too, as Pat and Johnny laid it on at times. Harmon missed on a flying tackle and stunned himself outside the ring while the count went on to give Flan the verdict.

Bullock, Elson Victorious Ladies' Doubles

I. Bullock and M. Elson won over J. Lye and K. Messervey 15-9, 12-15 and 15-3 in the ladies' doubles final of the local "B" badminton tourney last night, M. Elson turning in a strong game. This puts the winners into the "A" class of players.

In mixed doubles, Z. Bush and N. May beat P. Hudson and T. Haller 15-6, 15-9; M. Nickle and J. Crain beat the Shaughnessys 18-14, 8-15, 15-8; J. Lye and R. Baldur won over D. Savigny and K. Treen 15-6, 15-3; the Behans downed R. Hudson and J. Hickman 15-9, 15-5; D. Shaughnessy and J. Mahoney won over K. Boston and R. Kennedy 15-6, 15-7; M. Sullivan and B. Lagana defeated M. Whalon and F. Dance 15-10, 15-12; S. Kryzanowski and R. Theriault won over S. Aker and G. Romaine 15-9, 15-6; S. Anderson and B. Brignell defeated M. Brick and S. James 15-8, 15-5; K. and W. Messervey won over J. Sullivan and L. Patton 15-10, 15-2.

SECOND ROUND

Second round results: Nickle and Crain beat Bush and May 10-15, 15-8, 15-4; Lye and Baldur won by default; the Behans beat M. Elson and P. Wright 4-15, 18-15, 15-4; S. Hughson and S. Fleming won over D. Shaughnessy and J. Mahoney 14-15, 15-8, 15-4; P. Rodgers and B. Carley defeated M. Sullivan and Lagana 15-6, 15-2; S. Kryzanowski and Theriault beat Anderson and Brignell 15-13, 15-9; I. Bullock and J. Johnston defeated the Messerveys 15-4, 15-4.

Third round results: J. Wong and K. Jung beat Nickle and Crain 15-3, 15-1; Behans defeated Lye and Baldur 15-9, 17-14; Hughson and Fleming won over Rodgers and Carley 15-2, 15-12; Bullock and Johnston beat Kryzanowski and Theriault 15-5, 15-1.

SEMI-FINALS

In the semi-finals, Wong and Jung downed the Behans 15-8, 15-11; Bullock and Johnston won over Hughson and Fleming 15-8, 15-5. The final will be played Saturday, January 9, as some of the players will be away over the holiday weekend. Mixed finals will be Wong and Jung vs. Bullock and Johnston. Men's final on January 9 will be Conlin and Jung vs. Fleming and Carley. A big upset came when the Behans of St. Peter's won from Elson and Wright of the Market Club, who were seeded fourth, and then won from Lye and Baldur (Market), seeded sixth. Hughson and Fleming played well to reach semi-finals, J. Hughson being a junior.

In the consolation semi-finals, Wright and Elson beat Kennedy and Boston 15-9, 15-11, as Patton and J. Sullivan defeated the Shaughnessys 9-15, 15-10, 15-11. In the final, Wright and Elson won over Patton and Sullivan 15-10 and 17-15.

Guelph Rink Wins Schoolboy Honors

GUELPH (CP) — Ken Kay's Guelph rink won divisional schoolboy curling honors by defeating the defending Kitchener rink of Al Asmusson 8-6.

K. Merlinger's Kitchener crew won the consolation by beating J. Tyson of Guelph 16-6.

Kay and teammates Jack Lillie, Harry Talbot and Jim Kaeupf will compete in the Ontario championship competition in Toronto Jan. 30.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A happy New Year to all, and take it easy on the curves. Dust off the old resolutions so bravely made 12 months ago and give 'em another try. A good slogan: Let's all do more in '54. Elsewhere on the page we've touched on a few sports highlights hereabouts during 1953, but no doubt have missed quite a few, also. Generally speaking, 'twas a good year in athletics for Peterborough, despite the folding up last summer of senior baseball and girls' softball. Mayhap they'll revive next warm spell. It's not too early to start working on summer reorganization during the winter months. Early plans usually bear fruit if enough work is done on them. This applies to any type of sport.

* * * * * *

Once more let us recall the four championships brought here this year. After all, how many cities this size in the province (or in all Canada) can say as much? Very few. These championships are of provincial or higher rating, as local teams have also won league or association titles. Petes' Trailermen captured the Mann Cup for the third straight year, winning the Canadian senior "A" lacrosse crown out in Victoria, B.C., last September in decisive fashion. Ross Powless of Petes was voted most valuable player in that series. Bob Thorpe was coach of the champs. Coach Pansy Forbes in Florida saw the ornamental swimmers from here take the team championship of the States, a grand international honor, indeed.

* * * * * *

Two Provincial Victors

Then, too, we had two provincial winners. Last spring, Pat Doherty's hustlin gyoung hockey Shamrocks won the bantam "A" title of Ontario, beating Guelph in the final. Less than two months ago, Tony Kotowski's grid Orfuns downed Oakville for the ORFU intermediate "A" crown, with Bill Huntley voted the best "A" gridder in the province. The team lost later to Montreal in the Eastern Canada final, their victors going on to take the Canadian cup. These four titular teams (in conjunction with the five championship squads of 1952) are to be honoreed at a civic banquet toward the end of January, since the older council never got around to officially recognizing our winners of a year ago. It should be quite a "dinner of champions," eh?

* * * * * *

But that's about enough of looking backward. It was generally a good year in sports for Peterborough, but let's make 1954 an even better one, if possible. We should get started on that oft-delayed Memorial Centre project, and the new council no doubt will see that headway is made on this. Despite Peterborough's fine record this year in sports, we still lag far behind other centres in a proper arena for hockey. There is a good ball field here, but no senior ball. Thre are lights in the Bowl but no girls' softball. These things should be corrected. Otherwise, sports are in healthy condition here, and the new athletic field at Kenner Collegiate and new gym at St. Peter's are assets to this growing city. So, on the whole, things look promising for '54.

Petes And Juniors Win

Now for a quick look at the local OHA scene. Both our squads came through in fine fashion last eve. The rampaging Petes roared to a well-earned 7-5 decision o'er the K's in Kingston before 3,000 fans. Chum Fryia blazed the way for 'em, and the whole club clicked from Goalie Donlevy out as they hopped into second place over Goodyears. Oshawa beat Orillia two nights ago 6-5 but Belleville upset Oshawa last p.m. 4-2 to make the race more interesting. Truckers now have 26 points, Petes 22, K's 21, Orillia 19 and Memos 12. Locals can rest now for a week. At Civic, Young Petes turned in a sparkling effort to blank Collingwood 10-0 in a tilt marked by 25 penalties, and a free-for-all at the finish. This win pulls the Creighton crew into a first-place tie with Port Perry, each having 16 points. Lindsay, who lost to Midland 8-3, have 14 points, Midland four and Collingwood one.

Ilio DiPaulo is still liked by pro mat fans here, even though his side lost last night at the Brock in the main bout, but Hi Lee is still disliked muchly. He never was popular, the towering 292-pounder with the shaggy mane and bull voice, and he certainly didn't win any friends by failing to help his partner Ilio in this bout. The latter did pretty well, at that, winning the only fall for his side, Lee losing once to Fred Atkins and later to Athol Layton. The Aussies teamed up better in a rough fashion to get the verdict, as Lee let his teammate down with a thump. Claiming he had a bad shoulder from the first fall, but the fans kept yelling "chicken," and DiPaulo didn't go for it, either, Tim Geohagen and Jan Gotch drew in the semi-windup, as Pat Flanagan took the prelim o'er Johnny Harmon.

Beliveau Returns; Canadiens Tie 3rd Place Maple Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jean Beliveau scored a goal Wednesday night. He looked somewhat terrific in doing it.

Le Gros Bill was ushered into the National Hockey League this year with perhaps more publicity than ever before attended a rookie. He had the biggest contract ever paid a freshman by Montreal Canadiens. He was the new Maurice Richard. But he spent most of this season in hospital. Beliveau played his 10th game with Canadiens Wednesday night when the Montrealers battled to a 2-2 tie against third place Maple Leafs in Toronto.

The 22-year-old Beliveau scored against goalkeeper Harry Lumley at 16:51 of the second period. The goal had Richard, Montreal's great rightwinger, written all over it—and the 13,831 fans knew it.

It was Beliveau's third goal of the season and put the Montrealers into a 2-0 edge, a lead they frittered away before the end of the game.

The game, the only one Wednesday night, gave Canadiens one point, one behind the league-leading Detroit Red Wings. The Leafs remained in third place with 41 points, four behind Montreal.

FANS ON EARS

Beliveau, a six-foot-one centre who was back for the first time since he fractured a cheek bone several weeks ago, broke out for his goal on a nice pass from leftwinger Eddie Mazur and rifled the puck past Lumley from close range. Lumley had the corner covered but didn't even make a play on the shot. It nearly stood the fans on their ears.

Richard was in the line-up but he had an off night and didn't get in on the scoring.

The other Montreal goal was scored by Ken Mosdell. The Leafs salvaged the deadlock by driving back in the last two periods with goals by rightwinger George Armstrong and defenceman Jim Morrison.

The Montrealers lost the services of Bernie Geoffrion in the third period. Geoffrion, under an eight-game suspension for games against the fifth-place New York Rangers went off with a severe charlie horse and did not reappear.

Flyers Chalk Up Three Wins In Succession

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers, former cellar-dwellers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, have chalked up almost a perfect score in their last three outings.

Barrie's 5-4 win Wednesday night over the Kitchener Greenshirts advanced them to sixth place and gave them five out of a possible six points in three starts. Bottom place on the ladder now belongs to Galt, two points behind Barrie.

The Flyers were leading 1-0 in the middle frame and were in front 4-1 before the Greenshirts rallied to outscore the Flyers 3-1 in the third.

Barrie goals were scored by Johnny Martan, with two, Bob White, Don Cherry and Jimmy Robertson. Scorers for Kitchener were Greig Hicks with two, Gary Collins, and Len Cressman.

Citizens of Peterborough,

As 1953 draws to a close and on the eve of a New Year, we feel that you, the citizens of Peterborough, should know a little more about us.

Some may remember our beginning, nearly seven years ago in the early months of 1946. World War II had just finished. The future was necessarily uncertain but still a challenge to free enterprise, the rock upon which our way of life is surely based.

Looking ahead, it was not possible to see Brookdale Subdivision, Parkdale Subdivision, and now the area known as Queen Elizabeth Subdivision in which we are greatly interested. It was impossible to believe that we should become associated with Investors Syndicate of Canada Limited in the mortgage field and make possible the loaning of some $6,000,000.00 to the citizens of Peterborough for the purchasing of homes and helping to develop business areas. It hardly seemed feasible to believe that the citizens of Peterborough would pay over or counter $58,000.00 in yearly insurance premiums to protect their property and themselves. It was hard to believe that eight builders would be doing business with us exclusively. It was beyond all reasoning to believe that the real estate sales department would sell slightly more than $13,000,000 worth of real property.

Looking back, we realize that all this has happened. It has been made possible by a hard-working, efficient staff, by the help and co-operation of our various associates, by you, the residents of this fair city of ours, all coupled with a firm faith in the future of Peterborough.

So, looking ahead into the future again we feel we are prepared to serve you. We have land for 100 houses in 1954. We have money available to finance such a project. We are conversant with the new Housing Act regulations. We will be glad and happy to help you. Come in and discuss your housing problems.

We join together in wishing all of you a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Adam B. Sands, President. L. C. Bateman, Vice-President.

Might Wreck Olympic Structure If Australia Loses Games' Site

MELBOURNE (AP)—Gen. William Bridgeford, chief executive officer of the 1956 Melbourne Olympics, said today that if the games are taken from Australia now the move might wreck the entire world Olympic structure.

At the same time he expressed confidence that Melbourne would retain the events despite a movement to shift them because of Australia's determination not to relax its animal quarantine laws.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the International Olympic Committee, said in London Wednesday that unless these laws are relaxed to permit the holding of equestrian competition, the site of the games may be changed.

Brundage said the Olympic rules state that all Olympic events except for the winter games must be held in the same city.

NO PROBABLE CHANGE

"We are sure the International Olympic Committee which meets in Athens May 11 will uphold the decision made in Mexico City that the games shall come to Melbourne," said Bridgeford.

"We have no intention of giving up the games and I don't think we are going to lose them."

Bridgeford said there has been agitation among a small group of Olympic officials to take the games from Melbourne because of the expense involved in bringing teams to Australia.

"If this is done I'm sure there will be international repercussions, and I fear the whole world-wide Olympic structure might be endangered."

Bridgeford said he is certain there would be no easing in the laws which demand six months' quarantine for horses being brought into Australia.

"This is a law of long standing to protect the health of Australian livestock which is now disease-free. I'm certain an old law like this won't be changed just for Olympic expediency."

Hamilton Beats Cataracts 5-1 In Senior Series

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton's 5-1 win over Niagara Falls Cataracts in Wednesday night's Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game was especially important to Denny Riggin.

Because to Denny Riggin, goalkeeper for Hamilton's junior hockey team, it was his chance to show he could hold his own in senior play—and he sure did.

Showered with a rain of rubber, Riggin held the Cataracts scoreless for 2½ periods, and it was only a lucky shot between his legs by a player lying on the ice that sneaked past him in the last frame.

Riggin was called in when Boat Hurley, regular goalkeeper, reported ill.

In the last period Riggin made a sensational save on Sandy Air's drive from close in but in the scramble around the net, Air managed to squeeze the puck past Riggin, chalking up the only counter for Niagara Falls.

TIGERS MOVE UP

The win moved Hamilton to within two points of the league-leading Kitchener Dutchmen.

Marksmen for Hamilton were Murray Comfort, Billy Hammond, Sam Kennedy, Lloyd Ferguson and Jack Taylor.

In Owen Sound's 5-3 win over Stratford Indians, veteran Tommy Burlington paced his teammates by scoring three goals. Burlington collected two goals and four assists Tuesday night in the Mercury's 10-6 win over the Indians.

Other scorers for Owen Sound were Jaydee McArthur and Jerry Reid. Stratford's goals were scored by Mickey Roth with two, and Herve Dejordy.

The next scheduled games in the OHA are Saturday when Chatham is at Kitchener and Hamilton at Stratford. Pembroke visits Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., tonight in Northern Ontario Hockey Association action.

Critics Say 7 Touchdowns Decide Major Bowl Games

NEW YORK (AP)—Close observers figured today that seven touchdowns should decide the five major New Year's Day football bowl games.

Three of Friday's contests, the Rose, the Orange and the 'Gator, appear close enough that the winning margin in each might be a touchdown or less. The Sugar and the Cotton bowls appear a little more one-sided, although not by more than a couple of touchdowns apiece.

Maryland continues to rate a slight nod over Oklahoma in the Miami Orange Bowl clash between what on paper are the two top-ranking clubs. The unbeaten Terrapins won No. 1 rating in The Associated Press poll, Oklahoma lost its opener by a touchdown to Notre Dame and was tied by Pittsburgh, but wound up No. 4.

Michigan State figures to start a new big 10 winning streak in the Rose Bowl at the expense of UCLA but it isn't nearly as strong a favorite as the midwest clubs often are in California.

The 'Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., finds Texas Tech, highest-scoring major team in the United States, rated over Auburn, another explosive outfit from the southeastern conference.

MAY EXTEND RECORD

Injuries have plagued the Cotton Bowl foes, Alabama and favored Rice, with Alabama hardest hit for the Dallas meeting.

All five of these games will be broadcast nationally. NBC will carry both the Cotton and Rose Bowls on radio and television. CBS will carry the Orange Bowl on radio and television. ABC will have the Sugar Bowl on radio and television and Mutual will carry a radio version of the 'Gator Bowl. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will televise the Rose Bowl game in Toronto and Ottawa.

The Orange, Sugar, Cotton and 'Gator games start at 2 p.m. EST, the Rose Bowl at 5 p.m. EST.

OLYMPIC MOVE HINTED

LONDON (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, hinted Wednesday that a collision of Australian law and Olympic rules still may force the 1956 games out of Melbourne and into a European or American city.

However, Otto Mayer, chancellor of the IOC, said Tuesday that he didn't believe the majority of the committee will agree to a demand to have the games moved from Melbourne. Mayer, of Lausanne, Switzerland, said Armand Masard of France, Angelo Bolanki of Greece and Gen. Vladimir Stoitcheff of Bulgaria have asked for the shift because of Australia's quarantine laws on foreign horses.

Brundage, en route from Chicago to a meeting of the executive commission of the IOC at Lausanne, Jan. 16, said at London airport:

"In spite of difficulties in making ready for the 1956 games, 18 cities, including Rome, Budapest and Lausanne, have offered sites for the games.

"Seven American cities already have offered. I do not want to say anymore on changing the site. It is as yet undecided."

American cities showing an earlier interest included Los Angeles, scene of the 1932 games, Philadelphia, Chicago and New York.

ROLLINS SAID TOPS

DETROIT (AP)—Who is the best goalie in the National Hockey League?

Jack Adams' answer was direct, surprising: "Without a doubt, Al Rollins of the Chicago Black Hawks."

"Rollins is more valuable to his club than any other player in the league. Without him they probably would have dropped out of the league."

✦ ✦ ✦

PLAYERS NOW DIFFERENT

OXFORD, O. (AP) — Walter (Smokey) Alston, new manager of Brooklyn Dodgers, says present baseball players are better than the old ones and also are gentlemen.

"They are not the rough characters they once were supposed to be," he told the Oxford Kiwanis Club. "They come to us out of high schools and colleges and are gentlemen from the start."

Former skipper of Montreal Royals in the International League, Alston was appointed Brooklyn manager several weeks ago after Chuck Dressen refused to sign a new contract which covered only the 1954 season.

✦ ✦ ✦

IKE SOLD TO CANUCKS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver League Wednesday announced the purchase of forward Ike Hildebrand from New York Rangers.

Owner Coley Hall said he paid $7,500 for Hildebrand's contract.

Hildebrand started his hockey career in New Westminster, B.C., where he was also a lacrosse star.

✦ ✦ ✦

CLAIM WORLD RECORD

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said Wednesday the International Weight Lifting Federation has recognized lightweight Nikaolai Kostylev's lift of 118.5 kilograms as a world record.

The radio said Kostylev, 22, set the record in the two-hand continental snatch in Poland last autumn and is the 16th official world record held by Soviet weightlifters.

✦ ✦ ✦

OUTSTANDING ATHLETE

NEW YORK (AP)—Maj. Sammy Lee, two-time Olympic platform diving champion, was awarded the James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy as the outstanding United States amateur athlete of 1953.

Lee, born of Korean parents in California, is attached to an army evacuation hospital at Seoul, Korea as an ear-nose-throat specilist.

The award is presented to "the amateur athlete who, by performance, example and good influence, did most to advance the cause of good sportsmanship during the year."

Six-Mile Record Made In Rain

VANCOUVER (CP)—Doug Kyle, 21-year-old university student, ran against a cold wind and a steady drizzle Wednesday to set a Canadian six-mile track record of 31 minutes, 1 4-10 seconds.

Officials of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, who timed Kyle at a University of British Columbia meet, said his time was the fastest run in North America this year. The old Canadian mark of 31 minutes, 46 2-10 seconds was set by Selwyn Jones of Hamilton in 1950.

Kyle ran second for six laps, then took the lead and steadily pulled away from the field. His final mile, timed at five minutes, 1 4-10 seconds, was the fastest of the six.

He was chosen all-Canadian for the two-mile position on the AAU 1953 all-Canadian track team.

Hamilton Rink Wins Toronto Bonspiel

TORONTO (CP) — Charley Cassels' Hamilton Thistles rink scored two one-sided triumphs Wednesday to capture the Chisholm Trophy in the sixth annual Toronto Curling Club bonspiel.

Cassels drubbed Gord Campbell's Toronto Granite Rink 13-4 in the final after blanking the rink skipped by Dr. G. L. Hardy of Hamilton Victorias 15-0 in the semi-final.

Campbell reached the final by downing the Dr. J. R. Clark rink from Peterborough 12-8 in the semi-final. The Peterborough rink came back to whip the F. A. Smith foursome from the Toronto Curling Club 8-3 and won the third event. Andy Grant of Toronto Royal Canadians trimmed the Toronto Curling Club rink skipped by N. McNichol 8-7 for consolation honors.

Rosewall Beats Seixas To Save Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP)—Ken Rosewall, 19-year-old pint-sized rifleman, saved the coveted Davis Cup for Australia today by mowing down the depressed Wimbledon champion, Vic Seixas, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4 in the climactic fifth match of the challenge round with the United States.

Nervous as a kitten at first but inhaling confidence as the American fell into the simplest errors, the dark-haired Sydney youngster swept past his opponent in 93 minutes to give the Aussies a 3-2 victory and their 11th triumph since the series started in 1900.

This was the fourth straight year the Australians have beaten off the U.S. in the challenge round. The Aussie victory squares the post-war competition at four each. The Americans won from 1946 through 1949.

Although neither Rosewall nor Seixas played above-average tennis in the technical sense of the word, it was a good match from a competitive standpoint and for the crowd of 17,500 that filled every seat in Kooyong Stadium.

Right down to the final point there was doubt about the winner. In the 10th game of the final set Seixas whipped into a 40-15 lead on Rosewall's service and seemed about to break Ken's delivery for the second time in a row.

WENT DOWN FIGHTING

But the Australian had the weapons to run it out, although Seixas fought off three match points. Vic went down fighting, but simply hadn't the ground strokes to win.

Spectators gave Rosewall a standing cheer and showered the centre court with seat cushions. Officials appealed for order but the fans in the huge oval burst into a wild frenzy and ignored the appeals.

Rosewall deserved everything. The youngster came back from a severe case of Davis Cup jitters which forced captain Harry Hopman to bench him in the doubles. He lost his first singles match to Tony Trabert and was so unimpressive that he was replaced by Rex Hartwig for the doubles, which the U.S. won.

Ken had one big psychological advantage, and that was that he had beaten Seixas in all their previous half-dozen meetings.

READY TO FIGHT OFF

With Rosewall and his fellow 19-year-old, Lewis Hoad, ready to fight off the challenge for years to come, the Aussies are betting it will be a long time before they relinquish the trophy.

This marked the third time in the history of cup competition that a team was able to come back from a 1-2 deficit to win—and on all three occasions the victim was the U.S. The first time was 1928 when France turned the trick. The second time was in 1939 when Adrian Quist and John Bromwich pulled through for Australia.

HE TIED IT UP—Few thought he could master America's powerful Tony Trabert but Australia's Lewis Hoad astounded the experts by winning a five-set singles battle to keep the Aussies in the running. His triumph brought his match score against Trabert to a 4-2 count. Then Rosewall whipped Seixas to win the cup for Australia.

Win 3 Championships In Basketball Tourney

KITHENER (CP) — Toronto, London and Kitchener teams won the three championships at stake in the 10th annual Silverball Basketball Tournament which ended here Wednesday night.

More than 30 teams competed in three divisions of play in the two-day tournament. Toronto Marvel Jewelers won the senior series, whipping London Home Dairy 30-24 in the final.

Marvels had their closest call in the semi-final when they won 28-26 over the Kitchener-Waterloo Sultans as Jerry Edelist sank two foul shots with five seconds left to break the tie.

The Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate Scarlet Raiders ran wild in the first half of the intermediate final with Hamilton Westdale, piled up a 30-7 lead and coasted home a 45-26 winner.

London Adam Beck Collegiate won the junior crown, defeating Brampton High School 35-16.

Duquesne Dukes Win

NEW YORK (CP)—The towering Duquesne Dukes from Pittsburgh edged Niagara University 66-61 in the Madison Square Garden holiday basketball festival Wednesday night to win the tournament title.

Lindsay Rink Captures School 'Spiel

J. Laidley, son of Dr. and Mrs. Laidley, Lindsay (two veteran curlers in their own right) skipped his rink to win the divisional high school playoff here yesterday in the annual competition for the Empire Life Trophy. They now go to Toronto High Park Curling Club to compete with seven other divisional winners—and should they be successful there, they will represent Ontario in the Dominion schoolboys' curling championship contest.

Eight rinks were entered from clubs in this district and the competition was a straight knockout affair.

STARTED CLOSE

The final game between Laidley and Hancock started out as if it was going to be very close; but when the Lindsay boys scored four ends in a row to make the score read 7-2 in their favor, it then looked as if Lindsay's more experienced knowledge of the game began to bear fruit. They coasted home from there in.

Local school boys have only been curling a couple of years, and they were organized into a club last season; and great credit is due B. W. Switzer, who has done a fine job with these youngsters. It's no longer an old man's game.

Many spectators were on hand to see the boys curl.

Ira Moore was busy all day — he attended to the draw in his usual capable manner. All rinks played the usual 10 ends.

Disallow Touchdown Legal In Canadian Football

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The disallowed touchdown play in the United States National Football League final at Detroit last Sunday is legal in the Canadian game. Furthermore, the play isn't new—it was pulled many times last season in eastern and western Canada.

A confusing situation existed when Detroit Lions' quarter Bobby Layne, operating from the T-formation, handed off to Doak Walker who ran wide and passed back to Layne who went over for a touchdown from deep in Cleveland Browns' territory. Officials said yes, then no, ruling Layne out as an ineligible receiver.

U.S. rules say that in order for a backfield player to be eligible to catch a pass, he must be a yard behind the line of scrimmage when the ball is snapped. Since Layne, a T-formation quarter, was not a yard behind the line of scrimmage, he was ineligible to catch the pass.

What is the situation in Canada?

The Canadian Press polled Canadian Rugby Union rules committee members Wednesday and they said the play was legal this side of the border. Here's the consensus:

PLAY LEGAL

Bert Warwick of Winnipeg: "A T-formation quarterback is definitely a backfielder and therefore eligible to receive a forward pass." He added that many persons, even coaches, confuse "the line of scrimmage" and the "scrimmage line." The first refers to the "most forward point of the ball" and the rules say the backfield must be at least one yard back of the "line of scrimmage," thus the T-quarter is probably two yards back.

Dave McCann of Ottawa, chairman of the rules committee: "There is nothing in the rules to prevent a quarter as such from being a receiver. . . We've always assumed that the quarter is a yard back of scrimmage, anyway."

George Hartwell of London: "CRU rules consider quarters as backfielders and any backfielder may legally take a forward."

Billy Foulds, Toronto: "The play is tricky to apply to a T-formation quarter, but it is legal."

Hec Creighton, Toronto: "Our rules cover the play thoroughly. It would be a touchdown in Canada."

K. H. Platt of Montreal: "The quarter in the T-formation is eligible to receive a forward. Although the rule book refers to players clearly one yard back, this is aimed at those who might be out on ends, but the quarter is always considered as a backfielder. He can fade back and throw a lateral, then cross the line or not and take a pass from the man who received the lateral."

Zatopek Declines U.S. Invitation

NEW YORK (AP)—Emil Zatopek Czechoslovakia's triple Olympic champion, has declined an invitation to run in indoor track meets in the United States this winter.

After learning that Zatopek, winner of the Olympic 5,000-, 10,000-metre and marathon titles at the Helsinki games, would compete in the New Year's Eve street race at Sao Paulo, Brazil, the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union asked him to return via the United States and to run here.

A reply was received Wednesday from the organization governing track and field athletics in Czechoslovakia, which said:

"Thanks but regret invitation not acceptable. Zatopek not competing on indoor tracks."

Braves Lead Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Valleyfield Braves are still in first place, two points ahead of Ottawa Senators, after a full slate of games Wednesday in the Quebec Hockey League.

The Braves downed Montreal Royals 4-1 while Ottawa whipped last-place Springfield Indians 2-0. Quebec Aces outscored Chicoutimi Sagueneens 4-2.

Two goals by Gordie Haworth turned the trick for the Braves. Larry Kwong and Andre Corriveau also scored for the victors. Lorne Davis' tally saved Montreal from a shutout.

In Ottawa, Bill Johnson and Gerry Foley were the Senator marksmen.

At Quebec, veteran Ray Powell's "hat trick" paced the sixth-place Aces to their victory over Chicoutimi. Roy Kelly of Quebec and Normie Dussault of Chicoutimi picked up singletons.

University Paper Awarded Two Trophies

TORONTO (CP) — Le Carabin, newspaper of Quebec's Laval University, Wednesday was presented with two of four trophies awarded by The Canadian University Press for campus publications.

Le Carabin won the Le Droit trophy for general excellence among French-language papers and the Bracken Trophy for the best editorials among Canadian college newspapers.

The Southam Trophy for general excellence in papers with a circulation of more than 3,000 was won by the University of Western Ontario Gazette. The Sheaf, University of Saskatchewan, won the Jacques Bureau Trophy for general excellence in papers with less than 3,000 circulation.

Guest speaker Greg Clark, Toronto writer, told the student editors that to become a good journalist they should avoid the company of other newspaper men and associate with "dogs, hobos and clergymen."

ELECT QUEBEC PAPER

For the first time in its 16-year history, C. U. P. elected a French-language paper as its national executive.

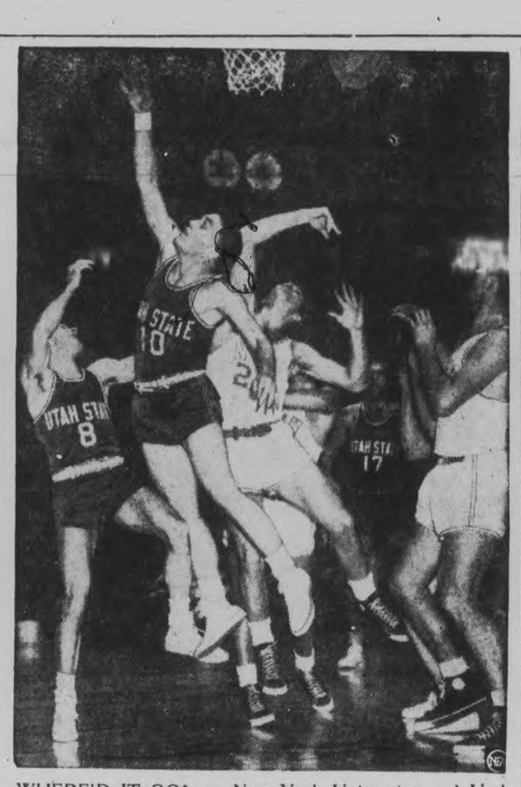
Le Quartier Latin of the University of Montreal defeated the Brunswickan, University of New Brunswick. The Montreal paper succeeds the University of Western Ontario Gazette.

The editors also agreed to hold the 1954 conference in Ottawa with The Carleton of Carleton College, La Rotonde and The Fulcrum of the University of Ottawa asco-operative hosts.

The conference elected Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times, to succeed A. W. J. Buckland, editor-in-chief of the Toronto Telegram, as honorary president.

It was decided to investigate the possibility of sending Canadian representatives to Russia with the next group of American student editors who go on an exchange plan.

GAZETTE INELIGIBLE



Earlier, The Gazette was declared ineligible for future competition for the Southam Trophy. The Gazette won the award in three out of the last four competitions.

Weekly papers were eliminated from Southam Trophy competition in a resolution setting new standards.

Only those college papers which print three times a week or more now are eligible. The Gazette qualified under the previous rules which set circulation of 3,000 or more as the basis for entry into the competition.

HISTORIC EDIFICES

The guildhall and chapel at Shakespeare's birthplace, Stratford on Avon, were founded in 1269.

WHERE'D IT GO? — New York University and Utah State players thrash in all directions after a rebound at Madison Square Garden. All out for the visitors are Cordell Brown, 8, and Bob Harbetson, 10, while looking on in the background is Bill Hull, 17. NYU athletes are Ted Elsberg, centre, and Dom DeBonis, right. The Violet won, 86-67.

Dressing Station Used As Hospital

OTTAWA (CP)—A simple Canadian Army field dressing station in Korea has become an elaborate modern general hospital in all but name.

The 25th brigade's 25 Field Dressing Station (FDS) is located at Tokchon, about 20 miles behind the demilitarized zone separating UN soldiers from the Communists. It is still known as 25 FDS but an army headquarters announcement Wednesday said it has been placed under one roof and is completely self-contained.

The hospital's facilities include five wards, a large dispensary, an x-ray department, optometry, physiotherapy and psychiatric departments, and three operating rooms for plastic, general and emergency surgery.

Night Club Beauty Disfigured With Acid

GOLFE JUAN, France (AP)—A pretty young night club singer, whose beauty won her the patronage of the wealthy Aga Khan, is in hospital today after an unidentified person threw acid in her face.

Yvonne Blanc, 22, was attacked Wednesday night in a dark street near her home as she arrived from nearby Cannes on her motor scooter. The girl, one of the favorite models of painter Pablo Picasso, will be disfigured, hospital attendants said.

Police believe the acid was thrown by a jealous woman.

HUGE CATCH

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (CP)—It took Peter Forman and his crew of nine almost 15 hours to haul in perhaps the biggest individual catch recorded for a British herring fishboat—420,000 herrings.

Bisons Lengthen Hockey Lead By Four Points

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons defeated their nearest rivals Wednesday and lengthened their American Hockey League lead to four points.

The Bisons didn't have much trouble disposing of Cleveland Barons 5-3 while, in the other league game, Syracuse Warriors edged Pittsburgh 2-1.

At Buffalo, Bison Steve Woohy paced Buffalo with a pair of tallies. Gord Pennell, Gaye Steart and Harry Taylor were the other Buffalo goal-getters. Fred Glover, Cal Stearns and Ray Ceresino scored for Barons.

Playing at home, Pittsburgh squeezed in their lone tally early in the third period as they went down to defeat. George Ford scored the two Syracuse goals, Andy Barbe tallying for the losers.

Norwood Fills Council Seats

NORWOOD (ENS)—All municipal offices in Norwood have been filled by acclamation.

Though four were originally nominated for reeve and 10 for council, the nominees decided not to cause an election.

Here is the 1954 slate:

Reeve — John Nixon, village merchant who has been a councillor for nine years, succeeding Rork Ferguson, reeve for the last 12 years.

Four councillors—Rod Webb, Gordon Parker and Ivan Begg, all 1953 councillors, and Kenneth Kavanaugh, a newcomer.

School board—Irwin Warner, Lionel Edmunds, David McNeil and Joseph Clements.

Public Utilities Commission—S. E. Flett and Kennie Edmunds.

Dispute Settled

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A union-management agreement one hour before a strike deadline Wednesday night averted a walkout by 7,000 workers of the big American-owned Chuquicamata and Potrerillos Cooper Mines. Informants said the settlement calls for a pay increase of about 35 per cent. The miners staged a 50-day strike last autumn but went back to work Nov. 30 to comply with a 30-day cooling-off period.

Early In Year Market Splurge Failed To Repeat Itself

By BOB JOHNSTONE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Spectacular and dull, hopeful and discouraging, describe the fluctuating action of Canadian stock exchanges in 1953.

Spectacular refers to the high jinks of the early year when discovery of base metal and uranium bodies in New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Ontario sent thousands of persons on a two-month chase after easy money.

In February, Toronto stock exchange's normal daily turnover of 2,500,000 shares, jumped to above 12,000,000; high-speed ticker tape ran five minutes behind the market; and brokerage houses doubled their staffs to handle the flood of orders.

PENNIES SOAR

Penny issues jumped into the dollar class and various speculative stocks added $2, $3 and even $4, in a single session. Some of the amateur traders won, some lost. Some still aren't sure what happened as they hang onto their holdings.

Outside of those early months, market followers spent their time hoping for something to start the market off on a new splurge, and for the most part were disappointed.

Industrial stocks, however, after sinking tendencies for most of the year, did pick up faith in the state of the economy and in October started a slow climb which was continuing to the year-end, with occasional dips.

Papers were a strong feature and, after early-year weakness, climbed steadily until early December, with only one slight falling off since. Textiles halted a long decline with announcement of legislation to plug loopholes in anti-dumping regulations.

While on the whole the industrial picture might be considered satisfactory, base metals, western oils and golds took a beating.

CHILE'S COPPER

Stock piles of base metals in various countries kept most metal prices lower. Only late in the last quarter did the United States reach an agreement with Chile about the disposition of that country's copper reserves—estimated at more than 100,000 tons—and some investors remained fearful that the general market would be depressed by this volume, although the agreement aims at restricting its flow onto the market.

Western oils were strong at the beginning of the year, but fell off with delay in plans for the delivery of western natural gas to the east.

Golds were at their lowest level in 11 years as northern Ontario mines were gripped by prolonged strikes, and the price of gold declined on world free markets.

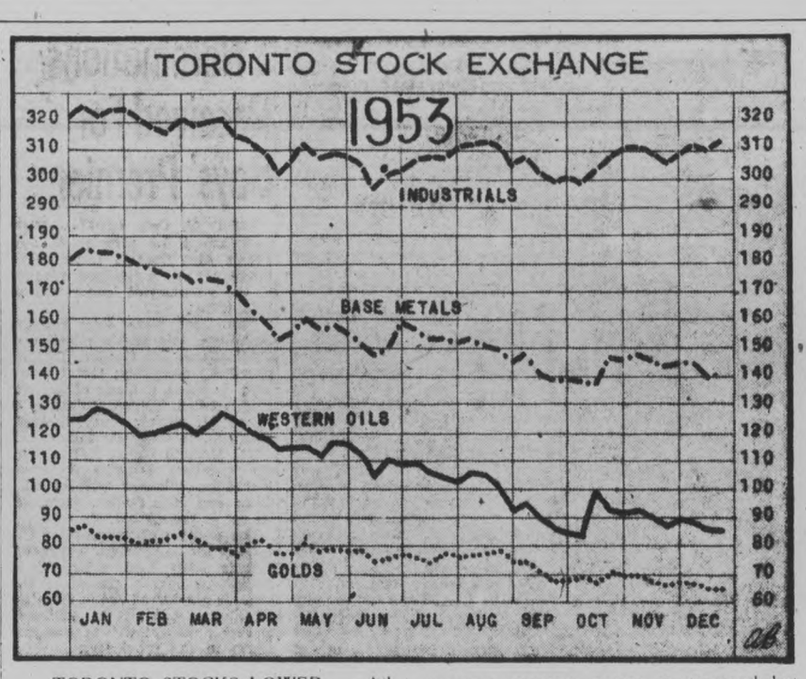
→

In Toronto industrials started the year in the exchange's index at 323.03 and ended around 311; base metals at 184.02, ending around 138; western oils at 124.42, ending around 83; golds at 85.21, ending around 67.

In the Montreal averages, banks started the year at 32.32 and ended around 36; utilities at 91.5, ending around 93; industrials at 208.6, ending around 184; corporations at 169.5, ending around 153; papers at 710.23, ending around 768; golds at 64.03, ending around 49.

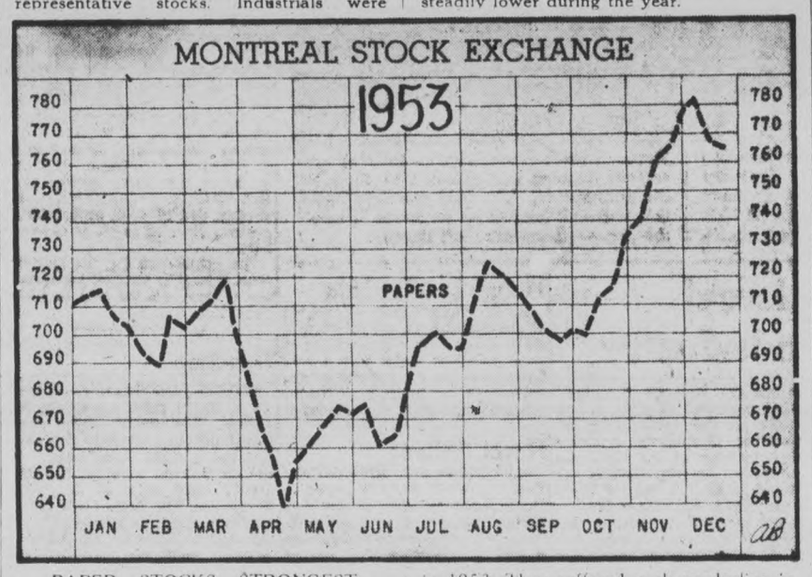
Writer Named Chief News Service

OTTAWA (CP) — Warren Baldwin, 53, veteran writer on political and national affairs, has been appointed chief of the Ottawa bureau of the Southam news services, it was announced Wednesday by R. W. Southam, publisher of the Ottawa citizen.



Mr. Baldwin succeeds John Bird, who has resigned and has become Ottawa correspondent of Reuters news agency.

Mr. Baldwin, a native of Toronto, has worked with several Canadian publications and has done considerable radio broadcasting. He started with the old Toronto Mail and Empire in 1925 and stayed with that daily until 1937.



After writing for the Financial Post and Toronto Saturday Night, he became during the war chief English press censor here for the government. After that, he worked with the Toronto Globe and Mail and Financial Post until a year ago, when he became an Ottawa correspondent of the Southam services.

Find Xmas Trees Dear

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Two Niagara Falls men paid $236 for a Christmas tree Wednesday. Police said Mike Burlak and Karol Kazimery cut the tree, a balsam valued at $25, on Niagara Parks Commission property at Queenston Heights. Each was fined $118.

TORONTO STOCKS LOWER — All groups were down on the year in Toronto Stock Exchange indices as compiled from representative stocks. Industrials were showing recovery power at year-end but other groups still had not shaken off the depressing influences that carried them steadily lower during the year.

PAPER STOCKS STRONGEST — Paper stocks were the strongest performers in trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange in 1953. They suffered a sharp decline in March-April but then started a climb which continued with only relatively minor interruptions.

Sellers In 1954 To Face Increased Competition

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

All in all, the Canadian business scene for the coming year looks good.

There will be problems, but as 1953 closes in a flood of record figures, it is difficult to construct any serious set-back out of the next 12 months.

We may even envisage factors which could, in the not-distant future, if not in the coming year, set up a stable prosperity.

True, forecasters sometimes have nightmares in which all the dynamic supports of our post-war prosperity suddenly go limp. Shadows of such fears lurked in early fall statements especially, but have tended to fade at year-end.

NEW OPPORTUNITIES

Late-year forecasts, however, do emphasize that sellers will face increased competition at home and abroad; but they also emphasize that new opportunities exist, possibly greater than ever, if we face up to new situations.

Producers ponder over the vagaries of human nature and worry a bit whether or not people will continue to buy, or will have the means to buy, as they have been doing in recent years.

As far as can be foreseen incomes will remain high. This, together with the fact that there is a big accumulation of savings, and that people have become used to having more things than ever before, and still have many wants unsatisfied, should keep the cash registers ringing.

Prosperity in 1953 was not shared by all. The textile industry, faced with competition from the United States and the United Kingdom, has been in the doldrums and some other consumer goods have tended to pile up.

DIFFICULT SPOTS

Accordingly, the coming year, though probably good in an overall sense, may see difficult spots and changes in employment opportunities.

In the last few years we have seen the economy stimulated to successive new heights by such things as accumulated wartime savings and pent-up demand resulting from wartime shortages; by the Marshall Plan which sustained international trade when it threatened to collapse; by the Korean war and defence programs; and, in Canada particularly, by increased population and extraordinary resources development.

We may wonder whether some new stimulus is needed to keep things at their present level and, if so, from whence it will come; or whether we may proceed under the steam already generated.

Offhand, for political considerations alone, the state of the world would seem to forbid the Western world from allowing itself to slide into any grave economic collapse.

Further, even if dramatic stimuli are not forthcoming, this doesn't necessarily mean that a high level of prosperity can not be maintained.

BANKER'S VIEWS

James Stewart, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, expressed this idea at the bank's annual meeting Dec. 8 when he said.

"The prolonged period of rising prices associated with full employment and steadily increasing real purchasing power has, unfortunately, created the impression that the three factors are one and indivisible and that the reversal of the trend of one necessarily implies a similar movement of the others.

"A moderate decline in prices need not be viewed in this light. We have in the past had periods of prosperity in an era of stable or slightly declining prices.

"When a cheapening of commodity prices follows a high rate of capital investment and a marked rise in productivity it may rightly be regarded as heralding an era, not of restricted employment, but of continuing or increased prosperity in terms not only of dollars, which may be illusory, but of goods which are tangible."

Some observers see a dramatic and continuing stimulus in being. They see it in the demand for goods which may be created through the revolt of under-privileged peoples of the world against their age-old poverty, if the revolt can be constructively guided.

DEMAND MAY INCREASE

Referring to this potential demand, J. A. Calder, first vice-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said in an address at Hamilton, Dec. 10:

"The demand for the basic staples of Canada will continue to rise if forward-looking policies, designed to spread to other nations a standard of living equal to our own, prevail.

"Canada is contributing to a Commonwealth plan, known as the Colombo Plan, which is an attempt to raise the living standards of millions of people in South and Southeast Asia; an attempt to break the back of famine, hunger, poverty and disease. . . In assisting the Asians we are helping ourselves."

Canada looks forward to a population of 25,000,000 by about 1980. If this forecast comes true, she will be pretty busy building the facilities to take care of the needs of more people. And, the condition of the world being what it is, it is difficult to foresee any drastic falling off in demand for her basic products of farm, mine and forest.

As an optimistic note with which to close the year, word comes from the Canadian Construction Association that, for its annual meeting in Vancouver Jan. 24-27, it has asked four speakers to say in what locations and for what facilities they would spend $1,000,000,000 to improve transportation facilities.

East Germany And 4-Power Conference

By RICHARD LOWENTHAL

BERLIN (OFNS) — The group of Communist leaders at present in control of Eastern Germany with acting Premier Herr Walter Ulbricht at the head (the Premier Herr Otto Grottewohl is in Moscow), is clearly counting on the failure of the four-power conference on Germany due to open in Berlin next month. Its press propaganda campaign is even now preparing for the moment when responsibility for failure will be pinned to the West. The Communists will have twin excuses, that the West refuses to give up the project of arming German soldiers within the European army or the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and that it refuses to guarantee the Oder-Neisse frontier between Germany and Poland. Both refusals are to be presented as proof of the Western intention of preparing a German war of revenge.

NOT LAST MOVE

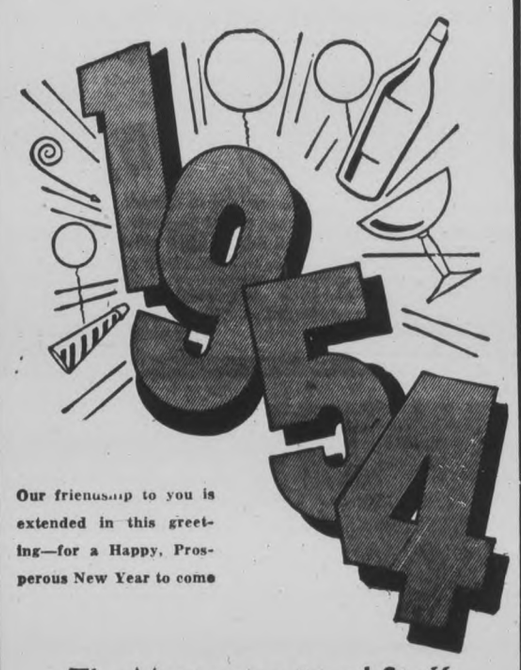
Until the Prime Minister and the Soviet High Commissioner, Mr. Vladimir Semeonov, have returned from Moscow, propaganda emanating in their absence from the Ulbricht group cannot be taken as final indication of what Moscow's tactics will be at the conference. But the Ulbricht group is clearly linked with the more intransigent representatives of the Stalin tradition in the Kremlin; and in view of the progress recently made by this group as shown in the most recent changes in Communist Party appointments; in the style of the indictment of Lavrenti Beria, former Russian Internal Affairs Minister, for treason; and in the resumption of trials of "Zionists" in several satellite countries; the policy of its German exponents must be taken seriously.

Ulbricht's speech to the East Berlin "People's Chamber" last week was more adroitly formulated than his previous efforts. He no longer harped back explicitly to the 1945 Potsdam agreement, the memory of which is detested throughout Germany, but merely recalled that the four occupying powers agreed, "at their previous Berlin conference in 1945," on measures to prevent a revival of German militarism. He did not ask for the "neutralization" of a united Germany—for the West German Chancellor, Dr. Konrad Adenauer, has succeeded in making Germans believe that this means unarmed neutrality in which they would be defenceless at the mercy of Russia—but merely spoke of an "independent Germany" whose armed forces would be fixed in the peace treaty and whose frontiers would be guaranteed by the signatory powers.

He hinted that Russia would at the conference attack the European army project as preparation for an army of revenge, and would try to prove its case by demanding Western guarantees of the Oder-Neisse frontiers before agreeing to any steps towards unification.

The official Western position is that frontiers are a part of the peace treaty, and that a peace treaty can be concluded only with a freely - elected all-German government. But it would be difficult for the West to refuse even discussion of the frontier questions at this stage, ater having recognized the existence of a legitimate need for security. Recent Communist propaganda moves, like the invitation of nine French parliamentarians who toured Poland's six German provinces, have reinforced the pressure, and Polish and Czech representatives in East Berlin are confident that Russia will support their wish to send observers to the conference for that reason.

CHARGE SABOTAGE



At the same time, the controlled East German press is full of articles accusing Adenauer and the United States of deliberatly sabotaging the conference in advance by their insistence on going ahead with the European Defence Community plans, while Eastern whispering propaganda even spreads rumors that the Americans are preparing, through their "agents," another rising in the Soviet Zone—this time in the country side—in order to make it impossible to hold a conference in Berlin.

Another whispered slogan here in Berlin is that the border between the Western and Eastern sectors of the city would be hermetically closed if the conference broke down through Western "sabotage," and that the Communist organizations in West Berlin have already received the funds, the instructions and the leadership to enable them to carry on in isolation. It is rumored that among the higher ranks of party and government officials, those who are well informed about "the line" count firmly on a failure; while many of the smaller fry are still afraid of a bargain on German unity which might cost them their jobs.

Israel Turns To The Land Families Move To Farms

By FRANCIS OFNER

TEL-AVIV (OFNS) — The change in Jewery's social structure—a change which will make a nation of farmers and workers from a community of business men — is being carried out as part of Israel's efforts to build a healthy population.

There are now nearly as many farmers in the country as there are merchants — both categories have about a sixth of the total number of gainfully-employed citizens. In the last year, public bodies — the trade unions, the United Israel Campaign and the Jewisn Agency — have moved four thousand families from Israel's towns and cities to the land within the framework of the "town to country" movement. Moreover the Israel Army, through the Nahal Agricultural Corps, has founded about a dozen new farming settlements in border regions which, in the initial stage, do not attract civilian farmers.

Many Israelis believe Jewry's abnormal social set-up has been one of the causes of the world-wide "Jewish problem." This set-up is likened here to a pyramid whose broadest layer consists of middlemen and intellectuals, while persons engaged in physical labour form only a tiny top segment of the pyramid. Israel is now striving to end this state of affairs.

Two types of settler make up the "town to country" movement; those who are prompted by the idealism of a return to the soil, and the unemployed who have no other choice. A survey made by the United Israel campaign shows that pioneers in the first category made up more than half of the first two thousand familes registered for settlement.

DEVELOPED BY SOLDIERS

The villages founded by the Army are being developed by soldiers doing their two-and-a-half years' national service. The employment of each serviceman in agricultural work for one year is prescribed in Israel's National Service Law. The aim of the Army farmers is twofold: to prepare new settlements for transfer to civilian farmers, and to attract more soldiers to agricultural work after demobilisation. Certain of these settlements have already been handed over to civilians, some of them farmer members of the Nahal Corps.

All these efforts form part of a general scheme aimed at doubling Israel's farming population to more than eighty thousand families, possibly in the course of the next seven years. While the planners of this ambitious project are confident that idealists will continue to form a substantial proportion of the new farmers, they expect unemployed persons to help greatly in the early phases of the drive. The Minister of Labour, Mr. Golda Meyerson, recently told the Knesset (Parliament) that no solution of Israel's serious unemployment problem was possible "unless able-bodied young men settle on the land." To encourage this trend, the Government and national institutions are providing new settlers with housing and farm equipment.

BUILDING BEHIND

Despite the facilities granted, the pace of Israel's return to the land is not yet entirely satisfactory. Farm building is sometimes behind schedule; the liquidation of personal business generally takes longer than originally envisaged; and not infrequently wives have last-minute doubts.

The move to the soil is one of the pillers of Israel's Seven-Year Development Plan, which aims at making the country almost self-sufficient in food by 1960. Two hundred agricultural settlements are to be established under this plan. No big expansion of the total area of land under cultivation is envisaged, but the State's irrigated territory is expected to be trebled, thus assuring that the soil already being tilled is better exploited. Although this will not mean a return to the opulence of biblical days when every man dwelt safely "under his vine and under his fig tree, from Dan to Beersheba" the Israelis hope it will help them build a sounder future for their country.

Reparations For Israel Helping German Industry

By SUSAN STRANGE

LONDON (OFNS) — One-third of Israel's current imports are now being paid for by Germany under the German reparations agreement, according to Dr. F. E. Shinnar, head of the Israel Purchasing Mission in Cologne.

Speaking to the Anglo-Israel Chamber of Commerce in London recently, Dr. Shinnar described how the agreement, which has now been in force for nine months, is helping Israel tackle its chronic balance of payments problem, and at the same time, through counterpart funds, to finance its long-term economic development; and how it is also providing German industry with an assured market in a wide range of goods.

The agreement is a recompense by Germany for the cost to Israel of integrating Jewish refugees uprooted and destitute as a result of Nazi persecution. It provides that Germany shall pay Israel the equivalent, in goods, of £290 million sterling over a period of thirteen and a half years. Some £82 million will have been paid by the end of next March.

Most of the funds provided must be spent in Germany, or on purchases from other countries approved by the German Government. Hence the need for an Israel Purchasing Mission in Cologne. The one big exception to the general rule is the purchase of oil from British oil companies. This is of indirect benefit to British exporters, since by spending Deutschmarks provided by Germany on vital oil imports, Israel can afford to spend more on other sterling imports, especially capital goods, under its development program.

FINANCING HILLEL DAN

Thanks to the reparations agreement, the Israeli Government is able to put aside large counterpart funds in its own currency equivalent to the value of the goods received under the agreement. These funds are financing the Hillel Dan Scheme, which in the next five or six years will, it is hoped, almost treble Israel's electric generating capacity; will double the quantity of water available for irrigation and increase the area under irrigation to three times its present size; will substantially help to develop the country's railway and communications system; and will provide new harbour facilities. The Germans are increasing the value of the agreement to Israel as a means of financing this development by allowing credit on the purchase of capital goods from Germany, so that Israel is not limited to the sums actually transferred in any given year under the agreement.

Dr. Shinnar expressed Israel's satisfaction, with the opportunities offered by German industry. Prices, he said, compared favorably with world market prices, and quality and delivery were both satisfactory. He thought this was mainly because a buyers' market prevailed at present, and because of the remarkable recovery of Germany's economy and especially of its industrial productive capacity—which in October reached a record level, 170 per cent above that of 1936.

Israel would, however, be interested in buying more from Britain—if the foreign exchange problem could be overcome. Dr. Shinnar suggested that it might now be worth Britain's while to consider, Israel as a "good risk," and to extend credit facilities within a reasonable limit to cover additional imports from the United Kingdom.

"I have no doubt," he said, "that German industry is expecting to achieve a foothold in a new market; I have no doubt either that this will be the objective result of the considerable imports within the period of the agreement."

He urged that other countries, especially Britain, should participate more actively in Israel's economic development as an ever-growing export market.

Barbara Hutton Marries Clings To Store Millions

NEW YORK (AP)—Heiress Barbara Hutton and international playboy Porfirio Rubirosa have exchanged marriage vows, but the bride apparently intends to retain firm possession of her five-and-10-cent-store millions.

Miss Hutton and the Dominican Republic diplomat were wed Wednesday in a 10-minute civil ceremony, making it the fifth marriage for Miss Hutton and the fourth for Rubirosa.

The slim, pale, 41-year-old bride was all smiles as the wedding rites began, but toward the end she became visibly nervous. Rubirosa, 45, tall, handsome and composed, put a comforting arm around her.

SON IS ATTENDANT

The marriage was performed by Dr. Joaquin Salazar, Dominican consul-general, in his Park Avenue apartment. The bride, a black taffeta dress contrasting with her blonde hair, was attended by her 17-year-old son, Lance Reventlow, her only child.

Rubirosa previously was married to Flor Trujillo, daughter of the Dominican Republic's first family; French actress Danielle Darrieux; and Doris Duke, heiress to a tobacco fortune.

Miss Hutton formerly was married to the late Prince Alexis Mdiviani; Count Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow; actor Cary Grant, and Prince Igor Troubetzkoy.

Miss Hutton became a citizen of the Dominican Republic to go through the ceremony under Dominican law. A New York City official said, however, that without a New York licence such a marriage ceremony is open to legal question as far as state records are concerned.

KEEPS OWN MONEY

At a hectic press conference in her Hotel Pierre suite prior to the wedding, Miss Hutton answered, "certainly" to a query if her considerable fortune would remain in her own hands.

During the interview Miss Hutton appeared distraught at times. Once she remarked:

"Do you think anyone will give him credit for loving me because I'm myself?"

Rubirosa said Miss Hutton brought into his life "something grand."

Statements by actress Zsa Zsa Gabor that Rubirosa asked her to marry him within the last week brought this retor from Rubirosa: "Its a publicity stunt."

Asked to comment on Miss Gabor's assertions, Miss Hutton replied:

"I'm terribly sorry, I don't know her. I happen to be a lady."

Did she expect her fifth marriage to last?

"I wouldn't try if I didn't think so."

SCATTER RUG . . . SCATTER BRAIN?

If this little lady had listened to good advice about accident insurance, injuries sustained when a scatter rug slid from under her would not have gotten her in debt. YOU think about it, too!

2 Men Killed Truck Crashes

STRATHROY (CP)—Two men were killed and one badly injured when a late model pickup truck went out of control and crashed against a tree on Highway 22 four miles west of here early today.

Dead are Wesley Hollingsworth, 36, of RR 4, Watford, and Lyle Graham, 30, of Watford. In Strathroy hospital with chest injuries and possible fractured arm and hand is Kenneth Muxlow, 33, of Watford.

Provincial constable Bob White of Strathroy said Hollingsworth was instantly killed. Graham, the driver, died on admittance to hospital.

Constable White said the cab of the truck buckled like an accordion, trapping the three inside. A Strathroy wrecker wrenched the top from the cab before the injured men could be pulled out.

A Tillsonburg motorist discovered the crash about 3 a. m. and turned in the alarm from a farm house.

Fiji: "Little India Of The Pacific"

BY FRANK SIMPSON

SUVA, Fiji — (OFNS) — The problem of a non-indigenous Indian population which complicates an already-complicated racial question in South Africa and which is being felt in islands to the north of Australia is also manifesting itself far out into the Polynesian Pacific, where easy-going islanders have surrendered local trading to Chinese and Indian importees. Nowhere is the problem more acute than in the British colony of Fiji, one of the largest groups of islands. Originally brought in to the colony to work on the sugar plantations—they were deemed better workers than the native Fijians—Indians have now become a majority population.

In 1891 there were only seven thousand Indians to 105,000 Fijians. The number of Indians grew while that of the Fijians dropped. By 1911 there were forty thousand Indians in Fiji and eighty thousand Fijians. In keeping with a trend throughout the Pacific islands native population began to stage a comeback from the decline that set in soon after its contact with white people, and by 1934 there were 98,000 Fijians; but the Indians were nearly up to that figure with 83,000.

The trend has continued since then: a rise in both the Fijian and the Indian population, but a much faster rise among the Indians. In 1946 the Indian total had passed the Fijian—120,000 compared with 118,000. The latest figures estimate 150,000 Indians and 125,000 Fijians. If things continue at this rate—and there is nothing to suggest otherwise — the Indians will soon be in an overwhelming majority—a majority not only of Indians over Fijians, but of Indians over Fijians and all other races combined.

Indian predominance is not confined to numbers. The shackles of Coolie labor status have been largely thrown off, and Indians are now a vital element in the economy of Fiji—particularly in the capital, Suva. Indians dominate the transport industry, small manufacturing concerns and many forms of retail business, and they are entering the professions in increasing numbers.

The native Fijians lack Indian energy and initiative, and are prepared to leave it to Asiatics to run the small village stores, drive taxis, operate freight trucks and passenger busses and tender for public and private roads and other constructional works. In the sugar cane fields and the ricefields, it is the Indian peasant farmer who works hardest and longest.

The Fijian, however, has a trump card: the British administration has assured him that his land will not be alienated and he looks on this as a sacred promise. Eighty-four per cent. of the land of the islands is held for Fijians; The Crown has four per cent.; and so only twelve per cent. is left for the non-Fijians who make up the bulk of the population.

This puts the British authorities in an awkward position. No one doubts there is considerable scope for expansion in land development among the Fiji islands. On the other hand, no one doubts that it will be a long time before this development takes place if it is left to the Fijians themselves, no matter how greatly they may be helped by British capital, advice and expert assistance. Yet to release more land for Indians to develop would seem, in some quarters, a breach of promise to the Fijians.

For their part, the Indians are clamoring for more and more land. The city of Suva—it was recently elevated from a town to a city—has become one of the most congested ports of the Pacific island region. Indian families are living in crowded streets, and there is a sense of frustration among the Indians that, one feels, may become much worse at any time if their demands for more land are not satisfied.

SYMPATHY FOR FIJIANS

European sympathy seems mainly with the Fijians. I could find no European, in business or in the colonial service, who have a contrary view. In some European quarters anti-Indian feeling runs fever-high, and at least one prominent citizen has said in public that the only solution to Fiji's problem is to deport all the Indians. Equally impassioned Indians suggest that the Fijians should be shipped to another island in the group, leaving the Indians to develop Suva and its island.

No-one has assessed the Indian position to the satisfaction of all. There is the view that an era of expansion in the southern hemisphere is opening up for Mother India, and that Fiji is a vital spearhead in that campaign; already Fiji is commonly referred to as the "Little India of the Pacific." There is the contrary view, that Indians of the present generation, born in Fiji, have lost their traditional ties with India, that their ancestors were glad to leave in favor of the better conditions in the Pacific, and that they are solely concerned with Fiji for Fiji's own sake.

There is also the view that Indian Communists are behind much of the present racial tension. If this is correct, it would not be surprising to find a crisis arising in Fiji similar to that which has recently arisen in British Guiana. There is an economic parallel with British Guiana: for Fiji, like British Guiana, has tended to base its economy on one product—sugar—and only recently have other industries, such as gold mining, assumed much importance. That there is violent anti-British, pro-Communist agitation in Fiji no-one can or would deny; but there is little agreement on whether the Communists constitute any potentially serious menace to the colony.

Now that the Indians have superiority in numbers, they are bringing more and more pressure to bear to increase their representation in the local government of the capital and the central government of the colony.

The problem deeply concerns the British dominions of Australia and New Zealand, for the security of Fiji is intimately bound up with the security of these two countries, as well as with the wider field of British and United States interests in the Pacific.

Claims Statue Bleeds 3 Times

ENTREVAUX, France (AP) — Hotel owner Jean Salvade claimed today that the "miracle" statue of St. Anne, mother of the Virgin, bled for the third time early this morning.

He called in the town baker, the baker's wife and the baker's scrub girl to witness.

Salvade said he recently broke a finger of the statue in a moment of ill humor after losing at cards and the next day found what appeared to be blood dripping from the finger.

Three priests have taken samples of the liquid but church officials have not yet announced any stand.

The hotel man has said he bought the small figure, carved of wood and depicting the saint with a child reading a book at her feet, in an antique shop a month ago.

Turn Down Offer To Join CCL-CIO

TRAIL, B. C. (CP)—Members of the Trail local of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union (Ind.) have turned down an offer to rejoin the Canadian Congress of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The mine-mill union was ousted from the CCL and CIO in 1950 for alleged Communist leanings.

Al King, president of the Trail local, announced the decision Wednesday night. He said "we are not interested."

The announcement followed a bid from Charles Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), that the Trail local leave mine-mill and join his organization.

Civil Servants Get Wage Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The civil service commission today announced salary increases averaging about nine per cent for a further 1,600 civil servants in 88 different classifications.

The list was one of a number which have been announced recently covering increases for more than 100,000 civil servants. About 2,000 employees still are to be dealt with.

Summer Hazard

Cold New Year's Eve Expected In North U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—The northern Midwest states shivered again today in sub-zero cold, with some blowing snow.

It looked like a cold New Year's Eve—with another batch of cold air headed into the region for New Year's Day.

Coldest reading early today was 21 below zero in International Falls Minn., on the Canadian border. It was -13 at Duluth, Minn., and Grantsburg, Wis. Blowing snow, with winds up to 35 miles an hour, hit sections of Michigan.

Temperatures generally were above seasonal levels in most areas outside the north-central region. But in the United States weather bureau's extended forecast for January, temperatures are expected to average below seasonal normals over most of the country except for above normal over the northwest and in New England.

Party Victims

MILDENHALL, England (CP)—Two American airmen died and a third was taken seriously ill after drinking de-icing mixture taken from a plane at the United States air force base here, it was learned today. Mayor, Golfer Both Elected Canada's "Woman Of The Year"

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A mayor and a golfer have been selected jointly to represent Canada's "woman-of-the-year."

Mayor Charlotte Whitton, 57, of Ottawa and golfer Marlene Stewart, 19, of Fonthill, headed the 1953 list of outstanding women chosen in a Canadian Press poll by women's editors of Canadian daily newspapers. It is the third year in a row that Miss Whitton has been woman-of-the-year.

Others high in the voting include Dr. Hilda Neatby, professor of history at the University of Saskatchewan, and Lois Marshall, Toronto soprano.

CP asked women's editors to choose the year's outstanding women—on a basis of news interest—in sport; literature and art; stage, screen and radio; music; public affairs; and in addition to choose a woman-of-the-year.

DOUBLE SELECTIONS

Miss Whitton and Miss Stewart, besides tying for woman-of-the-year, topped their respective divisions of public affairs and sport.

Other class leaders: Literature and art, Dr. Neatby; music, Miss Marshall; stage, screen and radio, Gisele MacKenzie, Winnipeg-born singer.

Mayor Whitton, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council for 15 years, has had a distinguished career as a social worker but it wasn't until she was elected to civic office three years ago that she began to win newspaper headlines regularly. She has been given more space in Ottawa newspapers than any other six mayors.

She drew notice in the past year by garbing herself in ceremonial finery—a tricorne hat and a red silk robe with fur facings and cuffs, black satin and gold lace trim and a lace neckpiece—as Ottawa's representative at the Coronation. She also appeared before a private bills committee of the Ontario legislature and delivered a 90-minute scathing attack on land speculators and exploiters.

Miss Stewart's major achievement of the year was winning the British women's amateur golf tournament, only Canadian to do it in the 60-year history of the championship. In a year-end CP sports poll, she was acclaimed Canada's outstanding woman athlete in 1953. It is the third year in succession that she has topped this poll.

She also won the Canadian women's closed title at London, Ont., but failed in attempts to win the Canadian women's open and the United States amateur golf championship.

BOOK GIVES LEAD

Dr. Neatby led the literature and art class on the basis of her indictment of Canadian education in a challenging book, "So Little for the Mind." She maintains professive education has failed to meet the needs of our "brutal, dangerous, but stimulating age." Dr. Neatby, only woman member of the Massey royal commission on arts, letters and sciences, charges progressive education is anti-intellectual, anti-cultural and amoral.

Miss Marshall, who also topped the music section last year, added new laurels in 1953 by singing the solo soprano parts in Beethoven's Missa Solemnis conducted by Arturo Toscanini in New York's Carnegie Hall. Critics lauded her performance as a brilliant triumph.

She was also chosen by Leopold Stokowski for the one vocal selection when he conducted the first major concert of contemporary Canadian music in the United States Oct. 16 at Carnegie Hall.

Miss MacKenzie, who headed the stage, screen and radio class, had one of the best years in a career that started in 1941 when the French-Canadian violinist - turned singer came to Toronto as a scholarship violin student to the Royal Conservatory of Music.

Radio and records have made hers one of the best-known voices in the entertainment field. Not only has she recorded song hits and sung at some of the top supper clubs on the continent but she has become a U.S. television star as featured singer on "Your Hit Parade."

Owl Attacks Men

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A giant owl with a five-foot wingspread Tuesday night attacked two men on a nearby island, removing a piece of one man's ear and knocking the other to the ground before being subdued. The big bird swooped down on Toivo Erickson and Dick Cullen, bush-workers, as they made their way through the bush. Cullen finally grabbed the bird by the leg and killed it.

Gary Cooper Top Hollywood Star At Box Office

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gary Cooper was named today as the top box office movie star of 1953 in the annual Motion Picture Herald's exhibitors' poll, most accepted in the field.

Here are the rest of the top 10 money-makers of the screen in order: Martin and Lewis, John Wayne, Alan Ladd, Bing Crosby, Marilyn Monroe, James Stewart, Bob Hope, Susan Hayward and Randolph Scott.

The poll points up the fact that Hollywood has been lax in developing new stars. Miss Monroe, hailed as Hollywood's sexiest dish, is the only new name on the list, which is dominated by male stars of action films and musical comedy.

Cooper and the Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis team merely changed places from last year's poll, while Wayne remained in the same position. Cooper and Crosby have been in the top 10 14 times, and Hope is only one behind them.

Most of the others are film veterans.

The poll also indicates that it continues to be a man's world in the movies. Only two actresses placed in the top 10 the third year in a row it has happened.

The next 15 money-making stars in this order: Doris Day, Esther Williams, Margery Main, Percy Kilbride, Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Clark Gable, Burt Lancaster, Jeff Chandler, Jane Wyman, Abbott and Costello, Stewart Granger, Jane Russell, Charlton Heston, Humphrey Bogart and Rita Hayworth.

The separate selections of top western stars showed the dearth of horse operas for the program market. In former years the top 10 were chosen; this year only five were named: Roy Rogers, Gene Autry, Rex Allen, William Elliott and Allen (Rocky) Lane. Neither Rogers nor Autry, who have shared the one-two position for many years, is making theatrical films now. Both are active in TV.

Students Must Finish Teaching Courses

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A memorandum from the Ontario department of education said that student teachers will not be given permission to teach until they have completed their courses.

Dr. F. C. Cannon, deputy minister of education, said in a letter to all school boards in Ontario that grade 12 students taking a special two-year course will not be allowed to teach at the end of their first year. He said many school boards had enquired about hiring student teachers.

The two-year course for grade 12 students was announced a year ago to help fill the need for elementary school teachers in Ontario.

Visking Manager Bernard Schenk Goes To Chicago

LINDSAY (ENS). — It was announced in Lindsay Wednesday that Bernard H. Schenk, recently appointed president of Visking Ltd. of Canada, and manager of the international division of the Visking Corporation of Chicago, will leave the Lindsay office of the company to take up his new position at the Chicago headquarters of the corporation.

Mr. Schenk, who has been in charge of operations at the Lindsay plant since the company first established here in 1948, will be succeeded by Leslie E. Houck, who is assistant general manager of the clearing division of the Visking Corporation, and formerly general manager of the plastics division at Terre Haute, Ind.

The change in the organization in Lindsay will be effective on Monday, but it is expected that Mr. Houck may not arrive here until some time later in January.

CHARGED—Floren Di Paglia (above), a 30-year-old salesman, has been charged with trying to fix a basketball game between Drake University and Iowa State at Des Moines. Ben Bumbry of Drake told his coach that a man offered him $1,000 to "shave" points in Drake's game with Iowa. Di Paglia has entered a plea of not guilty.

No Lynching In U.S. During 1953

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP)—Tuskegee Institute Wednesday recorded 1953 as another lynch-free year in the United States, but said mob violence is no longer a "valid index" of race relations, and a new formula will be used in the future.

Lynching statistics will be preserved, said Tuskegee president L. H. Foster, but racial progress will be measured instead by economic, political, educational and other like standards.

The death rate from mob action has declined steadily through the years, but only once before, in 1952, did the U.S. get by without at least one lynch slaying.

Although no mob killings were recorded this year, the institute reported three "lynchings prevented." One was in Alabama, another in New York City, the third in Arizona.

England has an area of 50,000 square miles, compared to 30,000 for Scotland and 7,500 for Wales.

An Examiner reporter making routine calls on his downtown beat today was asked how he fared for news. "Very poorly," said he, "but I got hearty handshakes and Season's Greetings aplenty." Businessmen acquaintances, meeting in morning coffee shops, seemed to be doing little to produce the needed news for our reporter; they were too busy shaking hands with each other.

Dr. G. R. Langley Charges Commission Trying To Cover Up $10,000 Loss

Charging the PUC manager and members of the commission were trying to "cover up" a loss of $10,000, Dr. G. R Langley attended his last meeting of the commission Wednesday. Dr. Langley felt "frankly disgusted" by Manager Howard Powell's explanation as to what happened when the PUC borrowed money for the filtration plant extension.

The explanation came in the form of a letter from E. C. Humpage, CA, which Dr. Langley termed "the damndest fool letter I've ever seen written by a supposedly intelligent man."

Mr. Humpage pointed out in the letter he would "refuse to enter into any long drawn-out controversy on the matter to satisfy any party or parties' desire to establish something which does not exist. . ."

MADE EXPLANATION

Nevertheless he made a full explanation of the matter but the commissioner declined to accept it, terming one supposition as "idiotic" and accusing Mr. Powell of garbling the original question.

The conclusion which the accountant drew to the matter which has reappeared time after time was this: " . . . if an error of judgment had been made in the matter, the results . . . are not too serious, and of course hind-sight is much less difficult than fore-sight."

Reading from a prepared statement, Dr. Langley pointed out "at the October 16 meeting I estimated the loss at $10,000. The actual loss was somewhat reduced by the expedient arranged by Mr. (Gordon) Matthews whereby a large block of the idle funds was deposited with the Grey and Bruce Trust Company at a higher rate of interest than paid by our regular bank."

During the November 17 meeting, the doctor asked Mr. Powell to prepare a report showing the actual loss experienced by borrowing money what he thought was "one year too soon."

Early in his letter, Mr. Humpage said the commission lost nothing.

"The only person who would be penalized is the water user who was paying off a debenture debt prior to receiving the improved services." He was pointing out the fact that debentures were issued before the work was started.

In effect, the accountant said the commission will pay $23,100 a year until the final payment on December 31, 1971. Payments will total $462,000.

If the debentures had not been issued until December 31, 1953, the commission would still pay the same. Had they borrowed from the bank to build in the interval, they would pay interest on the borrowings of perhaps $10,000.

For the sake of simplicity, Dr. Langley later explained his contention with this example: If someone decided to buy a car, he might borrow a sum of money, say, $2,000.

He would then start paying the money back with carrying charges. But if he didn't buy the car immediately, that $2,000 would just sit idle. The interest he would have to pay in the interval would be lost because he wouldn't be making any use of the money he was paying.

Applying this supposition to the case of the filtration plant, Dr. Langley originally set the loss at about $10,000.

But he wanted to know exactly how much was lost.

After reading Mr. Humpage's letter, Dr. Langley expressed his dissatisfaction by saying, "the city has lost $10,000 and everybody's anxious to cover it up."

"Frankly, I'm disgusted."

City Population Nears 40,000 Mark Assessment Rolls Show

Peterborough Gained 366 During Year To Reach 39,714
Increase Does Not Include Annexed Area

Peterborough gained 366 in population this year, closing in on the 40,000 mark, Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis reported today. In its work this year, preparing the assessment roll for 1954, the department counted 39,714 resident people, as compared with 39,348 at the beginning of this year.

The population figure in 1952 (for the 1953 assessment and taxation) was 38,268, but annexation of a block of Smith township at the north side of the city, brought in 1,080, making that total of 39,348.

If the suburban population could be included, the present total would be considerably in excess of 40,000. This fringe circles the city in the four townships, and, in places, to quite a depth. Actually, there are people from the villages of the district who work in the city and depend on its industry for their earnings.

Property details in the assessment roll summary are also interesting.

PROPERTY VALUE

Total taxable real property, land and buildings, amounts to $50,906,365, as compared with $37,310,891 a year ago; increase, $13,595,474.

Assessment facts from the 1954 roll are:

Land (real property)	$10,512,700
Buildings	47,634,945
Total assessment	58,147,645
Exemptions	7,241,280
Taxable total	50,906,365
Business assessment	9,006,230
Total assessment, including business	67,153,875

The total assessment of $67,153,875 comprises land, buildings and business, and also includes the exemptions.

Exemptions signify such properties as schools, churches, post office, armouries and so on.

Taxable property, according to wards:

South, $13,596,360; Centre, $10,170,246; West, $7,760,430; North, $8,189,900; Ashburnham, $5,175,590, Claraday $5,764,190; total, $50,906,365.

Dr. M. J. Kennedy MO In 2 Wars Dies In Kingston

Practising in Peterborough since 1948, oculist Dr. Michael Joseph Kennedy, of 476 King George St., died suddenly in Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, today. He was born in Portsmouth, Ont., son of the late Michael Joseph Kennedy and Susan Corrigan, and was educated at St. Mary's School, Regiopolis College and Queen's University, graduating in arts from the latter in 1916 and in medicine in 1917.

During World War I Dr. Kennedy served overseas as an army doctor and in the peacetime following with the Cobourg 2nd Battery. He took post graduate courses at both Brooklyn Lying-In hospital and Manhattan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat hospital. He practiced in Cobourg and Sudbury. Dr. Kennedy served with the RCAMC during World War II and retired to civilian life with the rank of major. He came to Peterborough in 1948.

He was a member of St. John the Baptist Church, of the Knights of Columbus, Legion of the Sacred Heart and Holy Name Society. A son, Michael, a brother, John Kennedy, and a sister, the Rev. Sister Loretta Kennedy, predeceased him.

Besides his wife, the former Irene Kathleen Drennan, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. E. A. LeComte (Claire) of Kingston and Miss M. Mary Kennedy with the RCAF (WD) at Sea Island, Vancouver Island. There are two sons, Charles Drennan and Murray Joseph, and a sister, Mrs. T. M. Patterson, all of Kingston, and four brothers, Francis of that city, Dr. D. L. Kennedy of Hamilton, the Rev. Kehoe Kennedy of Lancaster, Calif., and Phelan of Los Angeles.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced shortly.

To Continue Survey Line

A winter boundary-cutting survey, headed and completed last winter by John Pierce, O.L.S., of this city, is to be continued early in January, without Mr. Pierce.

Starting from a base camp at Crony lake in the Nakina area of Northern Ontario a year ago Mr. Pierce drove the line for 54 miles north to an intersection point at the Albany river at Tom Flett's Rapids. The job took ten weeks to complete and only a mild winter and break-up conditions prevented Mr. Pierce from going further.

His lieutenant last year, F. C. McKergow of the survey branch of the Department of Lands and Forests, will head up this winter's 13-man party. They do not plan to use dogteam-power for moving temporary campsites but will have a department helicopter with them at all times for this purpose; a Beaver freighter skiplane will keep the crew supplied with food at arranged intervals.

During the past summer survey crews of the department cut an east-west survey line along the 52nd parallel; this winter's line will intersect it. The completed lines will serve as a boundary between the electoral districts of Thunder Bay and Cochrane.

Hugh Dibben Wins Table-Tennis Crown

Hugh Dibben, 51 Park St. N., won the YMCA table-tennis trophy, Wednesday night, when he beat the defending champion, Ed. Nichols, in a best-of-five final.

There were nine contestants: Hugh Dibben, Murray Grafstein, Don Richardson, Lionel Hempstead, Leo Hill, Gilbert Smith, Doug Graham, Walter Ernhart and Ed Nichols. Dibben, Hempstead, Smith, Graham and Nichols were the first frame winners; Dibben beat Smith in the semi-final and Nichols in the final.

Juvenile Gang Caught By Police

HAMILTON (CP)—An east-end juvenile gang that inspector of detectives Walter Hagan said was responsible for 99 per cent of the housebreakings in the city during the last two months, has been broken up by police.

Two 15-year-olds admitted to detectives Wednesday night they had broken into at least 25 homes, and are being questioned today about others.

The arrests came following weeks of intensive investigation. Police said this morning that little loot has been recovered so far, but the boys are being taken around this morning to pick up more.

Thousands of dollars worth of Christmas presents, jewellery, cash, and merchandise have been stolen in the last few weeks, particularly in the east end and on the mountain.

Incorporation Bill To Go Before Gov't

OTTAWA (CP) — Notice was given today that the Niagara Gas Transmission, Ltd., formed to pipe United States gas from the border to Toronto, will bring a bill of incorporation before Parliament.

An advertisement in the Canada Gazette said the application will be made at the present or the next session.

The company, a subsidiary of Consumers Gas Company of Toronto, has been the subject of controversy as to how its proposed operations would fit in with the projected line from Alberta to eastern Canada.

Bancroft Count Totals 301 Birds

Earl Stark of 59 Chilton Rd., Toronto, conducted his fourth annual bird census in the Bancroft area on December 26, he advised today from Toronto.

Driving 47 miles between Paudash Lake and Bancroft on that day, and tramping seven miles afoot, Mr. Stark counted 15 species totalling 301 birds. The weather was bad; snowing steadily 15 inches of snow in the bush and temperature, 28 degrees.

White-winged crossbills, 57 of them, were the most numerous species followed closely by 52 each of English sparrows and pine siskins. Others he observed were ruffed grouse, hairy and downy woodpeckers, bluejays, black-capped chickadees, red-breasted nuthatches, winter wrens, northern shrikes, starlings, purple finch, goldfinch and tree sparrows.

Mr. Stark, a member of the Toronto Orthinological Club, has been an observer of nature in the Peterborough-Warsaw-Bancroft area for the past 32 years, he said.

Nearly Finish Rebuilding Arena

COBOURG (ENS) — Work on the new recreational centre is rapidly nearing completion. The ice surface has been in use for over a week, but the auditorium, canteen and dressing rooms have not been finished.

The building was destroyed by fire last summer but the new one has several features of fire protective nature. A sprinkler system has been installed in the auditorium which has a wooden ceiling.

A cement block wall extending from the ice surface to the roof, with another fire-wall on the roof, separates the front part of the recreational centre from the arena. Fire doors have been installed at the entrances to the arena and fireproof ceilings are being nailed to the joists in the main floor section in front.

Announce Farm Sale For Undisclosed Sum

GUELPH (CP)—E. L. A. Whitaker, industrial commissioner, announced Wednesday that property known as Dawson Farm, lying south of the new $12,000,000 Canadian General Electric plant and containing more than 100 acres, has been sold for an undisclosed sum.

Mr. Whitaker said the purchaser was a local group who in the interests of "assisting in the further industrial development of Guelph" have acquired the property so that sales of smaller parcels may be quickly completed.

Tool Corporation Considering New Plant

HAMILTON (CP) — The Sykes Tool Corporation, Limited, of Toronto, a subsidiary of W. E. Sykes Limited, of England, is considering the erection of a new plant at the intersection of Highway 2 and Trinity road, three miles past Ancaster.

If plans go through, the factory will be constructed on a 150-acre site which currently belongs to the estate of the late Joseph Fair.

No Honors List For Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—There will be no New Year's honor list for Canadians again this year.

No year-end awards for meritorious service have been published in Canada since 1946. In that year it was merely a case of "clearing up the odds and ends" of awards to civilians for outstanding service to the war effort.

The Canadian government policy today is not to make any awards except for distinguished service in the saving of lives.

This does not mean that the Queen, in the absence of recommendations from the Canadian government, cannot award honors for meritorious service to Canadians living in the United Kingdom.

Father, Son Found Dead Believed Suffocated

SIMCOE (CP)—Henry Johnson, 79, and his 48-year-old son, Harold, were found dead today in their home. Another son, Frank, discovered the men dead in their chairs. Officials said they believed the men died because a heater used up all the oxygen in the room.

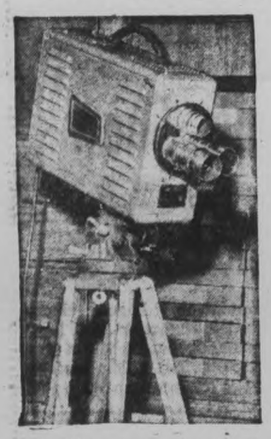
The Citizens of Peterborough are cordially invited to attend the Inaugural Meeting of the 1954 City Council, which will be held at 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon, January 4th, 1954, in the Council Chamber, City Hall.



This meeting should prove interesting and informative to all citizens. Unfortunately, the Council Chamber is limited in capacity to little more than one hundred seats.

At the close of the meeting light refreshments will be served in the Mayor's Parlour.

May 1954 be a prosperous, successful year for all citizens.

NORMAN GRAHAM,
Mayor.

Television Will Make Life Rough For Shoplifters

Television camera through its electronic eye sees . . .

J. H. Brennan, acting as the department store "shoplifter," snatch the jacket and hide it under his overcoat while . . .

Rough days are ahead for shoplifters around Cleveland, Ohio. An unseen eye (a TV camera - viewer combination) has been perfected as an aid to help detectives match wits with sleight-of-hand artists in department stores. The first dry run proved successful with the store detective nabbing the "criminal." The camera was pointed at a department which is often a target of the thieves. Seated in front of the TV camera, in an office, was W. J. Boll, head of the protective division of the Retail Credit Men's Association. Acting as the villain was J. H. Brennan, who slipped the jacket underneath his coat when the clerk turned her head. Before the "shoplifter" was out of the store, Boll tapped him on the shoulder. If the gadget catches on, Cleveland will be a bad "channel" for the light-fingered clan.

Store detective Walter J. Boll sees the evidence of the "theft" carried to the TV screen in distant part of the store . . .

Alberta Oil Expected Sarnia Jan. 5

SARNIA (CP) — First Alberta oil to reach Sarnia by pipeline is expected here Tuesday.

T. S. Johnston, president of the Interprovincial Pipeline Company, said from Toronto today he and other officials will be here for the expected arrival of the first oil through the company's new 635-mile pipeline link from Superior, Wis.

Water, which precedes the oil flow, has reached Marysville, south of here on the Michigan side of the St. Clair river. One hundred miles of water followed by three mechanical "pigs" is clearing the passage for the oil destined for Sarnia refineries.

The Superior-Sarnia link eliminates lake shipment of oil from Superior, previously the western terminus of the pipeline from Edmonton. The Edmonton - Sarnia line runs 1,765 miles, said to be the longest oil pipeline in the world. Capacity is 300,000 barrels of crude a day. Daily flow is expected to start at 86,000 barrels, increasing as the market expands.

MAN OF MONEY—Flt.-Lt. Victor Dillabaugh, of Ottawa, who is paymaster at the RCAF base at Zweibrucken, deals in plenty of money but it is a problem to him. Besides various forms of occupation cash, he has to keep track of every kind of European money required by men travelling about the Continent on leave or business. Photo shows Flt.-Lt. Dillabaugh keeping an account of the various currencies he deals with. —(Federal Newsphotos).

H. M. Turner Predicts 15,000,000 Population

Canada's population will just about reach 15,000,000 some time early in 1954, says CGE company president H. M. Turner, in a report this week. The millionth post-war immigrant is due to arrive early in the year.

Mr. Turner considers the million new Canadians an important factor in the Dominion's industrial expansion. Canada is still an undermanned nation and only by continuing and increasing this flow of immigrants and by the ability of Canadian industry to supply them with power and machinery can the country gain increased benefit from the rich store of its natural resources.

Futile Attempt To Crack Safe

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Safe crackers made a futile attempt Wednesday night to get into two safes at the Westerburg news agency.

They smashed the dial and front of a small safe and dented a larger one but didn't get into either. They took a small amount of cash from a pop machine but they left behind their tools — a crowbar and a sledge-hammer.

Police said they doubted the attempt was linked with a safe robbery Tuesday night at the Niagara Township Fruit Co-operative when $100 was taken.

Snow Covers Roads In Many Districts

TORONTO (CP) — The department of highways reports that heavy snowfall, accompanied by drifting in the Lake Huron, southern Georgian bay and Lake Simcoe areas, has left roads there snow-surfaced. Visibility is often poor. North of Bradford, in the Lake Simcoe area, visibility is nil.

Highways in the Stratford, northern Georgian Bay, Haliburton and eastern Lake Ontario districts and in the vicinity of Fort Erie are also snow-surfaced.

In the remainder of southern Ontario, highways are mostly bare.

Highways in northern Ontario are generally snow-covered. Icy sections occur on Highway 11 between Temagami and Porquis Junction.

Bauxite, Iron Ore Give French Guinea Prosperity

WASHINGTON—French Guinea, long a source of gold and diamonds, owes its new prosperity to far less aristocratic minerals.

Iron ore exports now exceed 45,000 tons a month. They are scheduled to reach 100,000 tons monthly in 1954 and, ultimately, 3,000,000 tons annually. Bauxite production nears 400,000 tons a month. Jobs for more than 1,200 natives have been provided by the mining boom.

Begun only five years ago, this is the first big French industrial-development south of the Sahara. Rich iron deposits were long known to exist, but it was not until 1947 that a $2,000,000 Marshall Plan loan stimulated establishment of the Conakry Minerals Company. No markets existed for Guinea iron prior to the Second World War because other kinds of ore were easier to work and closer to smelters.

RAILROAD BY-PRODUCT

Iron deposits were discovered in 1910 by French engineers building a 450-mile railroad between Conakry, Guinea's chief port and capital city, and the headwaters of the Niger River. Some of the railway cuts went 100 feet deep and sliced through laterite iron ore from top to bottom. Later surveys revealed ore deposits covering the whole Kamoun peninsula, 20 miles long and three miles wide, with veins running inland up the slopes of 3,000-foot Mt. Kakoulima.

Total iron reserves are estimated at over two billion tons.

Bauxite deposits, uncovered in 1920, remained comparatively idle also until recently. Guinea bauxite —52 per cent. aluminum—is located on Kassa Island, a few miles offshore. The colony's entire output is currently shipped to the Arvida plant in Canada, the world's largest aluminum factory.

French Guinea fronts the Atlantic Ocean between Portuguese Guinea and British Sierra Leone. It extends inland to the headwaters basin of the Niger. The colony has 2,400,000 inhabitants.

The coastal belt is one of the world's wettest regions. In the June to November rainy season, over 160 inches of rain hamper mining opreations. Workers are plagued by a sweltering humidity—between 70 and 80 per cent. year round. Mean temperatures range from 75 to 82 degrees.

NEW HARBOR

Ships entering Conakry tie up to docks in sheltered lagoons. Prior to recent harbor improvements, vessels were obliged to anchor outside a sandbar and unload onto small craft. Conakry is on Tumbo Island, linked to the Kamoun Peninsula by a causeway. Its population has swelled from 14,000 to 1939 to almost 40,000 today.

One of the last strongholds of slave traders on Africa's west coast, French Guinea was later ravaged by dynastic tribal wars. France moved troops into the country from neighboring Senegal in 1881 and imposed peace among feuding chieftains. A year later Great Britain recognized French rights to the colony.

Long a source of agricultural wealth, the territory is expected to export $8,000,000 of bananas, coffee and palm oil by the end of 1953. About 1,500 pounds of gold—taken out by small-scale placer mining—are exported annually. Some $200,000 in diamonds—mostly low-grade industrial stones—are mined each year in the interior highlands.

Inventory Cutting And Contract Cancelling Blamed For Rash Of Layoffs In United States

NEW YORK (AP)—A rash of layoffs in U.S. industry has been attributed to cancelled government contracts, inventory cutting by business firms, or slackening consumer buying. Here are some recent examples:

Loss of government orders for tanks is given as the cause for the dropping of about half of its production force by the General Steel Castings Corporation of Granite City, Ill. Defence contract "stretch-outs" get much of the blame in Akron, Ohio, for the laying off of about 4,000 workers in rubber factories.

Inventory adjustments are blamed for the cutback of operations at the Fairless works of the U.S. Steel Corp. in Morrisville, Pa., to about 75 per cent of capacity. Bethlehem Steel has tapered off its Lackawanna, N.Y., operations to a similar degree.

Consumer sales slowdown is blamed for recent layoffs in the textile and home appliance industries. The drop in farm incomes and hence in farmers' buying, caused International Harvester to drop around 14,000 workers in the last several months.

The general business slowdown is blamed by railroads and rail equipment makers for their layoffs: Baltimore and Ohio is laying off about 11 per cent of its working force; the Pennsylvania will drop some 7,000 by the middle of next month; the Erie has cut 500 from its payroll; New York Central has passed out some furloughs because business is slack; American Locomotive plans to drop about 100.

LAYOFFS REPORTED

Seasonal or short-term layoffs also are being reported. Auto makers have laid off employees during model change-overs, usual at this time of year. Republic Steel laid off 5,000 while repairing some mills —a job that went so fast that the workers are being called back ahead of time.

The weather can play hob with industries. Drought caused a drop in demand for insecticides and fertilizers and affected jobs in those industries. Some areas had a bad tobacco crop and that cut job totals in some tobacco-processing plants.

U.S. Rubber laid off workmen in its footwear plant at Naugatuck, Conn. One reason: too little slush so far this year, hence too little demand for overshoes and rubbers.

However, these layoffs scarcely show in the over-all figures of employment. But to the communities affected and to the families without pay cheques, statistics about continuing high employment are ironically hollow.

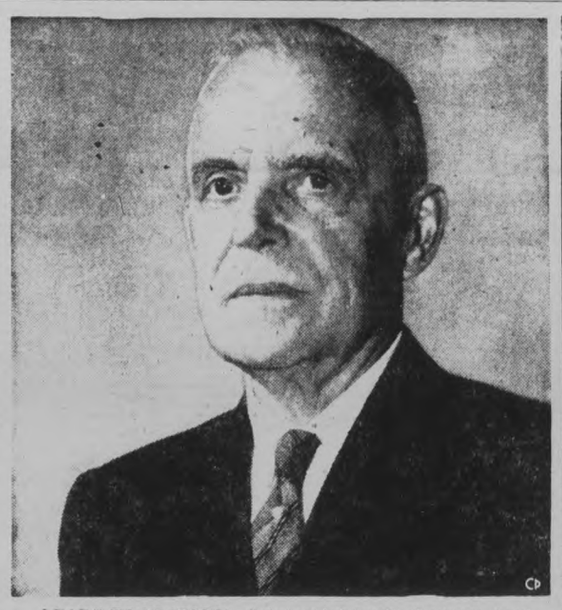
ILLUSTRATED MAN—Pte. Bill Seraphina, serving with the Australian army in Korea, is the very picture of a man. Here, he shows part of the colorful tattoos he picked up during visits to 78 foreign nations. A former native of Scotland, Bill migrated to Australia in 1951.

One day — each week,

The Boy

who delivers

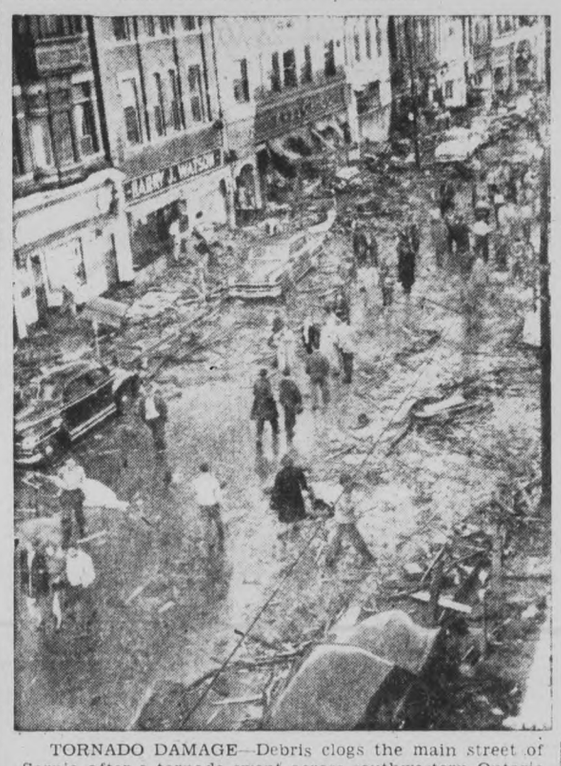


your Examiner

calls to collect

He has so many customers he can't afford to give credit for he must pay for his papers on fixed dates and counts on his collections to make his payments. Your courteous carrier boy assumes a financial burden he cannot afford to carry when you ask him to wait for his money. He collects on the same day each week — you know which day — and when he has to "call again" to collect from you, delivery of his whole route is delayed on several days. Have the money ready for the boy the day he collects—the correct change, if convenient. Help him to meet his financial obligations promptly, and to make delivery on time every day.

BUS DISASTER—Twenty died when this Toronto-Montreal express bus crashed into the Williamsburg Canal 20 miles west of Cornwall, July 31. The bus, with 39 aboard, was speeding through the early-morning darkness when it struck a truck on the road and both vehicles plunged into 20 feet of water. Max Roodman, 40, of Toronto, the truck driver, was later convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to a year in reformatory for his part in Canada's worst highway disaster.



LEADS TO VICTORY—Prime Minister St. Laurent, leading his Liberal party in a Canadian general election for the second time, led it to victory at the polls Aug. 10. The party which also won the 1949 general election under its 71-year-old leader, took 171 of Parliament's 265 seats. Two months after the election Mr. St. Laurent announced plans for a world-girdling air journey early in 1954. The prime minister said the trip would enable him to return visits made to him in Ottawa by the prime ministers of France, Germany, Italy, Pakistan, India, Australia and New Zealand.

DOUKHOBORS POSE PROBLEM—The problem of what to do with some 2,500 persons, members of a radical Doukhobor sect in British Columbia's interior, who defy the law by upending gravestones, dynamiting railways, setting homes on fire, parading naked and refusing to send their children to school is puzzling provincial and federal authorities. Here, a group of women members of the radical Sons of Freedom undress before a burning cabin near Krestova. While the more law-abiding of Canada's 18,000 Doukhobors have turned the Kootenays into a "garden," the Sons of Freedom created squalid villages such as Krestova, their stronghold. In October 48 were sentenced to prison terms ranging from six months to three years. Another 19 were handed one-year suspended sentences on charges of nude parading. Earlier 38 were sentenced to three years on the same charge.

KOREAN WAR ENDS—Canadian forces held part of the Korean battle line at the time the cease-fire went into effect in July ending the Korean war after more than three years of fighting. An artillery unit is shown firing the last Canadian shell a few minutes before the truce went into effect. The Korean war cost to Canada has been more than $200,000,000. A total of 26,723 Canadian servicemen have seen service in the war. Eight Canadian navy ships have done 15 tours of duty in Korean waters and the RCAF has flown 1,000 trans-Pacific transport flights, logging 6,500,000 hours. RCAF pilots also took part, as exchange pilots with the United States Air Force. Casualties suffered by Canadian troops were listed at 1,543 including 256 killed in action, nine presumed dead, 38 died of wounds, 1,101 wounded, 101 injured in action, six missing and 32 returned from prisoner of war. —(CP from National Defence)

TORNADO DAMAGE—Debris clogs the main street of Sarnia after a tornado swept across southwestern Ontario May 21. The death toll was five and the damage was estimated in millions of dollars after the twister traced an erratic path across a corner of the province. Sarnia's damage alone was counted at more than $1,000,000 and 50 persons were hurt in the disaster which struck the industrial city of 42,000. —(CP Photo)

WOMEN IN COMMONS—Four women won seats in the House of Commons in the Aug. 10 federal election. In the previous Parliament, Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative from Hamilton West was the only woman member. This picture shows the four elected in August as they attended the opening of Parliament in November, left to right: Mrs. Ann Shipley (L—Temiskaming), Miss Margaret Aitken PC-York Humber), Mrs. Fairclough, and Miss Sybil Bennett (PC-Halton). (CP Photo)

WHEAT PILES UP—Grain valued at $300,000 lying on the ground near elevators at Makepeace, Alta., is typical of a severe grain storage problem in Canada. Three big wheat crops in a row filled all available storage space. In November the bureau of statistics reported the 1953 crop at 613,965,000 bushels, second highest in history. The carryover from the 1952-53 crop was 362,700,000 bushels, despite exports of 385,900,000 bushels in the 1952-53 season. Prairie merchants struggle with retail credit difficulties. In its brief to the Canadian Wheat Board, the Alberta Retail Merchants' Association suggested the government guarantee bank loans up to $1,000 on grain in farm storage "to alleviate cases of particular distress". —(CP Photo)

PIPELINE ENDS—An electric arc flashing in the darkness puts the last weld in the 711-mile pipeline stretching from Edmonton to Vancouver. Transmountain Pipeline Company's line from the Alberta oil fields was finished in October and became Canada's second major oil pipeline. It was built across the mountains at a cost of $97,000,000. Two years earlier the 1,137-mile Interprovincial pipeline between Alberta oilfields and the head of the Great Lakes was finished at a cost of $90,000,000.—(CP Photo)

ELECTION VICTOR—Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Credit government was re-elected in British Columbia's June 9 general election, one of three provincial elections in 1953. Mr. Bennett, a 51-year-old Kelowna hardware merchant, left the Progressive Conservative party and British Columbia's Coalition government two years ago to join the Social Credit party. In the other two provincial elections, the Liberals were returned to power in Nova Scotia May 26, and Manitoba's Liberal-Progressive government was returned June 8.—(CP Photo)

INTERNATIONAL CONTROVERSY—External Affairs Minister Pearson became the centre of a controversy between Canada and the United States over efforts of a U.S. Congressional committee to interview Igor Gouzenko. The Canadian government said that Gouzenko, who tripped the trigger on Canada's 1946 Red spy case, had already given all the information he had to offer. U.S. newspapers and speakers then accused Mr. Pearson of "softness toward Communism". Finally, Mr. Pearson announced that Canada would allow U.S. government representatives to interview Gouzenko under Canadian auspices. —CP Photo)

Pictures Tell The Story of 1953

MURDER IN G..SPE—The bear-pawed bodies of three United States hunters, missing more than a month, were found in July near Gaspe, Que. The slayings touched off an exhaustive investigation throughout much of the province and resulted a month later in a charge of murder being laid against a 37-year-old mining prospector, Wilbert Coffin. Coffin was charged with the murder of Richard Lindsey, 17, of Brook Mills, Pa., and held criminally responsible for the death of Fred Claar, 20, of East Freedom, Pa. The third victim was Eugene Lindsey, father of Richard. This picture of Richard and Claar was developed in police laboratories from film found in a camera on the scene. It shows them outside their Gaspe cabin only a few days before they were slain. —(CP Photo)

STORM HAVOC—The southern part of the Maritime Provinces was battered Sept. 7 when an Atlantic hurricane swept inshore. One man was drowned, shipping was scattered, nearly half of Nova Scotia's apple crop was destroyed, buildings were damaged and trees blown down by the 80-mile-an-hour wind. This photo shows the wreckage left when the roof was blown off a Halifax apartment house. The Halifax weather office said it was the worst storm to hit that seaport in three years. —(CP Photo)

MINE STRIKE—More than half the breadwinners of Northern Ontario's Porcupine mining camp were idle throughout the autumn of 1953 after the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL) called progressive strikes in six of the area's 11 mines. In Timmins, centre of the Porcupine camp and a community of 28,000, violence broke in July in the early stages of the strike. This photo shows Ontario Provincial Police in an altercation with a group of pickets near the strike-bound Broulan Reef gold mine. —(CP Photo)

No Magazines At Barbers Reds Play Chess Instead

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—Even a haircut is an affair of state in Moscow.

The barbers in the Metropole and other hotels accommodating foreigners are employed by the ministry of foreign trade. Elsewhere, they work for the Moscow Soviet, somewhat in the manner of Canadian police and firemen who are on city payrolls.

I wanted a neck clean-up and a little off the sides. I can't spare a millimetre off the top.

So when my turn came in the barber shop I left the perpetual chess game which waiting customers keep going at the table in the centre of the floor, and took my chair.

I said "nyem-nogo" which literally means "just a little." I thought that the most economical way of saying "just a trim."

THE WRONG WORD

He apparently thought I wanted jusa a little left. I'll never say that word to a barber again.

There were eight chairs, four in a row, back to back, with dowdy leather armchairs in the middle around the chess table. The instruments, including the comb, were of steel and the clippers hand-operated. The appointments suggested 1910.

Barbers work a 10-hour day, including two hours for meals, and have a day off every two days' work.

My haircut cost one ruble and 90 kopeks—47 cents at the official rate of exchange.

COLD PERMANENTS

Other prices for men's services included:

Cold permanent wave, 2.50 rubles; tinting beard and moustache, 3.95 rubles; moustache and beard trim, 1.25 rubles. (the ruble officially is worth 25 cents.)

The shop manager (a woman) said the cold permanent is a popular service.

Adjoining the barber-shop is the women's beauty parlor. Here's what it costs in Russia, girls:

Permanent wave, 25 rubles; curled, 1.25 rubles; hair wash, 8.50 rubles; drying, 1.25 rubles.

Most women here have long hair. Tinting with chemical dyes costs 25 rubles for long, 18 for short. Touching up the ends costs 10 rubles.

Manicures for men and women alike are 2.50 rubles and popular.

Barbers' and beauty parlor operators' salaries are governed by the amount of work they do, with a guaranteed minimum from the state of 500 rubles ($125) a month. The manager said her top operator earns 2,500 rubles ($625) a month and the rest average 2,000 ($500). Barbers, she said, average 1,000 rubles ($250).

Nine Persons Escape Fire

SARNIA (CP)—Three adults and six children were driven out into some of the coldest weather of the year Wednesday night when fire destroyed their partially completed house in the Bluewater section of Sarnia.

Gesele Lacasse, 22, was rescued by her fiance from the fire. Edgar Chevalier, owner of the house, passed his six children, ranging in age from one to six, out a window to neighbors.

Furniture and clothing, including Miss Lacasse's wedding dress, were destroyed and damage was estimated at $3,000. Miss Lacasse said the wedding, set for Saturday, would have to be postponed.

Miss Lacasse worked as a housekeeper for Mrs. Chevalier.

The fire was believed to have started around wiring in one bedroom.

Authority Acquires 2,500 Acres Land

WALKERTON (CP) — The Saugeen Valley Authority announced Wednesday that it has bought or optioned 2,500 acres of land within the watershed for reforestation and water storage.

More than 100,000 trees were planted in 1953 by the authority and by private landowners who receive a subsidy of $10 an acre. A mechanical tree planter is loaned to landowners planting more than 5,000 trees.

Average price paid for the land purchased was $7 an acre. Some four miles of roads suitable for trucks were bulldozed into the property in Holland township.

The authority is responsible for flood control and conservation in the watershed which covers a large part of Grey and Bruce counties.

Finds Story At Home

HARRISTON (CP)—Bert Gardiner, editor of the weekly Harriston Review, found a hot story right at home Wednesday. As he was leaving his house, he heard the roar of flames and found that overheated furnace pipes had started a fire in the bathroom. Firemen extinguished the fire and damage was slight.

Happy Year For Royalty Travelling Commonwealth

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The death of Queen Mary tempered British rejoicing in Coronation year.

"Grandmother England," the dignified unchanging woman with the flowered toques, wing-sleeved cape coats and parasol, died March 24 in her 86th year. Death came only a few months before the Coronation ceremony it had been her last wish to see.

Queen Mary had outlived all the queens and kings of English history. Her lifetime encompassed two world wars, six reigns and three epochs, the Victorian, Edwardian and second Georgian periods. Her closest rival in longevity was Queen Eleanor of Aquitaine, wife of Henry III, who died at 82.

The body of the dead queen was borne through the streets of London late in March to lie in state in Westminster hall. A private burial service took place March 31 in St. George's private chapel.

GENERALLY HAPPY YEAR

It was a sad beginning to what was on balance a happy year for Britain's Royal Family. The highlight was the Coronation ceremony in Westminster abbey June 2, a three-hour ritual built around the crowning of young Queen Elizabeth. The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh then embarked on a 2,500-mile tour of the British Isles. They went first to Scotland, then to Northern Ireland and finally to Wales in a triumphal tour linked to the Coronation celebrations. Happy crowds thronged wherever they went. In the month after the Coronation, it was estimated that the royal couple kept some 200 public engagements. And there was an even larger travel program ahead.

In November, the Queen and her husband boarded the aircraft Canopus at London airport to start a six-month, round-the-world Commonwealth tour touching at Bermuda, Jamaica, the Panama Canal Zone, Fiji, the Friendly isles and New Zealand.

The royal couple is scheduled to leave New Zealand for Australia Jan. 30. Other countries on the itinerary included the Cocos islands, Ceylon, Aden, Uganda, Tobruk, Malta and Gibraltar. The tour is to end in London May 15. Shortly after the Duke of Edinburgh is to leave for Canada to attend the Empire Games in Vancouver and visit industrial developments in the north.

It was a quiet year for Princess Margaret. The fun-loving younger sister of the Royal Family seemed more subdued and newspapers spoke of a "new Margaret," saddened by the death of her father George VI in 1952 and that of Queen Mary in 1953. But the spotlight remained on the princess with midsummer reports that she wanted to marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend, a former court equerry and a divorced person. The reports were not confirmed by Buckingham palace.

VISITED NORWAY

During the year Princess Margaret went to Norway to attend a royal weding and in July, accompanied by the Queen Mother, went to Southern Rhodesia for a 16-day Rhodes centenary tour.

Apart from a visit to Greece, the Duchess of Kent was not often in the public eye. Her eldest son, the Duke of Kent, celebrated his 18th birthday as a member of the British Army, which he joined during the year. His sister Princess Alexandra, 17 on Christmas Day, made her first official tour—a rain-soaked visit to Lancashire mills—Oct. 13, and later went to live in Paris for her final course of grooming before being launched in high society.

The princess, cousin of the Queen, stayed at the country estate of the Count of Paris, pretender to the French throne. Fashion writers predicted that the tall, grave-eyed princess may become royalty's new glamor girl when she makes her official debut.

Lady Patricia Ramsay, granddaughter of Queen Victoria who gave her name to Canada's Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, visited Canada in September to renew personal links with the regiment. Lady Patricia's connection with the famous Canadian fighting unit goes back to the early days of the First World War, when she lived in Ottawa as daughter of the governor-general, the Duke of Connaught. The PPCLI was raised in 16 days in August, 1914, under A. Hamilton Gault of Montreal.

Sturdy Icebreaker

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The whaling ship Finback has been chartered to a paper company at Corner Brook for ice-clearing operations in the Humber arm this winter. The small but sturdy whaler is skippered by Capt. George Bugge with a crew of 12.

Honesty Rewarded

WATSON, Sask. (CP) — Bobby Lonsberry, 12, turned in a diamond ring he found while unpacking a case of British Columbia apples. The owner, an apple packer at Rutland, B.C., sent Bobby a box of choice McIntosh apples as a reward.

PRISONER — Rev. Fernand Faucher, of Montreal, has been reported by Canadian Jesuit officials to be under house arrest in Shanghai. The external affairs department released the names of five Canadian missionaries known to be under arrest in Communist China following announcement by the British Foreign Office that 10 Canadian missionaries are being held by the Chinese Reds. Father Faucher's name wasn't on the list.

PRISONER OF REDS—Rev. Armand Proulx, of Ste. Agathe de Lothiniere, Que., is reported by Canadian Jesuit officials to be among 10 Canadian missionaries known to be under arrest in Communist China. The external affairs department released the names of five following announcement by the British Foreign Office that 10 Canadians are being held by the Chinese Reds.

TO GENEVA—Hector Allard, 51, a native of Notre Dame de Grace, Que., has been appointed Canada's permanent representative to the United Nations at Geneva, Switzerland. He formerly headed the consular division of the external affairs department at Ottawa.

PUBLISHER — Gerald M. Brown, of Pickering, Ont., has been appointed publisher and vice-president of the Vancouver News-Herald by Roy H. Thomson, proprietor. Mr. Brown, former city editor of the Toronto Star and Windsor Star, is a former member of the press galleries of the House of Commons and the Saskatchewan and Ontario legislatures. He was director of public relations for the RCAF for two years in the Second World War. For the last six years he headed his own public relations company in Toronto. He was born at Chatham, N.B., and educated at the University of Saskatchewan.

HELD BY REDS—The Rev. George Beauregard, a Canadian Jesuit of Marieville, Que., has been named one of five Canadian missionaries known to be under arrest in Communist China. The external affairs department released the names following announcement by the British Foreign Office that 10 Canadians are being held by Chinese Reds. The other five were not identified.

Improve Camp Sites

TORONTO (CP)—The lands and forests department is carrying out a general overhaul of recreational facilities in Algonquin Park. Work is being done at Smoke lake, south Tea lake, Canoe lake, Cache lake and Lake of Two Rivers. Campsites and fireplaces on lakes and rivers throughout the park are being improved.

Must See They Get Same Pay As Men

VICTORIA (CP) — Although a new law says they must, it's up to British Columbia's working women to see that they get the same pay for doing the same work as a man.

Under the B. C. Social Credit government's new equal pay act, which becomes effective today, employers must not discriminate against women by paying them less than the amount paid men for doing the same work in the same establishment.

But it's up to the woman to complain if she thinks her pay is less. Complaint is the basis for the new act.

If the female employee feels she is underpaid, she complains to the department of labor, who sends one of 25 inspectors to the plant to check the type of complaint, plant records, and then ask employers to adjust the pay scale.

The board of industrial relations and finally the minister of labor are the final authorities if an adjustment is disputed.

ONTARIO LAW SIMILAR

Described as almost identical to a similar act now in effect in Ontario, the law was passed at the last session of the provincial legislature.

The labor department said it has no way of telling how many of the more than 8,400 B. C. firms who employ about 63,000 female workers will be affected by the legislation.

Labor department spokesmen said they hope the new law will go into effect without too much controversy, as the Ontario act did. The law did not provide "too much" protection for female employees who complain. Identity of the employee would be revealed.

Trophies Stolen

TORONTO (CP) — Two gold swimming trophies, valued at $5,000, were stolen from the Ontario Government Building of the Canadian National Exhibition during the Christmas holiday, CNE sports director George Duthie reported. The trophies, known as the Ross Swim Trophies, are emblematic of the women's and men's Canadian mile championships.

135 Communists Ask Go Back To Red China

By JOHN RANDOLPH

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Indian troops today made a year-end head count of Chinese war prisoners in their custody, and 135 of the 4,385 checked asked to return to Communist China.

An Indian spokesman emphasized that the count was not a screening and did not substitute for interviews which ended Dec. 23. However, Indian guards gave prisoners wishing to return home every chance to ask for repatriation.

There was no indication when the count would be extended to the pro-Communist north camp which holds 22 Americans, one Briton and a large group of South Koreans.

The 135 Chinese returnees comprise about 3.1 per cent of today's total, approximately the same as for the 10 days when prisoners attended explanations.

Officially the count was made to give the Indian command an opportunity to check its prisoner rosters and to find out exactly how many captives it holds.

The Indian spokesman said "any requests for repatriation must be regarded as entirely incidental to the head count." But observers said the method used approached a de facto screening.

PRISONERS COUNTED

Prisoners walked one at a time into the wire-enclosed corridor around the compound and were handed a piece of paper on which each wrote his name and serial number.

The prisoners were kept several feet apart as they moved along the "chicken run" to a gate where they handed the slip of paper to an Indian officer for checking against a master roster.

Each captive was alone with the officer for several seconds, long enough to ask to go back to China if he wished.

Approximately 20,000 anti-Communist prisoners and 100 pro-Communists, including the Americans and Briton, were not interviewed during the 90 day period provided by the Korean armistice.

The Communists interviewed 3,173 of 22,400 Chinese and Korean captives who did not return home, and won back 138. Allied explainers talked to 250 South Koreans, and all elected to remain with the Communists.

Status Quo

OSLO (CP)—The national committee of the Norwegian Federation of Labor has declared there is no necessity for any general revision of wage contracts in 1954. The committee, representing 500,000 workers, said no changes had occurred to warrant a general wage increase.

Fewer Workers

OSLO (CP)—With greater mechanization of the Swedish farming industry, the number of farm workers in Sweden has decreased by about 125,000 since 1939. Current reports show most dairy farms now are equipped with milking machinery.

Kremlin Boasts Of Cheapness Of Soviet Homes

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

LONDON (OFNS)—One of the favourite boasts of the Kremlin's propagandists concerns the extreme cheapness of houses in the Soviet Union. In these days, when rents of houses and apartments all over the world are swollen so that they engulf a large part of the ordinary family income, this has proved effective propaganda when used abroad. But inside Russia the boast is never heard—for the simple reason that the people of the Soviet Union know just how hollow it is.

It is not that the propagandists are lying when they say that the average Russian need pay only about five per cent of his income in rent if he hires his apartment through the official channels. Technically, this is the truth; but no mention is made of two things. First, the shocking quality of the accommodation and amenities that may ordinarily be secured for this outlay; and second, the fact that millions of unfortunates are unable to rent an apartment officialy, and have to hire rooms and parts of rooms sub-let by the more fortunate at exorbitant rents.

PAY ILLEGAL PREMIUM

Anyone who wants to change his apartment can as a rule do so only by paying large sums as black-market "key money." Supposing, for example, a tenant loses his apartment in Moscow—perhaps because he has changed his job—and can find no alternative accommodation through the official channels (a large number of tenants are in this position.) In order to keep his foothold in the city he may be required to pay an illegal premium of as much as six thousand roubles (about £500) to obtain a single room with a share in the communal kitchen.

The Soviet housing shortage is, indeed, so appalling by all Western standards that to anyone who has not experienced it it is inconceivable. It is also incontestable: it may be established by simple official figures. According to the Prime Minister, Mr. Malenkov, the urban population of the Soviet Union is now eighty million. According to the most optimistic official housing figures there can be in the towns no more than between 300 and 400 million square metres of living space of all kinds—including kitchens, garrets and cellars. This gives less than five sqquare metres per head of the population (about six feet by eight feet.) Since most rooms are a good deal bigger than six feet by eight feet, and since much of the space is taken up by communal kitchens, it is clear that even according to official figures, one would expect to find the vast majority of families in the town living in single rooms.

In fact, anyone who knows Russia knows that a family with a room of its own considers itself lucky. In innumerable cases, families live in cellars. In innumerable cases a curtained space is let off to one or more lodgers. In innumerable cases the so-called communal kitchen is treated by the house manager as a convenient extra room into which he can put his friends—naturally for a consideration. I am not talking about the slum areas now, but about the residential areas of all but the most privileged.

The Soviet Government recognizes the presence of these practices. And a vivid sidelight is thrown on the desperate housing shortage by special legislation, introduced after the war, which makes it illegal to conclude tenancy agreements with people living in kitchens, corridors, cupboards, etc., or to settle relatives or friends in communal kitchens. But when people have nowhere to live the law cannot stop them from settling down, even in odd corners under the stairs, and bribing house managers and legal tenants to let them stay. All these people pay far more that the official rents.

NORMAL CUSTOM

This sort of thing is such a normal custom in the Russia of 1953 that even Pravda newspaper allows itself to speak of it. In an unusually revealing article earlier this year, it described as by no means exceptional a case in which a house manager tried to bribe his tenants, on the fifth floor of a house in the Arbat (one of Moscow's cheif thoroughfares), by promising to have the gas installed in their kitchen. The tenants compromised by agreeing that he should borrow part of the kitchen until he could find somewhere better. But the arrangement would h gone on for ever—as soon as he had gone into the kitchen the manager started partitioning off a corner of it. Soon, however, he was arrested — not for this crime, but for embezzlement.

The tenants imagined that the new manager would restore the stolen part of the kitchen. Instead he promptly installed the house porter and his family of five, leaving the rest of the tenants to cook in this bear-garden as best they might. The local council was at last appealed to, but in vain. After much altercation the tenants were told that they had lost their kitchen, but that they could have the use of a converted shed in the yard, five floors below.

This state of affairs has been seriously worrying the education authorities for a long time. How can children be expected to do homework under such conditions? Homework itself is very necessary, because the shortage of schools is as acute as the shortage of housing, and almost every school has to work two shifts. At last the Kremlin itself is worrying. By putting all the country's resources into industry and deliberately inflating the town populations without building appropriate accommodation, it finds itself in difficulties from which it seems unable to escape.

Most of the old apartment houses are in a shocking state of dilapidation. The new ones are so jerry-built that they start falling to pieces as soon as they are finished—indeed, it is only rarely that they are entirely finished. And on top of all this, the building industry, at last being given some priority, is proving completely unequal to its task.

Sartorial Splendor

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — With the Queen's visit drawing nearer all available morning suits and top hats have been bought or rented in Auckland. Now 100 suits are being rushed by air from a clothes-renting firm in England. Their hire for a few hours will cost about $30.

Delicate Stuff

MELBOURNE (CP)—Individual bales of Victoria state's famous lambs' wool have sold as high as $5.30 a pound this month. The wool, of superfine quality, is to be used for making skin-tight costumes for ballerinas abroad, one correspondent reported.

BORN IN A MANGER—Born in a manger in a stable near Clinton, Christmas morning, baby John Rehorst is held by his mother in a Clinton hospital. Mrs. J. L. Rehorst waded through snow drifts to the stable to tell her husband it was time to go to the hospital. The baby was born in a straw-filled manger on their farm 18 miles north of Stratford, Ont. Doctors said it was a "miracle" mother and baby came through in good condition. The Rehorsts, who came to Canada from Holland three years ago, also have a 22-month-old daughter.

Chinese Communists Burn Classics, Break With Past

By O. M. GREEN

LONDON (OFNS)—Newspapers in China announce that the Communists are burning the Confucian classics. Scholars are ordered to turn out their libraries, book shops to empty their shelves of the multitude of books in which for two thousand years the basic principles of Chinese culture and social relations — filial piety, brotherly love and loyalty to friends—have been expounded.

There is no need to think the report exaggerated. Confucianism, the main source of these principles and of much more which grows naturally out of them—including insistence on the dignity of the individual,—is necessarily antagonistic to Communism, which declared tha tthe individual's only loyalty is to the State.

What is so interesting is that the Communists are doing now, and precisely for the same reason, what was done nearly 2,200 years ago by Shih Hwang-ti, the so-called Napoleon of China, and one of the greatest of its Emperors. Like the Communists he announced a total break with the past and the dawn of a new age.

UNIFIED ALL CHINA

Shih Hwang-ti was originally Duke of Chin—one of the strongest feudal states, which grew up in the declining days of the Chou dynasty (1122-230 B.C.). A military genius and organizer, he gradually crushed all rival states, extended his power south, west and north, and for the first time unified all China, more or less as it is today. He also built the Great Wall, which still extends for 1,400 miles inland from the sea near Peking, to keep out barbaric invaders from the north.

To an extraordinary degree, Shih Hwang-ti's mode of government anticipated that of the Communists. It was founded on the teaching of the sect of Legalists, who in an age of general upheaval taught that the improvement of human nature by the moral example of the ruler (one of Confucius's great tenets) was a useless delusion.

Shih Hwang-ti's Prime Minister, Li Ssu, was a Legalist of exceptional ability. True to the Legalist doctrine, Emperor and Minister destroyed feudalism and replaced the rule of the nobles by an elaborate bureaucracy, with all power concentrattd in the Emperor's hands.

All land was divided up among the peasants, all trading was undertaken by the State, and — a striking parallel with the present —all families were arranged in groups, each member of which was held responsible for the behaviour of the rest.

To make China's breach with the past compl te, Shih Hwang-ti burned all the Confucian books (they were written on thin strips of bamboo in those days, and burned splendidly) and massacred a number of Confucian scholars. He also called himself "Shih The First", to denote that he was the founder of a new age and new dynasty, which he declared was to last for ever.

WORKS MEMORIZED

Yet in 221 B.C. he died after a reign of only nine years. And almost at once all traces of his work vanished, and the principles of Confucianism reigned again in state and family. Some of the books escaped the fire; many scholars knew by heart every word they contained and rewrote them.

Shih Hwang-ti imposed the only totalitarian rule that China has ever known, down to the time of the present leader, Mao Tse-tung. Absolute though subsequent Emperors may have been, the fundamental will of the Chinese people was respected. And since the time of Shih Hwang-ti, the hold of Confucianism has never relaxed.

Confucius traced a pattern of life, for individuals and states alike, as he believed it to have been under the Sage Emperors of, say, 3,000 B.C., although no date can possibly be given. He saw the Emperor as the apex of a huge triangle composed of innumerable small triangles, the many families of Chinese. The conduct, the moral example, of the Emperor was the key to the good conduct and prosperity of the whole state. And this would be repeated for each family by its head, and no sin could be worse than filial impiety.

Events in modern China make their own pointed comment on this teaching. The greatest Chinese scholar and liberal thinker of today is Dr. Hu Shih. He is now in the United States. And in Peking recently his son publicly disowned his father, and denounced his "pernicious views".

OPENS WING OF MERCY—Surrounded by a group of orphans, Claire Booth Luce, U.S. ambassador to Italy, speaks with a group of young Sicilians during a visit to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Hospital, in Palermo, Italy. She came to open a new wing to the hospital, which was built with U.S. aid.

Suspect Killer Held For Check

GREEN RIVER, Wyo. (AP)—A fingerprint check apparently was all that stood between Albert Burns, 26, and freedom today as officers pushed their search for a suspected killer.

Burns, an unemployed railroad fireman, has been held here for investigation in connection with the Dec. 9, 1952, slaying of a Buffalo, N. Y., jeweler. But sheriff Mike Maher said Burns gave "satisfactory" answers Wednesday to questions provided by Buffalo police.

He said Burns apparently is cleared of suspicion, but will be held to await a final check of his fingerprints submitted to Washington.

Maher said Burns answered the description of Ralph Grubisich, 30, of Windsor, Ont., named by two companions convicted at Buffalo of first-degree murder in the hold-up-slaying of jeweler Donald F. Hurd. The companions, Maurice O'Dell and Walter Griffen of Hamilton, Ont., are awaiting execution at Sing Sing.

Pleads Nots Guilty To Charge Of Theft

CORUNNA (CP) — Maurice Garon, 20, of RR 1 Welland Wednesday was remanded to Jan. 5 on a charge of stealing two television sets, a mantel radio, and electric toaster and a clock from a garage Dec. 9. He pleaded not guilty.

Two Sarnia men, Paul Stevenson and Richard Last, were previously charged with the theft. Provincial police said a fourth man, now in jail in the United States, is also wanted on the charge.

Record Expected

LONDON (Reuters)—British aircraft exports reached a record of £64,000,000 this year, the Society of British Aircraft Constructors announced today. The 1952 figure was £44,000,000.

CANADA'S DWINDLING MERCHANT FLEET loses another ship as the Mont Alta sails for Britain where she will continue operating under the registry of that country.

Threatened Polar Weather Moves Before Warm Air

TORONTO (CP) — That threatened polar bear weather is going to stay out of southern Ontario after all.

The word from the weather man today was that a flow of warm air, moving east and south from the Minneapolis - Duluth region, promises moderating temperatures, followed by a comparatively cold spell tonight. Another low pressure area headed east should send the thermometer up again New Year's Day.

FEARED THE WORST

The forecast found southern Ontario residents bracing themselves for what they had expected would be perhaps the coldest weather in years.

They knew Armstrong in northwestern Ontario had reported 57 below zero. Lows Wednesday elsewhere in the north ranged from 48 below at White River, 42 below at Kapuskasing, 15 below at Sault Ste Marie, 19 below at Sudbury, 14 below at North Bay to two below at Muskoka airport.

The southerners feared the arctic air would roll down to freeze the marrow of such areas as the Toronto district where the normal temperature at this time is between a low of 20 degrees above zero and a high of 32 above.

In Toronto and other cities along the lower lakes, residents anxiously checked the antifreeze in their car radiators, dug out engine block heaters, took a look at the coal bin and the fuel oil tank, hunted up their heavy overcoats and ear muffs and waited for the invasion of the piercing cold.

The forecast called for an overnight low of zero in Toronto and about five degrees lower in the suburbs. In Toronto, zero feels a good deal colder than 20 below in Sudbury or 30 below in Kirkland Lake.

But the temperature didn't plummet. At 9:30 p. m. the weather office at suburban Malton said in a forecast:

"Southern Ontario's clear cold weather will be interrupted by some cloudiness and occasional snow on Thursday as a weak disturbance moves through central Ontario tonight and Thursday."

Coldsprings WI Holds New Year's Dance

Coldsprings (ENS)—Yuletide decorations, hats, horns, balloons and noisemakers were the highlights of the New Year dance, held Tuesday night at the Coldsprings hall.

The dance was sponsored by the Coldsprings Women's Institute, and was convened by Mrs. Jack Gordon and the party committeé. Music was supplied by Jack Minifies' Rice Lake Islanders.

The married couples illimination dance prize was won by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stinson, Cobourg. Spot dance prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. Humphries, Orillia and Mr. and Mrs. Keith West, Port Hope.

The Cinderella dance was won by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Timlin.

Single couples illimination dance prize was won by Garnet West and partner, Plainville. Paul McIntosh won the door prize.

Many birthdays and wedding anniversaries were announced, with musical selections played in the honor of those celebrants.

Guests were present from Campbellford, Cobourg, Port Hope Canton, Fenella, Roseneath, Orillia, Oshawa, aBltimore and Plainville.

Traffic Snarl

LONDON (CP) — Westminster city council after four years' study has given up attempts to solve the traffic problem at Covent Garden market, London's wholesale vegetable and fruit centre. The market's own traffic gets snarled with that of patrons of several theatres.

Pollution Problem

LONDON (CP) — Damage to cockle-shell beds by oil waste in the River Thames led the Kent and Essex sea fisheries committee to ask the London port authority to institute preventive measures.

FAR AWAY PLACES—This picture of the Spiral Nebulae Messier 81 was taken through the 200-inch Hale telescope atop Mount Palomar, Calif. The Spiral Nebulae, in the constellation Ursa Major, is now estimated to be about 7,000,000 light years from the earth, or 42,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles. The new computation is more than four times that of one made 15 years ago.

GRECIAN DRAPE—This Grecian-draped white jersey evening dress with golden-bronze cloak, designed by Scots-born Ronald Paterson, newest member of London's "inner circle" of haute couture, was one of the British designs chosen for display in Australia during the Queen's tour. Paterson's Canadian-born wife is a former Canadian newspaper woman, Steven Stevenson. She is a working partner in his business and he credits her with much of his success.

Man-Wife Fashion Team Enter Great Inner Circle

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The newest member of London's "inner circle" of haute couture, Scots-born Ronald Paterson, gallantly gives credit for much of his success to his Toronto-born wife, Stevie.

Mrs. Paterson says she even had to talk her husband into starting his own fashion business.

"Without someone to handle the financial side he would not have done it," says Mrs. Paterson with a laugh. "He refuses even to bother about the prices charged for the clothes he designs."

BIG SUCCESS

Now, in less than five years, this husband-and-wife fashion team has built up a large business. Paterson's name has just been added to the select few who make up the Incorporated society of London Fashion Designers.

The society, now nown as the "Big Twelve," started after the Second World War and includes such members as Norman Hartnell, Hardy Amies and Victor Stiebel, all three serving the Royal Family. Membership has become the beacon light for up-and-coming designers, a coveted seal of recognition.

The Patersons married in 1948 and started the salon in February, 1949. They admit it was an uphill fight, and sometimes wondered whether it was worth it.

Mrs. Paterson, who wrote under such names as Myrtle, Barbara and Steven Stevenson, has one nostalgic regret. As the working wife of a foremost couturier she has little time for writing and sometimes recalls with regret days when she wrote for Canadian publications such as Saturday Night. She hopes it won't be long now before she can show Toronto to her husband and four-year-old daughter Candice.

IMPORTANT YEAR

This year will be one of the most important in Paterson's designing career. His spring collection will be the first shown as a member of the "Big Twelve."

The partnership started business with a staff of eight on one floor of a house in London's Belgravia. They now employ 80 persons and occupy four floors. Clients include the young and beautiful Countess of Dalkeith. The clothes they sell are priced from 49 to 200 guineas.

On the designing side, Mrs. Paterson helps her husband with the choices of materials. After wartime service with the Canadian Army in Britain and Europe, she spent her rehabilitation grant studying fabric and the fashion markets in Paris.

Mrs. Paterson joined the army in 1942 and spent some time in Ottawa writing educational precis for army lectures. She later came to Britain and Europe to interview war brides bound for Canada and arrange shipping space for returning troops. In all she interviewed 15,000 brides.

The Patersons strike a Canadian note at home. Their four-roomed mews flat in London's west end is hung with five paintings by Canadian artist Pierre de Ligny Boudrou, now in Ottawa.

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP)—Large herring feeds were held after the west coast herring fleet gave townspeople all the fresh fish they could carry. The boats had only light catches and fishermen figured it was not worth while going to Vancouver plants on that trip.

Twenty-five dollars was transferred from the general purpose to the organ fund. The collection for the month was $104.94 with an additional $12 donation.

Miss E. Cadd thanked those who took part in the entertainment. Mrs. T. F. Doughty and her group served refreshments.

Three Women Outstanding In 1953 Local History

A search for 1953 highlights in the public lives of women of Peterborough points up three women citizens in particular.

One has won international fame and acclaim for herself and 12 young women of the city and has put the name "Peterborough" on movie and television screens, and in radio and newspaper reports throughout two countries.

Another has brought this city to the notice of most newspaper readers in Ontario by the report of her election as the first woman alderman of Peterborough.

The other woman is mainly responsible for a most worthwhile welfare project, the Peterborough School for Retarded Children, and while it has become a matter of general civic concern, her name has remained in the background, although she continues to be a tireless worker.

The three women are: Mrs. Pansy Forbes, Mrs. Alene Holt and Mrs. Edward Chambers.

Mrs. Forbes, coach of Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club, took a team of 12 senior swimmers to Florida in August and won the international synchronized swimming championship from skilled U.S.A. competitors. Mrs. Holt was elected alderman for 1954 and '55 on December 7th with the second largest majority of five elected candidates. Mrs. Chambers as welfare chairman of the Local Council of Women, visited parents of children not eligible for public school teaching because of low IQ, aroused their interest to meet together and to form the Council for Retarded Children which in September hired a teacher and opened the first school for such children here.

The activities of the various women's cultural, civic and church organizations were carried on throughout 1953 with little noticeable variation. Numerous afternoon teas were held, mostly as money-making projects, with the peak number of 22 in November followed closely by October with 19. In each month there was one Wednesday on which there were six such events.

In the last week of May and the first week of June there were four Coronation teas and five Coronation dances held to celebrate the crowning of Queen Elizabeth II. A number of citizens were in London, England, at that time and saw the actual coronation, including Mayor and Mrs. Hugh Waddell.

Peak month for weddings was July when several large industries closed for annual vacation periods. On July 18th there were 30 ceremonies took place in the churches of this city, and there were 15 on the following Saturday. These were not record numbers however, though the score is still higher than in '52.

The Christmas season seemed to be taken more than ever "in stride" by Peterborough women. Heeding the yearly propaganda they "shopped early" and the last few days before the 25th of December found them quietly going ahead with preparations for the big meal.

This state of affairs suits the store clerks and the mailmen very well, but there have been complaints uttered in many homes that "something is taken away from the Christmas celebration when there is no "last minute rush."

There are still a few hours in which to catch up if anyone thinks they have been poorly done by in 1953. There will be many house parties in the city tonight and all the local dance spots and theatres are making a bid for help in greeting the little New Year—who just might have a whole lot of surprises in store for the next 12 months.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Short On Faults—Long On Virtues

Out of the earth, the rose,
Out of the night, the dawn;
Out of my heart, with all its woes.
High courage to press on.

LAURA LEE RANDALL

Folks are so much better than they are worse that an interesting game could be played perpetually hunting virtues—instead of the old dismal pastime of ripping people to pieces to find their faults.

Sometimes faults are called shortcomings. In a short article I ran across last night I found the writer emphasizing what she called "longcomings".

It appealed to me immensely for all of us are eagerly trying to make a go of it. Some of us reluctantly because we hate work. Some doggedly carry on because they love people and life.

May I tell you a story?

It is about a woman who was my Sunday School teacher a quarter of a century ago. I seldom if ever mention her in this column for she is too precious—almost too precious to me to share.

But that's not the attitude. The very reverse is true of her. She shares everything.

When she was married her whole Sunday School class was invited to her wedding. For many of them it was the first time they were wedding guests and I was one of those. An awkward kid in a borrowed wedding hat, but thrilled and brimming to the eyes.

While her husband was still a university student, working his own way through college, she made us all welcome in her new home. One Saturday I dropped in at noon with the obvious excuse of delivering some church papers, but hoping I'd be invited for lunch. I was. We had one big baked potato each, and an omelette, served on the simple little platter with hot water compartment underneath that my sister and I had given them. (To this day she never forgets to use, when you are in her home, any little gift you have made over the past years.)

Although I see her only about once a year, she has been the same ever since, and now is taking my youngsters on because they are in her city.

This Fall we were there for dinner. There were ten people at the table. Dinner was more elaborate than the omelette and baked potato lunch of a former year, for her husband is a highly paid executive, and she is an imaginative cook. But they live in the same 7-room house. The dining-room is too small to hold more than ten.

But their surplus money is not spent on house or furnishings. It's spent on food—food to feed the hundreds of friends that yearn for their companionship.

I believe they could easily afford a $25,000 home and a Cadillac, if their standards of friendly living were not so urgent.

I doubt that she is naive but this conversation makes her sound so. We had asked how a certain family were getting along (the husband is a junior member of her husband's firm). She said "Getting along! They have a house twice the size of this. I've never seen it because we weren't invited but they say it's beautiful and in perfect order. How other people keep their homes so beautiful and orderly I don't know."

I do. Nobody moves in them. Nobody wants to visit their owners. Order and meticulous cleanliness are more important than friendly—and hungry—visitors. This woman not only gives you good food to satisfy your hunger but she gives you food for thought to satisfy your hungry spirit.

As the old year closes and I momentarily yearn to have the chesterfield recovered, or ache to buy Marianne a mouton coat or Pete a Leica camera, I know I can't afford any of them. But these material possessions lose their glamor, for my friends' smiling faces and the love of my family fill my life to overflowing—all because I think of my constant source of strength that charges folk like Irene. Long on "longcomings" is she.

A choir of heavenly voices will burst their lungs with rejoicing when she comes to heaven's portals.

May your new year be filled with rejoicing and happiness.

DOROTHY DIX

Mother Bothered Because Girl Dates Only One Boy

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem, I know, is shared by many mothers of teen-agers. It's the question of "going steady." My daughter is just 17, and has been dating one exclusively for the past year. I tell her constantly to make other dates since I think this tendency of going steady is all wrong. I am thinking of seeing the boy's mother and explaining the situation before it gets out of hand. Youngsters today want more freedom from their parents, then they proceed to tie themselves down.

Jessie N.

ANSWER: The custom of going steady is by no means new, though that seems to be the general impression. It's just that it's gone by different names over the years. We've had courting, wooing, walking out, and keeping company. Each in its own period has amounted to the same thing, and perhaps there's something in Kipling's observation that: "Pleasant the snaffle of Courtship, improving the manners and carriage."

Today's version of the problem is indeed provocative to a teenager's parents, and I agree that it does seem contrary for a youngster to argue for more freedom, then tie herself down to one boy. The system, however, is not entirely pernicious. It provides social security for the young lady, at the age when security is much more important than we are inclined to believe. It does give her a good chance to understand thoroughly at least one member of the opposite sex, and—as a note of encouragement—rarely do early teenage attachments wind up too seriously. A steady boy friend in high school is usually left behind when the girl departs into the college or the business world, where she soon collects another masculine heart.

At any rate, no matter how many arguments are advanced pro and con, the current tendency towards "steady company" is here to stay. Two or three dates seem to be sufficient basis for going steady, and almost all girls are unhappy if they can't boast of a steady boy friend. Much more important than the state of friendship is the character of the young man. If he's the kind of boy you approve as a friend for your girl, don't be too upset. Talking to the boy's mother, and getting her angle, isn't a bad idea. At least, it will give you a chance to become acquainted with her.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widow with a 10-year-old son. I've been going with a successful business man for the last year, and am in love with him. He says he'd like to marry me someday, but not until my son is on his own. He doesn't feel obligated to care for another man's child. The boy is a fine youngster, has never given me any trouble, is bright in school and well liked by all who know him. I think my love is fading.

JEWEL

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: And a good thing it is fading! Could you seriously contemplate marriage with a man who would want you to disown your child? Any man worth your love would be proud to help to bring up the boy. Just say good riddance to a selfish apology for a man.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife is a talented musician but such a poor housekeeper that I can't stand it much longer. She is a fine cook, but cannot keep the home tidy. I hate to bring guests home.

L. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A fine cook and a talented musician! With those assets any obstacles can be overcome. Surely your wife could turn her musical aptitude to some use that would in turn produce money to pay some person to do the house cleaning. Your wife has been given one gift, but the talent for orderliness has been denied her. Don't try to change her: find a solution for the problem along the lines I've indicated. If your friends are invited to a delicious, home-cooked dinner, followed by musical entertainment, they won't care who cleaned house.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm graduating from high school in June and would like to know how to make friends. I've never had at date, never even had a girl friend. My parents have been strict, but are now willing for me to have friends. Where can I meet them?

Alice A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Try for a job in a large company. Here you will meet many girls, and some boys, in your age group. These girls, too, will be recent graduates, seeking new friends. Just be responsive to their overtures, pleasant to your co-workers, and I doubt if you'll be friendless long.

6—In Memoriam

CHIMENTI—In loving memory of my dear husband Peter Chimenti, who passed away January 1, 1951.
He is gone, but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In my lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness still come o'er me
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.
—Ever remembered by his wife.

CHIMENTI—In loving memory of a dear father, Peter Chimenti, who passed away January 1, 1951.
Three years have passed dear father
Since you were called away;
How well do we remember
That sad and weary day.
You suffered much, you murmured not,
We watched you day by day;
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.
—Ever remembered by daughter Virginia, Dorothy, Irene, sons-in-law and children.

WILSON—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Margaret K. Wilson, who passed away December 31, 1949.
There is never a day that passes by
But our thoughts reach out to you,
Never a joy that comes our way
But we wish you could share it, too.
We miss your love, your cheery ways.
Please, God, just let her know
That we down here do not forget,
We love and miss her so.
—Lovingly remembered by husband and daughter Audrey.

U.K. Vicar Joins Labor Union

BOGNOR REGIS, England (Reuters)—An Anglican churchman today joined a labor union in order to soothe ruffled feelings over his reworded "fourth commandment" for the modern working man.

In addition, Dr. W. G. Sinclair Snow, vicar of this south coast town, apologized for his satirical paraphrasing from the pulpit of the commandment: "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy."

Labor leaders protested to the bishop of Chichester, Dr. G. K. A. Bell, last September when the vicar issued the following "revision" of the fourth:

"Remember that thou go easy in the evil necessity of work. Five days thou may'st labor with every possible rest for tea.

"On the sixth day, or the seventh, thou may'st do overtime at double rates, for this is the law of the unions.

"On the seventeenth day, thou canst please thyself about bed or sport and read the Sunday newspapers."

Two Men Rescue Auto Occupants

DETROIT (AP) — Two pedestrians risked their lives to save a man and a woman trapped in a flaming automobile early today.

The car and a taxi both burst into flame when they collided and explosions ensued.

The fire from the burning car at one time swept upward "as high as the telephone pole," a witness said.

Pulled to safety were Milford A. Bolling, 27, and Mrs. Eula M. Sliger, 33. They were on their way home from the night shift at an auto plant. Both were hospitalized with serious face burns.

Joseph Battle and Robert Norman were the rescuers.

Petes Go Into Second

Olinski played with a broken stick—a cardinal offence as far as the Petes are concerned—but no penalty was inflicted.

End to end rushing ensued and thrills were numerous. MacGregor missed on a fast, wide shot, and had no better luck a minute later. Goodyears, however, maintained the pressure and at 14:48 MacGregor, aided by Nicholson and Jack McKeown, cut the Petes' margin to one. MacGregor tried again after breaking ahead of the pack, but was overtaken in the nick of time and his shot was deflected. Following a face-off in the Petes defence zone Nicholson fired a scorcher, but it went wide of the post. No let up occurerd, and the outcome remained in doubt until Fryia, who had attacked in conjunction with Leonard and Montgomery, beat Johnson at 17:49. Thereafter the visitors laid down an organized checking barrage in nailing down a well-earned triumph. Goodyears tried valiantly to pull the verdict from the fire, but were doomed to disappointment.

Teams:

Petes — Goal, Donlevy; defence, Leonard and Munro; centre, Garvey; wings, Fryia and Greenlaw; alternates, Redmond, McMaster, Prentice, Peterson, Belisle Hill, Crowley and Montgomery.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The whaler Signa, which caught more than 2,000 whales off the Scottish, West African and Labrador coasts before becoming unseaworthy, was towed out of harbor here and scuttled. She had been idle for six years.

Coup D'etat Reported Unsuccessful

ROME (AP) — The Free Albanian Committee in Rome said today an unsuccessful coup d'etat against Albania's Communist regime has been admitted by the Communist Tirana Radio.

A member of the committee said that a broadcast Wednesday from the Albanian capital said an attempt at armed insurrection was recently unearthed by police in the small and isolated Soviet Adriatic satellite.

Tirana Radio claimed that the insurrection was planned with the help of "spies and agents introduced into Albania by American information services," the committee said.

The Free Albanian Committee is an anti-Communist refugee organization headquartered in Rome.

Poultry Sales Reported Good

TORONTO (CP) — Excellent poultry sales were recorded all over the province during the festive season, the Ontario department of agriculture reported today.

In Huron county one turkey producer said nearly all of his 9,000 birds were sold.

The 29th annual Christmas poultry fair and sale at Meaford in Grey county had an estimated 20 tons of poultry.

In Peterborough and Dundas counties there were fewer local turkeys than last year. Algoma county noted a 50 per cent drop in turkey production.

Snow provided protection for wheat and meadows throughout most of the province. Sections of Huron county recorded a fall of at least 18 inches.

Car Passengers Hurt In Road Collision

BRACEBRIDGE (CP) — Three Windsor residents are in the hospital with undetermined injuries as the result of a collision today between their auto and an oil truck about three miles north of Bracebridge.

Injured are Alec Bissette, 51, Windsor, driver of the car, Marcel Bisette, 28, and Jean Bisette.

Fumes Invade Alley Bowlers' Quick Exit

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Play in a Niagara Falls bowling alley halted suddenly Wednesday night. All the bowlers fled outdoors when a broken pipe in the refrigeration system filled the premises with sulphur dioxide fumes.

One, William Jones, was treated by Niagara Falls firemen who used an inhalator to revive him. He was taken to his home by ambulance.

LOUD VOICE

ALOHA, MR. NEW YEAR—As dignified as any world statesman sitting for an official portrait, Timothy Fern appears to share none of the reservations that adults hold for the coming year. Attired in a top hat and bow tie, Tim was chosen "Mr. 1954 of the Hawaiian Islands."

Some Cobourg Stores To Close Saturday

COBOURG (ENS) — Some stores will close on Saturday of this week while others will remain open. Unlike Boxing Day when all the merchants closed their places of business, there is no uniformity this Saturday.

The president of the Retail Merchants' Association polled the members but there was no unanimous decision. Some stores were open Wednesday in accordance with the custom that they remain open on a Wednesday in which a holiday occurs in the same week, while others closed.

Saturday, the chain stores will be open but some of the other grocery stores will close. Customers wanting to restock their larders will have to shop around until they they find a store that is open for business.

Elevator Trick Profitable Business

PARIS (CP)—The Frenchman's flair for flattery pays off in a new form of felony causing chuckles in sophisticated circles.

Here's the gambit:

A wealthy woman hurries home from a jewelry shop or bank. On the way to her apartment, the elevator jams between two floors.

A man appears on the staircase cage. After a few well-chosen gallantries, he offers to help the lady climb out of the metal cage.

She hands him her purse and voila! The man disappears.

Police report more than 200 cases of the elevator trick, known to Paris newspapers as the "coup de l'ascenseur."

EXPERTS HANDY

LONDON (CP)—A cow which escaped during livestock unloadings at King's Cross depot roamed for several blocks, but reached a handy spot. The animal was cornered in the yard of the Royal Veterinary College.

REAL WORKERS

WALTHAM ST. LAWRENCE, England (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bradley not only built their own house in this Berkshire village—they made each of the bricks on a home-made brick-making machine.

U.K. General To Command Canadian Units

LONDON (CP) — Starting next October, Canadian soldiers in Europe will be under command of Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, Britain's "strong man" in Malaya.

The dynamic 55-year-old general is to become commander of the Northern Army Group, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization unit to which the 5,000-odd men of Canada's 1st Infantry Brigade group in Germany are attached. This army group, in turn, is under French Marshal Alphone Juin, commander of Allied land, sea and air forces in central Europe.

Templer is to succeed Gen. Sir Richard Gale.

Pending his move to Europe in October, Templer is to stay on as high commissioner in Malaya.

Theatre Charges Dismissed

NEW YORK (CP) — Four-year-old government anti-trust charges accusing the Shubert brothers of monopolizing the legitimate theatrical business in the United States were thrown out of court Wednesday.

Federal judge John C. Knox dismissed the suit, which also named theatre operator Marcus Heiman, in addition to the theatre empire-builders, Jacob J. (J. J.) and Lee Shubert.

Lee Shubert died last week.

In his ruling, Judge Knox referred to the Supreme Court's action last month in refusing to overturn a 1922 decision that the business of providing professional baseball games was not subject to anti-trust laws.

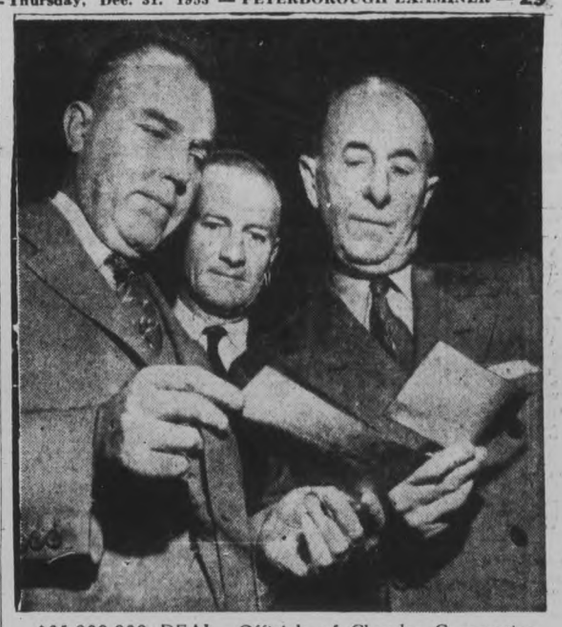
Judge Knox said the same principle applied to the Shubert case.

Burglar Uses Ladder To Escape Detectives

TORONTO (CP) — A shopbreaking suspect fled down a ladder inside a skylight of a cleaning store today despite four warning shots fired by a detective. A second man, John A. Forget, 18, of Ottawa was arrested.

Detective Tanton Wedge said he watched through the skylight as two men smashed open a cash drawer and stole $70.

Predict Appointment Of Power To Senate



OTTAWA (CP) — The Journal says today in a news story the appointment of Hon. C. G. Power to the Senate is anticipated in 1954.

Mr. Power, 65-year-old wartime air minister, is the Liberal member for Quebec South and dean of the Commons in years of service. He has been in the House continuously since 1917.

He left the cabinet in 1944 in disagreement with the government's conscription policy.

Switzerland Has Created 36-Ship Merchant Fleet

By JOHN MYERS

BERNE (Reuters) — Neutral Switzerland has created a 36-ship national merchant fleet designed to assure her essential overseas supply lines in case of a third world war.

A full maritime code for the new fleet has been approved by the federal assembly and will come into force Jan. 1.

Among the main conditions for registering an ocean-going ship as Swiss, with the right to fly the Swiss flag, are that the owners must be Swiss and have their head office in Switzerland. All shareholders in an owning company must be Swiss and at least three-quarters of them, representing three-quarters of the total capital, must be resident in Switzerland.

1,000 MEN SAIL

Basle, the main Swiss port on the Rhine, is the only port of registration for Swiss ocean-going ships.

About 1,000 men sail under the Swiss flag at present but only some 25 per cent of them are Swiss nationals. Swiss shipping companies, with the encouragement of the federal authorities, are working to train more men to be deep-sea sailors.

The fleet has grown into one of the most modern and best equipped in the world. Twenty of the 36 ships were built after 1948. The fleet comprises 21 cargo ships, 12 coasters, two oil tankers and one tanker specially fitted for carrying wine.

9,000-Foot-High Peak Challenges Best Of Antarctic's Climbers

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Big Ben, the 9,000-foot-high peak dominating Heard Island, Australia's weather outpost in the Antarctic, will loom defiant and unconquered for at least another year.

Big Ben is vulnerable for only about four weeks every year, in November and December, when the Antarctic summer is setting in but before the ice starts to melt and giant blocks break away to crash down.

A three-man party, members of the 1953 Australian Antarctic research expedition to Heard island, has returned to the weather base at the foot of the mountain with a graphic story of the hardships they suffered—and the news that their attempt to conquer the peak failed, as have three previous attempts.

This year's party climbed to 5,000 feet, the highest yet, before it was driven back by blizzards and short rations, after 18 days.

The party, roped together, pressed on up the mountain to a point immediately below the summit slopes, overlooking the Gotley glacier. A blizzard then struck and their tent was buried for five days by snow 15 inches above the ridge pole.

Production Slump Due To Strikers

OTTAWA (CP) — Strikes in the mining industry caused a sharp slump in Canada's October production of gold, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The output dropped to 284,266 fine ounces from the October, 1952, total of 403,058. The 10-month production this year was 3,519,931 ounces against 3,692,327 in the same period of 1952.

Ontario's production in October fell to 142,244 fine ounces from 216,481 in the same month last year, and Quebec's to 64,684 fine ounces from 94,509.

Indians Discard Storage Methods Used By Their Forefathers For White Man's Deep Freeze

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—Indians of Saskatchewan's far north have discarded storage methods used by their forefathers in favor of the white man's deep freeze.

At the end of the caribou hunting season this winter the northern tribes will store their winter meat supplies free of charge in a gigantic deep freeze, installed at Stony Rapids by the department of Indian affairs.

The freezer has 8,000 cubic feet of storage space. The warehouse has been built as a means of conserving the dwindling herds of migrating caribou, the main food supply of Indians.

The time-honored practice of the Indians was to shoot as many caribou as they could, store them by piling the carcasses and cover them with layers of snow and brush. If undisturbed, this natural freezer would keep the meat fresh until summer.

WASTEFUL PRACTICE

However, Indian affairs officials and provincial conservation officers considered the method wasteful. Far more animals were killed than could be eaten and wolves and other animals destroyed many piles.

O. B. McNeill, conservation officer at Stony Rapids said that in 1900 more than 2,000,000 caribou made the annual trek from the barren lands. By 1951 the annual migration dropped to 650,000 and this year the number will be even fewer.

In addition to providing the freezer, Indian affairs officials and conservation officers are encouraging northerners to build stockpiles of fish as dog food rather than use their own stores of meat. The officials have convinced the Indians of the necessity of killing no more caribou than they actually need.

Seek To Learn If Drake First To Sight Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Parkington seeks to find out if Sir Francis Drake was the first white navigator to sight Vancouver island shores.

The Berkeley, Calif., historian and member of the Drake Navigators' Guild is making extensive research into the historic voyage of the Golden Hinde.

In British Columbia he studied ancient maps in Victoria archives and at Vancouver museum.

Sir Francis remained for 36 days at Drake's bay, and rammed the Golden Hinde on the beach there. The navigators' guild has gone over every inch of the bay shore seeking remains of the stone blockhouse that Drake built and other relics.

NOTHING ELSE FOUND

However, nothing has been found to equal in importance the original brass plate that Drake affixed to a tree to commemorate his visit. This plate was found 20 years ago and now is on display in Bancroft Library at Berkeley.

Many historians believe Drake's first landfall on the Pacific coast was near Nootka sound June 20, 1579. He did not land, but continued southward to Drake's bay, north of San Francisco, where he named the land New Albion, and claimed it for Elizabeth I.

An account published by Hakluyt in 1589 describes the location of New Albion as being "on the back side of Canada," a description not relished by many Californians.

A FACT!

In all probability the greatest single force in adult education is Your Newspaper. When you completed your formal education some years ago, the event was celebrated as your Commencement. It was then that you really commenced to learn. From that day to this you have learned constantly from Your Newspaper. Deep within you, even though you may not have thought much about it, you realize this and appreciate it. That perhaps is why you'd rather miss a meal than your newspaper. For well you know that any and every issue may bring you a tip, an idea, a suggestion, a thought—either inspiration or information that you can put right to work and keep it working for you the rest of your life.

Burlington Liar Named "Flower Of American Falsehood"

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP)—Bee McIntyre of Richmond, Va., a liar with a penchant for detail, was named today by the Burlington Liars Club as the flower of American falsehood.

A cast-iron kettle "about three feet across and about two feet deep," won McIntyre the title of "world's champion liar" for 1953 because the kettle was swept off its feet by the strongest wind ever imagined.

McIntyre store:

"The strongest wind I ever heard of hit our place last summer, along with a slam-bang thunderstorm. The wind was so strong that it picked up our cast-iron wash kettle (about three feet across and about two feet deep) and blew it out of the country.

"And the wind blew that kettle so fast that while it was sailing across our front yard the lightning struck at it five times — and missed."

McIntyre succeeds Harry V. Cummings of Dallas, Tex., who took the 1952 honors with a tale about mosquitoes he encountered in Korea. Although they were six feet tall they decided to devour him on the spot because they feared that "if we carry him home the big mosquitoes will take him away from us."

BOTTLED FED FISH

Another Texan, L. C. McRoberts of Kingsville, this year won honorable mention which is awarded by the judges to fabrications which, according to the club's rules of crystalline deceit, didn't quite make the grade.

McRoberts wrote: "During drought years on the south Texas coast, Baffin bay becomes so salty that the fishermen use a bottle of fresh water with a nipple on it for bait."

Ray Chitwood, Lost Creek, Wash. if his honorable mention tale is believed, almost was killed learning about a deer with incredible reflexes.

"Last fall I pretty near got shot while deer hunting," wrote Chitwood. "Coming around a bend in the trail I saw a large buck standing, looking away from me.

"I shot the deer in the back of the head. He turned around so quick to see where the shot came from that the bullet came out between his eyes and went right back into the rifle barrel."

Warm Spot

TIVIDALE, England (CP)—Surface sprinklers are being used to extinguish a fire in abandoned coalmines under this taffordshire area where some of the soil has become too hot to touch and radishes sprout in three days. Residents feared their house foundations would be weakened by the hot soil.

Oil Still In Second Place Land Main Source Wealth

EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta's industrial expansion in the light of its six-year-old oil boom shows oil and natural gas still running second to agriculture.

The land continues the main source of wealth, providing a direct livelihood for approximately 340,000 of the province's 1,000,000 residents.

The number of farms has increased nine-fold in the last 50 years. There were 9,479 farms in 1901 and today more than 84,000.

The gross value of agriculture production was 50 times greater in 1952 than in 1906. Field crops supply almost three-quarters of agriculture production from the 44,459,632 acres of occupied farmland. Every year more than 7,000,000 acres are sown to wheat and more than 5,000,000 acres to coarse grains.

While oil and gas must still be considered secondary, they may in time rival or surpass farming in Alberta's economy.

Alberta has been producing crude oil for about 40 years but it wasn't until February, 1947, when the Leduc field was brought in, that the province got into the business in a big way.

The province's proven reserves of crude oil were estimated at Dec. 31, 1952, at 1,526,389,000 barrels. At June 30 last, natural gas reserves were 11,500,000,000,000, sufficient for the first time to permit large-scale export.

The 4,000 oil wells in operation in 1952 produced 58,915,723 barrels, more than five times the cumulative total of all crude produced from 1914 to 1937 when the main producing area was Turner valley in the south.

GAS PRODUCTION

The 40 natural gas fields in the province produced 95,697,342,000 cubic feet of natural gas last year from 243 wells. Forty-one per cent of this gas was for domestic use, 34 per cent for industrial use and 25 per cent was used commercially.

Coal mining has declined in recent years but as a natural resource it still has an immense potential value.

Total reserves are set at 47,884,300,000 tons. Total production from 1886 to 1952 was approximately 268,000,000 tons valued at $935,000,000—or an average over the 67 years of 4,000,000 tons a year.

Forests cover half the province but of this 130,620 square mile area, only 60,000 acres are occupied by timber of marketable size.

Meteorite Hits Human Every 350 Years

By FRANK CAREY

BOSTON (AP) Scientists on earth only one every 350 years on the average—and now it seems one has struck someone wearing a tin hat!

This indication of how times are getting ever tougher for meteorites came out in a talk before the American Association for the Advancement of Science whose 120th meeting ends today.

Dr. H. H. Nininger of the American meteorite museum in Arizona reported that a tiny object having all the external earmarks of a meteorite struck a construction worker "on his tin hat" after first richocheting off a drilling rig.

At least, said Nininger, that's what the man told him. The "beaning" happened several years ago, but Nininger made it public today.

Nininger said he tested the object in his laboratory—and he think it was a meteorite.

Meteorites, believed to be fragments of exploded planets, exist in the millions and are of all sizes. Only a few ever reach the earth and still fewer are recovered. Some 24,000,000 a day are consumed in the atmosphere.

LITTLE DANGER SEEN

In case you're worried about getting hit, Dr. Fred L. Whipple of Harvard, an expert on the subject of meteorites, told a reporter:

"Meteorites that reach the earth are mostly very small, some as small as dust particles, but a couple have hit the earth that were big as apartment houses. Fortunately all the large ones have fallen in uninhabited places.

"Only one person out of all the people on earth is struck by a meteorite, every 350 years on the average. There's one unconfirmed report that a monk was killed by one back in the 15th century. Injuries, when they have occurred, have been slight."

EATON'S

New Year's Greetings!

Our Wish for You— Twelve Happy Months, All Year Through!

JANUARY
A happy New Year to you all—
Our friends from coast to coast!
We'd send you each a greeting card
But that would tax the post.

FEBRUARY
Instead, we wish you well this way—
Each month our thoughts outline.
Our hope for February is You'll be our Valentine!

MARCH
In March, the fabled Irish Luck
Is what we wish for you . . .
Four-leafed clover, rabbit's foot
To make your dreams come true.

APRIL
According to the axiom,
This month it's bound to shower;
But may your life be full of sun
With not a cloud to glower.

MAY
The joys we wish for you in May Depend on who you are!
To Mother, May means cleaning time—
To Father, breaking par!

JUNE
Now here's the month for wedding rings—
No time to be pedantic!
So here's a toast to blushing brides
And everything romantic!

JULY
All Hail to camps and cottages
And to the beckoning lake—
And to the new insecticides
That make mosquitoes quake

AUGUST
The dog days often come this month—
The hottest time of all!
But think of how we're saving fuel . . .
Who wants to rush the Fall?

SEPTEMBER
September's here, so back to school
For every little creature,
It's reading, writing, 'rithmetic
And apples for the teacher

OCTOBER
The classroom ties are neutralized
By Hallowe'en and pranks!
And may we all have cause to mark
The day for giving thanks.

NOVEMBER
The team to win this year's Grey Cup
Is something we can't name.
We just express the hope you'll have
A ticket for the game

DECEMBER
We've reached December all too soon,
Our Calendar is done.
So back again to Festive Mood—
Good cheer to Everyone!
